DR. GARAMELLA
NAMED TO HEART
RESEARCH POST

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Dr. Joseph J. Garamella, clinical instructor in surgery at the University of Minnesota medical school, has been named the first appointee to the Rappaport Professorship of Cardiac Research at Mount Sinai hospital, Minneapolis. The announcement was made Thursday (Jan. 3) by Dr. H. S. Diehl, University dean of the medical sciences, and Dr. Benjamin Mandelstam, administrator of Mount Sinai hospital.

The professorship was established in 1955 with an initial gift of $55,000 by the Rappaport family (of NAPCO Industries, Minneapolis) in memory of James Rappaport, and his father, Edward Rappaport, who died during that year. The gift provides for a heart research post to be occupied by a medical scientist designated by the University and doing his major investigative work in the Jay Phillips Research Laboratory at Mount Sinai hospital.

As a thoracic surgeon, Dr. Garamella, 37, has devoted the last two years to the investigation of surgical aspects of coronary heart disease and allied problems at Mount Sinai. A principal aspect of his research is the employment of surgical means of improving the circulation of the coronary arteries.

Dr. Garamella was born in Bridgeport, Conn. He is a graduate of Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass., and Georgetown university school of medicine, Washington, D. C. He received a doctor of philosophy degree of surgery from the University of Minnesota in December 1956. He interned at St. Francis hospital, Hartford, Conn., and then spent two years in the United States Navy.

Following a residency in pathology at Holyoke, Mass., and a year of surgical training at Springfield, Mass., he completed his general surgical training at the Minneapolis Veterans hospital. He obtained his training in thoracic surgery at the Veterans hospital and University of Minnesota hospitals. He is a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery and the American Board of Thoracic Surgery.

Dr. Garamella lives at 2015 W. 49th st., Minneapolis, with his wife, Christine, and their five children.

DETECTIVE STORY
WRITER TO SPEAK
AT 'U' THURSDAY

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, JAN. 6)

Erle Stanley Gardner, creator of fiction's lawyer-detective Perry Mason, will discuss "When Fiction Creates Facts" Thursday (Jan. 10) at a University of Minnesota convocation. His lecture, at 11:30 a. m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium, will be open free to the public.

Gardner has written 50 books about the adventures of Perry Mason and his secretary, Della Street, tales which have been aired over radio and soon will become a television series. Perry Mason's adventures now can be read in Czech, Danish, Dutch, Finnish, French, German, Hebrew, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Norwegian, Polish, Portuguese, Spanish, Swedish and several Indian languages.

He also writes magazine detective serials and the "D. A." series under his own name and other detective stories under the pseudonym, A. A. Fair. He has produced two travel books with his own illustrations, "Neighborhood Frontiers" and "The Land of Shorter Shadows".

In addition to his literary detective pursuits, Gardner, a lawyer himself, is intensely interested in bringing the whole crime problem to the attention of the public, and he has travelled throughout this country and Europe studying the latest developments in scientific detection methods. He is a principal force behind the Court of Last Resort, an organization of dedicated experts in such fields as private detection, forensic medicine, lie-detector work and criminal psychology who joined forces in an effort to make people more aware of the whole crime problem and get constructive action.

In this connection, he has written numerous magazine and newspaper articles, given radio and television talks and lectured to law enforcement officers and bar associations.

Gardner's lecture is sponsored by the University's departments of protection and safety and concerts and lectures.

The Robert Joffrey Theatre Dancers, featuring eight performers, will present a new idea in dance programs at a special University of Minnesota evening convocation at 8:30 p. m. Thursday (Jan. 24) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The program is open free to the public.

With the accent on entertainment, the production will include a combination of romantic ballet, dramatic dance in the Spanish style and American musical comedy dance, plus a liberal sprinkling of song. Each member of the company will participate in the full range of production styles.

Joffrey is responsible for the choreography and staging of the entire program, a highlight of which will be his romantic ballet, "Pas de Deuxes", originally staged for the famed Ballet Rambert in London. It remains in the British ballet's repertoire and has been added to the repertoire of The Ballet Theatre. Joffrey was the first American ever invited to choreograph for the Ballet Rambert.

Also among Joffrey's accomplishments are his choreography of "Griffelkin", opening production of the NBC Television Opera Theatre's 1956 season and the staging of two "April in Paris" balls at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

The troupe of eight includes Glen Setley, who has appeared annually in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and has danced in opera ballet, Broadway musicals (including "Kiss Me Kate" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes") and in concert dance here and in Europe; Beatrice Thorpkins, who has toured the United States and Europe as soloist with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and the New York City Ballet and is a former prima ballerina of the San Francisco Opera; and Gerald Arpino, who has appeared on Broadway in "Annie Get Your Gun" and as soloist with the Hans Gollner-Paul Petroff Ballet in Latin America.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A color film, "Egypt Reborn", will be shown at the University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (Jan. 17) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The program is open free to the public.

The film will be shown in place of the convocation talk by Alfred M. Lilienthal, expert on Middle East affairs, originally scheduled for this week. Lilienthal's appearance was cancelled because he has been delayed in Madrid, Spain.

A commentary will be given during the showing of the film by Julien Bryan, executive director of the International Film Foundation, Inc., New York, and outstanding producer of documentary films.

The movie tells the story of ancient Egypt and modern Cairo and shows modern developments in health, education and agriculture in Egypt. It includes pictures of the Suez Canal, life in Egyptian villages, the University of Cairo and the ancient Citadel and famous coffee shops.

A one-time social worker, Bryan has photographed people and their ways of living in many countries throughout the world, emphasizing the similarities rather than the differences between peoples of the world. He was named executive director of the International Film Foundation when it was established in 1945.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR LIPPMANN
LECTURE TICKETS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Saturday (Jan. 19) is the deadline for mailing ticket requests for Walter Lippmann's lecture Sunday, Jan. 27, at the University of Minnesota.

Lippmann, noted newspaper columnist and public affairs analyst, will discuss "America in the World Today" in the fourth Gideon Seymour memorial lecture at 4:30 p. m. Jan. 27 in Williams Arena on the University campus.

Free tickets to the lecture may be obtained by writing the Gideon Seymour Memorial Lecture office, 105 Northrop Memorial auditorium, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn., by Saturday (Jan. 19). The number of tickets desired should be stated, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope should be included with every request.

Editor of the New York World until 1931, Lippmann now is a special writer for the New York Herald-Tribune and other newspapers. He was a United States Army Military Intelligence captain and assistant to the secretary of war during World War I. He is a Harvard university graduate.

A new public address system has been installed in Williams Arena for use at the Lippmann lecture, the second Seymour lecture to be held in the building, usually used for basketball games and other sports contests.

The lecture series is in memory of Gideon D. Seymour, executive editor of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune from 1944 until his death in 1954. It is sponsored by the University through funds provided by the newspapers.

TALK ON DEATH
CULT INDIANS
AT 'U' MONDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

An illustrated lecture on "Current Excavations at the Etowah Site, Georgia" will be presented Monday (Jan. 21) at the University of Minnesota. Lewis H. Larson, Jr., anthropologist and state archaeologist for the Georgia Historical commission, will speak at 8:30 p. m. in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium.

Etowah, Ga., is one of the three great centers of the Southern Death Cult, a part of the Mississippi Indian culture, which dates back at least to 1000 A. D. The religious cult's activities centered around death and burial.

At Etowah, there are three large flat pyramids, characteristic of this cult. Some were used as substructures on which temples were built, and others were used for burials. It is in one of the latter type pyramids which Larson is digging.

The program, which will be open free to the public, is sponsored by the Minnesota Archaeological Institute of America and the University departments of classics, history, anthropology, art and concerts and lectures.

TEACHERS SOUGHT FOR OVERSEAS
ARMY SCHOOLS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Representatives of Army Dependents Schools will interview public school teachers interested in teaching American military and civilian personnel overseas February 11-13 on the University of Minnesota campus.

Interviews will be held in Room 105 of the University Armory from 12 to 9 p. m. Elementary teachers are in greatest demand, but there are some secondary positions available along with a limited number of posts in special fields -- counseling, administration, supervision, library, dormitory supervision, reading, speech correction and teachers of exceptional children.

Candidates must have a bachelor's degree, two full years of public school teaching experience, and currently be either teaching or furthering their educational background. Administrative positions require five years of teaching plus two years of administrative experience. Age limits are 25 to 55. Married women and women with dependents will not be considered, nor will married couples be employed as teaching teams.

Salary is $4,525 for the calendar year. Round-trip transportation and living quarters or tax-free living quarter allowances are provided. The schools are located in Germany, France, Northern Italy, Japan and Okinawa.

Correspondence regarding interviews should be sent to Dependent Schools Service, 102 Burton hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14.

'U' FRESHMAN
SCHOLARSHIPS
NOW AVAILABLE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Minnesota high-school seniors may apply now for University of Minnesota freshman scholarships for the 1957-58 academic year, according to George B. Risty, University scholarship committee executive secretary.

Eligibility depends on graduation from an accredited Minneapolis secondary school in the upper one-third of the class, being admissible to the University, a resident of Minnesota and a United States citizen.

Primary considerations are high academic performance, financial need and qualities of industry, leadership, vocational promise and good community citizenship.

The scholarships, designed to make the University more widely available to promising Minnesota students who need financial assistance, are sponsored by alumni, industry, foundations and special bequests. Some scholarships are restricted to specific areas of study, such as agriculture, home economics, forestry, institute of technology or education, while others are general and will be considered at the University in Minneapolis, St. Paul or Duluth.

Application forms, mailed on request to secondary school superintendents, principals or counselors, consist of three parts: a history of academic and non-academic activities, a survey of the financial need and a secondary school principal or counselor's evaluative comments. The University scholarship committee will make the final selections.

'U' TO HONOR 2
BUSINESS SCHOOL
ALUMNI FRIDAY

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, JAN. 20)

Minneapolis — Two Twin Cities men will receive the University of Minnesota's Outstanding Achievement Award at the school of business administration's third alumni institute Friday (Jan. 25) on the University campus.

Elmer E. Engelbert, president and manager of the St. Paul Book and Stationery company, and Lloyd Hale, president of G. H. Tennant company, Minneapolis, will be recognized for their distinguished business achievements. University President J. L. Morrill will make the presentations at the alumni institute dinner at 6:15 p.m. in the junior ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union.

Engelbert received a bachelor of science degree in business administration from the University in 1920, and Hale received a bachelor of arts degree in 1927 and a master of science degree in 1930.

A panel discussion of "The Legislative Outlook for Minnesota Business" will follow the dinner. Panel members will be State Senators Gerald Mullin and Donald Fraser, State Representatives Fred Cina and Sheldon Beanblossom, and Fred Neumeier and Wallace Mitchell, political writers for the St. Paul Dispatch and Minneapolis Star, respectively. J. Warren Stehman, professor emeritus, will serve as moderator.

Registration for Friday's (Jan. 25) activities will start at 3:15 p. m. in the Union women's lounge. A coffee hour will follow at 3:30 p. m., and the institute will begin, also in the women's lounge, at 4:30 p. m.

The institute will include a discussion of current research in business and economics by Professor Walter W. Heller and Assistant Dean Robert J. Holloway, a report on the business school by Dean Richard L. Kozelka and a business meeting conducted by O. O. Robbins, alumni association president, Minneapolis.

A special luncheon for industrial relations alumni at 12 noon in Room 351 of the Union will feature a ten-year forecast, "Industrial Relations: A Look at the Future", by members of the Industrial Relations Center staff. The luncheon will be followed by an open house in the reference room and research laboratories in the University building, Temporary South of Mines b.

'U' WILL OFFER
2 INSTITUTES ON MENTAL DEFICIENCY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Two institutes on mental deficiency will be held next week at the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study. The courses will be sponsored by the University in cooperation with the state public welfare department.

The first institute, Wednesday and Thursday (Jan. 23-24) is designed primarily for those with a professional interest in the mentally deficient. State and county responsibility for the mentally retarded and epileptic and supervision for the adult or adolescent employed or employable will be considered by this group.

At the second institute on Friday (Jan. 25), professional and lay persons will consider their joint responsibilities in planning for the mentally deficient. They will discuss the retarded, his parents and the community; determining a child's capabilities; and needs and goals for the mentally retarded.

The role of the physician in planning for the retarded child will be discussed in a public session at 8 p. m. Wednesday (Jan. 23) in the Continuation Center chapel. Dr. Robert Bergan, Duluth physician, will discuss the medical profession's responsibility to the mentally retarded and his parents.

When and how the physician should interpret the mental deficiency of the child to his parents will be the subject of Dr. Franklin Mellencamp, Milwaukee pediatrician; and E. A. Kilbride, Worthington physician, will tell how the doctor can utilize the social worker's services in his relationship with the retarded child and his parents. Moderator Dr. Reynold A. Jensen, professor, University of Minnesota department of pediatrics, will summarize the discussion.

KUOM TO RELATE
STORY OF CLOCK
250 YEARS OLD

Minneapolis --- Minnesota school children will hear the story of a 250-year-old clock on the radio series, "Journeys in Art", at 11 a. m. Thursday (Jan. 24) over KUOM, University of Minnesota radio station. The program is broadcast to state classrooms through the cooperation of the KUOM's Minnesota School of the Air and the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

Chimes of the clock, made in about 1700 by Thomas Taylor of Holborn, England, will be heard, and its story will be dramatized. An interview with Oscar Lang, Minneapolis architect and clock expert, also will be a program feature. Lang, a charter member of the National Association of Watch and Clock Collectors, has more than 300 watches and some 250 clocks in his home.

The clock chimes a different tune each quarter of the hour. For the past 25 years, it has been displayed in the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

PAUL TILLICH
TO OPEN FREUD
LECTURES AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Paul Tillich, noted theology and philosophy professor currently teaching at Harvard university, will open the University of Minnesota lecture series -- "Freud and Modern Man" -- in Northrop Memorial auditorium Friday (Jan. 25) at 8 p. m.

The series is being held to commemorate the birth of Sigmund Freud, Austrian scientist credited with originating psychoanalysis. Freud died in 1939.

Tillich will speak on "Freud and Religion". Later lectures by six other scholars will analyze Freud and civilization, power, social welfare, literature, psychology and medicine.

Other speakers will be: Benjamin Nelson, sociology department chairman, Hofstra college, New York; E. V. Walter, associate professor of political science, Ohio Wesleyan university; Helen Harris Perlman, University of Chicago social work professor; Ralph G. Ross, University of Minnesota humanities program chairman; Nevitt Sanford, Mary C. Mellon foundation coordinator, Vassar college, and Sandor Rado, State University of New York psychiatry professor.

Running weekly through March 14, the series is sponsored by the University department of concerts and lectures and the general extension division and is financed in part by the Hamm Foundation.

A course fee of $4 will be charged, except for students and staff of educational institutions who will be admitted for $2. No individual lecture tickets will be sold. Advance registration may be made by mail to General Extension Division, University of Minnesota, or by telephoning Fe. 8-8791, Minneapolis.

SUMMER SCHOOL
PLAN TO SHORTEN
'U' LAW PROGRAM

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- A summer school program which will permit University of Minnesota law students to reduce by one year the time required to complete their studies will be resumed this year.

In announcing the program, Law School Dean William B. Lockhart and Summer Session Dean E. W. Ziebarth explained that it will permit students who enter law school in June to complete the four-year course in three years by attending three consecutive summer sessions. Students who enter with a degree may complete the $3\frac{1}{4}$ -year program in January of their third year, saving half a year. First-year law students now may enter law school either in summer session or fall quarter.

Students who wish to enroll in the summer session must fulfill all regular law school entrance requirements, as listed in the law school bulletin, which can be obtained from the University's department of admission and records. Further information is available from the office of the law school dean.

First-year courses to be taught next summer will be agency, contracts and introduction to public law. The 1957 summer session will start June 17 and run through August 24.

Advanced law courses also will be offered next summer for students who have successfully completed at least one year in an accredited law school. Arrangements may be made to carry one or two courses, rather than the normal 15-credit program. Courses to be offered this coming summer will be income taxation, creditors remedies, modern social legislation and trade regulation. Credit obtained in these courses is transferable to other law schools throughout the country.

Commenting on the accelerated program, Dean Lockhart said: "Most of our students must give two years or more to military service. Added to six or seven years of college and professional training, this has meant eight or nine years before they can start to practice law. The law school faculty, with the cooperation of Dean Ziebarth of the summer session, concluded that we should do what we can to permit these young men to accelerate their professional training by attending summer school."

Dudley Kirk, demographic director of the Population Council, Inc., New York City, will discuss "Optimum Rates of Population Growth" in a free public lecture at 8 p. m. Monday (Jan. 28) in Northrop Memorial auditorium at the University of Minnesota.

The lecture is part of a University symposium on population problems being held Monday through Wednesday (Jan. 28-30) in the Center for Continuation Study.

Educated at Pomona college, Claremont, Calif.; Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University, Medford, Mass.; and Harvard university, Kirk was employed in the Princeton university office of population research and the United States Department of State before joining the Population Council staff in 1954. In the State Department, he was demographer and sociological adviser in the office of intelligence research and chief and later chief planning officer in the division of research for Near East, South Asia and Africa. He is author of several books and articles, and is widely travelled, having been around the world during the past two years.

Kirk will appear in place of Frederick Osborn, executive vice president of the Population Council, who cracked nine ribs in a skiing accident and is unable to make the trip.

The University's three-day population symposium will feature talks on demographic, biological, cultural and social aspects of population. Factors in determining an "optimum population" and how they relate to policy decisions by the federal government also will be discussed. The symposium will be presented with the support of the Population Council, Inc., the Cowles Foundation and the Minnesota Human Genetics League.

Members of the symposium faculty will include Robert C. Cook, Population Reference bureau director, Washington, D. C.; E. S. Deevey, Jr., Yale university anthropology professor; Arnold C. Harberger, University of Chicago economics professor; Karl Sax, botany professor and director of Arnold Arboretum, Cambridge, Mass.; Warren S. U OF M ANNOUNCES
REMEDIAL READING
SUMMER SESSIONS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- School children who are below capacity in reading ability are eligible to attend the University of Minnesota's eighth annual summer school in remedial reading which starts June 19.

Children who attend will receive individual or small group attention for two hours daily -- from 9 to 11 a. m. -- Monday through Friday for ten weeks, through August 23. A limited number of pupils may be accepted for the first five-week period only, June 19 to July 19. No new enrollments will be made for the second five-week period.

Before being admitted to the remedial reading summer session, children must undergo diagnostic study by the psycho-educational staff. Typical studies require three half-days of testing for which a charge of $30 is made. At the conclusion of the testing, a report of the diagnosis is sent to the child's school.

Complete reports are made to each child's school at the end of the ten-week tutorial session, offering the pupil's regular teacher useful suggestions for the following school year.

Tuition for the ten-week period is $140 plus the charge for the diagnostic study.

Further information can be obtained by writing the Psych-Educational Clinic, 108 Pattee Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn., or by telephoning FE 2-8158, Extension 6675.

'U' CONVO THURSDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Four members of the original cast will appear in a concert version of Kurt Weill's Broadway success, "Lost in the Stars", at a University of Minnesota convocation Thursday (Jan. 31) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Two shows will be presented -- at 2:30 and 3:30 p. m.

Based on Alan Paton's novel, "Cry the Beloved Country", "Lost in the Stars" was adapted as a musical by Weill, with lyrics by playwright Maxwell Anderson. The play did much to awaken the world's interest in the plight of the Negro in South Africa.

Members of the original cast will include Herbert Coleman, Frank Roane, Van Prince and Joseph James. Prince, who had a singing role in the New York production, will be narrator for Thursday's presentations. Other singers will be Beatrice Reppy, Lyantine Watts and Louise Hawthorne. Each has had extensive professional experience in the theater, musicals, concert, radio and television.

The production is staged by Ernest Coleman, who will tour with the group as supervisor and stage manager.

Open free to the public, the convocation is sponsored by the University's department of concerts and lectures.

OF KOREAN ART

*To: Art Magazines 23
in U.S. & in Paris*

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

An art exhibit prepared by students and faculty members of Seoul National University of Korea currently is being exhibited at the University of Minnesota Gallery.

Included in the exhibit are 61 items -- posters, oil paintings, ink drawings, photographs, Oriental paintings, designs, and photographs of sculpture. Eighteen of the paintings are scrolls, hung on Oriental brocade borders.

Starting next September, the Korean Art exhibit will be available to other college and university art galleries as well as to other interested galleries. After the exhibit has been circulated to all those interested, the work of the students will be returned to Seoul, while the staff's items in the exhibit will remain at the University of Minnesota Gallery as the gift of the staff.

The exhibit came to the University as a result of a "sister relationship" established between the two schools in 1954. Under the plan, the University of Minnesota is helping the Seoul university to strengthen and develop its education and research programs in the fields of engineering, agriculture and medical sciences.

A total of 16 University of Minnesota faculty members have traveled to Korea, and 64 Koreans have come to Minnesota under terms of the agreement, which is financed by the International Cooperation administration, an agency of the federal government.

EX-'U' SURGEON
REPORTS ON BONE
FRACTURE STUDY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The reduction or prevention of fat embolism -- a condition sometimes fatal in long bone fractures -- is possible, according to Dr. Leonard F. Peltier, head of orthopedic surgery at the University of Kansas and until recently on the University of Minnesota medical staff, who presented his paper on the subject Monday (Jan. 28) to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons meeting in Chicago.

From studies done at the University of Minnesota, Dr. Peltier learned that embolism occurrence resulting from fat droplets plugging blood vessels, can be reduced if patients are kept quiet and not handled roughly or unnecessarily.

He also explained that if a tourniquet is used on the long bones wherever possible, the fat particles can be confined and an embolism prevented.

The high fat content and large blood vessel network of bone moves fat droplets into the general blood stream which then travel quickly to the lung vessels and block off capillaries shortly after the injury, Dr. Peltier pointed out. Death is then caused by acute failure of the right ventricle of the heart due to emboli blocking the pulmonary vessels.

Dr. Peltier was associate professor and acting director of the University of Minnesota division of orthopedic surgery from 1955 until he went to the University of Kansas last December.

Burney of the Public Health Service, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

As a council member Dr. Syverton will advise and make recommendations to the surgeon general regarding grant activities of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, Bethesda, Md., one of seven such institutes doing research for the Public Health Service. Grants for allergy and infectious diseases research will then be awarded to universities and other nonfederal institutions.

The council also provides guidance on broad research policies related to the programs of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. Members of the council, leaders in science, education and public affairs, meet three times a year at the National Institutes of Health.

Dr. Syverton did undergraduate work at the University of North Dakota and received his doctor's degree at Harvard. Prior to joining the University faculty in 1948, he was Louisiana State university microbiology department head and bacteriology professor at the University of Rochester. He also was a staff member at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

A member of the U. S. Naval Reserve from 1941 to 1947, he was on active duty in the Pacific with the naval medical research unit 2 from 1944 to 1946.

Dr. Syverton is a member of several professional organizations including the American Association for Cancer Research, the American Association of Immunologists and the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine. He received the Eli Lilly award in 1938 for his research in bacteriology and immunology.

He is an authority on infectious diseases and has served as adviser in microbiology for the Office of Naval Research and as virology and microbiology adviser to the National Institutes of Health.

'U' TO EXPAND
FAMILY LIFE
PROGRAM

(FOR RELEASE 11 A. M. FRIDAY, FEB. 8)

Forthcoming expansion of the University of Minnesota's family life program was disclosed today with the naming of Reuben L. Hill, Jr., as professor of sociology and child welfare. His appointment, effective next September, was approved today by the University Board of Regents.

Under the proposed expansion plan, Hill will teach new family life courses, direct and carry on research and, with the aid of others, provide leadership in effecting more cooperation among the University's family life activities.

Hill, 44, a graduate of Utah State Agricultural college and the University of Wisconsin, has been research professor and professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina since 1949. Prior to that, he served on the faculties of the Universities of Wisconsin and South Dakota.

Noted for his work on "the family", he has written many research articles and a number of books including "Families Under Stress", "Family, Marriage and Parenthood" and "The Family".

In explaining the family life expansion, Dean E. W. McDiarmid of the college of science, literature and arts said:

"It is proposed to offer additional courses in the family so that we may provide a greater range of knowledge to our students and to professional personnel who treat marriage and family problems, to provide personnel and facilities for more fundamental research in family problems and the evaluation of therapeutic and preventive procedures and programs, and to provide leadership in stimulating more cooperation in and coordination of the University's activities in the family life area."

'U' WILL OBSERVE
BROTHERHOOD WEEK

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, FEB. 14)

Minneapolis --- Brotherhood Week will be observed next week on the University of Minnesota Minneapolis and St. Paul campuses with banquets, living unit discussion groups, movie showings and lectures.

On the Minneapolis campus, Brotherhood Week will run from Sunday (Feb. 17) through Saturday, Feb. 23, ending with the Cosmopolitan club's annual International Ball Saturday (Feb. 23) night. Activities on the St. Paul campus will start Sunday (Feb. 17) with a banquet and conclude Wednesday (Feb. 20) with a showing of the film, "Cry the Beloved Country".

The film, based on Alan Paton's novel about South Africa's segregation problem, also will be shown twice on the Minneapolis campus.

University Village and Grove East Village, University married student housing areas, will be recognized Wednesday (Feb. 20) by the National Conference of Christians and Jews as "outstanding examples of brotherhood in practice".

A banquet will open Brotherhood Week on the St. Paul campus Sunday (Feb. 17). Howard Bennett, state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will speak on the campus' Brotherhood Week theme, "One World". At a coffee hour in the St. Paul campus Student Union, Tuesday (Feb. 19) articles from foreign lands will be displayed and entertainment will be provided by the campus' foreign students.

Foreign students will be guests at living units on both campuses Tuesday (Feb. 19) night. Dinner will be followed by discussions of the individual's responsibility in brotherhood.

Folk dances and foreign desserts will be featured at the Brotherhood Week international banquet on the Minneapolis campus Wednesday (Feb. 20) night. Speakers will include George Grim, Minneapolis Tribune columnist, and Zwi Karchi, Foreign Student Council president.

Speakers to be heard throughout the week on the Minneapolis campus will be John Cogley, former editor of Commonweal Magazine; Miss Janice Porter, World University Service, first Negro woman to be elected president of the University of Chicago student body; Carl Rowan, Minneapolis Tribune staff member; the Rev. DORATI MUSIC
SCHOLARSHIP OPEN
AT MINNESOTA 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Competition for the 1957 Antal Dorati Music Scholarship in Conducting or Composition has been announced by Professor Paul M. Oberg, chairman of the University of Minnesota music department.

The $500 scholarship is available to advanced music students for private study with Antal Dorati, Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra conductor, during the 1957-58 year. It is financed by the Greater University Fund.

Winner will receive 26 weeks of personal instruction from Dorati, consisting of one formal session per week, ranging in length from one to three hours, with instruction in music aesthetics, composition and orchestral conducting. In addition, he will be allowed to assist at Symphony rehearsals and will attend all rehearsals and concerts held in the Twin Cities.

Competition is open to senior or graduate students majoring in music and specializing in composition or conducting. Graduate credit will be given toward an advanced degree.

Composition applicants are required to submit at least three original compositions, one of which must be for orchestra or small instrument ensemble. Applicants for a scholarship in conducting must possess a keen and sensitive musical ear and have at least a functional knowledge of piano and a basic knowledge of at least one of the orchestral string or wind instruments.

Dorati will interview applicants in Minneapolis April 1-26 and also prior to the 1957-58 season next fall. Applications can be made to Professor Oberg, 107 Scott Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn.

MINNESOTA 'U' PROFESSOR TO VISIT ASIA,
EUROPE IN JOURNALISM RESEARCH SURVEY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- A University of Minnesota professor has been assigned to make a first-hand survey of journalism research activities in Asia and Europe.

The Ford Foundation has announced a special grant to Raymond B. Nixon, professor of journalism, for visiting Asian and European centers where research in journalism and mass communications is under way. The purpose is to encourage a greater exchange of information and skills between American and foreign scholars.

To enable Professor Nixon to accept the six-month assignment, the University Board of Regents has approved his leave of absence from teaching during the spring quarter. Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon, he will leave March 15 for Japan, the first of 25 countries to be visited.

In Japan, Formosa, Indonesia, India, Pakistan, Iran, and several European countries, Professor Nixon has been invited to give lectures or to conduct seminars for groups of newspapermen and journalism students. In New Delhi he will preside at the annual Journalism Day conference of Panjab university.

The Minnesota professor also will attend two international meetings of journalists. One is the general assembly of the International Press Institute May 14-16 in Amsterdam. The other is the congress of the International Federation of Newspaper Publishers and Editors May 28-31 in Naples.

Professor Nixon is editor of the Journalism Quarterly, the official research publication of the Association for Education in Journalism. His trip will enable him to gather materials for this magazine as well as for his courses in international news communication and comparative foreign journalism at the university.

Returning to the United States late next August, Professor Nixon will report his findings at the annual convention of the Association for Education in Journalism in Boston.

UNIVERSITY MARKS
106TH BIRTHDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota is celebrating its 106th birthday this week (Feb. 24-Mar. 2) with a special convocation, store window displays and a statewide speaking program. The week has been proclaimed University of Minnesota Week by Governor Orville L. Freeman.

Sketches of University history will be presented in the annual Charter Day convocation, "Our Day to Stretch", at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (Feb. 28) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Alan W. Peabody, teaching assistant in speech and theater arts, as the University president, will view past highlights including the fire in Old Main, evolution controversy of 1927 and cross-circulation heart operations. Written by Lowell L. Manfull, general college instructor, and directed by Philip Benson, graduate fellow in speech and theater arts, the program will be introduced by E. W. Ziebarth, summer session dean. The University band and men's glee club also will take part in the convocation.

An alumni honors luncheon in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union following the convocation will honor all who have received the Outstanding Achievement Award, the school's highest award to alumni.

President J. L. Morrill will present four such awards for distinguished service to Rear Admiral James D. Boyle, supply corps, U. S. Navy, retired; Cecilia H. Hauge, director, Veterans Administration nursing service; Dr. James W. Papez, director, Biological Research laboratory, Columbus State hospital, Columbus, Ohio; and Jack Lamont Van Volkenburg, consultant and member of the board of directors of the Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., and retired president of CBS-TV.

Exhibits in Twin Cities, suburban and Duluth business windows this week tell the University's story of progress in various fields including art, music, child welfare, veterinary medicine and plant pathology.

More than 50 faculty and staff members take University of Minnesota Week out in the state through talks before alumni clubs and civic and fraternal groups. These talks began in January and are scheduled through April to accommodate meeting schedules.

The University of Minnesota Symphony Orchestra will play its annual winter concert at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, March 13, in Northrop Memorial auditorium. William Bagwell will be guest conductor of the concert, which will be open free to the public.

Bagwell, a University music instructor, is director of the St. Paul Campus Choir and instrumental music director at University High school. A former violist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, he headed the Transylvania college music department, Lexington, Ky., before coming to Minnesota.

The concert will demonstrate the contrasting treatment of the dance element using music from the 17th and 20th centuries.

The program will open with Handel's "Ballet Suite" from the opera, "Alcina", its first performance locally. Featured in this number will be Harold Mueller, assistant professor of music, and Russell Walsh, University symphony assistant conductor.

Edmund Jacobsen, University sophomore, will play the violin solo in Mozart's "Violin Concerto No. 4 in D Major". Jacobsen won third place in the Young Artists' talent contest sponsored last fall by the Women's association of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and first place in the Augustant Town and Cowan Symphony Orchestra biennial talent search in Sioux Falls, S. D., last year.

Harpists Mrs. Frances Miller, music instructor, and her daughter, Diane, University sophomore, will be featured in Enesco's "Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1, Op. 11". Rachmaninoff's "Symphonic Dances Op. 45" will close the program. John Reynolds will play the alto saxophone solo.

From Vera Cruz, Feb. 22:

"Native, provincial dances are still very much in evidence in rural Mexico not only at fiestas but as a part of everyday life. However, in the larger cities I have seen innumerable placards advertising Rock'n Roll ("Balle de Concurso") with orchestras led by Rockn Miller and the popular Mexican band leader Chucho Castillo. A big rock'n roll session was held at the Monte Cassino in Puebla Sunday from 5 til 10 p. m. which attracted vast numbers of the younger Mexican set. This morning's paper "Novedades" states that the Secretary of Public Education, Mr. Jose Angel Ceniceros, is making a thorough study of the effects of this frenzied rhythm on people and in all likelihood the authorities will prohibit the performance of rock'n roll in all public centers in Mexico and exercise a strong vigilance over all radio and television station programs to make sure they do not transmit this brand of "music".

"The authorities are definitely prohibiting a performance by Elvis Presley in the National Auditorium.

"It is my observation that the young Mexicans in the large cities are very much interested in and attracted to the recordings by the big name American jazz bands. Throns of people gather outside the record shops which play jazz records on Hi Fi speakers. American tourists, on the other hand, frequent the places where they may see and hear the colorful native dances and costumes such as the Bottle Dance from the state of Jalisco, La Bamba from Veracruz, the Old Men's Dance from Michoacan, Danza del Venado (Dance of the Deer), a thrilling dance from Sonora, Jarabes, Huspangos and of course the Aztec Ritual Dance. In my opinion and evidently in the opinion of Mexican authorities, these dances are artistic and much to be preferred over the contemporary craze authored by Elvis Presley.

"In this connection, it is interesting to recall, however, that one of these Mexican national dances, now accepted without question, the "Jarabe", which means syrup, or the "Pan de Jarabe" -- syrupy bread, earned the reputation of being insurrectionary music and became banned for political reasons during Mexico's struggle for independence. In 1802 the Inquisition in Mexico City forbade the dancing of the Jarabe stating that it was "so indecent, lewd, disgraceful and provocative, that words cannot encompass the evil of it'."

(NOTE TO THE EDITOR: The following letters were received by the University of Minnesota music department from Professor Paul M. Oberg, music department chairman. Oberg will return April 1 from Mexico, where he is conducting research on 16th and 17th century Mexican music.)

From Vera Cruz, Feb. 17:

"We are having another experience in this tropical port town -- an electrical storm with scads of lightning over the Gulf of Mexico as well as to the west over the mountains. . . high winds which fortunately are not of hurricane proportions plus literally waves of rain. Did I tell you that a large branch of a tree (plus billions of small limbs and debris) fell on our car the other day while parked at the village square (Zocalo) in Puebla. Mrs. Oberg was sitting inside when it happened as I had gone across the street to the Cathedral Library. I heard the crash and rushed back to the car, saw more old dead limbs dangling overhead so with help of police cleared the street in back of car of a big log and backed away from the falling tree which possibly is as old as the cathedral which was built in 1619.

"Am now off to the birthday party of the 18-year-old daughter of the widow with whom we are staying. Mrs. Munoz' father-in-law, General Munoz, was nephew of Don Porfirio Diaz (President of Mexico from 1876-1911) who adopted him as his son upon the death of General Munoz' father. In the Munoz family home at Jalapa hangs one of three large oil paintings (5' x 7') of Diaz. Outside of our room at Mrs. Munoz' is another oil of General Munoz in his regal attire with chest covered in medals. His helmet and sword hang on the wall beside it."

Title of his lecture is "Studies on Mammary Cancer in Mice and Their Implications for the Human Problem".

Established in 1950 in honor of the late Dr. E. W. Bertner, first acting director of the University of Texas M. D. Anderson hospital and first president of the Texas Medical Center, the award is presented annually for outstanding contributions to the field of cancer research. A medallion is given to symbolize the goal of cancer research -- prevention as well as cure.

Dr. Bittner, George Chase Christian professor of cancer research and director of the division of cancer biology in the University medical school's pathology department, will receive the award for his "inspirational research on the factors involved in the origin of mammary cancer in mice".

Beginning with investigation and discovery of the milk factor he proved that inheritance was not the sole cause of the origin of the neoplasm and that a virus was implicated in its origin. Continuing his research he investigated genetic and hormonal factors, proving that interaction of these two, along with the virus or milk factor, was required for the development of this type of cancer in mice. Dr. Bittner's work has lead to many and varied investigations of the cause, development and course of cancer. He has contributed over 200 papers to the scientific literature.

(MORE)

Dr. Bittner was born in Meadville, Pa., in 1904. A graduate of St. Stephen's college he went to the University of Michigan for his master of science degree (1929) and his doctor of philosophy degree (1930). Upon graduation he joined the staff of the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial laboratory as research associate and remained with the laboratory until 1942. In that year he resigned as assistant director and vice president of the laboratory, to become affiliated with the University of Minnesota medical school.

He served as chairman of the milk factor panel of the committee on growth for the National Research council. During 1947 he was president of the American Association for Cancer Research. Dr. Bittner is also a member of the Society of Experimental Biology. In 1951, the Philadelphia College of Physicians presented him with the Alvarenga prize award. That year he also received the Comfort Crookshank award.

Previous recipients of the Bertner Foundation award have been: Dr. Fred Stewart, New York, for his leadership in the field of pathology and his inspirational teaching ability; Dr. George Milton Smith, New Haven, Connecticut, for his basic research in melanoma and gastric cancer, and for his efforts in the development of cancer grants; Dr. Charles Benton Huggins, Chicago, for his work on the hormonal treatment of cancer patients; Dr. Francis Peyton Rous, New York, for his investigation into the viral cause of cancer; Dr. George Nicolas Papanicolaou, New York, for his diagnostic test for cancer and for opening the new field of exfoliative cytology; and Dr. Joseph C. Aub, Boston, for his inspirational teaching and his research in metabolics which established methods which are the foundation of present day metabolic studies used to study the course of cancer in humans.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO GIVE HILLMAN
LECTURE AT 'U'

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MARCH 3)

Minneapolis --- Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will present the fourth Sidney Hillman lecture at the University of Minnesota Monday evening, March 11. Open free to the public, the lecture will begin at 8 p. m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Mrs. Roosevelt will discuss "The United Nations and Its Importance to the Individual Citizen of the United States".

A member of the United States delegation to the United Nations General Assembly from 1945 to 1953, Mrs. Roosevelt since has been associated with the American Association for the United Nations, a group whose aim is to promote greater understanding of the UN and its program.

Her latest book, "India and the Awakening East", is the result of a trip made in 1952 to the Near and Middle East. The same year she headed the U. S. delegation to the inauguration of the President of Chile, and a year later she toured Japan and revisited Europe. In 1955, she traveled again to Israel, visiting London, Paris and Rome enroute.

In addition to her many books, Mrs. Roosevelt writes the "My Day" column for newspapers, "If You Ask Me" for McCall's magazine and articles for many other magazines.

One of the original members of the Americans for Democratic Action, she also belongs to the Women's National Press club, the American Newspaper Guild, New York State League of Women Voters and numerous other organizations. For a number of years, she served as chairman of the Human Rights commission.

(MORE)

Her many honors include the 1939 Churchman's award, the first annual Nation award in 1940, the first annual Franklin Delano Roosevelt Brotherhood award in 1946, the bronze plaque of the Jewish Philanthropic League of Brooklyn in 1948, the award of merit of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs in 1948 and the nomination to the "Honor Roll of Democracy" drawn up by the Chicago Defender, Negro newspaper, in 1949. In a number of American Institute of Public Opinion polls, she has topped a list of 10 as the "most admired woman living today in any part of the world".

Dr. Charles W. Mayo, Rochester, member of the University Board of Regents, will introduce Mrs. Roosevelt. He in turn will be introduced by University Academic Vice President Malcolm M. Willey.

The Sidney Hillman lecture series is a memorial to the founder and first president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and one of the founders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Hillman, a friend and confidante of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, served as a wartime member of the War Manpower commission, associate director-general of the Office of Production Management and associate director of the War Production Board. The talks are supported by a gift to the University from the Sidney Hillman Foundation.

Previous Hillman lectures have been given by William O. Douglas, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court; Carl Rowen, author, lecturer and journalist; and Thurgood Marshall, special Counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and director-counsel of the N.A.A.C.P. 'U' WINS LOOK
MAGAZINE AWARD
FOR SWAMP FILM

(FOR RELEASE 8 P. M. SATURDAY, MAR. 2)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota will receive the Screen Producers' Guild and Look magazine award for the best college-made film of 1956, it was announced Saturday night. Presentation will be made Monday evening (Mar. 4) in Hollywood.

An associate art professor, Allen Downs, produced the winning 16 millimeter sound film "Swamp". It was entered in the fourth annual intercollegiate contest by Wilbur F. Jensen, director of University audio visual education.

The film deals with wild life in the Mother lake area west of Wold-Chamberlain airport. It explores the swamp area in which natural beauty and bird life are being destroyed by the dumping of city refuse.

The idea for the film grew from Downs' experiments in motion picture visualization of natural life. He was intrigued by natural beauty existing in a place generally considered unattractive.

Background sound for the film was done by two University students -- David J. Karr, 3915 Drew ave., S., playing the flute, and Sheldon K. Goldfus, 4912 Clinton ave., S., on the drums. During the two-year production of the film, Downs used sections of it as demonstration material in his film class.

The award is one of a group of annual Look magazine movie awards.

'U' CAMERAMAN
TO SHOW RUSSIAN
TRAVELOGUE AT CONVO

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A color film, "Russia and Its People", will be shown at the University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (March 7) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The program will be open free to the public.

The Russian scenes were filmed last summer by Raphael W. Green, director-cameraman on the University's audio-visual education staff, during a 5,000 mile trip through Russia. Green will narrate his film.

One of the first American cameramen permitted free range behind the Iron Curtain, Green photographed the Russians at work, at play, on collective farms and in city markets. His film includes scenes of Russian agriculture, schools, industry, churches, children, sports, theater and museums. He even photographed Kremlin leaders at a state funeral in Red Square.

Green has been a member of the University staff since 1952. Foreign travel is not new to him. In 1946 while on the White House staff, he was sent to the Far East with Ambassador Pauley, head of the United States Reparations Mission. He was one of 11 men selected to travel throughout the Russian-occupied territory above the 38th parallel in North Korea on a reparations survey. He also traveled in Manchuria, China and Japan. He previously was employed as a high school teacher in his native state of Maine.

Thursday's convocation will be sponsored by the University's department of concerts and lectures.

UNIVERSITY SURGERY
INSTRUCTOR RECEIVES
$30,000 SCHOLARSHIP

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MARCH 10)

Dr. Lloyd D. MacLean, University of Minnesota Surgery instructor, is one of 25 doctors to receive $30,000 grants from the John and Mary R. Markle Foundation of New York, which has named them "Scholars in Medical Science". The awards, which went to faculty members of American and Canadian medical schools, were announced Saturday by John M. Russell, executive director of the Foundation.

Dr. MacLean, 32, joined the University of Minnesota Hospitals staff as a medical fellow in 1951. In 1953, he became a research fellow first in the Cancer Detection Center and later in surgery, and a year later he was named research assistant in surgery. He became an instructor in 1956.

Born in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, Dr. MacLean received his doctor of medicine degree in 1949 from the University of Alberta in Edmonton. He is married and lives at 218 Warwick St. S. E., Minneapolis.

Two other Markle award recipients are University of Minnesota graduates. They are Dr. Robert E. Carter, instructor in general pediatrics, University of Chicago division of biological sciences, and Dr. Russell M. Nelson, assistant professor of surgery, University of Utah college of medicine, Salt Lake City. Carter received a bachelor of science degree in 1945, bachelor of medicine degree in 1946 and doctor of medicine degree in 1948, and Nelson was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree in surgery in 1954.

For each scholar appointed, the fund has allocated $30,000, granted at the rate of $6,000 annually for five years to their medical schools. Purpose of the scholarship program is to relieve the shortage of teachers in medical schools and to strengthen their faculties by encouraging young scientists to remain in academic medicine.

Seven other University of Minnesota doctors received the scholarships in previous years. They are Dr. George E. Moore, 1949, then instructor in surgery and now director of Roswell Park Memorial Cancer institute at Buffalo, N. Y.; Dr. Robert A. Good, 1950, professor of pediatrics; Dr. Leonard F. Peltier, 1952, former associate professor and acting director of orthopedic surgery and now head of the department of orthopedic surgery, University of Kansas Medical Center, Kansas City; Dr. William F. Scherer, 1953, then assistant professor of bacteriology and now on military leave with the U.S. Army; Dr. Gilbert S. Campbell, 1954, assistant professor of surgery; Dr. Mitchell W. (FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

(NOTE TO THE EDITOR: The following letter was received by the University of Minnesota music department from Professor Paul M. Oberg, music department chairman. Oberg will return April 1 from Mexico, where he is conducting research on 16th and 17th century Mexican music.)

From Oaxaca, State of Oaxaca, Mexico:

"Present-day Indians in this charming capital city of the state of Oaxaca in southern Mexico seemingly have as inordinate a fondness for and ability in music as their Mixtecan and Zapotecan forefathers had in the 16th and 17th centuries. We have just heard an extremely fine concert by the Oaxaca band under the direction of Senor Diego Innes who was born in this city. His mother was Mexican but his father was an Englishman. A great deal of his musical training was obtained in Milwaukee, Chicago and New York. When I complimented Senor Innes on his excellent band and told him I was in charge of music at the University of Minnesota, he said that many years past he had directed road shows at the Minnesota Theater in Minneapolis and the Capitol Theater in St. Paul. His band, which is regarded as the best in Mexico, is made up chiefly of Indians -- farmers, manual laborers, butchers, bakers,, Etc. -- who receive a small pittance for playing in the bandstand at the city square (Zocalo) every Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday evening throughout the year. In addition to traditional Mexican potpourris, excellent and tasteful arrangements of standard orchestral overtures and symphonies are well executed. Leopold Stokowski, the famous conductor, heard this band of Indians play some time ago when visiting Oaxaca and was so moved by their proficiency and warmth of performance that he asked permission to conduct the group. Senor Innes informed that he had to teach each one of the members of the band to play his respective instrument and that contrary to my supposition, there was no instrumental instruction in the public schools. Senor Innes was trying to start a class in strings at the University of Oaxaca but, up to the present time, it had not proven too successful.

"Evidently present-day Indians prefer the tone of woodwind and brass instruments, together with various and sundry types of percussion, as did the Indians several centuries ago. Spanish missionary historians writing over 400 years ago give glowing accounts of the tremendous facility and speed with which the Indians learned to sing, play, read, write and even compose polyphonic music in the best European traditions of that time. They preferred attending Mass when it was accompanied by a large group of instrumentalists playing trumpets, clarions, chirimias (a double-reed instrument), sackbuts, flutes, cornets, dulzainas, fifes, viols, rebeco, drums, together with bells large and small. Thirty years after Cortes arrived in New Spain there were so many Indian instrumentalists desirous of playing for church services, either with or without pay, that the church fathers meeting in council petitioned Philipp II of Spain to order an abatement of Indian musicians. Music which had been the chief inducement and most alluring factor in drawing the Indians to the Christian church and the newly established schools was now forbidden them. Undoubtedly we would today have a greater superfluity of music students if the customs of the Indians in Pre-Conquest times prevailed: 1. All musicians were held in highest esteem and had great prestige because through music they preserved the memory of the past; and more significant, 2. they were exempt from TAXATION! There surely would be stringent government regulations restricting the number of music majors in our colleges and universities.

"The fact that there is a bandstand in practically every Indian village or city in Mexico is indisputable proof that music is still a vital factor in their lives despite the fact that the majority of them have extremely little of this world's goods. Our experience in hearing the Indian Band at Oaxaca is one that will not soon be forgotten.

"We visited an Aztec village, Tepestlan, where I met the keeper of the ancient sacred Aztec percussion instrument, Te onastli, now extremely rare. Mrs. Oberg and I visited the Senor Pedro Rojas in his Mexican village home and had quite an experience. I took a picture of the street (if one can call it that) on which he lived. You'll have to see it to believe any description I might try to give you...turkeys, chickens and little pigs came into the "living room" while we sat alone talking to the Senor. He left us all alone for several minutes in this earthen floored place when he went to finish his chores, and bolted the rickety wooden door when he left, so we were locked in. Mrs. Oberg thought that possibly he had gone to get his machete to behead us!! Actually, he was most gracious and I was able to make myself understood in Spanish but he frequently answered me at great length in Aztec (Nahuatl) which he said was the real Mexican language. Finally he produced the Teponastli and I was able to take three pictures of it from different angles in the sunlight...after I promised him 20 pesos — too much, I know, but I wanted the pictures.

"There is so much that can be done here in various phases of music... 1) indigenous Indian music, 2) folk music — Mestizo music which is different in each of the states (or sections) of Mexico, and, 3) sacred and secular polyphonic music from 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. It is certainly most stimulating. There is also the contemporary art music, but there is not too much of that and the quality is not always of the best."

'U', VA SCIENTISTS
STUDY CHEMICAL
CANCER AGENT

(FOR RELEASE 11 A. M. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13)

Minneapolis --- Scientists at the University of Minnesota and the Veterans Administration hospital at Fort Snelling are tracing the mechanism by which a cancer-causing chemical enlarges the liver and inhibits body growth.

The findings of Drs. Helmut R. Gutmann, Dorothy Filbin and John H. Peters, whose work is supported by the American Cancer society, were announced today (March 13). Dr. Gutmann is on the physiological chemistry staffs of both the University and the VA hospital. Dr. Filbin is a VA hospital staff member, and Dr. Peters, formerly at the VA hospital, is now with the Medical Research institute, Christ hospital, Cincinnati, O.

Several British and American groups have observed that a variety of chemicals which cause cancer in experimental animals interfere with body growth. Some have speculated that this interference is related to the induction of cancer.

The Minnesota group found that when they fed a chemical called acetylaminofluorene (AAF), which causes liver cancer in rats, the rat livers enlarged. Their analyses showed that the enlargement was due to deposition of fat, protein and especially of glycogen, from which the liver makes sugar.

The protein in the diet which the rats consumed had a striking effect on the action of the cancer-producing compound. If casein, a milk protein, in the diet amounted to 11 per cent, AAF inhibited the growth of the rats. But if the casein content was doubled the AAF-fed rats grew normally.

The scientists decided to see whether the growth inhibition was controlled by the whole protein or some of its constituents. (Protein is made up of 20-odd amino acids and an 11 per cent casein diet is mainly deficient in two of them, cystine and methionine).

To find out whether cancer-causing AAF interfered with the utilization of these sulfur-containing amino acids they added them to the 11 per cent casein diet. However, these supplements did not offset the growth inhibition or the liver enlargement.

Questions which remain to be answered are:

What other constituents (amino acids) in casein offset the growth inhibition induced by AAF? Or does the total protein itself increase the resistance of the cell to the toxic chemical?

One possibility is that the rate of production of enzymes which detoxify AAF is higher when a high protein diet is available.

Once these questions have been answered significant progress will have been made toward an understanding of the action of AAF and in what manner it interferes with body processes so as to produce cancer. This understanding is essential for the prevention of cancer by this and other chemicals.

GAME BIRDS
IN SPRING 'U'
MUSEUM TOPIC

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Game bird hunting (with cameras, not guns) in spring will be the subject of a free public program at 3 p. m. Sunday (March 17) in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota.

Two color sound films will be shown. "Sunrise Serenade" will deal with the courting habits of three types of grouse -- the prairie chicken, sage grouse and sharptail grouse. It will include the fantastic courtship dance of the prairie chicken. The second film, "Waterfowl in the Spring", was made by Minneapolis-Moline company and shows North American birds in their spring plumage, with scenes of the nesting habits of ducks.

On March 24, Walter J. Breckenridge, museum director, will present the program, "Minnesota Desert Wildlife".

KUCM TO BEGIN
CENTENNIAL
SERIES MAR. 19

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- In anticipation of Minnesota's 100th birthday next year, Minnesota School of the Air, broadcast weekly on University of Minnesota radio station KUCM, will initiate a seven-program series on Minnesota in 1858. Entitled "It's Minnesota's Birthday", the new series will be heard at 2:15 p.m. Tuesdays starting March 19.

The programs will tell school children throughout the state the world-wide news stories a century ago; the strictly American headlines; songs popular in the 1850's; books on the best seller list; prominent people of the day, and men and women, then children, who later rose to fame and importance.

John Bens planned and wrote the series, which is designed to enrich the students' appreciation and understanding of next year's state centennial celebration. Bens, former Twin City teacher now on the staff of Oakland Junior college, California, also authored a 13-week series heard last year over KUCM, "Let's Take a Look at Minnesota and Its People".

U. OF M. HONORS
D. W. ROBERTSON,
NOTED ALUMNUS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- For his distinguished attainment in the fields of agronomy and plant genetics, David Wield Robertson, Fort Collins, Colo., received the University of Minnesota's Outstanding Achievement Award Thursday (Mar. 14) at a dinner meeting in the University's Campus club.

The award, honoring distinguished University alumni, was presented by Dean Emeritus C. H. Bailey, former head of the University's institute of agriculture.

Robertson is head of the agronomy department of Colorado A & M college, where he previously was agronomist from 1937 to 1945 and associate professor of agronomy from 1920 to 1936.

He received a bachelor of science degree in agronomy in 1920 and a doctor of philosophy degree in plant genetics in 1928 -- both from the University of Minnesota. Born in Scotland, he came to this country by way of Canada when he was 15.

Robertson is internationally known for his researches in barley genetics and maintains breeding and genetic stocks of our major crops so that they may be available for future breeding work.

A member of the American Society of Agronomy, he became its vice president in 1951 and president in 1952. He also is a member of Genetics Society of America and Sigma Xi, honorary scientific society.

Attending the award presentation were members of the University departments of agronomy and plant genetics and those acquainted with Robertson while he was a University graduate student.

Professor Will M. Myers, head of the University department of agronomy and plant genetics, presided over the meeting.

'U' TO GRADUATE
580 THURSDAY;
SELKE TO SPEAK

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Approximately 580 degrees will be awarded in University of Minnesota commencement exercises at 8 p.m. Thursday (March 21) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. George A. Selke, Minnesota department of conservation commissioner, will speak to the graduates on "Demands of Citizenship".

Born in LaCrosse, Wis., Commissioner Selke is a graduate of St. Cloud State Teachers college, the University of Minnesota and Columbia university. An educator, he has been rural school teacher, village school principal, county superintendent of schools, director of elementary and high schools for the Minnesota state department of education and University of Minnesota assistant professor and lecturer. He received the University's Outstanding Achievement Award in 1956.

Selke served as president of St. Cloud State Teachers college from 1927 to 1946 and was chancellor of the University of Montana for the next five years. In 1951, he was named deputy chief of the educational and cultural relations division for the United States High Commission for Germany, and a year later he became chief of the division of cultural affairs in the office of public affairs. He has served as state commissioner of conservation since 1955.

University President J. L. Morrill will speak to the class before conferring degrees. President Morrill also will confer commissions to Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC candidates after the oath of office is issued by Captain Frank Bruner, USN, professor of naval science and tactics.

Dean of Students Edmund G. Williamson will introduce deans of the various University colleges who will present their candidates for degrees. Students receiving doctor of philosophy diplomas will be announced individually by John G. Darley, associate dean of the graduate school.

The invocation will be delivered by the Rev. George Elstrom, adviser to Seventh Day Adventist students on the Minneapolis campus.

Following the exercises, President and Mrs. Morrill will be hosts at a reception for all members of the graduating class, their parents and friends, in Coffman Memorial Union main ballroom.

The University concert band ensemble, directed by Gale L. Sperry, assistant bandmaster and director of marching bands, will play a concert preceding the commencement at 7:30 p.m. At 7 p.m., Kathryn A. Simpson, University junior, will play the Frances Miller Brown Memorial bells from Northrop auditorium.

U. OF M. CREATES
NEW RADIO, TV
DEPARTMENT

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20)

Minneapolis --- Establishment within the University of Minnesota's general extension division of a new department of radio and television broadcasting was announced today (March 20) by President J. L. Morrill.

Named director of the new department is Burton Paulu, manager since 1938 of KUOM, University of Minnesota radio station.

Dean Julius M. Nolte of the general extension division reported today that the new organization will be responsible primarily for: 1. the continued operation of KUOM; 2. the planning and preparation for the University of television courses -- both credit and non-credit -- for presentation on the Twin Cities' new educational television station, KTCA-TV, Channel 2, and other television outlets.

President Morrill also announced today the redesignation of the University's radio policy committee as "the radio and television policy committee". Made up of faculty and staff members, this committee serves as an advisory group in University broadcasting activities and will advise the new department.

Long associated with broadcasting, Paulu became assistant director of KUOM in 1934. During World War II, he served as field representative of the Office of War Information doing radio work in England and Luxembourg. He was assistant director of New York university's summer radio workshop in 1943, 1946, 1947 and 1948, and directed the experimental TV discussion project at WOI-TV, Iowa State college, Ames, Iowa, in 1951.

Currently president of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, he formerly served as vice president, secretary and director of the association's Region IV. He is a member of the Joint Council on Educational Television.

Paulu spent the 1953-54 school year as a Fulbright scholar in the United Kingdom and is the author of "British Broadcasting: Radio and Television in the United Kingdom" published by the University of Minnesota Press in 1956.

He has earned three degrees from the University of Minnesota -- bachelor of arts in 1931, bachelor of science in 1932 and master of arts in 1934 -- and received the doctor of philosophy degree from New York university in 1949.

DEMANDS OF CITIZENSHIP

The late president of Columbia University, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, is credited with the witty statement that it must have been Adam who first said, as he tried to console Eve at the Garden of Eden, "Remember, dear, that we are living in a changing civilization and we are now passing through a period of transition." If Adam were sufficiently erudite to have made the comment he simply indicated what every intelligent person since then has observed. We are living in a changing civilization. Every year we are faced with grave issues. We are constantly on the edge of a great abyss. We are always beginning or ending a significant era. Time is measured from one crisis to another, from inflation to deflation, from prosperity to depression, from one invention or discovery to another with continually increased Frankenstein tendencies. Ours is truly a changing civilization.

A person of my years has had an opportunity to observe some of the changes. At the turn of the century man used but two media for travel and transportation. People went or sent by land or sea. Then two young Americans added a third medium, namely, that of air. They demonstrated that one could literally hurl himself and his things with incredible speed through the air. Modern travel, transportation and communication have literally annihilated time and space. Each of us is now in relatively close contact and reach of practically every other person in the world. If I had made the arrangements in advance, and the weather were favorable and the machine performed properly, within forty-eight hours, or less, I could be in any other part of the world where one can land a plane. Again, if I had made the arrangements, I could be in almost instantaneous communication with any person anywhere in the world. This earth of ours is no longer a sphere of far distant places with strange sounding names. Within but a few decades it has become a neighborhood in which we not only know about each other, but have intimate contacts with each other, whether we wish or not.

A few years ago I made an extended trip in connection with one of the several missions to which the War Department assigned me. I left the airport at Washington in the morning. The first stop that afternoon was Fairfield, just out of San Francisco. Then we flew on to Hickam Field at Honolulu, to Johnston Island, Kwajelien, Guam, several other islands of the Pacific, to Haneda Field near Tokio and finally to Kimpo on the outskirts of Seoul, Korea, over fifteen thousand miles in sixty-six hours of flying time. Today that would be considered slow time, but a few years ago it was regarded as fast traveling. In relating this experience a person asked me if during those sixty-six hours the roar of the motors did not bother me. I assured him that the opposite was true. Had the motors failed to roar, I certainly should have been worried. While in Korea I wished to call my home in Montana. Arrangements were made in advance so that Mrs. Selke would be near a telephone when I called on a certain Sunday morning. I was on the side of the international date line where Sunday had begun but she was on the side where Saturday had not ended. I insist that time and distance have been annihilated when a husband can speak to his wife on Sunday morning and she must listen to him on Saturday evening.

It is imperative that every intelligent citizen in this country, as well as those in other lands, understand fully what this shrinkage of the world means in the way of human relationships. With nations and peoples thrown into a proximity not experienced before, with the contacts increasingly numerous and intimate, and with the interests of different groups more competitive, it is possible that it will be increasingly difficult to apply principles that culminate in enduring friendship and neighborliness. Will the people of the world stand together shoulder to shoulder in a common effort to overcome the obstacles that stand in the way of peace, plenty and happiness, or will they stand with arms akimbo, digging elbows into each other's ribs, creating irritations that lead to dissensions that lead to conflicts that lead to destruction, to all that which we blanket under gruesome designation, the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse? The question at issue is whether we can have something more than merely a changing world, whether we can take advantage of conditions and situations to bring about a progressively advancing civilization.

The good citizen of today must understand that although the interdependence of life, of men and nations has become more than ever a dominant consideration in social, political and economic affairs, the people of the different nations in the four corners of the world have varying backgrounds of culture and traditions and that some lack or do not know how to develop or utilize the resources that bring about an improved standard of living and a broadened outlook on life. We must also understand that the material and the cultural, that even the spiritual factors can hardly be separated from each other in the effort to assess conditions and situations.

The problem of natural resources in terms of the population certainly determines the standard of living and also the general attitude of the individual and of national groups. Let me present a few illustrations. Earlier, I referred to Korea, a country to which the University of Minnesota is contributing outstanding leadership in several very important fields. North and South Korea combined have an area roughly equivalent to that of Minnesota, namely, eighty-five thousand square miles. However, the combined population of Korea is thirty million people instead of the somewhat three million for Minnesota. Japan, the island empire, as constituted at the present time has an area of about one hundred fifty thousand square miles, just a bit more than that of Montana. Japan has over eighty million people and Montana under a million. Java, as lovely an island as one can imagine, has an area of fifty thousand square miles, just a little more than the State of Mississippi, but Mississippi has less than three million people and Java has over fifty million, more than a million to every thousand square miles. Before this audience one need not contend that these heavily populated countries have problems different from ours. One of their general problems is the concern about food for tomorrow, for next year and for the next generation. Because so many Americans have been in so many places in the world during the past fifteen years we know full well that there are hundreds of millions of people who go to bed hungry every night and arise the next morning wondering how they can satisfy their hunger. Too many of these are found even in our great republic, some of them even in Minnesota.

In World War I the British Tommy was frequently heard to say that a man is one kind of a person when his tummy crowds his belt and quite another kind when his tummy gnaws his backbone. Mr. Montague of the Canadian mounted police, who became a popular writer and lecturer, gave a good illustration of the meaning of hunger when telling about a trip that was made by two white men, two Indians and an Eskimo with a seven dog team. It was a three day journey with rations for but two days. In order to save time they decided to cross on the ice of an estuary. Before they reached the other bank the ice became detached. It was several weeks later before it touched land again. In the meantime they had eaten their dogs. A person in the group to which Mr. Montague was speaking stated that she could not understand how the men could have eaten the dogs that served them so faithfully. Mr. Montague explained that the veneer of civilization is very thin and that it is well worn away when one has gone without food for three or four days. Then when the person gets food he asks not from where it came, what it tastes like, what it looks like, or even what it smells like. He eats the food and thanks God that he has it. Mr. Montague, who enjoys the dramatic and spectacular, concluded by saying that when the men were eating the last dog several of them began to look at the Eskimo who was the least sturdy of the group. Most of the folks in the audience laughed as Mr. Montague intended that they should. I did, too, but on second thought I recalled the repulsive experiences of the tragic Donner expedition when such an incident actually occurred.

All of us remember the interesting story in Genesis of Joseph who under Pharoah gathered the corn during the seven fat years so that the Egyptians and the people of neighboring countries, including even the brothers who sold him into bondage, could have food during the succeeding seven lean years, the years of famine. Whether it is in the days of Joseph and the dreams of Pharoah or of President Eisenhower and the atomic and hydrogen bombs, the people of the world will always turn to those who have the corn.

However, the current concept of an adequate way of life, acceptable to people of intelligence, includes more than the traditional corn, for "man lives not by bread alone." Today man not only demands the food that satisfies hunger and builds strong bodies but also the materials that provide conveniences, comforts and even luxuries. He insists upon services that contribute to the welfare of each other. He seeks the ideas that stimulate his interests, challenge his thinking, that improve his practices and procedures. He also senses the need for the enriching ideals that build stronger character, develops greater devotion and gives him a better realization of his relationship to his fellowmen and to the creation. Man's wants then include food, materials, services, ideas and ideals. Man's contributions to his fellowmen fall into these categories. It is demanded of every citizen that in some way he contribute to his own wants and to the needs of humanity. Failure of generations to do so means that decades are but periods of transition and not phases of progressive programs.

Throughout man's efforts to provide a more satisfying and enriching way of life he has constantly tried to increase the power at his command. Science has enabled him to utilize the movement of the atmosphere, the motion of water, the stored heat of wood, coal and oil, the invisible electricity, and the many other means of power that science in its amazing development has made available. Through science man finds himself today equipped with greater power than the wildest imagination could have conceived but a few years ago. Science has given us power over nature, but also over the mind of man. The conquest of nature of which we are so proud may even threaten to aid in the conquest of man. In the past we have recognized the dangers of propaganda education, the slanted motion picture, the controlled press, the subservient radio and television. Personally, I think we have done exceedingly well to channel these in sensibly restrained limits. We are less cognizant, however, of the influences for which unbridled power may use psychology, sociology, the new genetics, selective breeding and the totalitarian concept itself. There is indeed the ever-present possibility that some dangerous group will seize the control of power and manipulate it for the conquest and subjugation of the many. I need only refer to the Nazis, Fascists and Communists.

Scientific men who helped to create this power only for the service of humanity stand aghast at the Frankensteins which have been created. Shall society be fashioned in the pattern of control by those who have the insatiable lust of power, by those who would use all the achievements of science to manipulate the people of the earth, to conquer the individual man and to deny him his own way, his own integrity and his own sacred personality?

Science certainly should be commended for the scintillating series of discovery and inventions. There must be some philosophy in our sphere of thought which can oppose the threat to the happiness and freedom of the world. I believe that the Judaic-Christian or other religions of the brotherhood of man coupled with our concept of democracy and the equality of man is the answer. This is the philosophy that insists that men must remain free to develop in themselves their highest destiny and that whatever power there be must be used for their service and not for their enslavement.

This way of life will provide not only a progressively advancing civilization with an improving standard of living for every one everywhere, but also the development of a democratic society that increasingly recognizes the dignity and destiny of the individual where tyranny and compulsion give way to freedom and education, where we strive to awaken the mind, to enlighten the heart and to enrich the spirit, where persuasion, instruction and inspiration are the tools whereby we make men better and mankind happier.

The issue is the control of power for the conquest of man or the abnegation of power for the liberation and enrichment of men. These are the issues with which your studies, your professional services and public contributions will be involved. You are the people whose citizenship will determine whether the unprecedented power of this scientific age shall be used for the purpose of shackling populations or for freeing and uplifting men everywhere.

These, then, are two dominant demands of citizenship, that every person shall within the limits of his ability and opportunity add quantity and quality of that which satisfies the wants of man and that he will guard with his very life, respect for the dignity and destiny of the individual with his own sacred personality.

NASH, FAMOUS

Daily KUOM*

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, APRIL 7)

Ogden Nash, famous writer of light verse, will speak at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (April 11) in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

In his talk, "Midway Thru Nash", he will recite a number of his classic verses and comment on the turn of events in his life that caused their creation.

Except for a brief tenure as managing editor of The New Yorker in 1931, Nash has concentrated for more than 25 years on producing at a prodigious rate the light verses that have become associated with his name. Among his books are "Hard Lines", "I'm A Stranger Here Myself", "Good Intentions", "Many Long Years Ago" and "The Face Is Familiar". His most recent collection of poems is "The Private Dining Room". In addition, his poems have appeared in The New Yorker, Saturday Evening Post and other national magazines.

Nash wrote the lyrics and was co-author with S. J. Perelman of the hit musical, "One Touch of Venus", and he wrote the lyrics for the Broadway production, "Two's Company", starring Bette Davis.

A television performer, too, he appears on "Masquerade Party".

Born in Rye, N. Y., Nash spent one year each at Harvard university and St. George's school, Newport, R. I. Then, he explains, "I next went to New York to make my fortune as a bond salesman and in two years sold one bond — to my mother." He then spent two years writing car cards for a leading advertising agency.

In 1925, he joined the advertising department of Doubleday Page, the publishing house, where he stayed until 1931. It was on this job that he got the inspiration for his particular brand of light verse. Doodling at his desk one day, he wrote:

"I sit in an office at 214 Madison Avenue, and say to myself 'You have a responsible job, haven't you?'"

U. OF M. TO OBSERVE
HOSPITAL COURSE
ANNIVERSARY

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MARCH 31)

Minneapolis --- The tenth anniversary of the University of Minnesota's course in hospital administration will be observed next month with an alumni institute in hospital administration.

The institute, the first of its kind at the University, will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday (April 4, 5 and 6) through the cooperation of the Center for Continuation Study. All sessions will be in the Mayo Memorial auditorium in the University's medical center.

The University's course in hospital administration was established in 1946 under the leadership of its present director, Professor James A. Hamilton. The 21-month program, which operates as part of the school of public health, leads to a master's degree. Students spend the first nine months in academic work on the campus and the following 12 months in residency training under selected preceptors, who are hospital directors.

Of the 191 course graduates now located in administrative positions in hospitals and selected health agencies in 38 states, Canada and South America, approximately 50 are expected to attend the anniversary institute.

Theme of the session will be "The Development of Executives for Tomorrow: Policy Decision Making". Talks will be presented and seminars conducted on the roles of the federal government and organized labor in hospital care, the effect of population changes, significant changes in medical practice, external influences affecting policy decisions, policy determination and evaluation and the significance of the economic forecast.

At a 7 p. m. banquet Friday, April 5, in Coffman Memorial Union, George Bugbee, Health Information foundation president, New York City, will discuss post graduate education in hospital administration. Luncheon speakers will be: Thursday (April 4), Andrew Pattullo, director, division of hospitals, W. K. Kellogg Foundation, Battle Creek, Mich., "Education for Hospital Administration -- Retrospect and Prospect"; and Friday (April 5), University Professor James W. Stephan, "After Ten Years -- A survey of Our Graduates".

Visiting members of the institute faculty, in addition to Pattullo and Bugbee, will be Donald Cox, British Columbia Hospital Insurance service commissioner, Victoria, B. C., Canada; Dr. Franz Goldmann, Harvard university professor of medical care; Walter J. McNerney, University of Michigan professor of hospital administration; Wallace S. Sayre, Columbia university professor of public administration; and Arthur Upgren, dean, Tuck school of business administration, Dartmouth college.

NEW MAGNETIC
MAPS OF STATE
AREAS AVAILABLE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Publication in final form by the United States Geological survey of seven new aeromagnetic and geologic maps of northern Minnesota areas was announced Thursday (April 11) by Professor G. M. Schwartz, director of the Minnesota Geological Survey at the University of Minnesota.

The maps, part of a series showing the results of aeromagnetic surveys flown over approximately 45,000 square miles of Minnesota since 1947 in a search for iron-bearing rock formations, are available from the United States Geological Survey, Washington 25, D. C. at $1 each, according to Professor Schwartz. The study was made by the United States Geological Survey in cooperation with the Minnesota Geological Survey.

Schwartz reported that 29 of the maps covering north central Minnesota, particularly the Mesabi and Cuyuna iron ranges, were published earlier and are also available from the USGS office in Washington. Nine additional maps covering the northwest corner of the state will be released soon, he said, and others will follow. Each map in the series is printed in colors and is accompanied by a profile chart of the area.

Four of the seven maps just issued cover northwestern, southwestern, northeastern and southeastern Koochiching county -- Maps GP 131, 132, 133 and 134 respectively. Areas covered by the other three maps are as follows: northern Lake of the Woods and northeastern Roseau counties -- Map GP 128; northern Beltrami and southern Lake of the Woods counties -- Map GP 129; and north-central Beltrami and northeastern Clearwater counties -- Map GP 130.

Used in the aerial survey work on which the maps are based is an instrument known as the airborne magnetometer, a device which detects and records variations in the earth's magnetic intensity while being flown by an airplane over the survey area about 1,000 feet above the ground in paths one mile apart.

Minneapolis --- "Minnesota's Educational Future" will be the theme of the forty-third annual University of Minnesota short course and schoolmen's week to be held Monday through Wednesday (April 15 - 17) on the University campus.

Approximately 700 school administrators and supervisors are expected to attend the conference sponsored by the University college of education.

Business meetings will be held Monday (April 15) and that evening University professor Herbert Feigl, director of the Minnesota center for philosophy of science, will deliver the annual Lotus D. Coffman lecture. Sponsored by the University Eta chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, education society, Feigl's talk is entitled "Philosophy and the Scientific Outlook".

Dean M. Schweickhard, Minnesota commissioner of education, will preside at the first general session in Mayo Memorial auditorium Tuesday (April 16) morning. Keynote speakers will be Finis Engleman, executive secretary of the American Association of School Administrators, and C. C. Trillingham, superintendent of Los Angeles county schools.

Eleven group meetings also will be held in which the development and operation of a basic education program for all Minnesota schools will be discussed.

Concluding the conference on Wednesday evening (April 17) will be a banquet observing the 100th anniversary of the National Education Association (NEA). Former University of Minnesota education professor Edgar B. Wesley, now official NEA historian and visiting education professor at Stanford university, will be guest speaker.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Recent research in the field of safety engineering in industry will be described at a University of Minnesota course in advanced safety engineering Tuesday and Wednesday (April 16 and 17) at the Center for Continuation Study. This will be the fourth annual course held in cooperation with the northwest chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers.

Donald Young's discussion of industrial uses and hazards of a large radiation source will mark the first time the safety engineers have worked with a Twin City firm which deals with radioactive materials. Young is senior physicist at General Mills research laboratory in Minneapolis.

Demonstrations will be used by Donald Moore, safety consultant for Marsh and McLennan, Inc., Minneapolis, to stress safety practices in industry. Moore will use exhibits and visual aids to illustrate the values of having both eyes, the steps to getting injured, effect of elimination of hazards, the seriousness of taking chances, characteristics of an accident-prone person and the importance of teamwork. Included in his presentation will be an accident-trap display.

Visiting faculty members will include Floyd Van Atta, director of research, National Safety Council, and Charles F. White, Jr., Liberty Mutual Insurance company claims department manager, both of Chicago.

CONFERENCE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Two critical newspaper problems -- access to news at all levels of government and the manpower shortage in journalism -- will be included in the annual upper Mississippi area conference of news executives program to be held at the University of Minnesota school of journalism May 3 and 4.

Rep. John E. Moss of California, chairman of the congressional committee investigating charges of news suppression by federal agencies, will speak on "Access to News, Freedom's Highway".

A public official's policies in his relations with newspapermen will be outlined by Arthur E. Naftalin, Minnesota commissioner of administration. Four editors will offer their observations on access to news following the two addresses.

Conference delegates will participate in panels on how to solve the manpower shortage facing the press. Suggested solutions of recruitment, staff turnover, and personnel problems will be offered by William M. Layman, Chicago, director of a newspaper audit and research bureau, and Professor Herbert G. Heneman, Jr., assistant director of the University of Minnesota's industrial relations center.

For 25 years, Layman specialized as a management consultant and in his practice before the United States tax court has been recognized as a newspaper economist with interests of his own in newspapers. He is a director of the company that publishes the Morning Star and Evening Register-Republic, Rockford, Ill., and was formerly a director of the Republican-Times printing company, Ottawa, Ill.

How newspapers can meet the growing demand for news of religion will be discussed by the Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Union theological seminary, New York. He is author of "Crisis in Communication" and one-time advertising agency man and free lance writer.

Sports coverage techniques and display will be discussed by two sports editors, a sports columnist and a news editor.

MAY IS MONTH
TO START WILD
FLOWER GARDEN

(FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 22)

Minneapolis -- May is the month in which to start a wild flower garden, George E. Luxton advises in his book, "Flower Growing in the North: A Month by Month Guide", published recently by the University of Minnesota Press.

"If you would like to start a wild flower garden," writes Luxton, "choose a spot on the north side of the house, or in that shady place where cultivated flowers 'just won't grow'. You will find it one of the most interesting parts of your garden. Cultivated wild flowers get along so beautifully together, each in perfect harmony with its neighbor. Wild flowers seldom run rampant like cultivated flowers. They require little attention."

Luxton, whose book is based on his gardening columns published in the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune, cautions gardeners that many wild flowers are protected by law and may not be transplanted.

"Do not dig, transplant, or molest our Minnesota wild orchid, the lady's-slipper, or any related species of the lady's-slippers, trillium, arbutus, lotus, gentian, or wild lilies of any kind," he writes. "All these wild flowers are protected by law, and violators are subject to fine or imprisonment. However, you can buy at nurseries or greenhouses many wild flower plants grown from seed."

Here is Luxton's advice about transplanting wild specimens:

"The next few weeks is the time to get them from shady ravines and in the woods. Do not dig up individual plants. With your spade, lift a whole section of loamy soil including several plants. A square foot or more is not too much. Place the clumps in shallow fruit crates or flat boxes lined with several wet newspapers. Then sprinkle them and get them home and replanted as quickly as possible. You probably will be surprised by the number of additional wild flowers that will come up later. Sometimes seed will be in the ground for several years before sprouting.

"In the woods and glens, you will find snowdrops, ginger root (sometimes called devil's cap), Dutchman's breeches, wild phlox, bloodroot, several varieties of violets, columbine, anemone or windflower, bluebells, jack-in-the-pulpits, and many others. Later in the summer the Solomon seal, wild lobelia, cardinal flower, and meadow rue will bloom.

"Use ferns for a background planting in your wild flower garden. Early in May you will find them pushing through the woodland debris like clusters of folded fingers.

"To prepare a wild flower garden, dig out all the ordinary garden soil one foot down, or deeper, and replace it with a loamy mixture of decaying leaves, sand, and moss. Add very little fertilizer. It is best to get this earth mixture from the dell where you get the flowers."

Furbay directs TWA's world-wide education program on four continents, recently having returned from a lecture tour on which he addressed 66 organizations in 22 countries. He spent several years with the United States office of education and served as educational attache in the U. S. embassies of Costa Rica and Colombia, and for three years he was president of the College of West Africa in Liberia.

During World War II, he carried out special assignments for the war department related to the invasion and occupation of North Africa and is now one of the national advisers to the Civil Air Patrol, U. S. Air Force.

Once dean of the summer session of Mills college, Oakland, Calif., he also taught in Connecticut, Indiana and Kansas, and was guest professor at the University of Hawaii, the University of Geneva, Switzerland, the American university, Cairo, Egypt, and the National University of the Philippines. He was an official delegate to the Pan-American conference on cultural cooperation in Havana, Cuba, and represented U. S. aviation on UNESCO at the world conferences in Mexico City, Beirut, Florence and Paris.

He has written numerous books, several of which are used as texts in schools throughout the United States; authored a syndicated newspaper feature, "The Debunker", and other magazine feature stories; directed numerous documentary films, and carried out projects abroad for the American Museum of Natural History. For his extensive compilation of African folklore and his studies of the arts and crafts of native West African tribes, he was awarded fellowships in the Royal Geographical society and the Royal Anthropological institute of London.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The University of Minnesota school of business administration has been selected as one of 61 test centers for the annual certified professional secretary (CPS) examination to be held May 3 and 4.

Applications for the 1957 examination closed Dec. 15, 1956.

The two-day examination will include testing in the areas of personal adjustment, business law, secretarial accounting and procedures. All parts of the test must be passed to merit the CPS rating and certificate.

The CPS program is aimed at giving the secretary professional status in addition to enabling an executive to hire a secretary knowing that the CPS is an indication of skill, intelligence, initiative and experience, according to Dean Richard L. Kozelka of the University's school of business administration.

Sponsored by the National Secretaries association, the CPS program is administered by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries, a department of the association.

PHILADELPHIAN
CHOSEN MINNESOTA
PHARMACY DEAN

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- President J. L. Morrill of the University of Minnesota reported Monday that he will recommend to the Board of Regents May 10 the appointment of George P. Hager, Philadelphia research pharmacist, as dean of the University's college of pharmacy.

He will be nominated to succeed Dean Charles H. Rogers who will retire in June after 42 years on the University's faculty.

Hager has had practical experience in the academic, industrial, governmental and retail pharmaceutical fields. At present he is senior scientist and head of structure-biological activity coordination unit in the science information department of Smith, Kline and French Laboratories in Philadelphia. He handles problems of correlation of chemical structure with biological activity throughout the research and development division.

From 1945 to 1955, Hager was on the faculty of the University of Maryland school of pharmacy, of which he is a graduate. For seven years he was head of the department of pharmaceutical chemistry. He holds three degrees from the University of Maryland -- bachelor of science, 1938; master of science, 1940; and doctor of philosophy, 1942.

He also is a former research organic chemist for the Lilly Research Laboratories Eli Lilly and company, Indianapolis, Ind., and while at the University of Maryland, he served as consultant on new pharmaceutical product development for Burrough Brothers Manufacturing company and Eastern Research Laboratories, both in Baltimore, and as principal investigator with the United States Army Chemical Corps.

Active in professional association activities, Hager is past president of the Baltimore branch of the American Pharmaceutical association and the Maryland Biological society and has served as chairman on various committees in the Maryland Pharmaceutical association, American Chemical society, American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy and American Association for the Advancement of Science and has memberships in many other professional organizations. He also has published many scientific papers.

Hager, 41, is married and has three children.

TO MEET AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The annual upper Mississippi area conference of news executives program will be held Friday and Saturday (May 3 and 4) at the University of Minnesota school of journalism.

Two critical newspaper problems -- access to news at all levels of government and the manpower shortage in journalism -- will be discussed.

"Access to News, Freedom's Highway" will be discussed by Rep. John E. Moss of California, chairman of the congressional committee investigating charges of news suppression by federal agencies. John Mitchell, chief counsel of Moss' government information sub-committee of the House of Representatives committee on government operations, will accompany the congressman.

Arthur E. Naftalin, Minnesota commissioner of administration, will outline a public official's policies in his relations with newspapermen. Following the two addresses, four editors will offer their observations on access to news.

Suggested solutions of recruitment, staff turnover, and personnel problems will be offered by William M. Layman, Chicago, director of the Newspaper Audit and Research Bureau, and Professor Herbert G. Heneman, Jr., assistant director of the University of Minnesota's industrial relations center.

"The Growing Interest in Religion and How the Newspapers are Affected" will be discussed by the Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Union Theological Seminary, New York City, N. Y.

Sponsored by the University school of journalism, the conference will bring together news executives from Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.
