

SENATE MEETING

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1969

3:30 P. M.

MURPHY HALL AUDITORIUM

The voting membership of the Senate totals 209 including the President and 208 elected members. For a quorum, a majority of the voting membership (105) must be present. Constitution changes require advance publication and 140 affirmative votes. Bylaw changes require 105 affirmative votes. Other actions require only a simple majority of members present and voting. The members of the Administrative Committee are ex officio nonvoting members of the Senate.

All members of the faculty who hold regular appointment as defined in the Regulations Concerning Academic Tenure may be present at Senate meetings and are entitled to speak and to offer motions for Senate action, but may not vote.

Members of standing committees who are not faculty, including student members, may be present at a meeting of the Senate during such time as a report of their committee is under discussion and may participate in such discussion, but shall not have the privilege of making motions or of voting.

A special section will be provided for the seating of such faculty and such members of standing committees.

Provision has been made for the University News Service to send the Senate Docket to the news media in advance of each meeting and to arrange a news conference at the close of each meeting with the vice chairman and others he may designate.

ATTENDANCE RECORD

A roll of elected and ex officio members will be circulated during the meeting. Members will please check their names to indicate their presence. If the list misses you, please stop afterward to check your name. The roll, after adjournment, will be on the rostrum.

An attendance record for nonmembers will also be circulated and will be on the rostrum after the meeting.

As voted by the Senate, a summary of the attendance of members elected for the current academic year will be included in the June minutes.

No. 6

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA THE SENATE DOCKET

March 6, 1969

Your Committee on Business and Rules respectfully presents the following matters for consideration:

I. MINUTES OF JANUARY 15 and FEBRUARY 6, 1969

Reported for Action

II. REPORT OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE

1. Reported for Action

1. 1969-70 University Calendar. Mr. Summers introduced the 1969-70 calendar, which had been mailed previously to each member of the committee. He noted that staff and students had been consulted before final approval by the Schedule Committee. Mr. Beatty called attention to Friday, November 28, the day after Thanksgiving, which is to be one of the "floating" holidays for Civil Service personnel, and it was noted that classes would be excused for all students including the Medical School and first- and second-year students in veterinary medicine. It was suggested that Friday, December 26, might be another floating holiday, and it was announced that Legislators', Editors', and Broadcasters' Day would be held on October 4. Mr. Beatty pointed out that meetings of the newly created Twin Cities Assembly had been scheduled to precede meetings of the Senate each quarter, and the President agreed that such timing was appropriate. Also noted was the fact that Friday, May 29, would be a holiday, since the 30th will fall on a Saturday. Mr. Haislet inquired about Cap and Gown Day, and it was decided that May 14 would be the best date, thereby avoiding conflict with the opera schedule and the 3-day weekend at the end of May. Mr. Beatty reported that the quarters provided 51, 49, and 47 instructional days respectively, for a total of 147, which is two more than the 8-10 year average of 145. Mr. Shepherd suggested that the staff directory, which listed February 12 and February 22 as holidays, be corrected to avoid any misunderstanding. Mr. Howard suggested that the calendar also indicate meeting dates for the Assemblies of Duluth and Morris, following which the calendar was approved.

2. Reported for Information

1. Noontime Office Hours. The President urged that wherever possible departmental and collegiate offices be kept open during the lunch period. The point was raised that for some students that hour was the only time available and that they had requested the Minnesota Student Association to petition in their behalf. The Student Senate had accordingly passed a resolution urging that hours be staggered so that no office would be closed. Mr. Summers stated that much of the work of the Office of Admissions and Records depends on effort from departmental offices and some faculty members, and that many of his problems of providing service derived from lack of space and facilities, that many employees needed desk space for lunch, that generally noontime inquiries could be handled at other times, by phone or by mail, and that it would be difficult to spread the work load over the day if there were a great influx of students who preferred to come during the noon hour. Mr. Cashman stressed that many students have only one hour in which to tend to matters requiring such assistance and that having one person in each department to answer the telephone either to assist callers or to advise them when assistance would be available, would be an important factor in maintaining good relationships.

2. National Science Foundation Expenditure Limitations. Mr. Shepherd explained the problems related to the recent cutback in NSF funds and said that, in spite of some relief which had been granted following letters of appeal, research financing would be well below programmed levels. Each department was being asked by Dean Crawford to designate an adviser specifically charged with maintaining close contact with the General Research Advisory Committee so that faculty members would be informed of developments as quickly as possible.

3. Other Graduate School Business. Mr. Boddy called attention to a recent notice to all departmental chairmen and directors of graduate studies indicating that second-year graduate students holding an II-S deferment may file for an IS-C deferment.

In connection with the proposed National Institutional Grants Program under the Miller Bill, Mr. Boddy said that one-third of funds would be apportioned to institutions on the basis of awards received during the previous year from NSF and other departments and agencies of the Federal government, and another third would be allocated on the basis of a formula which necessitates ascertaining the number of first- and second-level graduate students. He said that Mr. Crawford had urged that committee members suggest to him criteria or measures which would enable the Graduate School to make such a count.

Mr. Boddy reported that a letter to the deans with respect to the recruitment of disadvantaged students was in the mail, and that it requested that departments which were interested and able to set up programs for such students indicate to what extent they could earmark funds.

4. Discussion of Legislative Matters. Mr. Wenberg summarized the Governor's budget items, comparing them with the amounts requested by the University. He then listed the scheduled dates for Senate and House hearings on the University request.

5. Honors Committee Recommendation. Mr. Ziebarth presented a fourth requirement to be added to the existing three requirements to be met by a proposed recipient of an honorary degree, namely, that the individual "has made a national or international contribution of exceptional importance which merits honor beyond the recognition warranted for others who might be equally prominent." He commented that the provision had been made to correct the rather provincial approach of the existing policy. A motion to approve the addition was seconded and approved.

All-University Schedule Committee: Delete: Lee Wilcox. Add: Leo Abbott.IV. REPORT OF THE UNIVERSITY FUNCTIONS COMMITTEE

Owing to a conflict with the Metropolitan Opera and the dedication of the O. Meredith Wilson Library, Cap and Gown Day has been moved to May 27, 1969.

V. FACULTY CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

Reported for Information

The committee has held eight meetings to this date. The major topics under discussion have included the following: the University's 1969-71 legislative request; the role of the committee under the new Senate Constitution, effective for the year 1969-70; the problem of student representation in general and specifically on the Consultative Committee; plans for implementation of the report of the Committee on Campus Demonstrations (this report was accepted as University policy at the spring meeting of this Senate in 1968); the planned review of the University's student personnel program under the new vice presidency for student affairs; possible review of the University's business administration and plant services operations; the issues faced by the University in carrying forward long-range planning activities; desirable centralization and extension of the University's educational technology and support facilities.

As appropriate, members of the University's central administration, faculty members of other Senate committees, and other staff have participated in the meetings of the Consultative Committee concerned with the topics listed above. Each of the topics is complex and intricate; none can result in rapid or final solutions; all represent continuing issues for wide consideration by all segments of the University, before a resolution can emerge.

The Consultative Committee has been impressed with the amount of involvement and participation demonstrated throughout the University as we seek to control our own future course of development. We commend especially to the Senate the work of its Planning Committee under the chairmanship of Professor Warren Ibele; we urge full faculty participation in the plans of this committee when they are presented to the Senate for action.

VI. SENATE COMMITTEE ON FACULTY WELFARE

Reported for Action

At the Senate meeting on March 7, 1968, this committee reported on a survey by the Twin Cities Campus Chapter of the American Association of University Professors which revealed that sabbaticals taken have only been one out of six that could have been taken. The survey confirmed this committee's belief that relatively few faculty members take the sabbaticals for which they are eligible and that the principal reason was the half-pay limitation imposed under present policy. Consequently it requested and received Senate endorsement of a recommendation that the University administration review the present sabbatical policy and give serious consideration to the proposals for change made in an AAUP report.

Subsequently President Moos appointed an ad hoc Committee on Sabbatical Leave Policy to consider changes in the present program. On December 18, 1968 that committee submitted the report which follows at the end of business item VI. Basically it recommends that (1) a faculty member on sabbatical leave receive 75 percent of his base pay instead of 50 percent, and (2) the rules on outside income be liberalized. Present eligibility requirements are implicitly assumed to remain the same. Both recommendations are consistent in principle with the earlier recommendations of the AAUP chapter and this committee.

At President Moos' request the Senate Committee on Faculty Welfare has reviewed this report. It now seeks Senate endorsement of this policy statement subject to the following two amendments:

1. Under item 2, Duration of Sabbatical Leaves, the SCFW would permit a faculty member who elects less than a full academic year of sabbatical leave to complete the 1-year total in the following year. The initial sabbatical leave, however, should be for at least 2 quarters. This change would retain for the faculty member one of the options available under present policy.
2. Like the Committee on Sabbatical Leave Policy, philosophically the SCFW believes that improvements in the present sabbatical leave policy should be funded out of new appointment monies. Pragmatically it recognizes that the need for new staff far exceeds the monies available for this purpose without any improvement in sabbatical leave policy. Consequently, like the ad hoc committee, it has reluctantly concluded that if sabbatical leave policy is to be improved the necessary funds must come from salary increase money. At the time the ad hoc committee was completing its deliberations, the University had submitted a request for funds that would make possible on the average 10 percent increases during each of the next 2 years. Although they were not explicit on this point, that committee "appeared to favor earmarking a 1 percent increment over present salaries . . . for the incremental funding required for about 100 sabbaticals at 75 percent of regular base salaries in 1970-71." Since December the Governor has recommended salary improvements of 7½ percent for 1969-70 and 7 percent for 1970-71.

Using salary increase money, however, to fund improvements in sabbaticals reduces the amount available for cost-of-living increases, merit increases, and improvements in fringe benefits. All members of the SCFW agree that sabbatical leave policy should be improved; most, if not all, would place improvements in sabbatical leave policy ahead of improvements in insurance and retirement plans. If the University request for 10 percent salary increases in the next biennium were approved, all members would favor using 1 percent in 1970-71 for the incremental funding required for 100 sabbaticals at 75 percent of regular base salary. If the Governor's request for 7½ percent improvement the first year and 7 percent the second year is granted, all but two members would favor using ½ percent in 1970-71 to make possible 50 sabbaticals at the desired level. The other two believe that at the lower salary improvement levels recommended by the Governor, the entire amount both years is needed for salary increases. The majority believe that it is important to use a small amount in 1970-71 to establish the principle of a more liberal sabbatical leave policy.

C. A. WILLIAMS, JR.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON SABBATICAL LEAVE POLICY

Introduction

The purpose of a sabbatical leave policy is to promote the intellectual growth of faculty members and to avoid faculty obsolescence. That the present University of Minnesota policy is relatively ineffective is evidenced by the fact that the faculty members currently on the staff have taken only one-sixth of the sabbaticals for which they have been eligible. Yet, because of rapid expansion and changes in all fields of knowledge, and the increasing demands on faculty that leave them with less time for "self-enrichment," faculty obsolescence is now a more important threat than ever before. Periodic sabbatical leaves during which a faculty member renews his professional competence may once have been considered a privilege; they have now become a necessity for both the faculty and the University. The cost of such a program represents an investment by the University in its capacity to serve its undergraduate and graduate students, to develop new knowledge through research, and to serve those broader social purposes for which a public university accepts responsibility.

The present sabbatical leave policy is apparently ineffective primarily because it requires so large a financial sacrifice by the faculty member who takes a sabbatical. These sacrifices take two forms. First, the faculty member receives only half of his base pay while on sabbatical leave. Second, there are severe restrictions on the other income that he can earn to supplement his reduced base pay. The recommendations presented here seek to remedy both of these deficiencies. We urge that the recommendations concerning the second point be implemented for the 1969-70 academic year, and that the recommendations concerning the first point be implemented for the 1970-71 academic year.

1. Higher Sabbatical Salary

In principle, the University should regard participation in the sabbatical program, or in closely related professional improvement activities, as the normal responsibility of University staff members to their departments and to the University. Accordingly, the University should seek to provide faculty members on sabbatical leave with full salary support.

It will be difficult to achieve this objective of full sabbatical salary without a period of transition. During such a transition the University can adopt various approaches. It can create a limited new class of sabbaticals that provide full salary while continuing to provide 50 percent salary support for other sabbaticals, and gradually increase the proportion of full-salaried sabbaticals until the 50 percent salary sabbaticals have been absorbed. Alternatively, it can gradually increase the sabbatical salary base by steps, beginning with 75 percent and increasing until sabbaticals carry full salary.

The committee recommends the latter plan, beginning with a uniform 75 percent salary rate, because it seems simpler to administer and fund, avoids competitive and potentially divisive distinctions, and distributes increments in funding over a larger number of sabbaticals. Although the loss of pay associated with any salary rate less than 100 percent will probably deter many faculty from taking their sabbaticals, the progressively higher proportion of full pay, coupled with a liberalized policy regarding other outside income, should enable progressively larger numbers of faculty to participate.

2. Duration of Sabbatical Leaves

Sabbatical projects vary widely among disciplines and individual faculty members. A sabbatical shorter than a full year may often be highly productive, and, during the transitional period when salary support is still below 100 percent, such shorter leaves may be financially more frequently feasible. On the other hand, the provision of extremely brief leaves may jeopardize the objectives of the sabbatical policy. Accordingly, the committee recommends that faculty on B appointments be permitted to choose between 2- and 3-quarter sabbaticals, and faculty on A appointments among 2-, 3- and 4-quarter sabbaticals. In order to discourage shortened or piecemeal leaves, the salary rate for the shorter sabbaticals should also be set at 75 percent of the normal rate and should correspond at all times to the salary rate provided for full-year sabbaticals, and the election of a shorter sabbatical should constitute a forfeiture of the sabbatical time remaining from that year. That is, a sabbatical may not be taken in two or more discontinuous time periods.

3. Outside Income and Sabbatical Leaves

The present limitation on income from other sources should be modified in three ways. First, the faculty member on sabbatical leave should, in justified circumstances, be permitted to continue outside income-producing activities that will not encroach on the time and energy he needs in order successfully to fulfill the terms of his sabbatical. Such income supplementation is highly desirable, especially during the transitional period of less-than-full sabbatical salaries, in offsetting the deterrent of reduced salary income for hard-pressed faculty members.

Second, a number of fields offer opportunities for financial support for professional activities that are fully consistent with the professional improvement objectives of the sabbatical program, but which would ordinarily overlap with base pay; for example, part-time employment at another university, or a part-time assignment in government or private industry. Where it is clear that the responsibilities involved in such support are consistent with sabbatical program goals, the policy should be sufficiently flexible to permit partial financial support from sabbatical funds. The sum of compensation from the sabbatical program and from rendering these services should not exceed the level of the faculty member's University salary plus reasonable family relocation costs. The sum paid to the faculty member for rendering such services should be consistent with normal practice. Sabbatical funds should clearly not be available to supplement other compensation where the faculty member's leave responsibilities do not meet the professional objectives of the sabbatical program.

Third, the responsibility for decisions regarding outside income and sabbatical compensation levels should be shifted from the office of the vice president, academic administration to the dean or department head. Local administrative officers are often in a better position to determine whether the extra professional commitments and overlapping services are in keeping with the objective of a sabbatical. They are more likely to be aware of violations of the spirit of the sabbatical leave policy and are in a better position to impose sanctions of various sorts. Such decisions should be subject to review by the vice president, academic administration.

4. Funds for Departments

Under present policies the departments or colleges retain half of the salaries of their faculty on sabbatical leave. The department half is frequently used to help hire faculty replacements. Ideally, the maintenance of programs and the peace of mind of both faculty and their chairmen would be served by the availability of funds for a full position on campus for every faculty member on sabbatical leave. However, since some courses can usually be suspended for the year of the faculty member's absence, and others can be shifted among his colleagues who share his competencies, the 50 percent replacement funds are generally sufficient to enable large departments to maintain their programs. Small departments, however, whose members' competencies overlap little, are often hard pressed to find adequate substitute faculty with 50 percent replacement funds without suspending or distorting significant portions of their programs. It is therefore essential that under the proposed increase in sabbatical salary rates, the amounts available to departments be at least maintained at present levels. Accordingly, the committee recommends that 50 percent of the sabbatical salary continue to be provided to the department. Requests for special assistance by University units in which sabbaticals create unusual dislocation should be considered by the vice president, academic administration (cf. below, item 7).

5. Number of Leaves Per Year

The committee opposes offering the sabbatical as a competitive prize and supports the policy that the improvements in sabbaticals be consistent with the anticipated funds available for fulfillment of all legitimate sabbatical applications. Two factors, however, complicate matters during the transitional period. First, improvement in the sabbatical policy is likely to increase by an unknown amount the number of faculty members who take sabbaticals. In 1968-69 only 45 faculty chose sabbaticals, but about 250 became eligible. Secondly, there is at present an additional backlog of about 600 faculty who are eligible to take a sabbatical. If many of these choose a sabbatical immediately upon the improvement of the policy, the number applying is likely to outrun available funds.

Accordingly, the committee recommends an initial limitation on the number of sabbaticals during the years immediately following improvements. The specific number permitted must, of course, depend on funds made available, but it appears that the number should be at least 100. If the number of requests should be larger than that proposed (say, 100), the academic vice president should seek the advice of a committee similar to the committee that considers single quarter leaves, in order to select the recipients of leaves.

6. Method of Funding

The committee does not recommend a particular method of funding, but since the committee's discussion may be of interest, it is summarized here.

There appear to be two feasible sources of funds for sabbatical increments — new positions and salary improvement funds. The members of the committee generally favored the principle that the University should be sufficiently staffed to enable faculty to take sabbaticals without dislocating programs. It was recognized, however, that the University is already understaffed, that new positions are difficult to obtain, and that dependence of sabbatical improvements on the acquisition of new position monies for that purpose might jeopardize putting the program into operation. The members appeared to favor, alternatively, earmarking a 1 percent increment over present salaries — obtained as part of salary improvement funds — for the incremental funding required for about 100 sabbaticals at 75 percent of regular base salaries in 1970-71.

7. Hardship Cases

Small departments, and colleges composed primarily of small departments, are in several respects seriously disadvantaged in granting sabbaticals. With fewer overlapping competencies among their members, they must more often hire temporary replacements; their smaller budgets provide less flexibility, and their smaller numerical base of positions creates relatively greater fluctuation in sabbatical needs from year to year. Accordingly, while recognizing a number of administrative difficulties, several members of the committee expressed some urgency in the need for funding some or all sabbaticals centrally for those units which would be unusually dislocated by the normal granting of sabbatical leaves to eligible faculty.

STATISTICS AND COST ESTIMATES

A-1. Estimate of Number of Faculty Eligible for Sabbatical Leave in 1969-70

In 1967-68 the full-time tenured faculty numbered 1,603. Over the past 5 years the number in this category has increased at an average rate of 5.9 percent per year. Extending this rate we find:

Estimate for 1968-69 is 1,698; actual number on payroll as of 10/15 was 1,714.

Estimate for 1969-70 is 1,798.

If we assume that 1/7 of the full-time tenured faculty are eligible for sabbatical leave in any given year, the number in 1969-70 would be 257. In addition, we estimate there are about 600 faculty members in a "backlog" group.

A-2. Summary of Actual Experience with the Present Sabbatical Leave Plan, Taken from the 1968-69 Printed Budget

- 45 faculty have been granted sabbaticals, some for less than a year.
- The actual stipends which will be paid to these faculty total $303,492.
- Of the 45 sabbaticals, 29 are for a full year (either A or B base) at an average stipend of $8,000 per year.
- Average stipends are higher for A base faculty ($11,000 plus).
- Actual stipends are also higher for those taking only 1 or 2 quarters sabbatical leave (about $8,600 averaged over the year).

A-3. Cost of Improved Sabbatical Allowance

We assume that the additional cost to the University is viewed to be the additional money, above 50 percent of salary, that is provided by the University. The average salary is assumed to be $16,000 per year.

For 100 sabbatical leaves, with an increment of 25 percent, the cost per year would be $400,000; with full support, the cost per year would be $800,000.

The base payroll of the University's academic staff, excluding Summer Session and General Extension Division, is approximately $43,000,000. A 1 percent increase in this figure would provide $430,000 per year.

VII. REPORT OF THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS

1. Reported for Action

Changes in Conference Legislation Adopted by the Faculty Representatives on February 2, 1969, under the White Resolution.

1. The rules were amended to permit freshmen to compete on varsity teams in sports other than basketball and football provided that during the first term of residence they must have a predicted grade point average of 1.70 or more and be registered for a full load of academic work as defined by their institution; and that thereafter during the freshman year they shall have an accumulated grade point average of 1.70 or more, have a predicted grade point average of 1.70 or more, have made normal quantitative academic progress, and be registered for a full academic load as defined by the institution. This change will become effective at the start of the 1969-70 academic year, except for NCAA events for which it shall be effective as of the date of final passage of the action.

RECOMMENDATION: That the action of the faculty representatives be approved.

VIII. REPORT OF THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON PLANNING

Reported for Information

The Senate Planning Committee has developed a procedure for determining a long-range plan for the University in the year 2000. The committee will develop the plan by four University task forces comprising students, faculty, and administrators. The task forces will consider the following:

- The University's present goals and the means currently employed to achieve them.
- The primary characteristics of the total environment in the year 2000.
- The University's general mission, with knowledge of the environment in the year 2000.
- Recommendation and description of the educational pattern, in its broadest aspects, appropriate to fulfill that mission.

Task forces are in the process of being formed by the committee; the effort will begin this spring and is expected to require a year and a half to complete. The committee will inform the Senate periodically as the study proceeds.

WARREN E. IBELE

Chairman

IX. REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON BUSINESS AND RULES

1. Reported for Action

The following revision of the Constitution (revised) is proposed. Approval requires 140 affirmative votes. Changes are in italics.

ARTICLE I. GENERAL POWERS

1. Distribution of Powers Delegated by Regents

All matters relating to the education and administrative affairs of the University, consistent with actions or policies of the Regents of the University of Minnesota heretofore or hereafter taken or established and including those incident to the management of the student body, are, for the purpose of effectuating the government of the University under and by the Regents, committed to the President, the University Senate, and the several faculties, as herein provided.

ARTICLE II. PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

1. Position and Authority

The President of the University shall be the representative of the Regents, the Senate, the Faculties, and the students, and the chief executive officer of the University. He shall have general administrative authority over University affairs. He may suspend action taken by the Senate, by any campus assembly, by any college faculty or by any student constituency and ask for a reconsideration of such action. If the President and the Senate, a campus assembly, a college faculty, or a student constituency do not reach agreement on the action, the question may be appealed to the Regents by the President, or by the Senate, or by any campus assembly, or by the college faculty, or by the student constituency.

2. Consultation on Budget

The President, as chief executive officer of the University, shall have final authority to make budgetary recommendations to the Regents. However, in view of the necessary weighing of educational policies and objectives involved, he shall consult with and ask for the recommendations of the All-University Administrative Committee and the Senate Consultative Committee concerning such budgetary recommendations as materially affect the University as a whole.

ARTICLE III. UNIVERSITY SENATE

1. Composition

The University Senate shall be composed of (a) elected faculty and student representatives of the various institutes, colleges, schools of collegiate rank, and the Graduate School and the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine, (b) the President of the University, and (c) members of the All-University Administrative Committee who shall serve as ex officio nonvoting members of the Senate. Each member of the Senate shall represent the University as a whole.

2. Powers in General

The Senate shall have general legislative authority over educational matters concerning more than one campus or the University as a whole, but not over the internal affairs of a single campus, institute, college, or school, except where these materially affect the interests of the University as a whole or the interests of other campuses, institutes, colleges, or schools. The minimum requirements for a liberal education are matters that materially affect the interests of the University as a whole. The Senate shall have the power to recognize campus assemblies as official campus faculty legislative and policy-making bodies, and upon so doing, such organizations shall have all powers permitted the campus assembly in this Constitution and Bylaws. The Senate may delegate authority and responsibility to campus assemblies in educational matters concerning but one campus of the University. Each campus shall determine its own assembly and shall adopt its own Constitution and Bylaws which shall be consistent with the Constitution and Bylaws of the Senate.

3. Faculty and Student Relations with the University

The Senate shall have the power to enact regulations for the governing of the faculty and students in those relations with the University which affect the University as a whole.

4. Election of Senate Members

a. The elected representatives of the faculties to the Senate shall be chosen by secret ballot by the faculties of the several institutes, colleges, or schools of collegiate rank as follows: The regular members of each faculty who are professors, associate professors, assistant professors (including research associates) or instructors on full-time appointment (including research fellows) shall jointly elect from their rank (professors, associate professors, assistant professors, and instructors) one Senate member for the initial 20 of their regular members or any fraction of that number holding such rank and 1 additional Senate member for each additional 20 of the regular members or major fraction thereof. The provisions hereof shall not apply to the election of the representatives of the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine. For the purpose of electing representatives to the Senate, the members of each faculty holding the rank of instructor (including research fellows) and above shall be eligible to vote, providing that they hold regular appointment as defined in the Regulations Concerning Academic Tenure. The provisions hereof shall not apply to the election of the representatives of the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine.

b. The Mayo Graduate School of Medicine shall be entitled to 2 elected representatives to be elected jointly by faculty members who are professors, associate professors, assistant professors (including research associates), or instructors (including research fellows). The election shall be by secret ballot.

c. The elected representatives of the students to the Senate shall be chosen by secret ballot by the student constituency enrolled in the several institutes, colleges, or schools as specified in the Bylaws. There shall be 1 student member for each initial 2,000 students or fraction thereof in each student constituency plus 1 additional student senator for each additional 2,000 students or major fraction thereof in such constituency. For the purpose of electing student representatives to the Senate each student who has thirty (30) credits in residence at the University and at the time of voting is carrying at least nine (9) credits in his college, institute, or school shall be eligible to vote. Graduate School students shall be eligible to vote if they have nine (9) credits in residence and are carrying six (6) credits at the time of voting. The provisions hereof shall not apply to the election of the student representatives from Morris and Duluth.

d. The elected representatives of the students at Duluth and Morris shall be chosen by secret ballot by the students enrolled at each institution. Morris and Duluth shall each elect 2 student senators for each 2,000 students or fraction thereof in each student constituency plus 1 additional student senator for each additional 2,000 students or major fraction thereof in such constituency.

X. OLD BUSINESS XI. NEW BUSINESS XII. NECROLOGY

CLIFFORD P. ARCHER
1893-1968

The many friends of Clifford P. Archer were shocked by his sudden death during the night before November 18, 1968. He was born on November 18, 1893, in Troy, Iowa, the son of John F. and Martha (Hunt)

Archer. He received his B.A. degree from Iowa State Teachers College and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the State University of Iowa. His teaching career began in 1912 in a rural school near Pulaski, Iowa. He then taught mathematics and science and acted as principal and superintendent at Libertyville, Cerro Gordo County, and Hudson, Iowa.

In 1923 he joined the faculty of Moorhead State Teachers College, eventually becoming head of professional education and dean of instruction. During the summers of 1930 and 1931, he taught at the University of Minnesota, and in December 1937 he joined the College of Education faculty as director of the Bureau of Recommendations. Later he became a professor of elementary education.

He served as an ensign in the United States Navy from 1917 to 1919, and in World War II he was major, then lieutenant colonel in the Army, serving for 2 years as commandant of the U.S. Armed Forces Institute, Southwest Pacific area. Following the war, he resumed his teaching, research, and writing at the University of Minnesota.

In 1950, Professor Archer was asked to serve with the Institute of Inter-American Affairs in their Technical Assistance Program. He was chief of party for the unit which worked in Bolivia, where he and Mrs. Archer spent the year 1950-51. After his return, he was in charge of a special project in which 23 teachers, supervisors, and school administrators from Bolivia, Ecuador, Nicaragua, and Honduras were brought to the University of Minnesota to study rural education and teacher education. Upon completion of this assignment, he worked for another year in the U.S. Office of Education before returning to his professorship in the College of Education.

For more than a year after his retirement in 1962, he continued on assignment for the University, working with the Peace Corps training program. Later he carried special assignments for the Minnesota State Department of Education. In 1962 he was a founder of the five-state Association for Evaluation of Elementary Schools (Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, and Wisconsin) with which he worked continuously as a consultant. At the time of his death, he had just returned from a 3-day conference of this group in Madison, Wisconsin.

Professor Archer was recognized widely for his teaching, research, and leadership in the areas of elementary school curriculum and administration, the teaching of English in the elementary school, teacher education, and rural education. He was president of the Minnesota Education Association (1938-1940), president of the National Institutional Teacher Placement Association (1946), president of the Department of Rural Education of the National Education Association (1960-61), chairman of the Committee on Rural Life and Education on the World Scene, Department of Rural Education (1952-1960), chairman of the Minnesota Commission on Study and Improvement of Instruction (1955-1958), chairman of the Minnesota Committee on Study of Intermediate Unit of School Administration (1959-1960), and director of the Minnesota Project on Development of Criteria for Evaluation of Elementary Schools (1959-1962). This last was a cooperative project involving the State Department of Education, the Minnesota Elementary School Principals Association, and the University.

He held memberships also in the National Council of Teachers of English, the National Council on Research in English, the American Educational Research Association, the Department of Elementary School Principals, the American Association of University Professors, the American Association of School Administrators, the American Country Life Association, the American Association of Supervisors and Curriculum Directors, the National Society of College Teachers of Education, and the National Society for the Study of Education.

On the Minneapolis Campus, he was faculty sponsor for Phi Delta Kappa and the Indo-American Club, and he served in the College of Education as chairman of the International Education Committee, the Committee on Rural Education, and the Library Committee, in addition to carrying numerous other committee assignments.

His publications include Elementary Education in Rural Areas, (with others) Improvement of Rural Life—the Role of the Community School around the World, articles in the 1940, 1950, and 1960 editions of the Encyclopedia of Educational Research, and numerous journal articles on spelling, listening, teacher education, curriculum development, rural education, and international education.

On July 5, 1918, he married Myrtle Blair, daughter of Helen and Jerome D. Blair of Jefferson, Iowa. This past summer the Archers observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary, together with their children, Mrs. Helen Lundblad (Bloomington, Indiana), Blair (Long Beach, California), Phillip (Richfield, Minnesota), and Stephen (Seattle, Washington). Surviving also are 13 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

All of us, his friends and colleagues, will miss this quiet, patient, and understanding man. He was a warm, friendly, good-humored person. He enjoyed the out-of-doors as an avid fisherman and hunter and as an enthusiastic gardener. We wish to include just one paragraph taken from an address made by Sr. Tobias Claire, the former Minister of Education for Bolivia, on the occasion of Clifford Archer's departure from that country:

"And, indeed, my dear colleagues, within a few days we shall feel the absence of Dr. Archer's personality. We shall remember in mournful silence his exemplary serenity when faced with educational problems, the forbearance he showed toward the folly of both high officials and simple employees, his unalterable and wise tranquility in the midst of conflict and passions and the vortex of misunderstandings. We shall also remember the sound inflexibility of those decisions adopted in order to further truth, to support sound principles, and to serve the interests of peasant pupils in our schools."

ELIZABETH JACKSON

Elizabeth Jackson, professor of English emeritus, died on Monday, November 25, 1968, in Minneapolis at the age of 75 after some months of failing health.

Professor Jackson, sister of the late Dunham Jackson, a professor of mathematics in the University of Minnesota for many years, was born in Bridgewater, Massachusetts, on August 22, 1893. She earned her three degrees at Radcliffe College, being graduated B.A. in 1913, M.A. in 1914, and Ph.D. in 1916. She came to the University of Minnesota as an instructor in English in the fall of 1916, was promoted to the rank of assistant professor in 1920, to that of associate professor in 1945, and to full rank in 1960. She retired in June 1961. She spent the year 1924-25 on sabbatical leave in London, and 1933-34, again on sabbatical leave, in various parts of Europe. She was an exchange professor at the University of Hawaii in 1935-36. She delivered the Cap and Gown Day address on May 25, 1961.

E.J., as she was affectionately known to her colleagues, was one of the now rapidly dwindling number of scholars trained under the old guard of the Harvard Department of English: G. L. Kittredge, W. A. Neilson, F. N. Robinson, Chester N. Greenough, and LeBaron R. Briggs, all of whom recommended her to the Department of English at Minnesota with enthusiasm. Her place in the time scheme of history may be gauged from the fact that Kittredge had been a pupil of the very first incumbent of a professorship of English at Harvard, James Francis Child.

E. J. was not only a lively and scholarly teacher and writer, but also, whenever consulted by students or colleagues on matters within or outside of academic routine, an unfailing source of wise advice. Her teaching was unashamedly devoted to the humane and moral values of poetry, though never at the expense of strict attention to the craftsmanship by which alone a poet articulates and animates his message. All this is implicit in E.J.'s several ephemeral contributions to both professional and semi-professional periodicals (she once said, though how much in earnest might be a question, "I see great value in good teaching and very little in so-called articles"), and most explicit and eloquent in her splendid book, The Faith and Fire Within Us (University of Minnesota Press, 1944). Given that "We [Americans] are a believing people . . . we do well [says the author] to pause from time to time and consider the substance of our creed." In this book, with a wealth of illustration and a sure touch, E.J. contrives to make us wonder where we could possibly turn to document our faith if not to the poets, early and late, of the old and the new worlds, writing in the English language.

The University mourns the loss of a valiant and well-loved scholar, teacher, and friend.

CECIL ALBERT MOORE

1879-1968

Cecil Albert Moore, professor of English emeritus, died on Thursday, November 14, 1968, in St. Paul at 89 years of age.

Professor Moore was born in Trenton, Tennessee, March 15, 1879. He was graduated at Harvard University B.A. 1901, M.A. 1902, and Ph.D. 1913. He was married June 22, 1920, to Eleanor Natalie Kent, who was born December 20, 1896, and died December 13, 1960. He taught English at the Asheville School in Asheville, North Carolina, 1902-10, and at the McKenzie School in New York City, 1910-11. He was a professor of English at Trinity College, North Carolina, 1913-17, and came to the University of Minnesota as a professorial lecturer in the fall of 1917, was promoted to the rank of associate professor in 1919, and to that of professor in 1925. He retired in June 1947. He spent the years 1923-24 and 1935-36 on sabbatical leave in England. He was chairman of the Department of English in 1927-38.

Professor Moore's publications include anthologies of English Prose 1600-1660 (with Douglas Bush, 1930), English Prose of the Eighteenth Century (1933), and of Restoration Literature: Poetry and Prose 1660-1700 (1934). He contributed a preface to E. D. Mallam's Letters of William Shenstone (1939), and compiled a section of the Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature (1941). But his important contribution was his Backgrounds of English Literature 1700-1760 (1953), a collection of five essays, four of which had appeared in periodicals in the years 1916-26. His colleague Professor Samuel H. Monk points out that C. A. Moore in these essays anticipated by a decade the well known work of A. O. Lovejoy and Ronald Crane in elucidating the "climate of opinion" of the time, both learned and popular, the study of which by these three pioneers and their successors has led to a radically new understanding of the poetry of the age of Queen Anne and the Georges.

Professor Moore is survived by two sons, Kent and Robertson, a brother, W. Leslie Moore, a sister, Mrs. Herbert Pierce, and three grandchildren.

LAWRENCE MERRILL RANDALL

1895-1969

Lawrence M. Randall, instructor, assistant professor, associate professor, and professor of obstetrics and gynecology in the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine from 1925 to 1968, died as he left a theater in Rochester on January 11, 1969. Death was caused by coronary arterial insufficiency on the basis of coronary arterial atherosclerosis.

Dr. Randall was born in La Moille, Iowa, on August 12, 1895, the son of Edith Cox Randall and Addison J. Randall. He attended the Denison High School in Denison, Iowa, and the State University of Iowa, from which he received the degree of doctor of medicine in 1921. Voted

PROPOSED SENATE RESOLUTION FOR ADOPTION, MARCH 6, 1969:

Whereas, the Senate received on January 15 a report of the understanding between representatives of the University and of the Afro-American Action Committee that terminated the latter's brief occupation of the first floor of Morrill Hall and furthermore expressed its commendation of those who had participated in drafting the agreement; and

Whereas, there has been orderly progress through regular University procedures toward furthering a legitimate interest in providing for the academic study of the experience of Black Americans and Indian Americans as well as comparative racial and ethnic studies generally; and

Whereas, there has been continuing effort to open opportunities for higher education at the University of Minnesota to poor students, in accord with the principle of the Senate resolution adopted on April 25, 1968, and

Whereas, a University committee has conducted an extensive investigation of the incidents at Morrill Hall and ~~has prepared~~ a report for the President and University community generally; and ~~is preparing~~

Whereas, there has been an encouraging improvement of understanding and communication between black students at the University and administrative officials and faculty who are working together with them for shared objectives; and

Whereas, the Hennepin County Grand Jury's indictment of three leaders of the Afro-American Action Committee and their subsequent arrest by county officers and the prospect of other arrests under Richard Roe and Jane Doe indictments have introduced from from outside the University community a force that disturbs our peaceable and harmonious development and accelerates tendencies toward racial conflict,

Therefore, be it resolved that the Senate of the University of Minnesota expresses its continued confidence in the University's orderly procedures, functioning under authority granted by the Board of Regents, to deal justly and effectively with its problems and so deploras ~~interference with them~~ and supports uninterrupted progress toward implementation of the Memorandum of Agreement of January 15;

the grand jury's indictment acknowledges a power base to interfere with their procedures
Be it further recommended that the faculty and administrative officials of the University join with University students in assuring to those who have been or may yet be arrested adequate legal representation in defending themselves against the charges that have been lodged against them by this Grand Jury; and that to this end a Legal Defense Fund be established and supported by members of the University community.

RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE C.L.A. ALL-COLLEGE COUNCIL, MARCH 5, 1969

Whereas, the University of Minnesota faculty and administration are making rapid progress in implementing the Memorandum of Agreement entered into on January 15, 1969 between the Afro-American Action Committee and the University, and

Whereas, the Investigation Commission appointed by President Moos to look into the Morrill Hall incident has not as yet completed its deliberations; and

Whereas, the peaceful resolution of the Morrill Hall incident is in marked contrast to comparable activities in campuses around the country; and

Whereas, the action of the Hennepin County Grand Jury in indicting members of the Afro-American Action Committee seems to suggest that the Grand Jury and the County Attorney are unwilling to allow the University's own instruments of due process to function:

Be it Resolved That: the C.L.A. All College Council deplores the precipitous action of the Hennepin County Grand Jury and hopes that this action will not interfere with the orderly progress that was being made towards implementation of the Memorandum of Agreement of January 15.
