New Study Option

(0:30)

A coordinated undergraduate study option will be introduced next fall that is expected to increase the availability of registered dietitians and community nutritionists in the state.

The program will be offered at the University of Minnesota's St. Paul Campus by the Department of Food Science and Nutrition. Beginning with a small class this fall, the study option will allow undergraduates in dietetics and community nutrition to intern at Twin Cities area hospitals and community service agencies while they complete class work on campus.
