COMMENCEMENT

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

CLA Class of 2001

Sunday, December 9, 2001
Northrop Memorial Auditorium

Congratulations, CLA Graduate!

We come together today—family and friends, students and faculty—to celebrate a major milestone in your life. You have studied hard to achieve the goal for which we honor you—a degree from the College of Liberal Arts at the University of Minnesota.

Whatever your major—economics or art, English or Japanese, psychology or American Indian Studies—you have been privileged to learn from, and with, some of the finest professors in the country. You have listened, critiqued, challenged and been challenged, made connections, found meaning, explored, discovered, and created—all under the guidance of world-class scholars at one of the world's great universities.

I am confident that, wherever you go from here, your CLA undergraduate education will be a foundation for a good life, however you define it. You have not simply acquired specialized skills for a job “in your field.” You have been challenged to reach beyond today to build for tomorrow; to be a leader; to think critically and creatively; to cross intellectual and cultural boundaries; to embrace ambiguity and complexity; and to think and act with vision, courage, and wisdom.

My advice to you now is to apply these values wisely and well: do what you love and do it with gusto; never lose sight of your dreams; and don't forget to create opportunities for others who will follow in your footsteps. And remember, your first job out of college is just that—your first job. If the soothsayers are right, you will change careers several times in the coming years. With your CLA education, you'll be ready when change comes; indeed, you'll be on the leading edge of change.

I do hope that your CLA education has touched you profoundly and that what you have learned about yourself and the world will give you purpose and direction in the years ahead. I also hope that your years at the University of Minnesota truly have been some of the best years of your life.

We celebrate today your passage into your future as a member of the Class of 2001. Congratulations on your achievement. I extend my warmest wishes for continued success throughout your life and hope that you will stay connected with CLA.

Sincerely,

Steven J. Rosenstone
Dean, College of Liberal Arts

THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

...world-class education for tomorrow

The University of Minnesota, ranked among the nation's top public universities, reflects the state of Minnesota's strong and enduring commitment to education. It is almost alone among universities in the United States in its three defining characteristics:

- It is an international research university.
- It is a land-grant institution with a strong tradition of education and public service.
- Its largest campus—the Twin Cities campus—is located in a vibrant metropolitan area with not one, but two great cities at its center: Minneapolis and St. Paul.

The University is the primary center in Minnesota (and much of the Upper Midwest) for instruction and research in the liberal arts and sciences, health sciences, law, education, engineering, agriculture, and forestry. The Twin Cities campus comprises 19 colleges and offers a full range of academic and professional degrees. A comprehensive campus in Duluth offers undergraduate and graduate programs. The Morris campus offers a four-year liberal arts program. Crookston offers associate and baccalaureate degrees in technical, career-oriented programs. Through the Minnesota Extension Service, the University is present in each of Minnesota's 87 counties.

When the University was founded as a preparatory school in 1851, Minnesota had been a territory for just two years, and statehood was still seven years away. The school was built on little more than the pioneers' faith in education. In its early years, the University struggled financially; during the Civil War, it was forced to close. It reopened in 1867, thanks to the energetic leadership of Governor John S. Pillsbury, who came to be known as the "Father of the University." Mathematics Professor William Watts Folwell became the University's first president in 1869.

Two students received bachelor of arts degrees at the first commencement in June 1873. Since then, the University has granted nearly 550,000 degrees.

University alumni include five Nobel Prize winners, a former chief justice of the United States, two former U.S. vice presidents, the heads of Fortune 500 companies, pioneers in medicine, civil rights leaders, top journalists, distinguished teachers and scholars, performing artists, and other men and women who have achieved distinction in every field.

Alumni and their families and friends are always welcome at the University. We invite you to visit campus regularly to enjoy the many educational, cultural, and entertainment opportunities that are open to the public—including performances by students in CLA's arts programs. We also invite you to continue your relationship with the University through the Minnesota Alumni Association and the CLA Alumni Society.

THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

...education for a lifetime

The College of Liberal Arts (CLA) was formally established at the University of Minnesota in 1868, 17 years after the founding of the University. Since then, it has become an international center for education in the arts, humanities, and social sciences.

The liberal arts span all areas of human knowledge, enterprise, and aspirations. The college offers 60 majors, with study and research opportunities in fields ranging from anthropology to women's studies. Students whose interests cross disciplines may also choose to design individualized major programs.

The majority of students who enter CLA as first-year students complete their undergraduate education in CLA. Others complete their basic liberal arts coursework in the college and then transfer to other units of the University. The college offers strong preprofessional programs with close ties to the health sciences and other professional schools at the University.

There are more than 15,000 undergraduate students and 1,700 graduate students enrolled in CLA programs. Approximately 540 permanent faculty members—teachers and scholars of international stature—share with students their vast knowledge, their provocative insights, and the most current research in their fields.

CLA students acquire both breadth of knowledge and particular depth and proficiency in a specialized field of knowledge. Whatever their majors, students complete an education based broadly in the liberal arts. Courses necessary to meet general education requirements introduce students to modes of inquiry and subject matter across the major branches of knowledge. This education is the very best preparation for lives and careers in a rapidly changing world—a solid grounding in ideas and knowledge across disciplines, across centuries, across cultures, and across geographic boundaries, as well as in critical analysis, communication, and research methodologies.

Equipped with this education, graduates of the College of Liberal Arts bring into the world the communication skills, critical and innovative thinking, creativity, and intellectual versatility needed for a lifetime of learning and leadership.

If you want to learn more about the College of Liberal Arts, we invite you to explore our Web site:

NINA ARCHABAL

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA OUTSTANDING ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Keynote Speaker

When President Clinton presented Nina Archabal with a National Humanities Medal, he described her as “a fireball who lets no one stand in the way of her mission.” True to form, as director of the Minnesota Historical Society, Archabal has lit some fires. Her vision and tenacity helped pull the society’s artifact collections out of mothballs into the Minnesota History Center’s spectacular exhibition space. And her leadership has helped spark a revival of public interest in Minnesota history. Through its museums, historic sites, and educational programs, the Historical Society today serves more than 1.5 million people each year.

While generously sharing the credit with others, Archabal traces some of her own success to her graduate work in the University’s School of Music, where she received her Ph.D in 1974. “The University taught me how to write and how to think and how to respect research,” she says. “I don’t think you can do this job if you have not done research. Everything that we do at the Historical Society is based on solid research—and I learned that at the University.”

Archabal’s first love, music, brought her to the University and still plays a central role in her life—though not the role she once expected. She had always planned to become a music professor. “Music was something I loved more than anything,” she says. “I couldn’t have imagined, as an undergraduate at Radcliffe, that I would one day choose other, broader paths.”

At the University, Archabal’s interests broadened as she pursued the unorthodox multidisciplinary studies encouraged by her graduate adviser, Professor Johannes Riedel—whose passions ranged from Lutheran church music to Ecuadorian folk music to jazz, ragtime, and soul. “He encouraged me to think about sociology, about all the world that surrounds music,” says Archabal. “That opened the door to many, many things. It made almost anything possible.”

As part of her dissertation, Archabal displayed her considerable entrepreneurial talents, not only organizing an exhibit of the paintings of the modern American composer and painter Carl Ruggles, but also arranging for the Minnesota Orchestra and the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra to perform Ruggles’ compositions. “That [project] began to open up all kinds of possibilities in the museum world, the art world, the nonprofit world, and the cultural world,” she says.

After working for the University Art Museum and then for ten years at the Historical Society, she was named the society’s director in 1987—when the History Center was barely a sketch on paper. The center today embodies Archabal’s vision of a place whose exhibits would feature Minnesotans talking about their own experiences in their own voices—bringing into focus such complex topics as immigration, the Vietnam war, and American families. “[History] takes on a personal quality, and our visitors understand it and empathize with it,” says Archabal. “I think in many ways the History Center really revolutionized the concept of what a history museum is. Time and again people have said to me, ‘You know, I really don’t like history museums, but I love the history center.’”

When she accepted the position as the center’s director, Archabal seemed to have strayed far from her original academic ambitions. “I always felt a little bit guilty,” she says, “because a Ph.D. is a professional degree and I don’t teach.” But in honoring Archabal with the Outstanding Achievement Award, the University is demonstrating its recognition that, through her work with the History Center, she is indeed a teacher as well as a scholar. She has tackled some of the most important intellectual and social issues of our time and has shared her discoveries with Minnesota and the world.

LIBERAL ARTS DEGREES

The College of Liberal Arts offers five bachelor's degrees—bachelor of arts (B.A.), bachelor of individualized studies (B.I.S.), bachelor of fine arts (B.F.A.), bachelor of music (B.M.), and bachelor of science (B.S.). The bachelor's degrees have many requirements in common.

DEGREE CANDIDATES

Students graduating magna cum laude have earned As in 66 percent of their upper division credits. Students graduating summa cum laude have earned As in 75 percent of their upper division credits and have completed an honors thesis or project.

THE DEGREE OF BACHELOR OF ARTS

ACADEMIC COSTUME

Academic gowns date back to the 14th century, when they served two functions of nearly equal importance: to indicate the academic rank of the wearer and to keep the scholar warm in the drafty stone halls of academia.

The markings, cut, and color of modern-day academic costume—cap, gown, and sometimes hood—indicate the academic degree, the field of study, and the institution that granted the degree.

Bachelor's degree gowns are black and untrimmed. A tassel hanging from the mortar board worn on the head is color-coded by college at the University of Minnesota. The College of Liberal Arts tassel is white. Honors graduates wear a medallion adorned with a maroon and gold ribbon.

Master's degree gowns, black and untrimmed, have pointed sleeves. Doctoral gowns in the United States traditionally have been black with velvet front facings and crossbars on the sleeves, but in recent years a number of universities have adopted gowns of distinctive school colors.

A new University of Minnesota Ph.D. gown and matching tam made their appearance in 1988 to celebrate the centenary of the first Minnesota doctor of philosophy degree. The new Minnesota gown is maroon-trimmed with black velvet chevrons and gold metallic braid. The traditional gown may still be worn.

The Minnesota hood, which may be worn by anyone with a doctoral degree from the University of Minnesota, is black with maroon chevron on gold. Each institution has its own pattern of colors on the hood, worn around the neck and down the back of the gown. The length and shape of the hood identify the most advanced degree the wearer has earned, and the velvet edging shows the field: blue for doctor of philosophy, light blue for doctor of education, and pink for doctor of musical arts.

At commencement ceremonies those who already have the doctoral degree wear hoods. Degree candidates wear the gowns appropriate for the degrees they are about to receive, and new doctorates are hooded on stage.

THE MACE

The University of Minnesota mace was carried for the first time in 1961 by Regents' Professor of Physics Alfred O.C. Nier at the inauguration of President O. Meredith Wilson. Art professor Philip Morton designed the mace: a crystal sphere four inches in diameter surmounted by the North Star, symbol of the state of Minnesota, on a solid aluminum handle set with the University regents' seal.

THE NORTHPROP ORGAN

Comprising 108 ranks of pipes, the Northrop Memorial Auditorium organ is not only one of the largest organs in the Upper Midwest but also one of the finest examples in the United States of a late-Romantic concert-hall organ. Built in 1932, the organ is located in the ceiling of the auditorium, above the stage and behind the proscenium, and is placed from a console on an elevator platform in the orchestra pit. Unlike many large organs from its era, the Northrop organ is completely unaltered and entirely in its original condition. Persons interested in events that feature the Northrop organ may contact The Friends of the Northrop Organ, c/o the School of Music, University of Minnesota, 2106 Fourth Street South, Minneapolis, MN 55455.

The University of Minnesota is committed to the policy that all persons shall have equal access to its programs, facilities, and employment without regard to race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, disability, public assistance status, veteran status, or sexual orientation.

Smoking is not permitted in any University building. We appreciate your cooperation with this policy.
