FREEDOM'S PROGRESSION

For, four, five, and even six years
We've beat our heads against these walls,
Filling our brains with facts and formulas
Our minds with the foundations of tomorrow.
And now we've come in celebration
With each other, our families and friends,
For this the completion of our academia.

What have we gained or how have we changed
As we march across this stage?
 Knowledge of the world and its ways-
 A plan for our niche in its maze
 An understanding for our own future days-
More important than these grandiose gains
Are the subtler changes that have taken place.

The notion that we are of value,
A much greater knowledge of self,
The ability to dream for the future,
The courage to make dreams come true;
We've expanded our personal horizons,
Gained a deeper understanding of life;
We've learned how to reach for the stars.

And this is just the beginning,
Today we start in new roles.
We've earned these degrees by accomplishment,
Freedom of choice is now ours;
To grow and progress in our own ways,
To become what we know that we are.
We're about to change the world.
