DR. JAMES LEWIS MORRILL
PRESIDENT, UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

Dr. James Lewis Morrill is the eighth president of the University of Minnesota. He was graduated from Ohio State University in 1913, and has been in educational work since 1919, when he left the Cleveland Press to become alumni secretary and editor at Ohio State.

Subsequently, he also served in teaching positions in journalism and education, and became Junior Dean of the College of Education at Ohio State. In 1932, he became vice president of Ohio State, a position which he held until 1941, when he became president of the University of Wyoming.

He was elected president of the University of Minnesota by unanimous vote of the Board of Regents late in 1944, and was inaugurated formally on April 25, 1946. He assumed this post July 1, 1945, succeeding Dr. Walter Castella Coffey, who had reached the age of automatic retirement.

Dr. Morrill holds the LL.D. degree from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio (1936), from Ohio State University (1945), from the University of Wyoming (1946), from the University of Cincinnati (1948) from Carleton College (1950), from Macalester College (1951) and from Northwestern University (1952), and the L.H.D. degree from Muhlenberg College (1949).

The son of Harrison Delmont and Mary Lewis Morrill, he was born in Marion, Ohio, September 24, 1891. Following his graduation from Ohio State, he went to work as a reporter for the Cleveland Press, and later became city editor and acting managing editor of that paper.

He left the Cleveland Press to serve with the Food Administration for two years, and returned to the paper in 1919 for a short time before going back to Ohio State as alumni secretary.

(MORR)

In his role as university administrator, Dr. Morrill has as one of his chief enthusiasms the encouragement of research, and he holds the firm belief that the relationship between university research projects and industry, including agriculture, of the state or region supporting the institution should be close and constructive.

Dr. Morrill is a member of many educational, public service, civic and honorary organizations. He was president of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities (1947-48); chairman of the Executive Committee (1948-49) and a member of the special committee on federal legislation. He served as chairman of the American Council on Education (1950-51) and holds important committee posts in the National Association of State Universities. He is a member of the National Commission on Accrediting, and is chairman of the United States Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange of the Department of State.

In addition, Dr. Morrill serves on the Board of Curators of Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri. He is a member of the American Library Association, the Navy League of the United States, the Army Ordnance Association, the College of Electors of the Hall of Fame, New York University, the Ford Scholarship Board, the Grants Advisory Committee of the National Fund for Medical Education, and the Board of Directors of the United Community Defense Services, Inc.

He holds many Minnesota positions such as membership in the Minnesota Historical Society Executive Council, the Minnesota Public Health Association, the Minneapolis Public Library Board, and the Minnesota Poll Advisory Committee. He is a member of the Minnesota chapter of the American-Scandinavian Foundation, the Minnesota United Nations Association, the State Commission on Vocational and Higher Education, the Minnesota Community Research Council, the Minneapolis Society of Fine Arts, the Minneapolis Foundation and the Minnesota State Art Society.

His societies and fraternities include Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Delta Kappa, Alpha Psi Delta, Sigma Delta Chi, Alpha Sigma Phi, Phi Eta Sigma, Pi Delta Epsilon, Alpha Phi Omega and the American branch of the Newcomen Society of England for which he is Minnesota vice chairman.

Dr. Morrill and his wife, the former Miss Freda Rhodes, were married June 22, 1915. They are the parents of three children, Sylvia Morrill Todd, Mary Louise Morrill Lichtenberg and John Rhodes Morrill.

Dr. Morrill is a member of the Presbyterian church. His long-established summer home is at Lake Otsego, Michigan.

His home is at 1005 Fifth Street, S. E., Minneapolis, which has been used as a residence for University of Minnesota presidents since 1911. This property was deeded to the University by heirs of the late Governor John S. Pillsbury, often called "the father of the University of Minnesota", who built and lived in the house.

FRENCH SCHOLARS TO TOUR STATE AS GUESTS OF 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Eleven French philosophy and sociology teachers, studying at the University of Minnesota this summer, will travel to southern and northern parts of the state next week as guests of the University and the University's Duluth Branch.

Tuesday (Aug. 5) the group will tour the Mayo Clinic and Mayo Foundation in Rochester where they will observe a seminar on psychoanalysis treatment.

The scholars head north Friday (Aug. 8) for a two day stay in Duluth. There they will view their first American football at Friday's Fish Bowl game between the Green Bay Packers and the Duluth Eskimos.

During the Duluth visit they will tour the iron range and forest experimental stations in Cloquet and Lake Itasca.

The visitors are attending the University of Minnesota's second summer session under Fulbright scholarships and state department grants under the Smith-Mundt act.

ANDAHAZY BALLET TO PERFORM
MONDAY AT NORTHROP AUDITORIUM

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, AUG. 10)

The Andahazy Ballet Borealis Company of Twin City dancers will present a program of five ballets at 8:30 p.m. Monday (August 11) in Northrop Memorial auditorium on the University of Minnesota campus. The program is open to the public without charge.

Led by Lorand Andahazy and Anna Adrianova, former stars of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, who trained the company at their Andahazy School of Classical Ballet in St. Paul, the 32 young dancers will offer "Les Sylphides", "The Grand Pas De Deux", "Snow Maidens", "The Cargo of Lost Souls" and "Slavonic Scenes".

Accompanying the troupe will be the University's summer session orchestra under the baton of Francesco Amendola, former conductor of the LaScala Opera House orchestra, Milan.

Solists for the company are Theodora Mowrik, Sheila Cabot and Gary Good of Minneapolis and Joyce Houska, Janet Hansen, Miriam Voracek, Joseph Savino, James Keyes and Leo Morrissey of St. Paul.

Featured number on the program will be "Les Sylphides", by Michel Fokine, faithfully restaged according to the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo version. Anna Adrianova, who is also Mrs. Andahazy, was personally trained in the principal role by the late Fokine who claimed she was the "perfect Sylphide".

(MORE)

Choreography for "Snow Maidens", "The Lost Cargo of Souls" and "Slavonic Soenas" is by the Andahazys who first produced "Snow Maidens" for the St. Paul Winter Carnival. The ballet takes place in the Winter Monarch's court in honor of his newly chosen queen. Here the Snow Maidens engage in a spirited dance with Princess of the Storm.

"The Cargo of Lost Souls", taken from Dante Alighieri's "Inferno" is an interpretation of Charon ferrying condemned souls across the River Acheron while the final dance, "Slavonic Souls" is the traditional Slavonic folk dance movements transposed into the classical ballet idiom.

The Andahazys are producers, directors, choreographers, and set and costume designers of their company which had its formal debut ten months ago in St. Paul. The troupe has also performed at the St. Paul Winter Carnival and with the St. Paul Civic Opera.

Miss Adrianova danced with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in Europe and America from 1933 until 1941. She studied for two years in Paris with Mathilde Kschessinska, "Ballarina Assoluta" of the Russian Imperial Mariinsky Theatre in St. Petersburg.

Lorand Andahazy joined the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in 1936 and toured with it until World War II when he served five years with the U. S. Army.

Ballet goes will remember Andahazy's appearance with the Ballet Russe this spring at the Lyceum theater. After agreeing to dance the role of the Golden Slave in "Scheherazade", a part which he had previously done for the Ballet Russe with great success, Andahazy became ill. He recovered sufficiently to rehearse for a half hour the morning of the performance and went on to play to a packed house.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis —President J. L. Morrill of the University of Minnesota has invited both the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates to speak in Northrop Memorial auditorium during their campaigns.

In extending the invitation to Dwight D. Eisenhower and Governor Adlai Stevenson, President Morrill specified that "in light of the long-standing policy of the University relating to candidates for political office" the University must present "both or neither" of the presidential candidates.

The suggestion was made to the candidates that they select dates after October 1, following the opening of the school year, so that University students and faculty members might be given the opportunity to hear them. Provisions also were offered to accommodate overflow audiences elsewhere on the campus.

President Morrill stated Monday that no announcement of the acceptance or rejection of the invitation by either of the candidates will be made by the University until both candidates have committed themselves.

Lucine Amara, Metropolitan Opera company soprano, will sing at the University of Minnesota's final summer session concert at 8:30 p.m. Thursday (Aug. 21) in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanying the young star will be pianist Mrs. Laura Giers, of Minneapolis.

Winning a first prize in the 1948 Atwater-Kent radio competition set Miss Amara's career rolling. She subsequently appeared in the Hollywood Bowl under the direction of Eugene Normandy and with the San Francisco Symphony orchestra under Pierre Monteux and Arture Rodzinski.

In 1950 she joined the roster of the Metropolitan Opera company and soon got a major break when Columbia Records selected her to sing Nedda in a recording of the Met production of "Pagliacci". She also appeared in the film, "The Great Caruso".

Miss Amara was born in Hartford, Conn., and received her training in San Francisco where she made her recital debut in 1947.

'U' ENROLLMENT
TOTALS 4,822

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Enrollment for the second summer session at the University of Minnesota officially totals 4,822 including 1,446 World War II veterans, True E. Pettengill, University recorder, reported Tuesday (August 12).

This total is 1,322 below the official registration figure of 6,144 for the second summer session of 1951. Pettengill pointed out that this 21.5 per cent decrease is largely due to a drop of 1,115 in the number of veterans who signed up for classes this session. A year ago, the veteran enrollment figure was 2,561.

Enrollment for the first summer session this year topped the second summer session by 2,602.

Duluth Branch enrollment, included in the total figures, is 419 -- a decrease of three over last year. Veteran enrollment of the branch dropped from 119 in the 1951 second summer session to 100 this year.

Official registration figures at the University are recorded as of the close of the second week of the term.

Second session classes began July 29 and will end August 28.

Enrollment by colleges and divisions for second session is general 51, University college 9, science, literature and the arts 887, institute of technology 299, agriculture, forestry and home economics 139, law school 18, medical school 125, medical technology 13, occupational therapy 10, physical therapy 1, nursing 208, public health 90, dentistry 27, dental hygiene 8, pharmacy 19, education 583, business administration 147, Mayo foundation 523, Graduate School 1244, veterinary medicine 2 and Duluth Branch 419.

MIDWEST SCIENCE
PHOTOGRAPHERS PLAN
MINNESOTA MEETING

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Science photographers from five states will meet at the University of Minnesota Sept. 27 - 28 for a conference of the Upper Midwest chapter of the Biological Photographic association.

The men who would rather photograph a bat's wing than a pretty girl will meet to exchange new techniques and to offer information and assistance to scientists who do their own laboratory photography.

Invited to the conference, in addition to science photographers are physicians, dentists, pathologists, radiologists, biologists, botanists, zoologists and physicists from Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota.

The first session, Sept. 27, will begin with an inspection of the University's closed-circuit television equipment. Lectures and demonstrations will follow covering these subjects: cinephotomicrography of the circulatory system in a bat's wing; use of gamma and beta radiation in autoradiography; stereo-photomicrography in color for plant pathology; and the use of the dye transfer process in medical photography. A banquet will wind up the session.

An open house at the University's dental and medical photographic laboratories will be held the second day.

James H. Rothenberger, senior medical photographer at the University, is in charge of arrangements for the two-day meeting.

'U' PRESS TO PUBLISH
HISTORY OF MILLING

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---"Flour for Man's Bread: A History of Milling" by John Storck and Walter Dorwin Teague, will be published by the University of Minnesota Press Tuesday (Aug. 19).

Published in cooperation with General Mills, Inc., the book traces the development of flour milling in the Western world from prehistoric times to the present.

Milling history began about 75,000 years ago, it appears from early grinding stones uncovered by archeologists. The story begins there and moves through the flour milling of ancient civilizations to modern European and American history and finally the twentieth-century milling methods.

Methods of milling are duly described in the new book, but the story is told in relation to social economic progress as well.

Storck, author of "Man and Civilization", a book widely used in universities and colleges, has also written and lectured on new methods of solving problems in science, engineering, social relations and the arts.

The other half of the team, Walter Teague, is a noted industrial designer and author of "Design This Day: The Technique of Order in the Machine Age", "Land of Plenty" and numerous magazine articles on industrial design.

The book contains 150 illustrations, by Harold Rydell, showing the milling devices and processes described. James F. Bell, founder of General Mills, has written the foreword.

BRITISH PHYSICIANS OVERWORKED
UNDER GOVERNMENT HEALTH PLAN,
UNIVERSITY DOCTOR REPORTS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---The day former King George VI died was the busiest of their careers for many British physicians.

Movies, pubs and shops were closed -- so people went to their doctors.

Dr. James Rogers Fox, of the University of Minnesota medical school, recently returned from three months' study and practice in Great Britain, reports that two of his British colleagues received patients in their offices until 11:30 p.m. that night.

The story is an example of some of the difficulties raised by Great Britain's socialized medicine plan.

Medical care under the National Health Service, says Dr. Fox, who practiced alongside British doctors under the program, has been made available to more persons, but physicians are being over-worked and the standard of care and practice of medicine are not making the progress that might be anticipated in the light of new medical developments.

Under the government health plan, British physicians are allowed a maximum of 4,000 patients on their books at one time. They are paid $2.38 per patient per year. If a doctor keeps his list close to the maximum figure, which most do, his income is around $9,500 yearly, before taxes.

American general practitioners feel that 1,500 to 2,000 patients is a top load to carry and any more means a proportionate decrease in adequate care, according to Dr. Fox.

"There just aren't enough hours in the day to treat more properly," he added.

Certain specialists, on the other hand, can administer to 4,000 ailing with comparative ease. Newly trained doctors in England have noted this and are shying away from the more taxing, less satisfying general practices.

Dr. Fox reports that not one of the cross-section of 66 physicians he interviewed during his stay favored the program in its present form. This may be in part due to restrictions under which doctors must now practice. One of the less popular rules requires physicians to answer all house calls at any time of the day or night.

If a physician feels the call is unnecessary and fails to make it, the patient may report him. A first offense brings a reprimand; the second, temporary suspension from practice and a third offense may mean loss of license. Judgment is passed - and here's the rub, according to the doctors - by a local board of laymen.

Hospitals, for the most part entirely maintained by private donations in the pre-National Health Service days, are unable to accommodate the new influx of patients. Contributions have ceased, and apathy has replaced pride, according to Dr. Fox.

He cited a 1,500-bed hospital in Scotland as a fairly typical example of the strain on medical facilities. The hospital is jammed and has a waiting list of 1,400. Emergency cases, he added, are handled immediately.

All is not chaos, however. Physicians in industrial areas who always carried a heavy practice are now assured of an income. Paper work and red tape are far less bothersome than was expected, and the nation is becoming more health conscious.

The problems could have been more easily avoided, Dr. Fox feels, if the health program's course had not been so much determined by politics. Great Britain jumped too quickly into socialized medicine, he says. Had it been brought along more slowly, its condition would be more healthy today.

Our own problems are a good deal different from Great Britain's, Dr. Fox said. That country's tradition, size, government and general approach to life make a point-by-point comparison of medicine impossible.

While in Great Britain, Dr. Fox observed medical schools, health services and industrial medical centers and was made a member of the British Medical Council Registry. He will elaborate on these experiences when he resumes his weekly talks over University radio station KUQM in October.

Alfred M. Greenfield, a native of St. Paul and now chairman of the music department at University College, New York University, will direct a three-day clinic on Handel's "Messiah" at the University of Minnesota's Center for Continuation Study beginning Monday (Aug. 25).

The meeting will be a refresher course for choir directors, organists and choir members on presentation techniques of "Messiah". New ideas on performance and interpretation of the famous oratorio will be offered the musicians.

Two sessions daily will be devoted to talks and discussion on the Overture, Pastoral Symphony, arias and various arrangements of "Messiah".

Each evening Greenfield will conduct a demonstration choir made up of singers attending the clinic.

Greenfield, a former St. Paul choir member and organist, is conductor of the New York University glee club and of the Oratorio Society of New York. In 1947, he directed the latter in the first uncut performance of "Messiah" in America. He has recently been guest conductor of the Salt Lake Oratorio society in Salt Lake City, Utah and conducted at the Bach Festival in Winter Park, Fla.

The University's music department and Center for Continuation Study and the Twin City Choirmasters guild and the American Guild of Organists will sponsor the clinic which runs Monday through Wednesday (Aug. 25-27).

'HMS PINAFORE'
SCHEDULED ON 'U'
MALL MONDAY

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, AUGUST 24)

A different staging technique will be employed when the Canterbury Players give their third local presentation of "HMS Pinafore" at 8:30 p.m. Monday (Aug. 25) on the Mall of the University of Minnesota.

The Gilbert and Sullivan classic is a bonus offering by the University's summer session which closed its scheduled stage season last Sunday (Aug. 17).

Arena staging -- one of the earliest methods of presentation -- will be revived for "Pinafore". The action revolves around the audience which is seated in a circle on the grass. Important action takes place on a four foot high platform in the center of the "stage".

Lights will be hung from trees and an amplifying system will assure everyone of hearing. A grand piano will supply music.

The entire area will be sprayed for mosquitos a few hours before curtain time.

The Canterbury Players of the campus Episcopal club have done "Pinafore" twice before this summer -- at the Sheffield West home, Lake Minnetonka, and the Sheltering Arms hospital in Minneapolis.

Heading the cast of 18 will be Richard Halverson, Paul Spong, Paul K. Peterson, Margie Ann Sampson and Barbara Jordan. Direction is by J. Morton Walker, technical director of the University theater.

DEAN PREDICTS
U OF M ENROLLMENT
WILL TOP 16,500

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Despite the loss of 5,245 students through graduation last year and despite smaller high school graduating classes throughout the state, the University of Minnesota will move into the 1952-53 school year with an enrollment of more than 16,500, R. E. Summers, dean of admissions and records, predicted Thursday (Aug. 21).

The anticipated enrollment will be considerably higher than the 16,000 estimated at the time of the last session of the State Legislature in 1951 on which basis Legislative appropriations were made for the University's fiscal year 1952-53.

Dean Summers attributed the "favorable outlook" in University enrollment to evidence of an increase in the proportion of new high school graduates seeking admission and to the unexpectedly large numbers of new students registering in some fields, particularly engineering.

"It is practically certain, however," the dean stated, "that growing strength in the University enrollment picture is not due in any substantial measure to Korean veterans. Some Korean veterans will enroll for the fall quarter, but they are not expected in significant numbers until later." Government educational benefits for veterans of the Korean fighting became effective Wednesday (Aug. 20).

The large graduating classes of the last year marked the passing of the so-called "veterans' bulge" in enrollment, the dean said. World War II veterans enrollment at the University reached a peak of about 17,000 in 1947. Total enrollment last fall was 18,682, about 2,100 above Dean Summers' estimate for this year.

Declining high school graduating classes have steadily reduced the University's numerical potential of new students, Dean Summers explained. Statistics indicate that the high school output will continue to drop through 1953, but will start climbing in 1954, thus enlarging the University's source of new students.

NURSES NEEDED TO ASSIST IN
POLIO EMERGENCY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis -- A statewide appeal for nurses to assist in the polio emergency was made today by Dr. Gaylord W. Anderson, chairman of the Minnesota Polio Planning commission and director of the University of Minnesota's school of public health.

"For the next few months", Dr. Anderson said, "there will be a need for additional trained nurses, practical nurses, nurses aids and packers."

They need not volunteer for polio nursing. Any nurse that goes to work now will release another for polio care.

A nationwide shortage of nurses and an increase in the care of polio patients has brought about the present need for nurses.

"We are saving more lives now," Dr. Anderson said, "which means more patients to care for."

Also patients are hospitalized longer now after they pass the acute polio stage. Doctors have found that this extended care can reduce paralysis.

The changes in methods of treatment simply means that 100 polio patients today require and get much more nursing than 100 patients ten years ago, according to Dr. Anderson. A person contracting polio today will need care for many weeks, he said.

Nurses available for work during the next few months should contact their local Red Cross chapter for placement. Registered nurses who sign up for two months will be paid $275 per month. Others will be paid at the local hospital rate.

U OF M ENGAGES
ENGINEERING FIRM
FOR TV SURVEY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---The University of Minnesota, having undertaken a survey of educational television possibilities in the state, has engaged a Washington, D.C. firm of consulting radio engineers to assist in the project.

President J. L. Morrill reported Thursday (Aug. 21) that representatives of the engineering firm of Jansky and Bailey will serve as consultants to University staff members who are making the study which will be used as a foundation for statewide educational television planning.

Major problems to which the survey will be devoted are the following:

1. Population distribution in the state based on the 1950 census.
2. The state's topography as it relates to television transmission and the selection of transmission sites for the best possible coverage.
3. How the state could best be served by an educational television transmitter employing relay stations to obtain maximum coverage of the area.
4. Estimated costs of various plans for an educational television system in Minnesota.

C. M. Jansky, Jr., and Stuart L. Bailey, partners in the company retained by the University, were both active in the early development of radio broadcasting in Minnesota.

Jansky came to the University from the University of Wisconsin in 1920 to take charge of courses and experimental work in radio engineering in the department of electrical engineering. In the spring of 1920, he established at the University one of the first radio telephone broadcasting stations. This station originally operated under the call letters 9XI. Later these were changed to WLB and still later to KUOM, the present designation.

Jansky resigned his post as an associate professor of radio engineering at the University in 1928 to enter consulting practice in Washington, D.C.

A native of Minnesota, Bailey is a graduate of the University's department of electrical engineering where he also earned a master's degree in 1928. He served as chief operator of the University's radio station for a time while he was a student and did considerable engineering work in connection with the University's broadcast service and measurement of the areas covered.

After two years as a radio engineer with the lighthouse service and airways division of the Department of Commerce, Bailey joined Jansky as a partner in 1930. Their firm is now the oldest and largest radio engineering company practicing before the Federal Communications commission.

Minneapolis ---With the publication this week of the twenty-fifth volume in its Child Welfare Monograph Series, the University of Minnesota Press also marks the twenty-fifth year since this series was started with the cooperation of the University's Institute of Child Welfare.

The newest volume reports on a study of "Behavior Difficulties of Children as Perceived and Judged by Parents, Teachers, and Children Themselves" by William Griffiths. Dr. Griffiths, formerly with the Minnesota State Department of Health, is now associate professor of public health at the University of California.

The first volume in this long-continued series, "The Young Child and His Parents" by Josephine C. Foster and John E. Anderson, was issued in 1927, the year the University Press began operating. Dr. Anderson, co-author of this book, is director of the Institute of Child Welfare.

At the time the Child Welfare Monograph Series was established, socio-psychological research in child welfare problems was in its pioneering stage. The early publications in the series contributed substantially to the fundamental knowledge on which a now greatly expanded field of study is based.

Publication of many of the monographs has been financed by royalties from sales of the book, "Child Care and Training" by Marion L. Faegre and Dr. Anderson. This book, first published by the University of Minnesota Press in 1928, is widely used by parents, doctors and teachers as a popular handbook of child care. It has been revised many times since it was originally published, to bring it up to date with findings of recent research, and is now in its seventh edition.

Film and radio actor Claude Rains will portray Thomas Jefferson in a new series of radio programs exploring ideas and principles of Jeffersonian democracy to be broadcast over KUOM, University radio station, at 1:30 p.m. Tuesdays beginning September 16.

"The Jeffersonian Heritage" will be aired by KUOM via the tape network of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

Presented in dramatic form, the 13-week series will not be biographical, but will deal with Jefferson's philosophy and precepts showing how they have endured and guided men throughout American history.

"The Living Declaration", the program which introduces the series, dramatizes Jefferson's part in the Declaration of Independence.

Other Jeffersonian ideals dealt with are freedom of religion, the press, the mind, the American concept of revolution as opposed to the communist concept and universal education.

The programs are part of a project financed by a $300,000 grant from the Fund for Adult Education established by the Ford Foundation.

Two nationally known radio and television writers, Morton Wishengrad and Milton Geiger, wrote the scripts from research done by Professor Dumas Malone, Columbia university, an authority on Jeffersonian democracy. Frank Papp produced the series for the NAEB, whose 75 member stations around the country will also broadcast it.

In addition to "The Jeffersonian Heritage", other coming series in the project include "People Under Communism" and "Ways of Mankind".

UNIVERSITY PLANS
EVENING SCHOOL
AT EDINA HIGH

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, SEPT. 4)

In response to many requests from suburban communities in the southwestern metropolitan area of Minneapolis, the University of Minnesota's general extension division plans to establish at Edina high school this fall a center for the operation of evening classes, Huntington Miller, assistant dean of the division, announced today.

Under consideration also, according to Dean Miller, is the offering of evening courses in the Hopkins high school. Because of the planning involved, he added, it is not expected that such courses could be started until the spring semester.

"It has become increasingly evident," Dean Miller explained, "that it is no longer possible to serve adequately all residents of the metropolitan area of Minneapolis solely through evening class offerings on the University campuses. Recent rapid shifts of population and industry to suburban communities have brought with them transportation and other problems which make it virtually impossible for many residents to avail themselves of services offered at the University itself. It becomes the responsibility of the extension division, therefore, to bring the University to residents of suburban Minneapolis, if that is at all possible.

"We have selected the southwestern area," he added, "including in particular the communities of southwestern Minneapolis, Richfield, Bloomington, Edina, Morning-side, Hopkins, St. Louis Park, Golden Valley, Excelsior, Minnetonka township and Wayzata for our first experiment in decentralization."

Classes for the fall semester, which will open the week of September 29, will meet in the Edina high school Tuesday and Thursday evenings, one night a week per class, at 8 o'clock. Course schedules have not yet been determined definitely but probably will be chosen from the following list: speaking, business law, legal problems, parliamentary law, house planning, art, gardening, interior design, history, languages, economics, efficient reading, education, psychology and theater.

(MORE)

This project is being planned with the aid of the extension advisory council made up of residents of the areas involved. Those citizens already members of the council and assisting in the planning are: Mrs. Chester Brown, Donald Burris, Mrs. Nate Crabtree, Don A. Donovan, H.G. Gullixson, Mrs. Bower Hawthorne, Mrs. H. RHEUMATIC FEVER
VOLUME PUBLISHED
BY U. OF M. PRESS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

MINNEAPOLIS -- The causes, prevention, and management of rheumatic fever, a disease which strikes particularly at children and young adults, are discussed in a new volume, "Rheumatic Fever: A Symposium," published Wednesday, Sept. 3 by the University of Minnesota Press.

The book is edited by Dr. Lewis Thomas, American Legion Memorial heart research professor in the University of Minnesota departments of pediatrics and medicine.

The volume includes 23 papers representing the work of more than 40 leading investigators and practitioners from all parts of the country in the field of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease. The papers were originally given at a three-day conference on rheumatic fever held at the University of Minnesota under the sponsorship of the Minnesota Heart association.

In the introduction to the volume, Dr. Irvine McQuarrie, head of the University of Minnesota department of pediatrics, points out that there is still wide divergence of opinion as to the relative importance of factors involved in the pathogenesis or development of rheumatic fever, despite several decades of clinical and laboratory investigation. The aim of the symposium was to evaluate and define the problems that remain to be solved.

The majority of first attacks of rheumatic fever occur among persons under the age of 25, a fact which makes the disease a special problem in military installations. The present volume includes reports of studies carried out in the Armed Forces.

'U' FILM SOCIETY
TO OPEN TWELFTH
SEASON OCTOBER 8

The University of Minnesota Film Society will open its twelfth season October 8 with showings of "Four in a Jeep" at 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Six other movies filmed in Arizona, Red China, England and Italy round out the fall program.

"Four in a Jeep" deals with the international military police in Vienna. The uneasy relationship between the Russians and the other three allies is projected through the personalities of the soldiers who patrol the city. Action revolves around the efforts of the three allied policemen to keep an Austrian, an escaped Soviet prisoner-of-war, from arrest by the Russian military police.

On October 15 "The Browning Version", starring Michael Redgrave will be shown. The story, adapted from Terrence Rattigan's stage play, is about an unpopular English schoolmaster who gathers strength for a show of courage on the day he is being eased out of school.

Third on the program will be "The Navajo", a new semi-documentary filmed in Arizona. Francis Kee Teller, an eight-year-old Navajo boy plays the lead role of a young lad who balks at being sent to the white man's school. The film indicates a complete respect for the Navajo traditions and taboos and a fine appreciation of the Arizona scenery.

The prize winner of the International Film Critics and Cannes Festival, "Miracle in Milan" will be shown November 5. This is the first comedy filmed by Vittorio De Sica, who produced "Bicycle Thief" and "Shoe Shine".

"St. Matthew Passion", combining photographs of Bach masterpieces and the Bach oratorio, will be presented November 19, during the University's Religion in Life Week. Filmed in the pattern of "The Titan", this sacred story is the last work of Robert Flaherty, pioneer of the documentary movie.

A Russian import filmed in China will be screened December 3. "The New China" is the first chance the Western world has had to see that country under its new regime.

Produced by the Chinese Peoples' Republic Film Studios of Peiping and the Central Documentary Studios of Moscow, the film covers South China, the Yangtze, Hangchow, New Shanghai and New Peking. It is a carefully guided Cook's tour comparing present political, economic and cultural conditions with those of the past.

Alec Guinness in "The Lavender Hill Mob" will close the fall session December 10. Guinness portrays a drab little bank messenger from respectable Lavender Hill who engineers the theft of a million pounds of gold from the Bank of England.

MILITARY FACTORS IN FOREIGN POLICY
'U' INSTITUTE TOPIC

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, SEPT. 7))

Minneapolis -- Military factors in foreign policy will be the subject of a three-day institute at the University of Minnesota's Center for Continuation Study September 29-October 1.

The institute will be presented by the Minnesota World Affairs Center with the co-sponsorship of the Minnesota department, American Legion, and other veterans' organizations. Enrollment in the institute is open to the public, and registration blanks may be obtained by phoning or writing to the Center for Continuation Study at the University.

Purpose of the institute, according to William C. Rogers, director of the World Affairs Center, is "to help develop a better understanding of the importance of military factors in the formulation of foreign policy. No foreign policy is likely to be successful unless adequate attention is given to military considerations".

Topics and speakers are as follows: September 29 -- "Influence of Science and Technology on Military Factors," Dr. Lloyd V. Berkner, president, Associated Universities, Inc., and special assistant to the Secretary of State; "Government Machinery for the Formulation and Administration of Foreign Policy," Dr. Royden Dangerfield, director, Institute of Government and Public Affairs, University of Illinois.

September 30 -- "Military Factors in Foreign Policy -- The Elements of Power," Rear Admiral Bernard L. Austin, director, International Affairs division, Office of Chief of Naval Operation, United States Navy; Major General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, deputy chief of staff for plans and research, United States Army; Lieutenant General T. D. White, deputy chief of staff for operations, United States Air Force.

October 1 --"Military Factors in Foreign Policy -- Regional Considerations," Admiral Austin, General Lemnitzer and General White.

A committee of Minnesotans which helped plan the institute included Frederick E. Berger, institute program director, Center for Continuation Study; Harold C. Deutsch, professor of history, University of Minnesota; Reginald Faragher, chairman, foreign relations committee, American Legion, Department of Minnesota; Benjamin E. Lippincott and Charles H. McLaughlin, professors of political science, University of Minnesota; Julius M. Nolte, dean, general extension division, University of Minnesota; William C. Rogers, director, Minnesota World Affairs Center; Hubert Schon, director, United Labor Committee for Human Rights; and Robert W. Smith, military affairs writer, the Minneapolis Star.

MINNESOTA DOCTOR
CALLED TO SPAIN
FOR DISEASE SURVEY

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. FRIDAY, SEPT. 5)

Minneapolis -- At the request of the Spanish government, Dr. Wesley W. Spink, University of Minnesota professor of medicine, will make a survey this month of brucellosis in Spain. He will leave for Spain Sunday (Sept. 7) via Geneva, Switzerland.

Dr. Spink, who will make the survey in his capacity as a consultant to the World Health Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, will visit areas where the disease is prevalent and will advise Spanish authorities concerning methods for eradicating the disease.

Following his work in Spain, he will perform a similar task in southern France. A form of brucellosis, Brucella mellitensis, is rampant throughout the whole Mediterranean area, according to Dr. Spink, causing drastic losses in sheep and goats with a resulting grave impairment of the human food supply in that part of the world.

Dr. Spink will go from France to Florence, Italy, where he will meet as a member with the Expert Panel on Brucellosis of the WHO and FAO of the United Nations. He is one of five members on this panel from the Western Hemisphere. This group will prepare recommendations for the control and eradication of brucellosis on a world-wide scale.

Before returning to the United States sometime in November, Dr. Spink will spend two weeks in Great Britain participating in discussions on antibiotic research. His visit will include a stay at Oxford university.

Dr. Spink is director of the United States Brucellosis Research Center of the WHO and the FAO located at the University of Minnesota. In 1951, he acted as a consultant on brucellosis for the WHO in studying the disease in a number of European countries including Yugoslavia.

KUOM TO BROADCAST
JEFFERSON SERIES
STARTING SEPT. 16.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The introductory program of the new 13-week series on "The Jeffersonian Heritage", produced by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, will be presented Tuesday, September 16, at 1:30 p.m. over the University of Minnesota radio station, KUOM.

"The Living Declaration", which will lead off the distinguished series of narratives of the life and times of Thomas Jefferson, will dramatize the part played by Jefferson in the writing of the Declaration of Independence. The main theme of the opening broadcast will be that the third President's ideas and ideas in the Declaration are living realities.

Morton Wishengrad, well-known network radio writer, wrote the text for the first program, which will emphasize the Jeffersonian quotation: "The earth belongs to the living generation." The script is based on the research, writings, and advice of Dr. Dumas Malone, professor of History at Columbia university.

Claude Rains, star of stage, screen and radio, is featured in the role of Thomas Jefferson.

MEDICAL COURSES
OFFERED DOCTORS
THROUGHOUT STATE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis —A series of medical seminars for Minnesota doctors will get underway next week (Sept. 15-21) in nine communities-- Albert Lea, Brainerd, Fergus Falls, Glencoe, Hibbing, Mankato, Rochester, St. Cloud and Willmar.

The regional seminars, designed to keep state doctors up-to-date on new medical techniques, are sponsored annually by the University of Minnesota's department of continuation medical education and the Minnesota State Medical association. The courses which cover a variety of medical topics, usually run one night a week for eight weeks and are taught by clinical and full-time members of the University's medical school faculty.

Five of the seminars -- one on therapeutics at the Fergus Falls State hospital; fractures and surgery of trauma at Glencoe Municipal hospital; obstetrics at St. Joseph's hospital, Mankato; therapeutics at St. Cloud hospital; and obstetrics at Rice Memorial hospital, Willmar -- start Tuesday (Sept. 16).

Another course in therapeutics, at Naeve hospital, Albert Lea, and a seminar in gastroenterology at Hibbing General hospital will get underway Wednesday (Sept. 17). Courses in therapeutics and gynecology at Brainerd high school and in pediatrics at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, are scheduled to begin Thursday (Sept. 18). The Rochester seminar will be taught by staff members of the Mayo Foundation.

Physicians in the Worthington area started a short, four-session seminar in therapeutics at the community hospital Sept. 8. Under the same sponsorship as the other seminars, the course is given on alternate Monday nights.

GERMAN ENGINES
EXPERT TO SPEAK
AT U OF M TUESDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Dr. Ernst H. Schmidt, professor of thermodynamics at the engineering university in Brunswick, Germany, where he heads the engine research division of the aeronautics research center, will present a lecture on thermodynamics at the University of Minnesota Tuesday (Sept. 16).

An expert in designing new testing techniques and methods of instrumentation in the fields of thermodynamics and heat transfer, Professor Schmidt will speak at 10:30 a.m. in Room 18 of the University's mechanical engineering building. His subject will be "The Third Law of Thermodynamics -- Its Application and Interpretation in Engineering Problems".

During World War II, Dr. Schmidt was active in research connected with Germany's remarkable development of military aircraft -- particularly in the fields of turbo jets and rockets, turbine blade cooling, combustion mechanism, and rocket fuels.

Professor Schmidt's lecture here, one of three he is giving in the United States, will be sponsored by the mechanical engineering department, a division of the University's institute of technology. The lecture will be open to anyone who wishes to attend.

'U' PLANS ORIENTATION
SESSIONS FOR NEW
FOREIGN STUDENTS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Information sessions for new foreign students at the University of Minnesota -- giving them tips on courses, examinations, housing, part-time work, activities on and off campus -- will begin Friday (Sept. 12).

The orientation program will include three other one-day information sessions: Sept. 19, 25 and Oct. 4. The program is arranged annually by the dean of students office through its foreign student adviser and the University's student activities bureau.

In the evening following the sessions, foreign students will be guests for dinner in Twin City homes, will be entertained by campus fraternities and sororities, go on a picnic with local families and then, Oct. 4, attend an international ball in Coffman Memorial Union.

Two special features of the information program will be an open house Sept. 26 staged by the international commission of the All-University Congress, the Cosmopolitan club, the YMCA, YWCA and the American Brothers and Sisters organization.

An international week-end outing has been scheduled for Sept. 27-28. Sponsored by the University YMCA and YWCA in cooperation with the American Brothers and Sisters, it is an opportunity for American and foreign students to become acquainted on an informal basis.

'U' WILL GREET
4,000 NEW STUDENTS
WELCOME WEEK

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, SEPT. 18)

Minneapolis --More than 4,000 new students will be greeted by the University of Minnesota next week (Sept. 21-28) during the University's traditional Welcome Week -- an annual event preceding the start of fall quarter.

All Minneapolis and St. Paul campus organizations, in cooperation with the undergraduate colleges, are taking part in staging the program. Welcome Week gives new students an introduction to the University's traditions, services and opportunities to the faculty and other students and to the wide range of campus activities.

The week opens Sunday night (Sept. 21) with the YMCA-YWCA "First Nighter", an informal pep fest and dance. Dean of Students E. G. Williamson will officially welcome new students at a convocation Monday morning (Sept. 22). Other convocations during the week will outline the University's personnel services, organization of the various colleges, the diversity of cultures and religions on campus and student government.

Students will have several opportunities to meet University faculty members at a "how to study" session where professors will give them tips on such things as preparations for exams, at a meeting on special services available to University members and at a series of displays arranged by different departments.

The Coffman Memorial Union board of governors will show new students some of the campus recreational facilities at the "Coffman Caper" Monday night (Sept. 22), religious foundations will entertain them at a church night and University sororities and fraternities will be hosts during Greek night.

Social activities during Welcome Week will include an afternoon on the St. Paul campus for games, a smorgasbord supper and the "Blue Jean Ball", a banquet in Coffman Union followed by the "New Student Talent Show", the traditional "Big Sister" tea and as a climax, the "Welcome Whirl".

BOTANIST COLLECTS
6,000 SPECIMENS ON
WILDERNESS TRIP

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

D. Ross Moir, former University of Minnesota botany instructor, returned to Minneapolis last week with 6,000 specimens of flowering plants and ferns from the northwestern corner of Ontario. His trip was the first botanical survey made of the wilderness area.

Accompanied by two Indians, Moir traveled by canoe from Big Trout lake, up the Fawn river into the Severn river, ending up on the southwestern shore of Hudson bay. Much of the 300-mile trip was through muskeg country.

The expedition was made under the sponsorship of the Arctic Institute of North America and financed by the Office of Naval Research. Specimens which Moir gathered will be added to botanical collections at the University of Minnesota, University of Toronto and the National Herbarium of Canada.

Moir is now an assistant professor of botany at North Dakota Agricultural college, Fargo.

TWIN CITY PARTICIPANTS IN INSTITUTE ON MILITARY FACTORS IN FOREIGN POLICY

A distinguished group of Twin City residents will serve on panels with some of America's leading specialists in military and foreign affairs at the Institute on Military Factors in Foreign Policy to be held at the University of Minnesota's Center for Continuation Study, September 29, 30 and October 1.

The list of local participants was announced today by William C. Rogers, Director of the Minnesota World Affairs Center, which, with the American Legion—Department of Minnesota, is sponsoring the Institute. The Institute is open to the public.

Joining the panel on the Influence of Science and Technology on Military Factors, led by Lloyd V. Berkner, President of Associated Universities, Inc., on Monday morning, September 29, will be Alfred O. Nier, Professor of Physics, University of Minnesota; Nat S. Finney, Editor, Minneapolis Star; Alfred M. Wilson, Vice President, Minneapolis Honeywell; and Athelstan F. Spilhaus, Dean of the Institute of Technology, University of Minnesota.

Participants in the panel on government machinery for the Formulation and Administration of Foreign Policy Monday afternoon will be Mrs. Dorothy Jacobson, Professor of Political Science, Macalester College; Charles H. McLaughlin, Associate Professor of Political Science, University of Minnesota; and Lloyd M. Short, Chairman of the Department of Political Science, University of Minnesota. Royden Langerfield, Director, Institute of Government and Public Affairs, University of Illinois, will lead the discussion.

Tuesday, September 30, will be devoted to discussions of sea, land and air power in foreign policy. Speakers will be Rear Admiral Bernard L. Austin, Director, International Affairs Division, Office of Chief of Naval Operations, United States Navy; Major General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Research, United States Army; and Lieutenant General T. D. White, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, United States Air Force. Panel members will include King Bennethum, First National Bank of Minneapolis and Secretary-Treasurer, Minneapolis Council of the Navy League; Harold E. Wood, Investment Banker, St. Paul; Hubert Schon, Colonel U. S. Army Reserves and Director of the United Labor Committee for Human Rights; Robert Smith, military affairs writer for the Minneapolis Star; Benjamin Lippincott, Lt. Colonel, U. S. Air Force Reserves and Professor of Political Science, University of Minnesota; Harold C. Deutsch, Professor of History, University of Minnesota; Julius M. Nolte, Dean, General Extension Division, University of Minnesota; and Mrs. Northrop Beach, 2nd Vice President, Minneapolis League of Women Voters.

The discussions on Wednesday, October 1, will concern foreign - military policy in Europe and the Far East. Admiral Austin and Generals Lemnitzer and White will discuss Europe with John Bowditch, Associate Professor of History, University of Minnesota; Heinrich Roosen, Professor of Political Science, St. Thomas College; Mrs. Allan H. Meinecke, Chairman, Ramsey County Americans for Democratic Action; Reginald Faragher, Chairman, Foreign Relations Committee, American Legion, Department of Minnesota; and B. H. Ridder, President, St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press. Afternoon discussions devoted to the Far East will include E. W. (FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Prominent researchers in the field of electrolyte metabolism (the way in which various salts are handled inside the human body) will visit the University of Minnesota campus Sept. 22-24 for a national symposium on the metabolism of potassium (a salt found in the human body principally inside body cells). The three-day meeting, which will be of special interest to pediatricians, is being sponsored by M and R Laboratories, Columbus, O.

Lecturers at the sessions in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History will include Dr. Daniel C. Darrow, Yale university pediatrics professor, who will speak on "The Role of Water and Electrolyte Deficits in Infantile Diarrhea"; Dr. Willis H. Thompson, assistant pediatrics professor at the University of Minnesota, who will talk on "Antagonism Between Sodium and Potassium in Their Effects on Glycosuria and Blood Pressure in Diabetic Children"; and Dr. Thaddeus S. Danowski, professor of research medicine, University of Pittsburgh, who will discuss studies in diabetic coma and acidosis.

Two other speakers will be Dr. Robert Tarail, a colleague of Dr. Danowski's, on "The Relationship of Potassium Metabolism to Cardiac Function", and Dr. Howard B. Burchell, associate professor of medicine, Mayo Foundation, speaking on "Electrocardiographic Changes Related to Disturbances in Potassium Metabolism".

Dr. Irvine McQuarrie, head of the University of Minnesota's pediatrics department, is general chairman of the symposium.

U OF M TO OPEN
NEW PSYCHIATRIC UNIT FOR CHILDREN

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- An expanded psychiatric service for Minnesota youngsters will come into being next month (Oct.) when University of Minnesota Hospitals open the state's first in-patient psychiatric center for children.

The new 24-bed section, set up as a division of the University's pediatrics department, will operate primarily as a diagnostic center where a comprehensive survey can be made of each child's troubles. It will directly serve Minnesota communities by helping them in the understanding and handling of youngsters with adjustment difficulties.

Cases admitted to the unit will represent a cross-section of the various mental illnesses which occur in children -- psychological problems ranging from mental deficiency and serious neurotic conditions to emotional disturbances arising from physical ailments such as rheumatic fever, asthma and diabetes. The average patient stay is expected to be about 30 days.

Work in the new division will be directed by Dr. Irvine McQuarrie, head of the University's pediatrics department, with Dr. Reynold A. Jensen, professor of pediatrics and psychiatry, as medical director. Their staff will include medical fellows, clinical psychologists, psychiatric social workers, occupational therapists and other specialists.

The unit was created by a $115,000 grant from the 1951 state legislature. Psychiatric service for children on an out-patient basis was established with the financial aid of the Stevens Avenue foundation, Minneapolis, and the Commonwealth fund, New York, at the University in 1938. Until now, however, the only place to hospitalize such cases was in the adult psychiatric ward or in the pediatrics section.

Patients will be admitted to the new unit in the same manner as in the rest of the hospital. Children up to 16 years of age will be accepted for study.

"The Democrat and the Commissar", second in the radio series of "The Jeffersonian Heritage", will be aired Tuesday (Sept. 23) at 1:30 p.m. over the University of Minnesota radio station KUOM.

In this new episode of the "Heritage" series, the Jeffersonian and the historic American conception of revolution is compared with the Communist concept.

The program stars motion picture actor Claude Rains.

The action of this second program in this radio series places Jefferson face to face, in modern times, with a Russian commissar. They appear before a "Posthumous Committee on Revolutionary Activities" investigation.

Throughout the verbal duel, Jefferson points out that America's Revolution was "political rebellion, prudently sought, against insufferable tyranny". The Soviet Revolution "merely replaced one tyrant with another".

Milton Geiger wrote "The Democrat and the Commissar". It was produced and directed by Frank Papp, with music composed by Wladimir Selinsky.

UNIVERSITY STAFF

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- More than 300 University of Minnesota staff members are listed in the recently issued 1952-53 edition of "Who's Who in America". The total of 346 includes both active and emeritus professors.

The figure is only six less than the number of faculty members whose names appeared in the previous edition of "Who's Who" (1950-51). Twenty new entries almost compensated for 12 losses due to death and for the 14 people who left the University for posts at other institutions.

Of those listed in the current issue, 217 are professors on the Minneapolis campus, 35 on the St. Paul campus, 87 at the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research at Rochester, four are at the Duluth branch, one is at the Crookston experimental station and three are Regents of the University.

The median age of these distinguished staff members is 59.4, with the largest number -- 66 -- being in the 55-59 year age group.

Registration for fall semester evening classes at the University of Minnesota is now underway. Some 350 subjects are being offered this year.

Classes, which will run for 17 weeks, will start the week of Sept. 29. Registrations may be made through Saturday (Sept. 27) at general extension division headquarters in Nicholson hall on the University's Minneapolis campus, at the downtown Minneapolis office (690 Northwestern Bank building) and at the downtown St. Paul office (500 Robert St.).

Most of the evening courses carry University credit. Huntington Miller, assistant dean of the general extension division, points out that it is possible to earn a University degree in business or liberal arts through evening classes alone.

A large variety of business and industrial relations courses will again be taught on the main campus and also in loop buildings. Numerous liberal arts courses are being offered with special art classes scheduled at the Minneapolis School of Art, Walker Art Center and the St. Paul Gallery of Art.

Registration hours at the three general extension offices are from noon to 8:15 p.m. through Friday (Sept. 26) and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday (Sept. 27).

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Kenneth T. Whitby, 5240 38th Ave. S., Minneapolis, was named Thursday (Sept. 25) as the first recipient of a new Quaker Oats fellowship for graduate research in milling engineering at the University of Minnesota.

Announcement of the award was made by Richard C. Jordan, head of the University's mechanical engineering department. The grant, amounting to a one-year stipend of $2,700, will be administered through his department.

The Quaker Oats company has established the fellowship at the University to encourage study and research in scientific and engineering fields related to the grain processing industries. Whitby, a graduate student and instructor, will carry on research in air separation -- the process of cleaning grain by a stream of forced air.

Since 1948, Whitby has been active in the University's milling engineering research. A former resident of Fond du Lac, Wis., he has studied at the University of Wisconsin and the University of Minnesota. (FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Lloyd V. Berkner, president of Associated Universities, Inc. -- the organization which operates Brookhaven National laboratory for the Atomic Energy commission, will be honored by the University of Minnesota Monday (Sept. 29).

President J. L. Morrill will present to him the University's Outstanding Achievement medal. The award, given only to distinguished alumni, cites Berkner as a "diligent contributor to our national security and world-renowned engineer-administrator in the fields of physics, geophysics, terrestrial magnetism and electronics", University administrators and scientists will attend the ceremony, to be performed during a special breakfast in Coffman Memorial Union.

Berkner will be on campus to speak at one of the opening sessions of a three-day institute on military factors in foreign policy. Following the award breakfast, he will address the institute on "Influence of Science and Technology on Military Factors".

An internationally-recognized scientist, Berkner has had an outstanding career. Since 1946 he has served in several different capacities with the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, D.C., as director of the foreign military assistant program and special assistant to the Secretary of State and as executive secretary, department of defense, Research and Development board.

U OF M SCIENTIST
EXPLORES INDIAN
BURIAL MOUNDS

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, OCT. 2)

Minneapolis --Dr. Lloyd A. Wilford, University of Minnesota anthropologist who spends his summers digging into Indian mounds, has returned to the campus with this year's findings -- bones from more than 20 burials, pieces of pottery and a variety of other artifacts.

Accompanied by two of his students, Marshall McKusick and Donald Gripp, both of Minneapolis, Dr. Wilford first visited a mound on the farm of Nick Vanderbloom at the northwest corner of Lake Onamia. There they found remains of some ancient Sioux Indians laid on top of a charred funeral pyre.

(Most burials in Minnesota mounds, according to the scientist, are of the "bundle" or "secondary" type. The bones were placed in the ground after the bodies had been kept on open racks for several years.)

At its second stop, on the property of D. H. Bower at Nest lake, the University expedition uncovered the bones of one Indian child and five adults. "They were difficult to reach," Dr. Wilford states, "because the burials, located at the bottom of the mound, were spanned by an archway of tree roots." The remains are probably of the Mille Lacs culture group.

Just outside of Browns Valley on the farm of Roy Miller, Dr. Wilford investigated a unique circular trench which surrounds an area 120 feet by 140 feet. Measuring 30 feet across and nearly three feet down, the trench was undoubtedly used as a defense by Mille Lacs-type Indians, Wilford believes. Inside the circle the diggers found arrowheads, pottery and trade pieces from tribes living further West.

Richest find of the summer was made at Lake Hanska, southwest of New Ulm, on the farm of Ollie Synstebly. Eighteen burials were discovered inside two mounds and a great variety of artifacts were taken out of the ground nearby. Dr. Wilford thinks the spot was a "not too old" Sioux village.

MONDAY AT U. OF M.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Howland H. Sargeant, assistant secretary of state for public affairs, will keynote a three-day institute on military factors in foreign policy at the University of Minnesota Monday (Sept. 29).

Government executives and military officials will be in Minneapolis to speak at the meeting, sponsored by the Minnesota World Affairs Center in cooperation with the Minnesota department, American Legion, and other veterans' organizations.

According to William C. Rogers, director of the World Affairs Center, "the institute will be the equivalent of a high level Pentagon briefing on military factors in our foreign policy for the citizens of Minnesota".

One of the institute sessions, Lt. Gen. Thomas D. White's talk on air power in foreign policy at 8 p.m. Tuesday (Sept. 30) in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium, will be open to the public without charge. A former Minnesotan, General White is deputy chief of staff for operations, United States Air Force.

Sargeant, in his opening speech at 9 a.m. Monday (Sept. 29), will review "Basic Facts and Understandings About Today's World".

A prominent scientist-administrator, Lloyd V. Berkner, president of Associated Universities, Inc., will discuss "Influence of Science and Technology on Military Factors" at 10 a.m. As a special assistant to the Secretary of State, he is in charge of the military assistance program for strengthening Western Europe.

The topic for afternoon discussion -- "Government Machinery for the Formulation and Administration of Foreign Policy" -- will be presented by Royden Dangerfield, director of the Institute of Government and Public Affairs at the University of Illinois.

SUBJECT

OBSERVANCE OF Publication Of Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible
Coffman Union Main Ballroom Thursday October 2, 1952 at 8 P.M.

On Thursday, October 2, 1952 at 8 P.M. in Coffman Union main Ballroom the Protestant members of the Student Council of Religion are sponsoring a service of recognition of the publication of the new Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible. This service is one of thousands being held this week in Canada, Hawaii, Canal Zone, and every state in the United States.

The service on campus will feature an address by Dr. Clarence Tucker Craig Dean of Drew Seminary, Madison, New Jersey. Dr. Craig has been a member of American Standard Bible Translation Committee and participated in the translation of the New Testament which was published in 1946. Dr. Craig is an eminent New Testament scholar and the author of numerous books in the field including The Beginning of Christianity, The Study of the New Testament, The One Church etc. Before coming to Drew Seminary, he held the chair of New Testament Study at the Oberlin School of Graduate Theology for eighteen years and the same chair at Yale University Divinity School for three years. Dr. Craig has taken an active part in the ecumenical movement, serving as chairman of the American Theological Committee of the Faith and Order Commission of the World Council of Churches.

In addition to the address Bibles will be presented to President J.L. Merrill, Dr. Henry E. Allen, coordinator of Students' Religious Activities, Dean Edmund G. Williamson, Elmer Bjornson, president of the Student Council of Religion and the Reverend Wilbur Kerphage, director of the Wesley Foundation and advisor to the Student's Bible Observance Committee.

A chorus of 100 voices under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Davenport of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will present Festgesang a cantata by Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy. This cantata was written on the 400th anniversary of the publication of the Gutenberg Bible in 1840. The choir is made up of singers from the Campus religious Foundations, nearby churches and the Music School.

An impressive part of the service will be the reading of passages of scripture in ten translations, including Hebrew, Greek, Latin Vulgate, German (Luther's Translation) and the English translations from Tyndale's Bible to the present. Students from the Protestant Foundations will take part in this reading.

The local student Committee has been headed by Alice Foote of Wesley Foundation The Advisory Committee has been headed by The Rev Wilbur Kerphage of Wesley, and includes the Rev John Saunders Bone, director of Roger Williams Fellowship and minister of University Baptist Church and The Rev Arndt Halverson, minister of University Church of Hope(Lutheran).

The Reverend Mr. Bone will lead the service on Thursday evening and will make the Bible presentations and introduce the guest speaker.

BOOK CHATS BEGINS
FALL SERIES
AT NEW TIME

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Book Chats, a program which features interviews with authors and prominent people in the publishing world, will be heard next Monday (Oct. 6) and every Monday thereafter at 4 p.m. over the University of Minnesota radio station, KUOM, 770 on your radio dial.

The first guest of the fall series will be Walt Kelly, creator of Pogo, hero of a cartoon strip carried by 226 newspapers, with a following of 37,000,000 readers in the United States, Canada, Mexico City, Tokyo and Bangkok.

Kelly's book, "I Go Pogo", was published three weeks ago as the result of an earlier success; his first book, entitled simply: "Pogo", sold 163,000 copies within 10 weeks of its publication last year.

The Book Chats programs include the reading of letters from listeners, each writer of which receives a card entitling him to pick a book from one of seven cooperating Twin City bookstores. Copies of the winning letters are made available to other listeners and also distributed by Minneapolis and St. Paul bookstores and the public libraries. More than 10,000 copies have been distributed since the origin of the Book Chats letter contest last June.

Book Chats is produced by Audrey June Booth, program supervisor, community services, for the University radio station. The program formerly was heard on Friday mornings.

Harold G. Russell, associated with the University of Minnesota Libraries since 1919, was appointed assistant director of libraries by the University's Board of Regents Sept. 25. At the same time, Margaret Fulmer, former head librarian at Billings and Great Falls, Mont., was named an instructor in the division of library instruction.

Russell came to Minnesota Sept. 1, 1919, as head of the circulation department. In 1921, he became head of acquisitions, serving also, on a part-time basis, as a faculty member in the library instruction division. Since 1932, he has served as chief reference librarian.

His new post is described as assistant director for collections and bibliographic services. In this capacity, Russell will have general responsibility for all problems relating to the "resources" side of the library's administration. All units and departments of the library will deal directly with him on questions concerning the selection, care and disposition of library materials. Russell will also work with the Midwest Interlibrary Center.

Miss Fulmer began her career as a reference librarian for the State Library commission, Bismarck, N. D., in 1930. Since then, she has been librarian at Hastings, Nebr.; Billings and Great Falls, Mont.; and a public library specialist for the American Library association.

In her new position, Miss Fulmer will develop the public, county and state extension side of the curriculum.

COLLEGE LANGUAGE
TEACHERS TO MEET
AT MINNESOTA 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Midwest college teachers of language and literature -- approximately 400 -- will meet at the University of Minnesota Oct. 24-25 for their third fall conference.

Sponsored by the University's various language departments, the gathering will bring teachers from six states and one Canadian province to Minneapolis. They will come from North and South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, Minnesota and Manitoba.

Conference delegates will hear 36 speakers discuss teaching techniques and the place of language and literature studies in the college program. Sessions will cover the teaching of Scandinavian, German, Romance and classical languages, as well as English composition and literature.

A leading English scholar, I. A. Richards, now a professor at Harvard university's graduate school of education, will give a public lecture on "Literary Analysis" as a prelude to the conference. Under sponsorship of Minnesota's concerts and lectures department, he will speak at 8 p.m. Oct. 23. The next morning, he will open the meeting with a talk on "What Should We Be Doing?"

Onetime fellow and lecturer at Magdalene college, Cambridge, Richards will also participate in a panel discussion on "The Uses of Language in Poetry" with Professors John Hospers and Leonard Unger of Minnesota's philosophy and English departments.

(MORE)

Conference speakers will also include Allen Tate, Minnesota English professor, and S. Edgar Schmidt, Purdue university modern language professor. Tate, a distinguished American poet and literary critic, will address a general luncheon session, while Schmidt will describe Purdue's "language laboratory". He will explain how films, recorders and other electronic equipment are employed in a new audio-visual teaching technique for modern languages.

Professor Ralph G. Ross, head of Minnesota's humanities department, will lead a discussion on a general studies approach to the liberal arts. Other participants in the panel will be two new members of his staff -- George Amberg, former curator of theater arts at New York's Museum of Modern Art, and Isaac Rosenfeld, novelist and critic.

The conference is open to all teachers and students of language and literature in the Midwest area, according to Professor Marjorie H. Thurston, chairman and executive secretary of the meeting. All sessions will be conducted in Coffman Memorial Union.

U. OF M. HOSPITALS
REPORT BUSY YEAR,
11,444 ADMITTED

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. FRIDAY, OCT. 3)

Minneapolis ---The University of Minnesota Hospitals admitted 11,444 bed patients during the year ending June 30, 1952, and the average stay of those patients was 13.4 days, Ray M. Amberg, hospitals director, indicated in his annual report which was released today.

Admissions during the previous year totalled 10,831, and the length of stay averaged 13.3 days.

The daily average population of the hospitals during the last fiscal year, Amberg reported, was 418, somewhat higher than the 391 average for the year before. Days of hospital care provided patients during the year totalled 153,224 as compared with 142,885 in 1950-51.

Surgeons performed 7,441 operations in University Hospitals during the year reported, a decrease of 342 from the previous year's total of 7,783 operations.

Visits to the hospitals' out-patient department during the year numbered 99,501, while the total for the year before was 100,656 visits.

The cost of operating the hospitals' in-patient department has been rising steadily in recent years, Amberg pointed out in his report. The cost per patient day during the year ending June 30, was $21.74, an increase of $2.88 over the previous 12-month period. The cost for the year ending June 30, 1947, was only $12.02 per day, he recalled.

Cost per patient visit to the out-patient department amounted to $4.35 last year, an increase of 26 cents over 1950-51 and well above the $3.14 cost per visit in the operating year 1946-47.

University of Minnesota Hospitals were established primarily to furnish a means for the University to train medical students in clinical medicine. This training is given in the hospitals and the out-patient department under the direct supervision and guidance of a staff of full-time and part-time instructors. The staff is responsible to the state through the University for both the instruction of students and the care of patients.

"This arrangement has proved satisfactory," Amberg stated in his report, "not only in the training of medical students but also as an economical means for the state to care for many of its indigent sick."

University Hospitals rules require that each patient must be referred for admission by his family physician or by a physician in his local community.

TO RALLY FRIDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Science, Literature and Arts Day -- an annual celebration for students and professors in the University of Minnesota's largest college -- will be staged on the Minneapolis campus Friday (Oct. 17).

A student-faculty bag lunch party, football game and evening frolic will be supplemented by departmental exhibits and a series of roundtable discussions during the afternoon.

Wearing plaid shirts, traditional symbol of the college, students and faculty members will meet in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union at 11:45 a.m. for a bag lunch get-together before the annual student-faculty football game. The game will start at 1 p.m. on the Union lawn with the winner of the "Absent-Minded Professor Contest" acting as referee.

The student team will be led by David Burrington, editor of The Minnesota Daily, the student newspaper. Roger Page, assistant dean of the science, literature and arts college, is coaching the faculty eleven. Students will be out to avenge their last year's 31-13 defeat.

Afternoon coffee hours and discussions will give students another chance to meet professors informally and to talk about the needs and opportunities in their liberal arts field. Various departments in the college will have exhibits -- outstanding term papers, charts, models and art work-- displayed in the Union ballroom balcony during the day.

SLA Day will come to a climax with the student-faculty frolic, starting at 8 p.m. in the Union main ballroom. Between square dancing and social dancing, students and faculty members will put on an hour-long talent show.

Another special feature of the day is an essay contest on "The Need of a Liberal Arts Education Today". The winner will be announced at the bag luncheon.

PUBLIC INVITED TO OPEN HOUSE
AT 'U' ROSEMOUNT AERO LABORATORIES

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Want to see what a rocket plane looks like? How it flies? Take a close-up look at a guided missile or a ram jet?

Anyone interested in the science of flight can tour the University of Minnesota's aeronautical engineering laboratories at the Rosemount Research Center Sunday and Monday (Oct. 19-20). Professor John D. Akerman, head of the University's aeronautical engineering department, has announced that the laboratories will be open to the public from 3 to 9 p.m. both days.

Since the laboratories were established in 1946, scientists have been conducting extensive research there in the fields of supersonic aerodynamics, ballistics, physics of the air, ionics, high-speed photography and related areas.

In addition to the rocket plane, guided missiles and ram jets, the public will have a chance to watch five supersonic wind tunnels generating speeds equal to 5,000 miles per hour. There will also be opportunities to visit the electronics laboratory, see powerful compressors and vacuum pumps in action, and to see microscopic instruments used in research work.

Ninety research experts from all over the country are currently attending a technical conference at the Rosemount laboratories. The meeting began Thursday (Oct. 16) and continued through Saturday (Oct. 18).

Visitors to the open house, the third one held by the department, may park their cars at the main gate. Buses will transport them from exhibit to exhibit throughout the research area.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

With the slogan, "Be a Chester!", University of Minnesota students will begin their annual Campus Chest drive Monday (Oct. 20). During the five-day campaign they hope to raise $3,800.

Monday has been designated as "Dime Day" -- members of the University YWCA will set up service bureaus in campus dormitories and Coffman Memorial Union. For 10 cents they will shine shoes, wash windows, run errands and carry out any other "reasonable" chores.

The annual Campus Chest auction is scheduled for Tuesday (Oct. 21) starting at 11 a.m. in the Union main lounge. Wednesday (Oct. 22) will be "Tag Day". Students will receive tags showing "Chester", the huge frog who symbolizes the drive, as they make donations. In the evening, foreign students will put on an international smorgasbord supper in the University YMCA.

"Chester's Charity Ball", a dance Friday evening (Oct. 24) in the Union main ballroom, will climax the campaign. Earlier in the day, students will concentrate on donations from the St. Paul campus.

During the last two years, the Campus Chest drive has brought in more than $4,000. The money collected this year will be split up this way: 45 per cent will go to the World Student Service Fund, 25 per cent to the Minneapolis Community Chest, 12.5 per cent to the St. Paul Chest, 5 per cent each to the United Negro College Fund, American Friends Service committee and the National Negro Scholarship Fund. The International Christian University of Japan will receive 2.5 per cent.

Co-chairman of the 1952 campaign are science, literature and the arts college senior Shirley Matzoll, 4853 Clinton Ave. S., Minneapolis, and education college senior James Trunk, 3144 20th Ave. S., Minneapolis.

BOOK CONSIDERS
JOHNSON AS CRITIC

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A book of particular interest to scholars of eighteenth-century literature, "Samuel Johnson's Literary Criticism" by Jean H. Hagstrum, has just been published by the University of Minnesota Press.

The author is an associate professor of English at Northwestern university. A native of St. Paul, Hagstrum was graduated from the University of Minnesota. He received his master's degree from Northwestern university and his doctor of philosophy degree from Yale university.

The new volume is the first book-length study of Samuel Johnson's criticism to be published since 1923 and the only full-length analysis of the subject. A resurgence of interest in Johnson's writings at this time and a changing trend in the critical judgement of his work makes the publication of the book particularly timely. In his study, Hagstrum relates Johnson's own criticisms to each other, to Johnson's basic philosophical and religious beliefs, to the definitions in his Dictionary, and to important critical ideas from Aristotle to T. S. Eliot.

'U' HOMECOMING

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, OCT. 30)

Minneapolis ---Alumni and friends of the University of Minnesota from all over the state will see a Halloween Homecoming when they come to the Twin Cities this week-end for the Minnesota-Iowa game. A round of festivities -- including the traditional Varsity show, pep fest, bonfire and several dances -- will precede the Gopher-Hawkeye tussle in Memorial stadium on Saturday afternoon (Nov. 1).

This year's slogan, "Haunt the Hawkeyes", will set the theme for house decorations, the Homecoming parade and displays around the campus. Homecoming buttons are orange and black, showing a gopher putting on a fierce-looking Halloween mask.

Tomorrow (Oct. 31) will be the big day for Homecoming activities. The annual parade -- featuring more than 30 floats -- will wind through the Minneapolis loop at 11 a.m.

Following registration at 1 p.m. in the lobby of Coffman Memorial Union, alumni are invited to an open house in Cooke hall where they'll have a chance to tour athletic department facilities, to meet Athletic Director Ike Armstrong and other University sports officials. A quick look at the "Golden Gophers" in their pre-game practice is scheduled at 4 p.m. Movies of Minnesota's great football teams will be shown in the Union ballroom at 4:30 p.m.

During the afternoon, classes in the college of science, literature and the arts, the institute of technology, and the medical and business schools will be open to alumni.

Two performances of the Varsity show will be staged in Northrop Memorial auditorium Friday evening -- 6 and 8 p.m. The Alumni King will be presented at the second show. A torchlight parade, pep fest with Coach Wes Fesler and his staff, bonfire and dance will follow.

The Homecoming Queen, crowned at a "Coronation Revue" on the St. Paul campus Wednesday evening (Oct. 29), will reign at the special events and at Saturday's game. Homecoming will end with the annual dance in Coffman Memorial Union Saturday night.

'U' PRESS PUBLISHES
STORY OF MINNEAPOLIS
SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---One of the few complete histories of a major American symphony orchestra will be published Monday (Nov. 3) by the University of Minnesota Press. The new book, "Music and Maestros: The Story of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra", by John K. Sherman, is being published at this time in connection with the celebration of the Minneapolis Symphony's golden jubilee anniversary.

Publication of the book will be marked in a ceremony at the symphony's opening concert of the season Saturday evening (Nov. 1) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. President J. L. Morrill of the University of Minnesota will present copies of the book to Antal Dorati, the orchestra's conductor, and Stanley Hawks, president of the Orchestral Association of Minneapolis.

Sherman, arts editor of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, was awarded a Rockefeller regional writing fellowship by the University of Minnesota for assistance in the preparation of the history. He has been closely associated with the orchestra for many years, having written newspaper reviews of the symphony concerts since 1926. Background material for the book came from many sources -- personal interviews, newspaper files, archives of various musical organizations, and scrapbooks kept by the long-time symphony devotees.

The story traces the early musical activities in Minneapolis which were the forerunners of the symphony organization and then portrays the periods of the orchestra under the five successive conductors, Emil Oberhoffer, Henri Verbrugghen, Eugene Ormandy, Dimitri Mitropoulos and Antal Dorati. Unlike most published musical histories, the volume depicts the human side of the orchestra as well as its musical growth.

The orchestra story is told in pictures as well as in text. More than 70 photographs show the historical highlights of the conductors, the players, the guest artists, and the civic leaders who have directed the orchestra's financial support.

The book contains a list of the works performed by the orchestra through the years, a section which provides a significant record of changing trends in musical taste. There is a log of the orchestra's concert tours, which have included a total of 3,168 concerts played in 442 different cities and towns outside the Twin Cities.

Minnesota communities listed in the tour record are Albert Lea, Austin, Bemidji, Brainerd, Crookston, Duluth, Faribault, Fergus Falls, Fort Snelling, Glen Lake, Hibbing, International Falls, Litchfield, Little Falls, Mankato, Moorhead, New Ulm, Northfield, Owatonna, Red Wing, Rochester, St. Cloud, St. Peter, Stillwater, Thief River Falls, Virginia, Wadena, Willmar and Winona.

Other reference material includes a roster of all the players who have been members of the orchestra during its entire history and a list of all the available recordings of the Minneapolis Symphony.

UNIVERSITY REPORTS
INCOME, EXPENSES
FOR 1951-52

(FOR RELEASE NOV. 13, 1952)

Minneapolis -- Expenditures by the University of Minnesota for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952, totaled $48,714,022.21, while the school's income for the year amounted to $48,717,780.28 including a balance of $3,878.37 left over from the previous year, according to a summary of financial operations released today by William T. Middlebrook, business vice president.

Largest source of University income was the State of Minnesota which provided $21,942,009.67 or approximately 45 per cent of the year's total, the summary disclosed. During the previous fiscal year, the University obtained $17,310,410.86 or 41 per cent of its $41,828,808.71 income for that year, from the State.

The State's contribution to the University's 1951-52 income consisted of: a Legislative maintenance appropriation of $14,136,654; a Legislative appropriation of $1,348,456 for special projects administered and carried on by the University for the general benefit of the people of the State; receipts amounting to $306,354.74 from the 23/100 mill tax, the standing direct property tax for the general support of the University;

An additional $94,880.00 from the so-called "swamp land fund", representing the University's share of income from a fund the principal of which was derived from the sale of lands set aside by the State; the State's share of the cost of caring for indigent patients at University Hospitals, $979,186.93; and $5,171,358 drawn from Legislative appropriations for construction of buildings.

Other sources of University income for the fiscal year were reported by Middlebrook as follows: fees and receipts, $9,091,583.37 including $3,584,901.95 in student tuition fees; service enterprises and revolving funds, $8,317,014.19; income from the permanent University fund (principal $30,800,469.50 on June 30, 1952), $703,482.26; from trust funds, $6,348,230.86; intercollegiate athletics, $771,721.43; and from the federal government for instruction, agricultural research, agricultural extension work and physical plant expansion, $1,444,980.13.

Largest University expenditure for the year 1951-52 was $19,983,458.33 paid out for instruction and research. Included in this outlay was the expense of college instruction and research, the Duluth Branch, the agricultural schools and experiment stations, University Hospitals, summer session and agricultural and general extension activities.

Expansion of the University's physical plant resulted in an expenditure of $6,453,228.79 during the fiscal year, according to Middlebrook. This amount was applied against construction costs and land purchases as follows:

Veterinary science building, $416,643.64; hospital plumbing repairs, $51,953.95; Johnston hall (classroom building), $229,315.08; heating plant boiler, Minneapolis campus, $459,490.76; Centennial hall (dormitory for men), $45,446.52; Ford hall (social science building), $37,085.31; home economics building addition, $138,934.59; agricultural greenhouse, $87,520.50;

Duluth Branch science building, $48,507.47; Waseca school of agriculture buildings, $711,339.34; remodeling hospital facilities, $31,579.02; college of education building, $716,046.83; physics building addition, $204,444.60; heating plant, St. Paul campus, $34,064.65; Duluth Branch physical education building, $519,234.86; auxiliary poultry buildings, $91,374.75; physics laboratory building, $77,903.35;

Remodeling of Owre hall (school of dentistry), $43,677.16; library - St. Paul campus, $511,036.10; Mayo Memorial Medical center, $1,598,425.41; Variety Club Heart hospital, $102,428.50; purchase of land and real estate, $49,330.05; and miscellaneous physical plant extension, $247,446.35.

Expenditures for self-supporting service enterprises and revolving funds totaled $7,496,409.27, according to Middlebrook. Included are expenditures for University enterprises and revolving fund operations such as dormitories, dining halls, veterans' housing, printing, laundry, the University Press, department of concerts and lectures, the University theater, the health service, seed distribution fund, towel and locker funds, and private duty nurses' funds.

Trust fund expenditures for care of the sick, teaching and research scholarships, fellowships, prizes and other trust purposes used up $6,163,763.35 of the University's available funds during the year, while the expenses of maintaining and operating the buildings and of making improvements on the St. Paul and Minneapolis campuses cost $3,040,527.27.

General University expenditures during 1951-52 amounted to $1,969,245.86. This item included the expenses of the library, general bulletins and publications, campus lectures and convocations, operation of the University storehouses, truck service, operation of the inter-campus trolley and other services of an all-University character.

Administration of the University for the year cost $1,324,237.22, while the operating expenses of intercollegiate athletics and that part of physical education expenditures paid out of receipts from intercollegiate athletics amounted to $629,985.24.

Transfers and adjustments of funds during the year amounted to $1,653,166.88, Middlebrook reported, and the University closed the year with a free unencumbered balance of $3,758.07.

At the close of the fiscal year, the University total endowment fund, including endowments for general purposes amounting to $30,800,469.50, totaled $42,697,088.61.

University-owned land as of June 30, 1952, consisted of 16,044.55 acres valued at $6,105,499.03, while the University's 1,103 buildings had an estimated value of $53,481,964.19. University equipment was valued at $22,121,766.50 and included $249,406.42 in livestock and $7,600,823.75 in books and museum collections.

UNIVERSITY'S DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
REORGANIZED - RENAMED 'INSTITUTE'

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 7)

Reorganization of the University's Department of Agriculture has been approved by the Board of Regents, President J. L. Morrill announced today (Friday, Nov. 7).

One of the major changes was the renaming of the Department of Agriculture as the Institute of Agriculture. This brings the title into conformity with other similar educational units such as the University's Institute of Technology.

The Institute will have the same functions as the Department prior to reorganization. It will still include teaching on the college level and in the five Schools of Agriculture, research and agricultural extension activities including county agent work.

All of the University's work in the field of agriculture, forestry, home economics and veterinary medicine will be centered in the Institute. Three major units of the newly designated Institute will be the Agricultural Experiment Station, Resident Instruction and Agricultural Extension Service.

The Institute will be headed by a dean, C. H. Bailey, who will continue to hold that position until his retirement, December 31, 1952. As previously announced, Harold Macy will succeed Dean Bailey, January 1.

The dean of the Institute will have five principal assistants:

1. The director of the Agricultural Experiment Station.
2. An assistant dean who will serve as director of Resident Instruction which includes the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics and the Office of Short Courses.
3. The director of the Agricultural Extension Service.

(MORE)

4. An assistant dean of the Institute who will function as administrative assistant to the dean. He will be responsible for certain administrative units and for the coordination, integration and supervision of outlying schools of agriculture and experiment stations.

5. An assistant dean in charge of the School of Veterinary Medicine.

University officials elaborating on the changes explained the set-up as follows:

The Agricultural Experiment Station, now under Dean-elect Macy, will be responsible for all research. A successor for Macy has not been named.

Resident Instruction will be under a director also. He will be the assistant dean for the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics. The college will continue to include the Schools of Forestry and Home Economics, both headed by directors, and the academic departments. A successor to Henry Schmitz, former dean of the college and now president of the University of Washington, will be named in the near future. The new appointee under the reorganization plan will have the title of director and assistant dean.

The Agricultural Extension Service will operate as in the past under its director, Paul E. Miller. Miller continues to head the State and County Extension program which includes extension education work in agriculture, home economics, and 4-H in all counties of the state.

The School of Veterinary Medicine will now be a separate unit directly responsible to the dean of the Institute. An assistant dean will be in charge of the school. Thus far no replacement has been named to succeed Dr. W. L. Boyd who retired June 30.

Other units will continue to be directly responsible to the dean through an assistant dean of the Institute. These include the agricultural schools and experiment stations at Crookston, Morris, Grand Rapids and Waseca; the School of Agriculture at St. Paul; the agricultural experiment stations at Duluth and Rosemount; the St. Paul campus business office; the Office of Admissions and Records; the Information Service (formerly Publications Office); and the library.

Teaching and research divisions (such as agricultural economics, horticulture and plant pathology) will be known hereafter as departments. These departments will still be responsible to the Experiment Station director for their research functions and to the Resident Instruction director for their teaching functions.

University officials, especially in the Institute itself, recommended the reorganization in order to clear up many confusing situations caused by similarity of names and titles. The University's Department of Agriculture often was confused with the Minnesota State Department of Agriculture, Dairy and Food and the United States Department of Agriculture.

The new organizational plan also has been endorsed by the Advisory Council of the University's Department of Agriculture. This council is made up of agricultural leaders from throughout the state.

SUNDAY AT UNIVERSITY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---University of Minnesota students will observe their annual Religion in Life Week starting Sunday (Nov. 16). The week-long program, sponsored by the Student Council of Religion, includes a series of morning worships, skeptics' hours, an art show, a convocation and special activities in religious foundations.

On the University's Minneapolis campus, 18 religious groups are cooperating in staging three skeptics' hours. They are scheduled at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday (Nov. 19-21) in Coffman Memorial Union. The Rev. O. E. Sanden, pastor of Warrendale Presbyterian church, St. Paul, will speak on "Religion in the Age of Science" at the first session.

The next day, Robert Smith, philosophy professor at Bethel college, St. Paul, will discuss "What Is Christianity?" Paul L. Holmer, associate professor of philosophy at the University, will wind up the series with a talk on "Uncertainty in Faith".

Henry E. Allen, University religious activities coordinator, will appear on KUOM's "Critically Speaking" show at 3:45 p.m. Wednesday to review Margaret Halsey's latest book, "The Folks at Home". Also on Wednesday, the University Film society is presenting two showings -- 3:30 and 8 p.m. -- of "St. Matthew Passion" in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The film uses art masterpieces to illustrate Bach's famous oratorio.

A leading Jewish theologian, Will Herberg, author of "Judaism and Modern Man", will speak on "Faith and Existence" at the University convocation at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Choirs from two St. Paul colleges -- St. Thomas and St. Catherine -- will sing well-known religious music as part of the program.

(MORE)

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, during its concert in Northrop auditorium Thursday evening, will play Paul Cruston's Symphony No. 3, Opus 48 -- "Three Mysteries": Nativity, Crucifixion and Resurrection.

During the week and through Nov. 30, the University gallery will feature a display of religious paintings in the first floor corridor of Northrop auditorium.

On the University's St. Paul campus, all seven religious foundations will gather for a joint dinner Sunday evening (Nov. 16) at St. Anthony Park Methodist church. Chief speaker at the meeting will be the Rev. Mark Gravdahl, pastor of the Lutheran church, Harmony.

Monday through Thursday, St. Paul campus students will get together for morning worship ceremonies. Noon movies -- "More for Peace" and "A Wonderful Life" -- are scheduled for showing Monday and Thursday in the Union Corral.

Charles J. Turck, president of Macalester college, St. Paul, will be another featured speaker during the week. He will address a faculty luncheon meeting at noon Tuesday in the St. Paul campus cafeteria, speaking on "Two Challenges".

Forty-five foreign students from the University of Minnesota are visiting Austin this week-end (Nov. 14-16). Their trip is the fifth "International Embassy" sponsored by the University YWCA and YMCA in cooperation with the foreign student adviser's office on the campus.

Today (Nov. 15) the students ate breakfast with their hosts -- each student is living with an Austin family during the three days. Afterwards, they toured the Hormel company packing plant and met with company officials. Following a visit with the mayor, they will gather with local residents for an international banquet. The evening's program will include a panel discussion on "Our Responsibility in Building World Understanding".

Sunday morning (Nov. 16) the students, who represent more than 30 nations, will attend church with their host family, then return to Austin homes for Sunday dinner. The group will leave for Minneapolis in mid-afternoon.

The International Embassy trips are planned to acquaint foreign students with American community life and also to give residents in Minnesota communities an insight into the ways of people in other countries. Students visited Bertha in 1950, Winona and Stillwater in 1951.

Friday (Nov. 14) the group observed classes at the Austin junior college, high school and elementary schools. In the afternoon, they toured local business places, industries and farms. The students presented an international talent show for Austin citizens in the evening.

Observations on life in Germany during the second World War, and today, make up the theme of the first broadcast of "Voices of Europe", the new series of radio programs produced by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, and heard over radio station KUOM at 1:30 p.m., Thursday (Nov. 20).

In the initial presentation, Professor Milton Mayer, American author and broadcaster, lecturer and professor of social research at the University of Frankfurt, talks with Pastor Herman Stauber in the pastor's small apartment near the village of Kappel in central Germany.

Pastor Stauber, 74 years old, has served the Evangelical Church, the State Church of Germany, all his life, first as a missionary in India, then, for 30 years, as pastor of the village of Kappel. The little apartment in which the interview was recorded is filled with all the outdoor trophies and boyhood collections that in part tell the story of Stauber's four sons.

The two oldest sons were killed in military action in 1942 when Germany invaded Russia. A third, who was also a soldier, has been missing since 1944. Only the fourth son, Horst, now 21 years old, is left. Horst, who missed several years of schooling during the war, has just entered the University. Professor Mayer believes that Horst might be called typical of the young German leadership group of today.

Choral groups from two colleges -- St. Thomas and St. Catherine -- will sing religious music at the University of Minnesota's special Religion in Life Week convocation Thursday (Nov. 20). The program, which will also include a speech on "Faith and Politics" by noted Jewish theologian Will Herberg, will begin at 11:30 a.m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Directed by James S. Chiado, the 70-voice St. Thomas college chorus will perform, in plain chant, "Sanctus and Benedictus" from the Mass celebrated during the Sundays in Advent. Accompanied by Roger Folstrom at the piano, they will also sing Zoltan Kodaly's "Ave Maria" and "Sanctus and Benedictus" from the Mass "Salve Regina" by J. Stehle.

Herberg will give his talk between musical portions of the program. He is author of the recent book, "Judaism and Modern Man: An Interpretation of Jewish Religion". Currently he is working on a study of the relation of religion to social sciences. He has lectured at many leading schools -- among them Cornell, Princeton, Harvard, Stanford and Wellesley.

The Choral Club of St. Catherine, made up of 43 members, will present Vaughn Williams' "Magnificat" with Mary Ann Staffa, mezzo soprano; Anton Winkler, flutist; and Donna Marian Puccio, pianist, as soloists. The group is directed by Walter J. Targ who is also a violinist with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

The program is open to the public without charge. It will also be broadcast over KUOM, University radio station, at 11:15 a.m. Friday (Nov. 21).

'U' PRESS TO PUBLISH
LEVI BOOK ON INDIA

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---A large segment of India's population and leadership can still be won over either by communism or by democracy, Professor Werner Levi points out in his new book, "Free India in Asia", to be published Friday (Nov. 21) by the University of Minnesota Press.

In his study, Levi, professor of political science at the University of Minnesota, analyzes the political attitudes of the Indian electorate. He shows that about six per cent are Stalinist communists and that an even smaller percentage subscribe to democratic capitalism. A very large percentage of the Indian people, however, favor political democracy, regardless of their preference for an economic system.

India's people are looking closely at the various economic systems of the world in order to choose the characteristics of each that they think would be best for their own country, Levi explains. An educational campaign undertaken by the Indian government is beginning to convince the people that Russia's system is not as successful as it appeared to them earlier and that the price paid for it is far too high.

Much of the material in the book is based on Levi's personal observations and interviews with Indian leaders during a visit to the country while on sabbatical leave from the University in 1950-51. He interviewed Prime Minister Nehru, officials in the foreign office and representatives of all the major political parties, as well as civil service and elections officials. During his stay in India he lectured at Bombay University, the University of Delhi and other colleges in Delhi.

Levi is the author of two other books published by the University of Minnesota Press, "Fundamentals of World Organization" and "American-Australian Relations".

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA LEGISLATIVE REQUEST
FOR GENERAL MAINTENANCE -- 1953-1955

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 19)

Minneapolis ---University of Minnesota Regents will ask the 1953 Legislature to appropriate $34,753,298 (or 71.2 per cent) of the estimated $48,806,932 required to carry on the University's regular program of teaching, non-sponsored research and public service for the next two years, President J. L. Morrill reported today (Nov. 19).

The Regents have worked out a budget for this general operation of the University amounting to $24,242,610 for the school year 1953-54 and $24,564,322 for 1954-55. They estimated University income from other sources including tuition at $7,026,817 for each of the two years.

By subtracting estimated income from budget totals, they determined how much they must ask from the Legislature for general maintenance -- $17,215,793 for 1953-54 and $17,537,505 for 1954-55. The difference between the first and second-year requests represents additional funds required for operating the Mayo Memorial Medical center expected to be completed by June 30, 1954.

President Morrill pointed out that the 1951 Legislature provided a general maintenance appropriation of $28,373,308 for the present two-year period -- $14,136,654 for 1951-52 and $14,236,654 for 1952-53. The maintenance request for the next two years involves an increase of $6,379,990 over the 1951-53 maintenance appropriation.

Although the 1951-53 Legislative appropriation was based on an estimated average student population of 17,000, the actual average enrollment for these years is now holding well above 18,600, the president reported.

"The University received a much smaller maintenance appropriation than it had asked for to do the job," he explained, "and, at the same time, was faced with training many more students than had been expected. Obviously, heavy retrenchment had to be made -- heavier, I am sure, than the declining enrollment two years ago warranted and heavier than the Legislature really intended.

"That retrenchment meant a cut of $1,219,248 from the University's payroll during 1951-53. In human terms it meant that 448 individual men and women were dropped from the staff, their jobs equivalent to 311 full-time positions. It meant larger classes with less attention to the individual student. It meant curtailment of University services. In addition, rises in price levels had to be met, some merit adjustments in salaries were necessary to hold staff, and the University had to absorb a cost-of-living pay increase for its civil service employees."

Now, President Morrill pointed out, enrollment, which failed to dip as low as had been anticipated at the close of the so-called "veteran bulge" following World War II, has started to climb again, sooner than had been predicted. Conservative estimates, he stated, are that the University's student body will average at least 18,800 for the two years 1953 through 1955, and a steady increase is expected throughout the following decade.

Increasing enrollment will make it necessary to add to the staff, he said, and the Regents have provided for this purpose in the new budget. The estimated average enrollment of 18,800 for 1953-55 is an increase of 10.6 per cent over the 17,000 average on which the 1951-53 Legislative appropriation was based.

Long experience, according to the president, has shown that when enrollment is increased by a given percentage, a minimum of about one-half that percentage is required in payroll for additional staff. The total payroll for the present year, 1952-53, is estimated at $15,347,101. Approximately 5 per cent (half of the enrollment increase percentage) of that amount or $767,355 therefore is needed each year to pay for additional staff.

Also involved in the $2,979,139 appropriation increase (above the current 1952-53 appropriation) for each of the next two years are additional needs for teaching staff and civil service salaries, supplies, expense, equipment, repairs and land purchases. A special added request of $321,712 is asked for the second year for operation of the Mayo Memorial building.

Salary needs for the faculty, President Morrill asserted, are threefold: increased costs of living must be recognized; funds are needed for special promotion increases to recognize outstanding service and to meet competition from industry, government and other universities; and rates for teaching and research assistants should be increased to conform more closely with other universities.

To meet cost-of-living increases for the faculty, the Regents are requesting for each of the two years an additional $446,706 or an annual boost of 4.7 per cent over the academic payroll for the present school year, $9,504,395.

For faculty merit and promotion needs, an additional $332,654 per year is included in the Legislative request. This is equal to 3.5 per cent of the 1952-53 faculty payroll.

To provide an increase in the annual rate paid teaching and research assistants -- from $2,566 to $2,852 -- the Regents are asking for a yearly addition of $44,715.

Civil service staff salary increases included in the Regents' request calls for an additional appropriation of $510,289 for each year. Of this amount, $155,877 will permit continuation of a one-step cost-of-living increase put into effect last July 1, and another $155,877 will provide another one-step increase due next July 1 under the Legislature's policy of keying state civil service salaries to the Bureau of Labor Statistics cost-of-living index. Usual civil service merit increases will require $159,831 of the additional appropriation, while essential reclassification of positions and changes in pay ranges will take another $38,704.

New staff required to operate new University buildings other than the Mayo Memorial will cost an additional $25,650 each year, the president explained, and an additional $200,000 is needed annually for new staff to meet partially the needs of essential research and public service projects.

The Regents have included in their request an additional $572,654 per year for price increases on essential supplies and equipment, for the restoration of curtailed maintenance, for new building maintenance needs, for expansion of research and public service projects and for the purchase of agricultural and campus land.

To replace a drop in estimated University income resulting principally from loss of the higher fees received from the Veterans Administration for students enrolled under the World War II GI Bill of Rights, the Regents have included in their additional appropriation request an annual item of $160,527.

The University's Legislative requests for the two-year period for the University of Minnesota Hospitals, for "special" research and public service projects and for new buildings are now being prepared, President Morrill reported.

FELIX FRANKFURTER TO LECTURE AT 'U'
ON SUPREME COURT

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Felix Frankfurter, associate justice of the United States Supreme court, will deliver two lectures on "The Supreme Court as a Working Institution" at the University of Minnesota Dec. 1-2.

Several years ago, Minneapolis attorney George Leonard established a $2,500 fund for a lecture series honoring William Pattee, former University law school dean. Justice Frankfurter, first Supreme court justice to address University law students, is also the first man to lecture under terms of the grant.

Leonard, a former member of the University Board of Regents, has recommended that the lectures be on the relation of law to the social sciences or some kindred subject.

Both of Justice Frankfurter's speeches will be given between 10:30 a.m. and noon in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium. A limited number of tickets will be available to the public.

Before becoming a member of the United States Supreme court in 1939, Justice Frankfurter served as a professor on the Harvard law school faculty for 25 years.

This series of talks was originally scheduled last March 17-18, but had to be cancelled because Justice Frankfurter was ill.

NEW 'TREASURE' ROOM IN U. OF M. LIBRARY
WILL HOUSE BELL COLLECTION OF AMERICANA

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, NOV. 23)

Minneapolis --- Workmen are now building a "treasure" room in the University of Minnesota's library to house the world-famed James Ford Bell collection of rare books relating to events which led to the discovery of America and to the exploration and settlement of the Northwest.

The trustees of the fabulous book collection have decided to make the University the depository of the collection believing that in time it will be transferred by deed to the University or to the benefit of some similar educational or public institution, according to Mr. Bell, founder of General Mills and a University Regent.

Under the terms of the trust, Mr. Bell explained, the University of Minnesota is to have preference provided it demonstrates continuing interest in and support of the collection during the interim period.

Because of his close association with the University, of which he is a graduate, Mr. Bell is particularly desirous, he asserted, that his collection eventually go to the University.

The new room being installed in the University library is a gift from Mr. Bell and has been accepted by the Regents. Its design will be that of the late Elizabethan period -- in keeping, Mr. Bell points out, with the era of discovery and exploration associated with the English race.

Walls of the room, which will occupy the first floor area formerly housing the archives department, will be panelled in English oak delicately carved to resemble folded linen. One wall will consist of a window of stained glass bearing heraldic designs set in a deep bay spanned by three arches supported on carved stone columns. Artificial light will be directed through the window to illuminate the room.

A massive stone fireplace, vaulted ceiling and plank floor are all part of the room's Elizabethan design. Furnishings will be specially selected. The room and its storage vaults will be air-conditioned to preserve the rare books.

Designer and builder of the "treasure" room is French and Company, New York. This firm will install the room as soon as the University's physical plant crews have completed necessary preliminary work. Supervising the installation is Winston A. Close, the University's advisory architect.

The Bell collection is built around one of the most romantic of all themes: the discovery and exploration of the North American continent beginning with the search for a "road to Cathay". This search is reported in a 1477 edition of "Marco Polo's Travels", a book of such rarity that only one other copy is known to be in the United States.

The first Latin edition of the letter written by Columbus on the return from his first voyage and the first dated edition of the letter describing Vespucci's third voyage are two other examples of early Americana acquired by Mr. Bell.

Presenting an outstanding record of the early history of travel and exploration in eastern and central Canada, the Red River and Upper Mississippi valleys and the Great Lakes region and expeditions in search of a Northwest Passage to the Pacific Ocean by way of Hudson Bay, the collection contains accounts of the daring voyages of Jacques Cartier, Francis Drake, Samuel de Champlain, La Salle, Father Hennepin, Jonathan Carver, Henry Schoolcraft and others.

Of great rarity and significance is the collection's almost complete set of the so-called "Jesuit Relations". These are the reports of Jesuit missionaries in North America transmitted to their superiors in France and published there between 1632 and 1673. These documents provide one of the most important sources of information about North America in the seventeenth century.

Called "Relations" because each begins with the French word "Relation" -- which may be translated freely as "narrative" -- these publications, "best sellers" of their day, were read eagerly and worn out by people hungry for word of the New World. Because of this, very few copies remain in existence. Owing copies of 40 of the 41 "Jesuit Relations" known to have been published, the Bell collection is now considered the finest and most complete private collection of these historic documents.

The Bell collection also is rich in the early history and literature of the Selkirk Red River Settlement. In both manuscript and book material, it is probably the outstanding private collection of the early history of the Hudson's Bay Company and the internal affairs of the Red River Colony.

A catalogue of the Bell collection compiled by the late Frank K. Walter, former University of Minnesota librarian, and Virginia Doneghy, cataloguer in the library, was published by the University of Minnesota Press in 1950 under the title "Jesuit Relations and Other Americana in the Library of James F. Bell". Since publication of the catalogue, Mr. Bell has added substantially to the collection and is continuing his world-wide search for significant additions.

"To collect one must become a wanderer, if not both physically and mentally, at least mentally," he wrote in his introduction to the 1950 catalogue, "roving everywhere, enlarging the field of acquaintance and contact. Americana is found in all countries, and in unexpected places. So, in collecting, one obtains not only a knowledge of the thing itself, but beyond it a picture of the times and the spirit and the action which led to its preservation and possession."

Two new exhibitions -- a large showing of master drawings and a collection of native arts from the Pacific Northwest -- open this week (Nov. 30-Dec. 6) at the University of Minnesota art gallery in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

The master drawing show has been assembled from the E. B. Crocker Art gallery of Sacramento, Calif., and the Achenbach Foundation of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor at San Francisco. The drawings, works of master French, Italian and German artists of the past 500 years, will be exhibited in the fourth floor gallery and corridor beginning Monday (Dec. 1) and running through Jan. 15.

Masks, sculpture and artifacts -- pots, chests, fish hooks and other items -- made by Indians of the Pacific Northwest during the 1800's and early years of this century will be displayed on the third floor of Northrop auditorium from Dec. 5 to Jan. 15. These art pieces have been gathered by the Portland museum and the University of Washington.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA LEGISLATIVE REQUEST
FOR SPECIAL RESEARCH, EXTENSION FUNDS--1953-1955

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. WEDNESDAY, NOV. 26)

Minneapolis ---Appropriations of $1,446,000 for each of the next two years for special University of Minnesota extension and research projects designed to benefit directly the people of the State will be sought by the University Regents from the 1953 Legislature.

President J. L. Morrill, in announcing the special appropriation requests for 1953-1955, explained that $418,000 of the amount asked for each year is earmarked for a new, flexible "general agricultural research fund".

The Legislature, he pointed out, is now appropriating $262,000 per year for work in the following fields: animal and human brucellosis research, corn borer, stem rust and honey bee research, soils survey and field experiments, dairy manufacturing research and service, artificial insemination research, mastitis control, fruit and vegetable research and crop breeding and testing.

"While it is expected that the appropriation for the general agricultural research fund will permit continuation of work in these fields," the president added, "there is a definite need for flexibility from year to year in operating in these and in new and emergency fields of agricultural research. By grouping agricultural research under this fund, we expect to attain the desired flexibility."

Other special extension and research projects for which funds are being asked and the amount requested for each year with the 1952-53 appropriation in parentheses are as follows:

Home demonstration and 4-H club work, $60,000 ($40,000); Rosemount Research Center, $100,000 ($90,000); hybrid corn maturity tests, $10,000 ($9,000); student aid, schools of agriculture, $72,000 ($70,000); business and economic research, $25,000 ($2,500); and soil conservation, $75,000 ($60,000).

Calling attention to three projects for which substantial increases are being asked -- agricultural extension, home demonstration and 4-H club work and soil conservation -- President Morrill explained that the increases will permit expansion of these operations with the employment of some additional staff members. This expansion is proposed by the University, he said, in response to requests from interested farm groups.

Explaining the large increase asked for business and economic research -- from $2,500 to $25,000 per year -- the president reported that the Division of Business and Economic Research was established in 1951 with an appropriation of $2,500. The publication of a periodical, "Business News Notes", was started, and two special bulletins were published. Copies of these publications were distributed to businessmen throughout the state.

"It is felt," President Morrill commented, "that there is a definite need for the continuation of these publications on a permanent basis and for more extended research in the interests of our state economy. There is also a need for an adequate specialized research staff to do a much more useful and thorough job in this field."

Appropriations for special extension and research projects, including those now grouped under general agricultural research, totaled $1,094,500 for 1951-52 and $1,096,500 for 1952-53.

Increases requested in these appropriations for the next two-year period, the University president explained, involve cost-of-living and merit salary increases for staff members assigned to these projects and higher costs of required supplies and equipment in addition to expansion in several of the programs.

Last week, President Morrill reported that the Regents will ask the 1953 Legislature to appropriate $34,753,298 (or 71.2 per cent) of the estimated $48,806,932 required to carry on the University's regular program of teaching, non-sponsored research and public service for the next two years.

STUDY INDICATES CONTINUED GROWTH OF SOYBEAN INDUSTRY IN MINNESOTA

(FOR RELEASE FRIDAY, NOV. 28)

Minneapolis --Minnesota's soybean industry, which has grown enormously since 1940, can expect continued if not such spectacular development in the years ahead, a study just published by the University of Minnesota Press indicates. The book, "The Soybean Industry" by Ray A. Goldberg, analyzes the industry with special reference to the competitive position of the Minnesota producer and processor.

Goldberg points out that although Minnesota was one of the last states to develop a soybean crop, it now ranks sixth in total production in the United States. The dollar value of the crop rose from $76,000 in 1940 to approximately $37,000,000 in 1950. In the last five years, the state's crop and processing capacity have doubled.

The income per acre of the soybean crop in Minnesota exceeds that of any other crop except corn, the author says. A factor contributing to this result is the development by the University of Minnesota of new, higher-yielding soybean varieties especially adapted to Minnesota soil and climate conditions. The state's crop production will increase, too, because of the expanding processing industry within the state, the requirements of processors in Iowa, and the development of the export market to Canada, according to Goldberg.

-MORE-

On the other hand, he points out, certain political and economic changes could slow down the expansion of the crop here. Peace in Asia would restore soybean production there, and an Asian crop would provide stepped-up competition for the European market. A change in U.S. government policies with regard to cotton-acreage controls in the south could stimulate greater soybean production in southern states. A shift in the relationship between price supports for corn and for soybeans could change the ratio of production in these two crops, to the detriment of soybean production.

As for the future of the soybean processing industry in Minnesota, the author predicts that its growth will come principally through the expansion of already existing facilities and through construction of new plants by firms that are already well established. Minnesota processors are in a better competitive position than operators in any of the other main processing states, he says, because of the excellent local meal market, the large available supply of soybeans, and a favorable transportation location.

Goldberg holds a doctor of philosophy degree in agricultural economics from the University of Minnesota and is a graduate of the Harvard graduate school of business administration. He is secretary and a member of the board of directors of the Moorhead Seed and Grain company, Moorhead, Minn.

A portion of the work published in the new volume was awarded a prize recently in the Uhlmann Awards competition for research in grain marketing and agricultural economics.

INFLUENCE OF BEAVER
SUNDAY LECTURE TOPIC
AT 'U' MUSEUM

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"The Beaver's Influence on the Northwest", an illustrated lecture, is scheduled as the Sunday (Dec. 7) afternoon program in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History. The talk, which will be given at 3 p.m. by Donald K. Lewis, museum audio-visual adviser, is part of the museum's free public lecture series.

Using colored slides, Lewis will sketch the history of the fur trade -- the quest for beaver skins for fashionable beaver felt hats -- which was carried on over the entire Northwest for nearly three centuries. He will show how it influenced the colonization and exploration of this area.

The following Sunday, Dec. 14, a sound film on "Moose and the Pronghorn" will be shown in the museum auditorium.

LABOR LEADERS TO DISCUSS PUBLIC RELATIONS
AT 'U' CONFERENCE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---How do public relations affect unions? How can a union improve its relations with the public? What public relations programs can be set up by unions?

These and other questions concerning the public relations of unions will be spotlighted at the Fifth Annual Industrial Relations Center Labor Conference at the University of Minnesota, Feb. 4-5. Topic for the two-day conference will be "Public Relations for Unions".

Sponsors of this annual event -- which is designed for leaders of organized labor -- are the University's Industrial Relations Center and Center for Continuation Study and central and state labor organizations in Minnesota.

As in past conferences, emphasis will be placed on discussion of current labor problems and their solution. Specific techniques and practical solutions will be stressed throughout the two-day event. Prominent men in organized labor from the state and from the nation will participate as speakers and discussion leaders during the conference.

Morning meetings will be devoted to speeches followed by question and discussion periods. On the opening day, speakers will explore the importance of union public relations programs and labor participation in community affairs. Representatives of the daily press and the labor press will discuss the manner in which these publications can be used to build better public relations for labor. An informal discussion, "What is Happening in Unions Today" will be conducted the evening of Feb. 4.

Discussion of various types of public relations programs is scheduled for the following day's sessions (Feb. 5). The role of personal contact in public relations, the use of expositions, displays, speeches and other devices will be examined.

A large share of the conference time will be spent in workshop meetings on public relations problems of unions. Experts from the fields of journalism and speech, public relations directors of unions and men with experience in the public relations field will conduct discussions of problems involved in setting up better public relations programs.

Workshops on Feb. 4 will be directed towards the use of the labor and daily press, in promoting public relations. Workshops on Feb. 5 will consider the problems of preparation of speeches, testimonies and public relations during controversies.

Final conference sessions will cover the application of principles brought out in the two-day meeting and planning for next year's conference. Local labor leaders will serve as discussion leaders and as resources for these final workshops.

Unions are now being asked to select representatives to send to the conference. Registration in advance is urged so that the University may prepare adequate meeting rooms and other facilities. Information concerning the conference and registration may be obtained from the Center for Continuation Study of the University of Minnesota.

'U' PRESS PUBLISHES
BOOK ON STUDENT DEFERMENT

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---As the shrinking national manpower pool points up the need for new sources to meet military draft quotas, the present student deferment policy may be attacked by those who do not understand its basic purpose in terms of long-range defense planning. This warning is sounded by Dr. M. H. Trytten in the book, "Student Deferment in Selective Service", published Monday (Dec. 1) by the University of Minnesota Press.

The deferment program now in operation is popularly called the "Trytten plan", since it was set up by the Selective Service director upon the recommendation of the Scientific Advisory committees headed by Dr. Trytten as general chairman.

In his book, Dr. Trytten emphasizes that the prime consideration in deferment policies and procedures should be the overall welfare of the nation rather than the effect of such policies on certain groups of individuals or institutions.

He points out that national security today and for the future depends upon an effective integration of civilian and military activities. Continued functioning of the laboratory, the industrial plant and the business organization are as vital to defense as the armed forces themselves, he explains, and for this reason the college training of men to carry on these civilian activities is as important to national security as military training.

"Men of high ability constitute a national resource that is in short supply," he writes. "In the situation that confronts us, we must take every care not to waste either our barely adequate store of high ability, through inept or sentimental allocation of it, or the time and cost of military training, through giving it to those who will not be able to make use of it if war comes because the nation must have their services in noncombat activities."

The net effect of student deferment on the available supply of military manpower is negligible, he says, because the number deferred at any one time is less than five per cent of any age group. Furthermore, it is assumed that the deferred student will ultimately serve in uniform unless his draft board subsequently decides that his special qualifications would make him more valuable to the country in some other capacity.

Naming certain curriculums "essential" as a criterion for deciding which students should be deferred would be dangerous, Dr. Trytten asserts, since it is impossible to foresee the relative future roles of the natural sciences, the social sciences and the humanities. In his opinion, singling out essential fields of study would only be justified in the event of an all-out mobilization for a war that threatened survival.

In conclusion, the author stresses that "national manpower policies must be formulated and applied in terms of the whole problem, not just a fragment of it, and in terms of a long tomorrow, not just a brief, visionless today".

Dr. Trytten has been director of the Office of Scientific Personnel of the National Research Council, Washington, D.C., since 1944. He has served as a consultant and adviser on manpower problems to a number of governmental agencies and professional and learned societies during and since World War II.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Twin City admirers of Sherlock Holmes, known as the Norwegian Explorers, will hold a public meeting at 8 p.m. Monday (Dec. 8) in the Minneapolis Public Library auditorium.

The Very Rev. Vincent J. Flynn, president of St. Thomas college, St. Paul, will read Holmes' famous Christmas story, "The Adventure of the Blue Carbuncle". Christopher Morley has called it one of the great Christmas stories of all time.

A recent book, "Sherlock Holmes: Master Detective", edited by two University of Minnesota deans, Theodore C. Blegen and E. W. McDiarmid, will be another feature of the evening's program. It will be reviewed by J. Lewis Maynard, associate chemistry professor at the University. Blegen, who is dean of the University's graduate school, will speak in rebuttal. McDiarmid heads the college of science, literature and the arts.

The Dec. 8 meeting date is just one month prior to the birthday of Holmes, commonly believed to be Jan. 8. On his birthday, the Baker Street Irregulars, national organization of Holmes fans, traditionally holds its annual meeting in New York.

UNIVERSITY TO AWARD
DEGREES TO 450

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, DEC. 11)

Minneapolis ---More than 450 University of Minnesota students will receive diplomas in fall quarter commencement exercises Thursday (Dec. 18). The degrees will be conferred by University President J. L. Morrill at exercises beginning at 8 p.m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, O., will address the graduating seniors and candidates for advanced degrees on "Our Obligations as Americans". President Morrill will also speak to the senior class.

An invocation by the Rev. John S. Bone, director of the Roger Williams Fellowship and adviser to Baptist students on the campus, will open the commencement program.

Malcolm M. Willey, University vice president for academic administration, will introduce deans of the various University colleges. They will then present their candidates for degrees to President Morrill. In addition to conferring all the degrees, President Morrill will also award commissions to graduating Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC cadets.

Students who have earned doctor of philosophy degrees will be announced individually by John G. Darley, assistant dean of the graduate school.

A concert on Northrop auditorium's Flemish bells played by carillonneur J. Frederic Goossen from 7-7:30 p.m. and an organ recital by University organist Arthur B. Jennings from 7:30-8 p.m. will precede the ceremonies.

NEW 'U' STUDENTS

AIR, ARMY ROTC

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---New University of Minnesota students -- those entering for the winter quarter -- will be able to register in University Army and Air Force ROTC units, according to an announcement by Malcolm M. Willey, academic vice president.

According to a new registration plan set up last fall, the incoming students will sign up on an undesignated basis. Depending on their preference and qualifications, they will then be assigned to one service branch or the other.

The total enrollment will be split up so that 53 per cent of those registering will go into the Army unit and 47 per cent into the Air Force. This division was specified by the Department of Defense in a recent directive based on the estimated need for reserve officers four years from now. Navy ROTC enrollment is on a different basis and is not involved in this plan.

Students who were in residence during the fall quarter will not be accepted for winter quarter registration.

Men who become cadets at the beginning of winter quarter will pick up the ROTC sequence and will make up fall quarter work either during summer session or by compressing their ROTC program in 1954-55.

Willey's announcement advised new students in five-year sequences to postpone their enrollment until next fall.

It was pointed out that veterans returning from service do not come under the new registration plan. By law, they have the right to choose their branch of service. Both Army and Air Force will accept veterans, allowing them to enter advanced units.

The story of how the Soviet secret police system operates, how it developed and where it appears to be going will be dramatized as the first of a series of seven one-hour programs, entitled "Terror as a System of Power". The program will be broadcast over the University of Minnesota radio station KUOM Saturday (Dec. 13) from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

"Terror as a System of Power" tells the story of the Soviet secret police in the language of the historical record. The words of the victims come from official documents and the reports of living witnesses.

"Terror as a System of Power" was written by David Driscoll, narrated by Alex Scourby and produced and directed by Frank Papp. The script was based on documented evidence and expert knowledge in the possession of Dr. Merle Fainsod, professor of government at Harvard university, and director of political studies at the Russian Research Center.

Dr. Fainsod is not only the author of books on American government, but also is well known for his writings on the government of the Soviet Union. He has traveled widely in Russia, and has interviewed many escapees from the Soviet Union.

The new documentary is the first in the series of programs under the general title of "People Under Communism" being presented as an Adult Education Project by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA LEGISLATIVE REQUEST
FOR BUILDING NEEDS, 1953-1955

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. THURSDAY, DEC. 11)

Minneapolis ---Regents of the University of Minnesota will lay before the 1953 Legislature building needs for the various campuses involving 27 projects with an estimated cost of $10,428,000, President J. L. Morrill announced today.

Included in the building proposals for the next two-year period are eight on the Minneapolis campus calling for an outlay of $4,018,000; five St. Paul campus structures to cost a total of $3,610,000; three new undertakings costing an estimated $2,100,000 on the Duluth Branch campus; and 11 construction and repair items at branch stations for which $700,000 will be asked.

President Morrill explained that the Regents are submitting to the Legislature only "high priority" building needs essential to the continued efficient operation of the University. Requests for 84 additional building needs which would cost an estimated $38,159,050 have been postponed, he reported.

As illustrations of the essential nature of building projects being asked by the Regents, President Morrill cited a $1,500,000 request for a new heating plant and steam tunnels on the St. Paul campus and another for a new chemical storehouse costing $528,000 on the Minneapolis campus.

The present heating plant on the St. Paul campus is in very bad condition, he pointed out, and can not serve any additional buildings. If any new structures are to be built on the agricultural campus, a new heating plant is an absolute necessity. The Regents propose that a new plant be built on the south side of the campus where, because of the lower level, a more efficient heating operation will be possible.

(MORE)

Safety is the most important factor in the request for a new chemical storehouse, according to the University president. The present chemical storehouse is located in the sub-basement of the Chemistry building, and is considered a serious hazard. The proposed new storehouse would be located on a remote site a safe distance from student traffic. The volume of materials, many of them volatile and explosive chemicals, handled by the storehouse has more than doubled since 1940, the president reported, and it is expected to increase substantially in the near future.

Projects for which funds are needed were listed by President Morrill as follows:

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, DEC. 14)

Wholesale business activities in the Twin Cities are likely to have their greatest future expansion in the durable goods lines, and the smallest percentage sales increases will probably be in the soft goods and convenience goods lines. These forecasts are made in a study, "Wholesaling in the Twin Cities" by Edwin H. Lewis, to be published Monday (Dec. 15) by the University of Minnesota Press.

The author is associate professor of economics and marketing at the University of Minnesota. His study deals with the history, nature, and trends of the conglomerate wholesaling activities in the Twin Cities, bringing up to date earlier studies of similar scope. One section of the new study deals in specific terms with hardware wholesaling in the Twin Cities.

A business recession could affect the prospects in wholesaling for a few years but would not destroy the underlying trends, which are the result of a moderate expansion in population, higher incomes, and the approaching economic maturity of the Upper Midwest, Lewis points out.

Among the various commodity items represented in wholesaling, electrical goods, hardware, plumbing and heating equipment, lumber and construction materials, and machinery, equipment, and supplies are headed for the greatest relative expansion, the study indicates. Furniture and home furnishings and petroleum products also can be expected to make favorable showings, with drugs and liquor probably holding their own. Automotive lines are an exception to the growth trend in durable goods, Lewis explains, because of the decentralization of wholesaling in this field.

Dry goods and apparel have the poorest prospects in the Twin Cities wholesale field, and a relatively small expansion is predicted for groceries, tobacco products, farm products and farm supplies.

(MORE)

Indications are that the Twin Cities will continue to occupy a dominant position in the wholesale trade of the Upper Midwest, with the future status largely determined by the population growth in this area, the author says. Since the rate of population growth for the Upper Midwest is not equal to that in other sections of the country, the wholesale trade will not expand as rapidly as in the areas with the faster rate of population increase.

Many smaller wholesale centers have developed in the Upper Midwest, as in other parts of the country, and these are expected to grow at a more rapid pace than their metropolitan neighbors, Lewis says.

RADIO SERIES ON LIFE IN RUSSIA
STARTS SATURDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The first in a radio series of "People Under Communism", produced under a $300,000 grant from The Fund for Adult Education sponsored by the Ford Foundation, will be broadcast over University of Minnesota radio station KUOM Saturday (Dec. 13) at 3:30 p.m.

Believing that the United States is going to have to live with the Soviet Union for many years to come, and that it is highly important for Americans to know everything possible about Russia and its people, the National Association of Educational Broadcasters has produced a series of seven, hour long broadcasts on "People Under Communism". The programs are designed to give the listener information about Russian life, propaganda and political techniques.

To make the new series authentic and factual, the producers engaged, as consultants for the five parts of the series, men who are recognized as outstanding authorities on Russia. They are: Merle Fainsod, of the Russian Research Center, Harvard university; Harold H. Fisher, Hoover Institute and Library, Stanford university; Alex Inkeles, Russian Research Center, Harvard university; and Philip E. Mosely and Ernest J. Simmons, both of the Russian institute, Columbia university.

The first program deals dramatically with the terror exercised by the Soviet secret police. Other programs deal with the engineer in Soviet society, how the Communists attempt to control art and literature, and the efforts of the Communists to capture and turn it into a totalitarian state.

Much of the data for the series has been drawn from refugees from behind the Iron Curtain.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

University of Minnesota students donated 1,761 pints of blood during the recent campus blood drive, according to an announcement by Madge Micheels, 516 S.E. Huron, Minneapolis. Miss Micheels was chairman of the Minneapolis campus drive Nov. 10-21.

Total contributions exceed by 413 pints the number collected during the fall blood drive in 1951.

Sponsors of the Bloodmobile operation on the Minneapolis campus were the University's three ROTC units and the Corps of Sponsors, ROTC women's auxiliary. On the St. Paul campus, where this year's drive was conducted in early November, the project was organized by the Student Council.

During 1952, University students have given 2,660 pints of blood to the Defense Blood Center. In addition, approximately 200 students have made contributions directly to blood centers in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

AT 'U' GRADUATION

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

President Raymond Walters of the University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, O., will be the chief speaker at the University of Minnesota's fall quarter commencement Thursday evening (Dec. 18) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. He will address the graduating seniors on "Our Obligations as Americans".

Former dean of Swarthmore college, Swarthmore, Pa., Dr. Walters has served as head of the Cincinnati university since 1932. He is associate editor of School and Society, weekly educational magazine, and was one of the charter members of the Society for the Advancement of Education's board of trustees.

Approximately 450 University students will receive diplomas in the commencement exercises, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in Northrop auditorium. University President J. L. Morrill will confer all of the degrees and will award commissions to cadets who have completed their Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC training.

Malcolm M. Willey, vice president for academic administration, will introduce deans of the University's colleges before they present their candidates for degrees to President Morrill. Students who are to receive doctor of philosophy degrees will be announced individually by John G. Darley, assistant dean of the graduate school.

The ceremonies will begin with an invocation by the Rev. John S. Bone, director of the Roger Williams Fellowship and adviser to Baptist students on the campus.

Preceding the program, J. Frederic Goossen will play a concert on the University's Flemish bells from 7-7:30 p.m. and University organist Arthur B. Jennings will play an organ recital from 7:30-8 p.m.

"Music to Order", a program outlining the Soviet state's policy toward music, will be broadcast at 3:30 p.m. Saturday (Dec. 20) over KUOM, University of Minnesota radio station.

The special show is part of a National Association of Educational Broadcasters' series on "People Under Communism".

Composers Deems Taylor and Harry Cowell and Nicolas Slonimsky, authority on Russian music, describe the plight of musical composers in the U.S.S.R. today. They discuss the Soviet policy — what it has meant and how it is likely to affect the nation's musical development.

Since 1948, Soviet composers have been compelled to bow to rigid party controls on the form and thematic content of the music they write. The party determines what is "anti-people's" music and what is "pro-people's" music.

This radio show was prepared with the help of materials provided by Ernest J. Simmons, chairman of the department of Slavic languages at Columbia university.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA LEGISLATIVE REQUEST
FOR UNIVERSITY HOSPITALS -- 1953-55

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24)

Minneapolis --The 1953 Legislature will be asked to appropriate $6,404,843 toward the cost of operating the University of Minnesota Hospitals for the next two years, University President J. L. Morrill announced today.

Regents of the University will call on the Legislature to provide $2,740,973 for the year 1953-54 and $3,663,870 for 1954-55, the president reported. In addition, they will ask a deficiency appropriation of $61,087 to cover a cost-of-living staff salary increase for the current year.

Included in the request for the two-year period, according to President Morrill, are the sums needed from the Legislature for the operation of four specific divisions of the hospitals as follows:

	For 1953-54	For 1954-55
University Hospitals (General) (Including Variety Club Heart Hospital)
State's share.....	$1,190,807	$1,384,645
Counties' share.....	1,190,807	1,384,645
	$2,381,614	$2,769,290
Psychopathic Hospital.....	233,221	466,442
Child Psychiatric Hospital.....	126,138	163,138
Rehabilitation Center (New request).	-----	265,000

The Legislature customarily appropriates both the state's share and the counties' share of the cost of caring for indigent patients in University Hospitals. Counties are required to reimburse the state for half the funds expended for the care of patients referred to the University Hospitals by their respective welfare boards.

Expansion of University Hospitals facilities through completion of the Mayo Memorial Medical Center expected in 1954, opening of the new Rehabilitation Center also in 1954, cost-of-living and merit salary boosts for the staff and advances in the cost of supplies and equipment have led to substantial increases in the 1953-55 requests over those for the current year, explained President Morrill.

(MORE)

Increases in appropriations requests for the next two years over the actual appropriation for the present fiscal year, 1952-53, were reported by President Morrill for the four divisions as follows:

	Increase over 1952-53
	For 1953-54	For 1954-55
University Hospitals (General)
State's share.....	$ 94,943	$288,781
Counties' share.....	94,943	288,781
	$189,886	$577,562
Psychopathic Hospital.....	16,265	249,486
Child Psychiatric Hospital.....	11,138	48,138
Rehabilitation Center (New request)..	-----	265,000

The Mayo Memorial Medical Center, when completed in 1954, will provide for an increase of 75 beds, from 519 to 594, for University Hospitals, a 14.5 per cent increase in capacity, the president explained. The number of patient days (one day of hospitalization for one patient), he added, is expected to jump from last year's 149,212 to 170,309, an increase of 21,097 patient days or 14.1 per cent.

The Psychopathic hospital which now has 36 beds also will expand into the Mayo Memorial adding accommodations for 35 patients, an increase in capacity of 97.2 per cent. Patient days are expected to double, from 10,220 to 20,440.

Additional funds asked for the Child Psychiatric hospital will provide for full use of this unit in caring for both bed patients and out-patients. The 1951 Legislature reduced the $159,912 requested for complete utilization during 1952-53, the first year of operation of this division, to $115,000, President Morrill pointed out. This reduction permitted operation of this new hospital service on a limited basis only during the current year.

The Rehabilitation Center is a new activity planned for the Mayo Memorial building and will occupy two floors of the structure and an open-air deck. This space will be used for the treatment of out-patients. In addition, 20 hospital beds will be made available for rehabilitation patients through alterations in the present hospital.

"For many years," explained President Morrill, "the lack of a proper facility for use as a rehabilitation center for the State of Minnesota has been a severe handicap to the health care programs of the state. The lack of properly trained personnel and facilities to restore the handicapped to productive, useful and satisfactory life has been a severe drain upon the economic and domestic welfare.

"Handicapped individuals in Minnesota have been estimated to number many tens of thousands," added the president. "These include the victims of disease and accident. The University of Minnesota is especially fortunate in having interested, medically trained physicians, teachers and therapists to carry on the restoration and education for future life of many good citizens who are prevented by their handicaps from leading complete lives."

The new Rehabilitation Center is expected to be ready for use about July 1, 1954. Its facilities will be used for the training of physicians, physical therapy technicians, occupational therapists, social workers and others concerned with the problems of handicapped persons as well as both in-patient and out-patient care of such persons.

"Desert Soliloquy", a study in education, will be presented Tuesday (Dec. 30) at 1:30 p.m. over University of Minnesota radio station KUOM. With Walter Goldschmidt of the University of California as project director, the education story was written by Len Peterson and produced in the studios of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation in Toronto, by Andrew Allan. Original music for the score was by Luci Agostini.

Through a dramatic study of the dilemma of a Hopi Indian boy who, on the threshold of adulthood, must decide whether to mold his life in the traditions of his ancestors, or seek to acquire the ways of the white man. "Desert Soliloquy", a half-hour radio broadcast, advances the story of "The Ways of Mankind". The series is produced as an Adult Education Project by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

The new "Ways of Mankind" show emphasizes the importance of a realization that education begins a long time before we enter the little red schoolhouse, or its equivalent, and continues beyond the college campus.

'ROSHOMON', PRIZE
JAPANESE FILM, TO OPEN
'U' MOVIE SERIES

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, JAN. 4)

The prize-winning Japanese movie, "Roshomon", will open the University of Minnesota Film society's winter film series with showings at 3:30 and 8 p.m. Wednesday (Jan. 7) in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Set in medieval times, "Roshomon" is the story of a warrior and his wife who are attacked by a bandit. The warrior is killed. In an attempt to discover some meaning in the cruelty of man, the producer portrays the crime from four points of view -- that of the wife, the bandit, a spectator and the victim. The entire tale was photographed out-of-doors against the Japanese landscape.

"Roshomon" was voted the best film of 1951 by the National Board of Review and also won recognition at the 1951 Venice Film Festival as the outstanding movie of the year. English sub-titles translate the Japanese dialogue.

The Film society's program includes these other movies: "A Nous, La Liberte" (French), Jan. 14; "Day of Wrath" (Danish), Jan. 21; "The Medium" (in English), Jan. 28; "Brief Encounter" (British), Feb. 18; "Magic Garden" (South African), Mar. 4; and "Water Birds", new Walt Disney nature film, Mar. 11.

Admission to these showings in Northrop auditorium is 74 cents for adults, 35 cents for juniors.

A special series of three film classics has also been scheduled for showing: "The Quiet One", an American documentary, Feb. 5 and 6; "Grand Illusion", a French drama, Feb. 19 and 20; and "Stage Coach", famous American Western, Feb. 26. These 16 mm. films will be shown at 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. in Nicholson hall auditorium on the above dates. Admission is 40 cents; tickets will be sold only at the Film society office in Westbrook hall. The Soviet government's method of placing all Russian playwrights under strict controls, to make certain that only Soviet propaganda is presented behind the footlights, is the theme of a new broadcast in the series, "People Under Communism." The hour-long program on contemporary Russian drama will be heard over KUOM, University of Minnesota radio station, at 3:25 p.m. Saturday (Jan. 10). "Drama to Order" is an adult education project of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

The program shows that while there was Russian state censorship in the days of the Czars, it was mild compared to that of the Soviets today. The most pointed criticism of Communist Party control on drama is the fact that most popular plays in the Soviet Union today are the great pre-Revolutionary Russian dramas written long ago when the Czars were in power.

In this program, the indictment against the present-day Soviet stage and its use almost exclusively as a propaganda weapon is drawn by Dr. Ernest J. Simmons, chairman of the department of Slavic languages at Columbia university. Dr. Simmons serves as narrator for the presentation, which was produced and directed by Frank Papp. The script is based on materials and counsel provided by Dr. Simmons.

"The power of propaganda wielded by the Soviet stage should not be underestimated," according to Dr. Simmons, who has been a student of Russian literature and culture for 20 years. "The huge superstructure of the Soviet theatre is regarded by the State as one of its best instruments for forming the minds of its citizens.

"There are hundreds of professional theaters and thousands of amateur ones, and the audiences yearly run into the millions. And its repertory is entirely controlled by the State."

'U' MUSEUM TO SHOW
COLOR FILMS OF NAVAHOS,
SEMINOLES SUNDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Three sound and color films -- "Navaho Country", "Pueblo Art" and "Seminole Indians" -- will be shown at 3 p.m. Sunday (Jan. 4) in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History. The program is part of a free, public lecture series presented every Sunday afternoon through April 12 in the museum auditorium on the University of Minnesota campus.

The three films were photographed by Elmer Albinson of Minneapolis and edited by Henry Webb of the University's audio-visual education department. "Navaho Country", made on a Navaho reservation near New Gallup, New Mexico, portrays those Southwestern Indians in their life on the dessert. The "Pueblo Art" movie shows the process by which Maria Martinex and other Indian potters have rejuvenated the art of making "black" pottery. The scenes were taken at the pueblo of San Ildefonso north of Sante Fe, New Mexico. Some "black" pottery in the University art gallery's permanent collection also appears in the film.

"Seminole Indians", an account of Seminole life in the Florida Everglades, also tells some of the history of these peoples and highlights their problem of adjusting to an encroaching white civilization.

The following Sunday, Jan. 11, S.R.B. Cooke, a University mines and metallurgy professor, will show color slides of flowers and mountain scenery taken in high altitudes of the Rocky Mountains.

Vaughn Monroe, his orchestra and vocalists will present a two-hour show Thursday morning (Jan. 8) in Northrop Memorial auditorium for the first convocation on the University of Minnesota's winter quarter schedule. Sponsored by the All-University convocation committee for students, faculty and staff members, the program will begin at 11:30 a.m. For this show there will be an admission charge of 75 cents in advance or $1 at the door.

The appearance of Monroe and his orchestra -- rated among the top five bands in the nation for many years -- is in keeping with the recently established convocation policy of bringing big-name attractions to the campus. Monroe has also gained national fame as one of the country's outstanding recording artists with his "Ballerina", "There! I've Said It Again", "Riders in the Sky" and "Let It Snow, Let It Snow".

Featured in his program here will be the four "Moonmaids" and the four "Moonmen"; Ziggy Talent, known as the "Clown Prince of Good Humor"; and violinist Earle Hummel.

Seven other winter convocations -- open to the public without charge-- have been planned through January, February and early March. All will start at 11:30 a.m. in Northrop auditorium.

The future programs will be Margaret Mead, ethnological curator at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, lecturing on "From the South Seas to Modern America", Jan. 15; a rehearsal of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, Jan. 22; a lecture by Hans Christian Sonne, merchant banker and chairman of the board of trustees of the National Planning association, Washington, D.C., Jan. 29;

A film lecture, "Tito's Yugoslavia", by Julien Bryan, executive director of the International Film Foundation, Feb. 5; a panel discussion in observance of Brotherhood Week, Feb. 19; a University Charter Day pageant with the University symphony orchestra, theater and music department participating, Feb. 26; and a performance of Mary Chase's well-known play, "Harvey", by the University theater, March 5.

U OF M STUDENTS

Minneapolis ---Approximately 300 new University of Minnesota students will take part in a two-day orientation-registration program Friday and Saturday (Jan. 2-3) on the Minneapolis campus. They will start attending classes Monday (Jan. 5), opening day of the winter quarter.

The program -- designed to acquaint the students with the campus, University procedures, course schedules and extracurricular activities -- is coordinated by the dean of students office and sponsored by the University's various colleges.

General information sessions, testing, program counseling, registration, speech and hearing inventories and the arrangement of a physical examination are among the things scheduled during the two days. A special evening program, including a banquet and stage show, is planned Saturday (Jan. 3).

'U' ANNOUNCES
CONVOCAATION SCHEDULE

(FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JAN. 5)

Minneapolis ---Vaughn Monroe, his orchestra and vocalists will open the University of Minnesota's winter convocation schedule with a two-hour show in Northrop Memorial auditorium Thursday morning (Jan. 8). Seven other convocations -- ranging from lectures in economics and world affairs to a Minneapolis Symphony orchestra rehearsal -- have been planned through early March.

The programs will start at 11:30 a.m. in Northrop auditorium. All of them, except the Monroe show (for which there will be a $1 admission fee), are open to the public without charge.

Margaret Mead, associate curator of ethnology, American Museum of Natural History, New York, will talk on "From the South Seas to Modern America", Jan. 15. A rehearsal of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra is on the convocation calendar for Jan. 22.

Hans Christian Sonne, head of the New York merchant banking firm of Amsinck, Sonne & Co. and also chairman of the board of trustees of the National Planning association, Washington, D.C., will speak Jan. 29. A film lecture, "Tito's Yugoslavia", by Julien Bryan, executive director of the International Film Foundation, is scheduled Feb. 5.

The other programs will be a panel discussion in observance of Brotherhood Week, Feb. 19, a University Charter Day pageant with the University symphony orchestra, theater and music department participating, Feb. 26; and a performance of Mary Chase's Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Harvey", by the University theater touring company, March 5.

'U' TO PRESENT
TWO INSTITUTES ON MENTAL DEFICIENCY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Two special institutes on mental deficiency will be presented at the University of Minnesota's Center for Continuation Study Monday through Wednesday (Jan. 5-7). The three-day program has been planned in cooperation with the Minnesota Division of Public Institutions.

Jarle Leirfallom, acting director of the Minnesota Division of Public Institutions, will speak at the opening session of the first institute.

Scheduled to run from Monday morning to noon Tuesday, institute I will cover highlights of Minnesota's social program for the mentally deficient, social worker and community relations with the mentally deficient, the return of such people from institutions and aids in carrying out the social program.

Institute II will begin at noon Tuesday and will continue through Wednesday afternoon. Lecturers will discuss such topics as the place of the psychologist in diagnosis and planning for the retarded person, cooperation between parents and social workers, the employment and education of the mentally deficient child.

John E. Anderson, director of the University's institute of child welfare; E. J. Engberg, superintendent of the Minnesota School and Colony, Faribault; Walker Groetzinger, president of the Minnesota Society for the Mentally Retarded; and Mildred Thomson, head of the bureau for mentally deficient and epileptic, Minnesota Division of Public Institutions, will be among the speakers.
