Freezer Food Plans

You see a tempting advertisement promising a range of frozen meats, fruits and vegetables delivered to your home freezer for a seemingly reasonable monthly cost. Should you bite?

First do some careful research. University of Minnesota extension home management specialist Edna Jordahl says a hasty decision could drain your pocketbook and leave you dissatisfied for many months.

Freezer food plans are most appealing when the shopper lacks either transportation, time or shopping skills. Older people or working single parents are among those who often think they will benefit from a good plan.

But freezer plans usually require signing a lengthy contract that could involve hundreds of dollars.
