

Personal Publication and Public Attention

Comments

Weblog system seems to me an excellent source of web site publication and public attention for which I'm very interested to join it specially to have published some of my messages for humanitarian services irrespective of differences.

Posted by: A.R.Shams at August 3, 2004 12:58 PM

Links the Damn the Pacific can be found by way of the wayback machine and the internet archive: <http://web.archive.org/web/20020605070334/http://www.damnthepacific.com/>. The last post to the site registered in the archives is from July 1st 2002.

Thanks to David Brake, a PhD researcher in Media and Communications at London School of Economics and Political science for bringing this to my attention.

Posted by: torill at November 16, 2004 06:38 AM

Very interesting article from various points of view. I have an academic question though: The quotation "In the past the masses..." that is attributed to Bourdieu is indeed by him or by Suzanne Langer as this page seems to suggest ? Sorry for the bugging, Torill, but I couldn't find your email easily and don't have the time to read Bourdieu's book...

Posted by: achilleas at December 7, 2004 08:17 AM

Achilleas

thanks for pointing that out, I don't know why this slipped as I try to, if I don't get the original text, do the "Bourdieu quotes the philosopher Suzanne Langer"-thing. Anyway, here is Bourdieu's sentence just above the quote I used:

"And to show that the self-legitimizing imagination of the 'happy few' has no limits, one only needs to quote a recent text by Suzanne Langer, who is presented as 'one of the world's most influential philosophers':"

Then follows the above quote which came out here as attributed to Pierre Bourdieu, and you find it all at page 31 in the 1984 translated edition of Distinction.

Posted by: Torill at December 10, 2004 05:09 AM

Posting Policies

As with any scholarly publication, healthy, robust discussions are encouraged. However, we ask that you refrain from ad hominem attacks and profanity. The editors reserve the right to edit or delete any comment or trackback that violates these rules. In addition, we do not pass emails along to authors.

Comments and essays are the property of their authors. All other content ©Into the Blogosphere 2004.

Contributors agree by posting that any original content, including comments, copyright owned by them, unless otherwise stated, is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 2.0 license for others to use.