GUTTMACHER TO GIVE RAY LECTURES
AT U OF MINNESOTA IN MARCH

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Dr. Manfred S. Guttmacher, psychiatrist to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, will speak Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, March 3, 4 and 6, in the 1958 Isaac Ray lecture series to be held this year at the University of Minnesota under the joint sponsorship of the University's law and medical schools.

Under terms of the lectureship established in 1951, an outstanding lawyer or psychiatrist is chosen each year to speak at a university having both a medical and law school. Anonymous funds finance the lecture series honoring the memory of Dr. Isaac Ray, one of the original founders of the American Psychiatric association.

Dr. Guttmacher will discuss "Confidentiality and Privileged Communication", "The Psychotic Murderer" and "Psychiatric Court Clinics" in his three lectures which will be presented primarily for doctors and lawyers. The talks, which will be given in Mayo auditorium, will begin at 8 p. m. each of the three evenings.

A native of Baltimore, Dr. Guttmacher earned his bachelor of arts and doctor of medicine degrees at Johns Hopkins university and had post graduate training in neurology and psychiatry at the Boston Psychopathic hospital and Queens Square hospital, London. He also has served as psychiatric consultant to the Veterans Administration, to the Surgeon General, and as chief psychiatric consultant to the Second Army. In 1945, he received the Legion of Merit award.

Since 1930, he has held his present position. He also maintains a private practice on a part-time basis.

Previous Isaac Ray lectures have been given at Harvard, Yale, the University of California, the University of New Mexico and the University of Michigan.

The University of Minnesota music department will present four young musicians, members of the Concert Artists of Pittsburgh New Friends of Music, in a free public concert at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday (January 14) in Scott hall auditorium on the Minneapolis campus.

The visiting artists will be James Lamberger, tenor; Richard Odier, pianist; James Wilson, clarinetist; and Roger Drinkall, cellist, all of whom have had wide concert experience. They also are scheduled to appear in a radio concert in New York City during WNET's 19th American music festival in February.

The Concert Artists of Pittsburgh New Friends of Music is directed by Pianist Eunice Norton, a native Minnesotan and a University of Minnesota graduate. Miss Norton, who also was instrumental in organizing the group, will accompany the musicians to Minneapolis.

The non-profit organization presently consists of 14 musicians between the ages of 20 and 30. It was organized to promote young and gifted musicians and to provide them with an opportunity to concertise and meet the public. Since the group's first appearance in Carnegie Hall in Pittsburgh during the Mozart Festival in 1955, its members have played widely in music centers east of the Mississippi river.

Tuesday's (Jan. 14) program will be as follows:

Trio in B Flat, Op. 11, for Piano, Clarinet and Cello	Beethoven
Der Hirt auf dem Felsen, for counter tenor accompanied by piano and clarinet	Schubert
Suite for Clarinet	Stravinsky

TOUR OF EUROPE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The United Nations and international organization will be the subject of a 1958 summer European study tour sponsored by the University of Minnesota General Extension Division and the Minnesota World Affairs Center in cooperation with Study Abroad, Inc., New York.

Highlight of the basic program -- July 1 to August 8 -- will be a three-week seminar on international institutions and organizations at the University of Geneva in Switzerland. Lectures will be given by officials of international organizations headquartered in Europe including the International Labor Organization, World Health Organization, World Council of Churches, International Red Cross, Interparliamentary Union and the European office of the United Nations. Visits to the Geneva headquarters of many of these groups will be included in the course.

Other places to be visited on the tour will include London, England; Paris, France, where a visit to UNESCO headquarters will be arranged; Heidelberg, Germany; Brussels, Belgium, where one whole day will be spent at the Brussels World's Fair; and Amsterdam, Holland. An extension tour -- to August 25 -- also will include visits to the French Alps; Pisa, Rome, Florence and Venice, Italy; Innsbruck, Austria; Vaduz, in the principality of Liechtenstein; and Zurich, Switzerland.

William C. Rogers, director of the Minnesota World Affairs Center, will direct the program. According to Rogers, "The tour will appeal particularly to teachers and others interested in the United Nations, specialized agencies and related international non-governmental organizations."

All participants will receive attendance certificates from both the University of Minnesota and the University of Geneva, although the course does not carry academic credit. Further information can be obtained from the World Affairs Center at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn., or by calling the Center, FE, 8-8791.

CARE OF PATIENT
AFTER DISCHARGE
'U' COURSE TOPIC

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Care of the patient after he is discharged from the hospital will be the subject of a conference Thursday and Friday, Jan. 16 and 17, at the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study.

The first of its kind to be held at the University, the session was initiated by occupational, hospital and public health nurses. According to Evelyn J. Sanburn, assistant professor in the University's school of public health and co-chairman of the conference planning committee, it is their hope that the conference will improve the cooperative effort between hospitals and various community agencies in caring for patients after their hospital discharge.

Dorothy Rusby, assistant director, department of public health nursing, National League for Nursing, New York City, will head the conference faculty. She will discuss the referral system Thursday (Jan. 16) and sum up the conference discussions Friday (Jan. 17) afternoon.

The nurse's responsibility and the physician's role in post-discharge care will be studied, and Francis Gamelin, coordinator of psychological services in the Austin, Minn., public schools, will discuss barriers and gateways between hospitals and agencies. Staff members of Gillette State Hospital for Crippled Children in St. Paul will demonstrate how their team conferences, held before the patient is released, follow up on his care after discharge.

Also a visiting faculty member will be Vivian Harriman, director of public health nursing for the Rochester-Olmsted County Health Unit.

MINNESOTA 'U' TO HOLD MINING
SYMPOSIUM IN DULUTH JAN. 14-15

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota's annual mining symposium -- recognized as the largest in the country -- will be held Tuesday and Wednesday (Jan. 14 and 15) in the Norshor Theatre in Duluth. Some 500 mining engineers from throughout the United States are expected to attend.

The session will be held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Minnesota section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, scheduled Monday (Jan. 13), also in the Norshor Theatre. All symposium registrants are invited to attend the AIME meeting.

This year's symposium will deal with the preparation and storage of iron ore materials. Discussions are planned on scrubbing of ore materials, screening of iron ores and surging and stockpiling.

The University's Outstanding Achievement Award, given to alumni who have attained eminence in their fields, will be presented to Kenneth J. Duncan, Duluth iron mining engineer and executive, at the AIME dinner at 6:45 p. m. Monday (Jan. 13) in the Hotel Duluth. Richard L. Griggs, Duluth, University regent, will make the presentation.

Duncan started his mining career in Ely in 1910 after graduating from the University with an engineer of mines degree earlier in the year. Nine years later, in 1919, he became associated with Pickands Mather and Company in Ely, and he has served the firm in Bessemer and Wakefield, Mich., and Chisholm, Hibbing and Duluth, Minn. Named manager of ore mines for the company in 1952, he held this position until his retirement in 1954.

He served as chairman of the Minnesota section of the AIME in 1954.

Always an active participant in community affairs, Duncan's activities since his retirement have included 1956 president of Duluth Kiwanis club, president of Duluth Symphony association's maintenance fund drive since 1955, major general of Duluth Community Chest drive in 1955 and 1956 and present president of the Port Authority of Duluth. He was selected a member of Duluth's Hall of Fame for 1956.

Balladeer William Clauson will present a program of ballads and folk songs at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (January 23) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The free public program is sponsored by the University's department of concerts and lectures.

The balladeer and guitarist started his musical training at the age of four, when he studied violin, voice and composition at the Boras Conservatory of Music in Sweden, where he lived at the time.

While a high school student in the United States, Clauson gave up his violin to study the guitar, and, after graduation, he appeared in a number of films, including "Stars in My Crown", "Louisa", "The Wistful Widow of Wagon Gap" and "You Gotta Stay Happy". He turned from acting to the singing of ballads after returning from service with the army.

Rated top box-office attraction in the Scandinavian countries, Clauson also has toured Mexico, Spain, Great Britain and North America. Following his last London recital, he was offered the star part ♪ in the musical version of Harrie's "The Little Minister".

His repertoire includes songs in English, Swedish, Spanish, German, Norwegian and Scotch and Irish dialects.

NURSE ANESTHETISTS TO ATTEND 'U' INSTITUTE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

An institute for nurse anesthetists -- the first since 1944 -- will be conducted Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study.

The course is open to all formally trained nurse anesthetists and is sponsored by the University in cooperation with the Minnesota department of health and the Minnesota Medical association's advisory group of the medical anesthesiologists.

Included in the program will be a field trip to the University of Minnesota Variety Club Heart hospital, a discussion of the non-surgical role of the anesthetist and a panel discussion of the considerations in the choice of an anesthetic agent. At the institute dinner Tuesday (Jan. 21) evening, Wayne Tempelman, University teaching assistant in aeronautical engineering, will speak on "The Challenge Imposed by Sputniks".

In a second course opening Monday (Jan. 20) at the Center, dental assistants will attend the first of three parts of a course which meets the requirements set by the educational committee of the American Dental Assistants association. The session, to continue through Friday, Jan. 24, will be presented by the University in cooperation with the Minnesota Dental Assistants and Hygienists association.

TWO LABOR
CONFERENCES
SLATED AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Two conferences of special interest to labor union leaders and members are scheduled at the University of Minnesota on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 13-15.

The tenth annual Industrial Relations Center Labor conference will be held at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History Thursday and Friday (Feb. 13-14). A Labor and World Affairs conference is planned in the Center for Continuation Study Friday evening and Saturday (Feb. 14-15).

Nationally known experts from the labor field and four universities and colleges will participate in the IRC conference, sponsored by the Minnesota AFL-CIO Federation of Labor, Twin Cities Central Labor Bodies and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

Arthur J. Goldberg, Washington, D. C., special counsel for the AFL-CIO, will discuss "Ethical Practices"; Leo Goodman, Washington, D. C., Atomic Energy Advisor to the United Automobile Workers, will talk about "Hazards of Radiation" and Marvin J. Miller, Pittsburgh, associate director of research for the United Steelworkers, will speak on "Wages and Prices in the Steel Industry".

Also participating in the program will be the following professors: Walter Heller, head of economics department, University of Minnesota; Dr. Maurice B. Visscher, head of the physiology department at the University; Arthur R. Upgren, Macalester college; and Colston E. Warne, Amherst college.

At the second conference, sponsored by the American Labor Education Service and Minnesota labor organizations, Aaron J. Ihde, chemistry professor at the University of Wisconsin will discuss "Can Science Make the World Free?". Saturday, Congressman John Blatnik will speak on "Foreign Aid" and Lloyd Haskins, executive secretary, International Federation of Petroleum Workers, will talk about "International Trade".

"What is Labor Doing in International Affairs" will be discussed by George T. Brown, director of international affairs for the AFL-CIO, and William Kemsley, International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, delegate to the United Nations; and Ralph Wright, labor representative of the International Labor Organization, Washington, D. C.

EXHIBIT FEATURES
STATE'S 100 YEARS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Arranged in 12 cases in the lobby of the University of Minnesota library is a Minnesota statehood centennial exhibit which the public is invited to see.

Covering every phase of Minnesota's 100 years as a state, the exhibits are entitled -- A New State, Minnesota Pioneers, History, Liberal and Conservative, Minnesota Authors, Sons and Daughters, The Arts, Education, Opportunity, Achievement, Enterprise and The University.

Letters, an original book manuscript, photographs and maps portray the growth of this state from the early explorations of Father Hennepin to the Uranium-235 work of University Professor Alfred O. C. Nier.

Also displayed are the books of famous authors from Minnesota -- Sinclair Lewis, Margaret Cushman Banning and Thomas Heggen. Well-known natives of this state are included in the Sons and Daughters exhibit which includes General Lauris Norstad and Charles Lindbergh.

Perhaps the most unusual feature is the John A. Blomgren Liberal and Conservative collection. Blomgren, a retired Minneapolis streetcar motorman, wrote letters to Minnesota governors asking them what constitutes a good liberal or conservative. Their replies have become known as the "Governors Collection" and are a permanent library collection.

'U' RESEARCH SHOWS CLAYS, SHALES FOUND IN STATE
SUITABLE FOR MAKING LIGHT WEIGHT CONCRETE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Certain clays and shales found in Minnesota are suitable as light weight substitutes for heavy density gravel used in concrete, according to a report just published by the Minnesota Geological Survey at the University of Minnesota.

Results of research done in 1955-56 by Professor George M. Schwartz, director of the survey, and Nikola Prokopovich, now with the United States Reclamation bureau in California, indicate that many clays and shales found in Minnesota have good bloating properties -- a characteristic which causes the material to expand at a high temperature.

Use of these clays and shales in making concrete can result in a product weighing 50 pounds to the cubic foot as compared to 150 pounds for ordinary concrete made with a sand and gravel mixture.

Particular investigation was made in areas located close to the main demand for light weight gravel substitutes, especially around the Twin Cities. The survey showed that the best chances for deposits of bloating clays for industrial purposes seem to occur in Brown county in south-central Minnesota and in southeastern Minnesota.

A copy of the report may be obtained free by writing to Minnesota Geological Survey, Pillsbury Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14.

WIN 3 EDUCATION
RESEARCH AWARDS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Out of six national awards for research in education made recently by the American Technical society, three went to men who earned their doctor of philosophy degrees in the same University of Minnesota department--the industrial education department of the college of education.

All three of the men also had the same adviser as they worked for their doctorates---Professor William J. Micheels, head of the industrial education department.

The awards, presented this year for the first time and made under the auspices of the American Vocational association, consisted of a "first award" of $1,000 and five "award of merit" grants of $200 each.

The three former students of Professor Micheels who received award of merit grants and the year each received his doctor of philosophy degree are: John N. Clausen, instructor in engineering graphics in the University of Minnesota's institute of technology, 1955; Robert S. Swanson, associate professor of industrial education at Stout State college, Menomonie, Wis., 1956; and Ray A. Wigen, director of graduate studies at Stout, 1957.

Clausen was selected for the new award on the basis of his study on "The Effect of an Entrance Requirement on Success in Selected Engineering Courses".

"The Operational Definition and Measurement of Educational Philosophy" was the title of the research which won the award for Swanson, and Wigen earned the honor for his investigation of "Technical Offerings for Industrial Arts Teachers at the Graduate Level".

"We believe that the results of this program will have a strong impact on education," W. K. Lasher, president of the American Technical society, commented in announcing the first of the new awards. "Many of the studies show promise of significantly improving educational practices. Many of them advance new knowledge to be applied in education. And...this research program may very well stimulate others to greater activity in educational research."

High school students and college freshmen today are, on the average, as intelligent as they were 26 years ago.

An analysis of ability test scores and high school grades completed by the Student Counseling Bureau of the University of Minnesota revealed that between 1930 and 1956 no trend has appeared showing changes in the abilities of high school and college students.

Both the absolute number and the relative number of young persons in a given age group remaining in school has increased, consequently today more students of both above average ability and below average ability are in school but the averages remain the same.

No evidence was found to support the claim made that the abilities of college freshmen have deteriorated, according to Ralph F. Berdie, director of the counseling bureau.

The analysis also revealed that there is great overlapping among colleges in terms of the abilities of their students. Although some colleges attract students who on the average have higher ability test scores than those in other colleges, in every college will be found very bright students and in every college will be found students who are below average when compared to the total group in the state. The study also revealed that the University attracts its share of superior students and the student population of the University compared favorably to that in any other Minnesota college.

CHURCHILL'S COUSIN TO SPEAK THURSDAY
AT U OF M CONVO

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Sir Shane Leslie will describe what it has meant to grow up as one of Winston Churchill's eight cousins at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (Jan. 30) in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

The free public program, entitled "Winston Churchill in the Family", is sponsored by the University department of concerts and lectures.

Sir Shane has written four volumes of verse and five novels as well as biographies of Jonathan Swift, Cardinals Manning and Gasquet, Tolstoy and George IV. In addition, he has been known for 30 years as Ireland's principal amateur forester; and, in 1951 he toured the United States and Canada lecturing on the need for afforestation in his native land.

He is an Irish Baronet on his father's side, and his mother was one of the well known American Jerome sisters. In his convocation talk Thursday (Jan. 30), Winston Churchill's cousin will describe life in the English homes of the three Jerome sisters in the 1880's and '90's, when they married Britishers and had to fight their way into London social circles.

Sir Shane was educated at Eton college, King's college, Cambridge university and the University of Paris, and he holds an LL.D. degree from Notre Dame.

Max Rudolf, assistant manager and conductor of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the University of Minnesota convocation speaker Thursday (February 6). He will discuss "Problems of Music Interpretation" at the 11:30 a. m. program in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Rudolf recently was appointed music director and conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra and will assume his new duties in October.

A native of Germany, he was first associated with opera in Freiburg in 1922. The following season he joined the State Opera of Hesse in Darmstadt, where he was named leading conductor in 1925. From 1929 to 1935, he was conductor of the German Opera at Prague, and for the next five years he appeared as regular guest conductor of the Gothenburg Orchestra Society, Gothenburg, Sweden.

Rudolf came to the United States in 1940 and became a citizen in 1946. Before joining the Metropolitan Opera in 1945, he served on the faculty of the School of Music of the Central YMCA college in Chicago and with the New Opera company in New York. He was appointed artistic administrator of the Metropolitan in 1950. He has appeared as guest conductor of symphony orchestras throughout the country.

His book, "The Grammar of Conducting", published in 1949, is an official textbook for music schools throughout the country.

UNIVERSITY MARKS
107th BIRTHDAY

(FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota will celebrate its 107th birthday next week (Feb. 23-March 1) with a special convocation, an honors luncheon, store window displays and a statewide speaking program. The week has been proclaimed University of Minnesota Week by Governor Orville L. Freeman.

Five sketches from the University's scrapbook will be unfolded in a dramatic presentation, directed by Roger D. Gross, University speech instructor. Scenes from 1863, the 1890's, World War I, the 1930's and the 1940's will be enacted by students and staff members in the 11:30 a.m. Charter Day convocation Thursday (Feb. 27) in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

In observing its 107th year, the University also will wish the state of Minnesota a "Happy Centennial Birthday" with a birthday cake presented by Centennial Queen Diane Albers to Lieutenant Governor Karl Rolvaag. A campus queen will present the University's cake to Ray J. Quinlivan, St. Cloud, chairman of the board of regents.

Four University alumni will receive Outstanding Achievement Awards for distinguished service at an alumni honors luncheon in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union following the convocation. Quinlivan will present the awards to J. A. A. Burnquist, 1776 Fremont Ave. S., Minneapolis, former legislator, lieutenant governor, governor and state attorney general; Marchette G. Chute, New York City, author and poet; Albert H. Moseman, New York City, associate director of agriculture for the Rockefeller Foundation; and Glenn E. Seidel, 45 E. Luverne Ave., Minneapolis, vice president in charge of engineering, Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co.

Honored guests at the luncheon will include former University regents, all Outstanding Achievement Award winners and alumni leaders throughout the state.

Exhibits in Twin Cities, suburban and Duluth business windows next week will tell the University's story of progress in such fields as engineering, education, and art and will include models of the University's expansion plans, apples developed at the fruit breeding farm and books related to popular Minnesota sports and hobbies published by the University Press.

More than 50 faculty and staff members take University of Minnesota Week out in the state through talks before alumni clubs and civic and fraternal groups. These talks began late in January and are scheduled through March to accommodate meeting schedules.

University of Minnesota Week is sponsored annually by the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce and the University of Minnesota Alumni association.

'U' TO FEATURE
TALK ON SKY
DIVING THURSDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Sky diving -- the mechanically unretarded fall of a human body from high altitude -- will be the subject of a free public lecture at the University of Minnesota Thursday (Feb. 20) at 7:30 p. m. in the Coffman Memorial union game room.

Sponsored by the University student chapter of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, the talk -- "Mechanics and the Sport of Sky Diving" -- will be delivered by Major Robert L. Oakley, USAF, assistant chief, parachute branch, Wright Air Development Center, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. He will explain the problems encountered in sky diving and discuss the aerodynamics of the sport.

A sky diver jumps from an altitude of 5,000 or 10,000 feet. He aims toward a spot on the earth and attempts to reach it by controlling his fall with his arms and legs extended, in a position resembling a glider. When at least 1,500 feet from the earth, he opens his parachute and floats to the ground.

WOMAN MAYOR OF OTTAWA, CAN.,
TO TALK AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Charlotte E. Whitton, mayor of Ottawa, Ontario, capital city of the dominion of Canada, will describe her six years as Canada's first lady mayor at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (February 20) in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

In presenting "A Mayor's Tale", Miss Whitton will relate her experiences in office, ranging from high protocol to such day-to-day problems as law enforcement, sewers, housing, education and traffic.

Miss Whitton was named Ottawa's mayor by unanimous vote of the city council to fill the term of the deceased Mayor Goodwin; she was returned to office in 1952 and 1954 by the largest popular votes ever recorded in the city.

She previously served as executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council and delegate to many international welfare conferences. During World War II, she was called by the Canadian federal government to act as special consultant to the Wartime Prices and Trade board, the Dependents' Board of Trustees and organization of the movement of British children to Canada. In the news again a few years ago, she made public the large-scale placement in the United States of unwanted babies by the Alberta welfare authorities and prompted basic changes in the system.

In 1950, she was the first woman elected to Ottawa's Board of Control, receiving 10,000 more votes than the mayor.

The free public lecture is sponsored by the University department of concerts and lectures.

DANFORTH STUDY
GRANTS GIVEN
2 'U' TEACHERS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Danforth teacher study grants, financed through the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo., have been awarded to two instructors at the University of Minnesota for the 1958-59 academic year.

Winners are J. Vernon Jensen, instructor in interdisciplinary studies, and Dean L. Phelps, general college instructor.

Granted to strengthen teaching in American colleges by financing a year of study in a particular field, the awards are made on the basis of potential excellence as a teacher, outstanding academic ability, personality congenial to the classroom, one year of graduate study and three years of teaching experience.

Both Phelps and Jensen will study at the University of Minnesota. Jensen will work in the field of rhetoric to earn his doctor of philosophy degree while Phelps will take field trips to Montana in preparation for writing a paper on geography.

Approximately 60 such grants are awarded each year, and the recipient may attend the American university of his choice.

The Danforth foundation, St. Louis, Mo., was incorporated in 1929 by William H., Donald and Adda D. Danforth to promote higher education in non-denominational institutions.

FOR TEXAS POST

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Helen L. MacDonald, sales and business manager of the University of Minnesota Press since 1943, will resign, effective April 15, to accept a similar position with the University of Texas Press in Austin, Texas, she disclosed today.

Miss MacDonald, who was elected in 1955 by an overwhelming majority to a six-year term on the Minneapolis Public Library board, indicated that she will resign her directorship at the March meeting of the board. The resulting board vacancy will be filled by the city council.

On the Library board, she serves on the salary committee and as chairman of the general committee and was a member of the selection committee which chose the new librarian, Raymond E. Williams.

Long active in Minnesota Democratic Farmer-Labor party affairs, Miss MacDonald is chairman of the Minneapolis Second Ward DFL club and first vice chairwoman of the Hennepin County DFL Central committee.

She is chairman of the Minnesota Library association's Committee on Intellectual Freedom, a member of the American Association of University Presses Committee on Freedom to Publish, a director and charter member of the Minnesota Council for Freedom to Read, faculty adviser to the Canterbury club, Episcopal students' organization at the University, a member of the Episcopal Diocese of Minnesota Committee on Publicity and Public Relations and secretary of the choir of the Cathedral Church of St. Mark in Minneapolis.

Miss MacDonald also is a member of the board of trustees of the Minneapolis-Southwestern Minnesota chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis society, a member of the Walker Art Center council, a member of the library committee of the Citizen's League of Minneapolis and Hennepin county and a member of Quota, International. In 1953, she was the official delegate of the American Book Publishers' council to the Fourth National Conference of the United States National Commission for UNESCO.

Born in Laredo, Texas, Miss MacDonald moved with her family to Minneapolis in 1923. She attended Washburn high school and the University of Minnesota.

FILM LECTURE
ON BISON AT 'U'
MUSEUM SUNDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The bison's role in early America will be explained in a free public program at 3 p. m. Sunday (Feb. 23) in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium on the University of Minnesota campus. Speaker will be Donald K. Lewis, the museum's audio-visual adviser.

Using a film and color slides, Lewis will show archaeological remains of bison (some now extinct and others rudiments of present bison) in North America and Asia during the glacial age.

While there were 60 million bison in this country shortly after the Revolutionary War, only 850 remained in 1885, according to Lewis. He will point out the bison's value to the Indian and the white man's part in the animal's virtual extermination. (Lewis adds that today the 6,000 bison in America are "holding their own".) He also will tell of the buffalo farm at Willmar, Minn.

Subject of the museum's March 2 program is "Deserts at Our Doorstep". Museum Director Walter J. Breckenridge will conduct the program on the Anoka sand plains.

EARN "B"⁺AVERAGES

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Nearly ten per cent of the 1,885 freshmen who entered the University of Minnesota college of science, literature and the arts last fall received grade averages of ^(better than) "B" ~~or better~~ in their fall quarter classes, according to a recent announcement by Roger B. Page, assistant dean of SLA.

Of the 181 freshmen with ^(better than) "B" averages for their first quarter of college work, 63 earned honor point ratios of 2.5 or above. (An honor point ratio of 3.0 is an "A" average; 2.0 is a "B", and 1.0 is a "C".) Each student has received a letter of congratulations from Dean Page.

One hundred high schools are represented by these University arts freshmen. Minneapolis Washburn and St. Paul Central have the largest representation with eight honor students each; seven are graduates of Minneapolis North, and Robbinsdale and Minneapolis Edison each have five graduates.

Outside the Twin Cities, the following schools have three graduates each among the "B"⁺arts students -- Alexandria, Willmar, St. Louis Park, Duluth East, Owatonna and Fergus Falls -- and two are from each of the following high schools -- Glencoe, Hopkins, Olivia, Roseville, Spring Grove, Minnetonka, South St. Paul, Rockford, Ill., and Hyde high school in Chicago.

PSYCHIATRY-LAW
LECTURES START
MONDAY AT U OF M

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- A series of three lectures in the field of psychiatry and law will be delivered at the University of Minnesota by Dr. Manfred S. Guttmacher, psychiatrist to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings (March 3, 4 and 6) at 8 p. m.

His lectures, jointly sponsored by the University's law and medical schools and held in Mayo Memorial auditorium in the University medical center, will be entitled "Confidentiality and Privileged Communication", "The Psychotic Murderer" and "Psychiatric Court Clinics".

Anonymous funds finance the lecture series honoring the memory of Dr. Isaac Ray, one of the original founders of the American Psychiatric association. Under terms of the lectureship established in 1951, an outstanding lawyer or psychiatrist is chosen each year to speak at a university having both a medical and law school.

Dr. Guttmacher, a native of Baltimore, earned his bachelor of arts and doctor of medicine degrees at Johns Hopkins university and had post-graduate training in neurology and psychiatry at the Boston Psychopathic hospital and Queens Square hospital, London. He also has served as psychiatric consultant to the Veterans Administration, to the Surgeon General, and as chief psychiatric consultant to the Second Army. In 1945, he received the Legion of Merit award.

Since 1930, he has held his present position and also maintains a private practice on a part-time basis.

Previous Isaac Ray lectures have been given at Harvard, Yale, the University of California, the University of New Mexico and the University of Michigan.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Fred Sparks, Pulitzer prize-winning journalist, will discuss the Suez at a University of Minnesota convocation Thursday (March 6). His talk, "Suez - Oil and Water", will be at 11:30 a. m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Open free to the public, the program is sponsored by the University department of concerts and lectures.

Sparks saw the British forced out of the Suez Canal, had an exclusive interview with Colonel Nasser and exposed how guns are smuggled to rebels in North Africa and Cyprus. He also was on hand for the anti-colonial uprisings in North Africa and the Israel-Arab troubles.

Prior to his middle East duty, Sparks covered World War II and travelled through the Orient, and he returned there with the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950. He was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in International Reporting for his dispatches from the wars in Indochina, Malaya and Korea.

He also accompanied Admiral Byrd to the South Pole in 1946 and was in the midst of the Communist guerrillas' attempts to overthrow the Greek government in Athens, the Italian elections, the Berlin Airlift and the Tito-Stalin struggle. Most recently, he covered the missile launching project at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Sparks' articles have appeared widely in American and Canadian newspapers, and he has written for such magazines as Reader's Digest, Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Esquire, True, Look and Parade Magazine, of which he was managing editor at one time.

SUMMER INSTITUTE ON MINNESOTA
GOVERNMENT, POLITICS PLANNED AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Minnesota's 100-year-old constitution will provide the theme for the University of Minnesota's Centennial institute on Minnesota government and politics to be held this summer.

The fifth annual institute will be conducted during the first two weeks of the University's second summer session term, July 21-August 1, under the sponsorship of the Summer Session and the Center for Continuation Study.

In 10 morning panel sessions, experts, civic leaders and officials will examine the articles of the constitution. Special emphasis will be given to their historical evolution, and their adequacy will be discussed in the light of the state's present and future needs. Articles to be examined will include those pertaining to the legislative, judicial and executive branches of state government, local government, civil rights, finance, education, highways and airports, elections and methods of amendment.

Persons wishing to attend the institute for credit should register for Political Science 114. Others may register through the Center for Continuation Study for all or part of the institute. A related course in state government may be taken during the last three weeks of the summer session term by those wishing to earn additional credit.

SEYMOUR LECTURE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- "Problems of Survival" will be discussed by Harrison Brown, professor of geochemistry at the California Institute of Technology, at 4 p. m. Sunday, March 9, in Northrop Memorial auditorium at the University of Minnesota. His will be the seventh Gideon Seymour memorial lecture.

Professor Alfred O. C. Nier, chairman of the University school of physics, will introduce Brown.

Free tickets still may be obtained by writing to the Gideon Seymour Memorial Lecture office, 223 Northrop Memorial auditorium, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14. Applications, stating the number of tickets requested and including a self-addressed stamped envelope, must be postmarked before midnight Saturday (March 1).

A graduate of the University of California and Johns Hopkins university, Brown served as assistant director of chemistry at the Plutonium Project, Oak Ridge, Tenn., from 1943 to 1946 and on the staff of the University of Chicago Institute for Nuclear Studies from 1946 to 1951 when he accepted his present post in California.

He received the American Association for the Advancement of Science annual award in pure science in 1946 and the American Chemical society annual award in pure chemistry in 1952.

Serving as editor-at-large of The Saturday Review, Brown is a member of the board of directors of the University of Denver Social Science Foundation, Phi Beta Kappa and the American Chemical society. He also has authored "Must Destruction Be Our Destiny?", "The Challenge of Man's Future" and "The Next Hundred Years".

The Seymour lectures are sponsored by the University through funds provided by the Minneapolis Star and Tribune. The series was established in memory of Gideon D. Seymour, executive editor of the newspapers from 1944 until his death in 1954.

More than 350 interpretive works by pupils of Twin City public, parochial and private schools will comprise the ninth annual young people's symphony art project to be exhibited in March at the University of Minnesota Gallery.

The water color, pastel and crayon drawings and clay models will be displayed on all four floors of Northrop Memorial auditorium from March 3 through March 26.

Initiated by Minneapolis Symphony Director Antal Dorati, the project was developed to encourage a deeper understanding of music among students. The boys and girls, from kindergarteners to high school seniors, interpret their ideas and emotions through art while listening to "live" classical music at Young People's concerts or recordings in the classroom.

The art project is sponsored by the Orchestral association and the Young People's Concert association.

From March 7 to March 11, a group of recent prints by Wendell Black, professor in printmaking at the University of Colorado, will be exhibited on the third floor. Also on the third floor ~~during~~ ^{through} March 11 will be an exhibit of student art from the University of Michigan art department, including 14 works in oil and print media.

ROTC UNITS

((FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE))

Minneapolis --- President J. L. Morrill of the University of Minnesota and five other educational leaders recently sent a wire to President Eisenhower requesting his assistance to support legislation which would appropriate federal money to pay for Reserve Officer Training Corps facilities on some 300 college and University campuses.

The telegram stated: "The cost of accommodation of these units now is borne by the institutions and in many cases at a sacrifice of other academic facilities which are sorely needed.

"Since these facilities are essential to the armed forces and to national defense," the wire continued, "the government should at the very least contribute to their accommodation".

Participating in the request were Arthur S. Adams, president of the American Council on Education, Washington, D. C.; Albert N. NEW PAMPHLET
DESCRIBES STATE'S ROCKS, MINERALS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- In response to an increasing number of inquiries from individuals and schools, the University's Minnesota's geology department and the Minnesota Geological Survey, have just published a pamphlet describing the various kinds of rocks and minerals found in the state.

Co-authors of the booklet, "Guide to the Minerals and Rocks of Minnesota", are Professor George M. Schwartz, director of the Survey, and Professor George A. Thiel, chairman of the geology department.

Many people are interested in rock and mineral specimens which they find in road-cuts, in excavations, on their farms and on their vacation trips, the authors explained, and many such specimens are received in their laboratories each year. The specimens are usually accompanied by a request for information regarding the composition, manner of formation and commercial value of the rock or mineral involved.

The new pamphlet has been prepared to describe, in non-technical terms, the state's various rocks and minerals so that amateur collectors, school teachers, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and other interested persons can identify them.

A copy of the pamphlet may be obtained free by writing to: Director, Minnesota Geological Survey, Pillsbury Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TO DEVISE FAR EAST POLICY
FOR U. S. AT MINNESOTA 'U' CONFERENCE MAR. 27-29

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Seventy-five high school students from the Twin Cities area will formulate a Far Eastern policy for the United States during a residential seminar on the Far East Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 27, 28 and 29, in Minneapolis.

The junior and senior students will discuss America's policy toward the Far East and develop a statement of policy, as they think it should be. The session is being sponsored by the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study, the Minnesota World Affairs Center and the American Assembly -- with the assistance of a grant from the Hill Foundation of St. Paul.

The group includes 43 boys and 32 girls from 48 public, parochial and private high schools in Hennepin, Ramsey, Dakota, Washington and Anoka counties. They will meet in the Minneapolis Art Institute, and, during the session, they will live at the Fair Oaks Motel, 24th St. and Third Ave. S., Minneapolis.

A committee of high school teachers selected the 75 participants from 150 applicants who were recommended by their school officials on the basis of scholarship, character, maturity, openmindedness and ability to organize and interpret facts and express ideas carefully and forcefully in a discussion situation.

Each student will have read the American Assembly's book, "The United States and the Far East", in advance, and an agenda outlining the major questions raised by the reading will be followed simultaneously by four panel groups. Minnesota social studies teachers who will lead the panels are Roy Meyer, Mounds View high school; Elsie Sebert, Albert Lea; John Schuiling, Bemidji; and Mrs. Frances Anderson, Marshall high school, Minneapolis.

The seminar faculty will rotate, so that each student will have an opportunity to confer with each staff member.

Henry Merritt Wriston, president emeritus of Brown university, Providence, R. I., and executive director of the American Assembly, heads the visiting faculty. He will conduct the final session on Saturday (March 29) morning.

Also coming from the East will be Lawrence S. Finkelstein, director of studies, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, New York City, and former State Department employee on the staff for the Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco conferences; and Nathaniel Peffer, Columbia university professor of international relations, who lived for 10 years in the Far East at various periods between 1915 and 1947.

Two University of Illinois staff members will take part in the seminar. They are Royden Dangerfield, associate provost and dean of administration, and Norman Graebner, history professor. Dangerfield spent the summers of 1951 and 1952 teaching at Tokyo, Kyoto and Doshisha universities in Japan, and he has held high positions in various branches of the government service. In 1955 he was consultant to Nelson A. Rockefeller, special assistant to the President of the United States. Graebner is assistant editor of World Affairs Quarterly and contributing editor of Current History; he has traveled in Asia and is especially interested in American foreign policy.

Scott Johnston, professor and head of the political science department at Hamline university, St. Paul, also will be on the seminar faculty, as will the following University of Minnesota staff members: Werner Levi, political science professor; Richard B. Mather, associate professor of Chinese; Philip Siegelman, instructor, department of interdisciplinary studies; John E. Turner, associate professor of political science; and Chester W. Wood, director of the office of student personnel services, Duluth branch. Wood is a former consultant to UNESCO and chief of educational reconstruction in the Republic of Korea.

MORTUARY SCIENCE
DEPARTMENT AT 'U'
TO MARK 50th YEAR

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis--- Originally the "school of embalming", the University of Minnesota department of mortuary science will celebrate its fiftieth year of service with ceremonies on Thursday, March 27.

A special educational symposium will be held at the University that afternoon featuring Otto S. Margolis, dean of the American Academy of Funeral Service, New York; Paul R. Keenan, director of the department of mortuary science at the University of Kansas; and Robert W. Habenstein, University of Missouri professor of sociology.

Following will be an alumni coffee hour and a 7 p. m. banquet in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union at which University President J. L. Morrill is scheduled to speak. A special anniversary gift fund, established by the alumni, will be presented during the banquet.

One of four universities in the United States offering instruction in the mortuary science field, the University has a three-year academic year program in addition to one year of resident training which is served under sponsorship of a state board of health.

In July 1951 and in April 1955, the University Board of Regents authorized issuance of a two and three-year degree-- associate in mortuary science-- to be awarded to students in the program.

When the first course in this field was offered, 16 individuals were enrolled. That number has now increased to 2,133. Of these 77 per cent have received a degree for study in the field of embalming and funeral directing.

MORTUARY SCIENCE--- 2

Administered and supervised by Dean Julius M. Nolte, general extension division, and Robert C. Slater, assistant professor and director of the department of mortuary science, the curriculum comprises the following areas-- anatomy, chemistry, bacteriology, accounting, pathology, embalming, mortuary management and public health.

"The guiding philosophy of the department", according to Professor Slater, "has been the training and indoctrination into the field of funeral service of students who are willing and capable of giving normal and essential services to the public in a time of emotional stress and bereavement.

"Society is benefited," he added, "by the University's highly-regarded teaching staff which produces competent, well-trained people to perform this essential service."

MORRIS MILGRAM
FIFTH HILLMAN
LECTURER AT 'U'

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. TUESDAY, MARCH 25)

Minneapolis --- Morris Milgram, executive vice president of Concord Park Homes, Inc., and Greenbelt Knoll, Inc., pioneer open occupancy housing developments in the Philadelphia area, will deliver the fifth Sidney Hillman lecture at the University of Minnesota at 4:15 p. m. Sunday, April 13, in Mayo Memorial auditorium.

He will talk on open occupancy and will be available to discuss the same topic on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 14, 15 and 16, with classes, student organizations and other interested groups.

In 1956, Milgram was the recipient of the first annual Walter White award of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing. He is a member of the National Association of Home Builders, the Philadelphia Housing Association, and the National Housing Conference.

Milgram also is executive vice president of Princeton Housing associates, doing integrated housing in Princeton, N. J., and Prospect Construction Corp., now doing rehabilitation housing in the University of Pennsylvania area.

After spending 10 years in the labor relations field, he entered the firm of his father-in-law, William Smelo, in 1947 with a promise that after learning the building business he could build houses available to all people. He began to organize for this in 1952 with Concord Park Homes -- the country's first planned open occupancy development of private single homes.

Feature articles about Milgram's work have appeared in Coronet, The New York Times, Presbyterian Life, Commonweal and House and Home.

Milgram is now organizing Modern Community Developers, a nationwide organization to aid builders of open occupancy housing with capital and advice.

The Sidney Hillman lecture series is a memorial to the founder and first president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and one of the founders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. A friend and confidante of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Hillman served as a wartime member of the War Manpower commission, associate director-general of the Office of Production Management and associate director of the War Production Board. The talks are supported by a gift to the University from the Sidney Hillman Foundation.

Previous Hillman lectures have been given by William O. Douglas, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court; Carl Rowan, author, lecturer and journalist; Thurgood Marshall, special Counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and director-counsel of the N.A.A.C.P. GIFTED STUDENTS
TO PLAN FAR EAST
POLICY FOR U. S.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Formulating a Far Eastern policy for the United States will be 76 "gifted" high school students from the Twin Cities area who will be participating in a residential seminar on the Far East Thursday, Friday and Saturday (Mar. 27, 28 and 29) in Minneapolis.

After discussing America's policy toward the Far East, the junior and senior students will devise their conception of a statement of policy. The session is sponsored by the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study, the Minnesota World Affairs Center and the American Assembly -- with the assistance of a grant from the Hill Foundation of St. Paul.

The group includes 44 boys and 32 girls from 49 public, parochial and private high schools in Hennepin, Ramsey, Dakota, Washington and Anoka counties. The selected students will meet at the Minneapolis Art Institute, and, during the session, they will live at the Fair Oaks motel, 24th st. and Third ave., S., Minneapolis.

A committee of high school teachers selected the participants from 150 applicants who were recommended by their school officials on the basis of "scholarship, character, maturity, open-mindedness and ability to organize and interpret facts and express ideas carefully and forcefully in a discussion situation".

An agenda outlining the major questions raised during the students' reading of the American Assembly's book, "The United States and the Far East", will be followed simultaneously by four panel groups. Leading the panels will be Minnesota social studies teachers Roy Meyer, Mounds View high school; Elsie Sebert, Albert Lea; John Schuiling, Bemidji; and Mrs. Frances Anderson, Marshall high school, Minneapolis.

(MORE)

The seminar faculty will rotate, so that each student will have an opportunity to confer with each staff member.

Heading the visiting faculty is Henry Merritt Wriston, president emeritus of Brown university, Providence, R. I., and executive director of the American Assembly, who will conduct the final session on Saturday (March 29) morning.

Coming from the East will be Lawrence S. Finkelstein, director of studies, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, New York City, and former State Department employee on the staff for the Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco conferences; and Nathaniel Peffer, Columbia university professor of international relations.

Two University of Illinois staff members -- Royden Dangerfield, associate provost and dean of administration, and Norman Graebner, history professor -- also will take part in the seminar.

Other faculty members include Scott Johnston, professor and head of the political science department at Hamline university, and the following University of Minnesota staff members: Werner Levi, political science professor; Richard B. Mather, associate professor of Chinese; Philip Siegelman, instructor, department of interdisciplinary studies; John E. Turner, associate professor of political science; and Chester W. EXHIBITION

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

To celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the University of Minnesota art gallery, an exhibition called "Music and Art" will be on display from Friday (April 4) until May 18.

Tracing the recurrent theme of music in art, the exhibition is comprised of a collection of rare musical instruments and art works illustrating various aspects of music through the history of art in the Western world.

Organized through loans from major museum collections throughout the country, private lenders and galleries, the exhibition is made up of 67 paintings by European and American artists as well as sculpture, prints, drawings, carved stones, illuminated manuscripts and early printed music.

Among the artists represented are Bonifazio Veronese, Jean Bourdichon, Antoine LeMain, Jean van Bronckhorst, Cornelis Troost, Jean Antoine Watteau, Rembrandt Peale, Thomas Eakins, John Sloan, George Luks, Paul Klee, George Braque, Marc Chagall and Rufino Tamayo.

The 94 musical instruments in the showing come from many parts of the world and represent centuries of development. Included are an ancient Roman Tibia Obliqua, 18th Century Italian Serpent, an early 18th Century German Viola d'Amore and a 19th Century French Musette.

The gallery will be open Monday through Friday, 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., and to concert patrons of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

GRANT TO AID
UNIVERSITY TRAIN
ANATOMISTS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota recently received a United States Public Health Service grant of $143,355 to be used over a five-year period to increase personnel trained in the anatomical sciences.

These funds will be used to attract graduate students of outstanding intellectual capacity by offering basic awards of $2,600 to $3,200 for one year of study. Additional allowances will be paid for tuition and dependent children.

According to Dr. Arnold Lazarow, head of the University anatomy department, the grant is designed to ease the critical manpower shortage in the basic biological sciences.

"Teaching opportunities in the anatomical sciences will increase during the next decade since a number of new medical schools, now in the planning stage, will begin to accept students," Dr. Lazarow said.

"It has been estimated," he continued, "that even if every graduate training center in the United States were to double the rate at which it trained anatomists, it still would take more than 20 years to overcome the present and projected deficit."

Dr. Lazarow believes that careers in the anatomical sciences offer many interesting opportunities for research largely because of modern equipment such as the electron microscope which makes visible detailed organization and structure of human cells never before suspected. He also cited the advances in cytochemistry and radioautography, which permits the anatomist to place a radioactive tag on certain constituents and to study the manner in which these are incorporated into the cell structure.

U WILL HOST
ANNUAL BINGHAM
LECTURE APRIL 10

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The American Psychological association has chosen the University of Minnesota as host to the fifth annual Walter VanDyke Bingham lecture to be given on the Minneapolis campus at 8 p. m. Thursday, April 10.

Edward K. Strong, Jr., professor emeritus of business and director of vocational interest research at Stanford university, will deliver the address in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History. His topic will be "Interests and Satisfaction".

Honoring the memory of Bingham, a pioneer in personnel psychology, the series is based on the discovery and development of exceptional abilities and capacities. The lectures are made possible through the generosity of Bingham's widow, Millicent Todd Bingham.

Strong is best known for his research program in the measurement of vocational interests. He authored "Vocational Interests of Men and Women"; "Vocational Interests 18 Years After College"; and the "Vocational Interest Blank".

The Bingham lectureship honors those psychologists and institutions which have made outstanding contributions to research on the identification and stimulation of exceptionally promising young people.

DANCES OF INDIA TO HIGHLIGHT 'U'
STUDENT FESTIVAL

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Classical Indian dances performed by an American artist will be featured during a three-day International Spring Festival to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 11, 12 and 13, by the Foreign Student council at the University of Minnesota.

The dancer, Nala Najan, spent seven years in India training in the temple dances and the musical system of the country. Since his first New York stage appearance at the 1954 Summer Dance Festival, Najan has given many lectures and demonstrations throughout the United States. This is his first visit to Minneapolis.

Purpose of the Foreign Student council's spring festival, according to Ananda Krishnan, council president, is to "promote international understanding".

The three-day festival will open Friday (April 11) with a panel discussion of "International Student Exchanges" at 2:30 p. m. in the women's lounge of Coffman Memorial Union on the University campus. Participants will be Henry Cox, chief, Program Services, U. S. State department; Forrest G. Moore, foreign student adviser at the University, and Donald J. Shank, executive vice-president of the Institute of International Education, New York.

Two performances of the Variety Show are slated for Saturday (April 12) at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. at the Women's Club of Minneapolis, 407 W. Fifteenth St. In addition to Najan's dances, the program will include music and dances of Iran, Israel, Korea, Japan, the Philippine Islands and Scandinavia.

Students from some 30 countries are cooperating to present an open house from 1 to 10 p. m. Sunday at the Episcopal Foundation, 317 Seventeenth Ave. S.E., on the third day of the festival. Food from the various countries will be available; native handicrafts will be on exhibit; and documentary movies will be shown.

READING CLINIC
FOR CHILDREN
PLANNED AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- A summer remedial reading clinic will be held again this year at the University of Minnesota psycho-educational clinic on the Minneapolis campus from June 18 through August 22.

Devised to serve children of school age who are below capacity in reading ability, instruction will be on an individual or small group basis. Sessions are held from 9 to 11 a. m. Monday through Friday for the 10-week period.

A limited number of pupils will be accepted for the first five-week term (June 18 to July 18), but preference is given to those who can attend the full period, according to Bruce Balow, clinic coordinator.

Children are admitted to the remedial reading program only after they have been studied by the staff of the clinic and found to be suitable candidates. These complete diagnostic studies require three half-days in the clinic and must be completed before June 6.

Parents interested in enrolling children in this clinic should make immediate arrangements for a study of their child. Reports are developed on each child's test results, behavior and progress during the study and the school. These reports are made to the school that each child attends and are useful for the child's regular teachers.

Part of the college of education, the clinic is operated as a training program for graduate students preparing to enter the field of specialized school services. In conjunction, it offers diagnostic, remedial and counseling services to children and their parents.

Further information regarding the reading clinic may be obtained by writing the Psycho-Educational Clinic, 108 Pattee hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14; or calling Fe. 2-8158, extension 6675.

MUSIC SCHOOL

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, APRIL 6)

James Aliferis, University of Minnesota music professor, has been named president of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass. His appointment will become effective July 1 when President Harrison Keller retires after 12 years in the post.

One of the oldest music schools in the country, the conservatory will celebrate its centennial in 1967.

Professor Aliferis was born in Oshkosh, Wis., and later moved to Cleveland where he attended elementary and high school. He studied violin and piano at the Cleveland Institute of Music and in 1936 received his bachelor of science degree from Western Reserve university.

In 1939, he earned his master of arts degree from Western Reserve and his doctor of philosophy degree from the State University of Iowa in 1943. He became choral director and instructor of theory at Western Reserve in 1938, and was research assistant and research associate in 1942 and 1943 respectively at the State University of Iowa.

He joined the University of Minnesota faculty as assistant professor in 1946 and in 1954 was promoted to full professor in addition to his duties as conductor of the University Chorus and University Chamber Singers.

Among his compositions are the Symphony No. 1 and the Cherubic Hymn, a choral composition. He devised the Aliferis Music Achievement Test, the first music text to be nationally standardized, and the College Midpoint Level to be published in 1959.

Author of articles which have appeared in the Journal of Research in Music Education, Journal of Applied Psychology and the American Music Teacher, Aliferis is chairman of music of the Educational, Musical and Cultural Recordings Corp., St. Paul; advisor in the International Society for Contemporary Music and former music chairman of the Center Arts Council, Walker Art Center, Minneapolis.

ENGLISH DEPT.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Professor John W. Clark has been appointed chairman of the University of Minnesota English department, effective September 15, Dean E. W. McDiarmid of the college of science, literature and the arts, announced today. He will succeed Professor Theodore Hornberger who will visit Ireland and England on sabbatical furlough during the school year 1958-59.

Born in Excelsior, Minn., in 1907, Clark earned his bachelor of arts degree at the University of Minnesota in 1928, his master of arts from Harvard university in 1929 and his doctor of philosophy degree from the University in 1941.

He was English instructor at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute from 1929-30 after which he joined the University staff. In 1953 he became a full professor after serving as instructor, assistant professor and associate professor. From 1944-46 he served with the United States Army.

Clark's major responsibility in the English department is in the fields of Old English and Middle English. He has written extensively in both areas. Among his publications are articles on Middle English literature which have appeared in numerous periodicals.

He co-authored the book "An ABC of Idiom and Diction" with Muriel B. Carr and, in 1951, collaborated with Eric Partridge on "British and American English Since 1900". His articles on American English and American usage have been published in Partridge's "You Have a Point There"; G. H. Vallins's "Spelling"; and Dr. Ernest Weekley's "The English Language". In addition, he is a contributor to the Encyclopedia Americana.

His most recent publication is the book "Early English" published in 1957 by A. Deutsch Limited, London.

Clark is married and lives at 403 Oak Grove in Minneapolis.

'U' OFFICIAL WRITES
BOOK ON COLLEGE
BUILDING NEEDS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota Press today (Thursday, April 3) published a book by the University's business vice president, William T. Middlebrook. Entitled "How to Estimate the Building Needs of a College or University", the 169-page volume is a demonstration of methods developed at the University.

It includes information on student attendance and methods of projecting space needs; building, land, housing and food service needs; and an inventory of buildings and building uses, and it is supplemented with tables, graphs and maps. The book is dedicated to University President J. L. Morrill, in appreciation of his help and encouragement.

Acknowledging that providing adequate physical plant facilities is one of the greatest problems of higher education today, Middlebrook contends that any long-range plan must anticipate future needs as well as present circumstances. Since education is "not a static process" -- with constant changes in the population, teaching methods, research techniques and public services -- the problem can never be definitely solved, he states. In his book, the vice president explains in detail the University's study undertaken to estimate the school's needs for land and buildings up to 1970.

Instead of estimating future plans in the traditional method -- with the assumption that there should be a given square footage of total building area per student -- the University developed a new method -- determining "the optimal space use goals for various categories of space and makes use of these optimal goals for projecting future space needs". Thus, Middlebrook explains, "These goals can of course be changed as conditions and experience dictate."

At present, Middlebrook is in the Philippine Islands helping to conduct a survey for a land grant college system in the Islands.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The three-day Centennial Conference on College Teaching will be held at the University of Minnesota Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 17, 18 and 19. Approximately 260 representatives from all Minnesota colleges have been invited to attend. General sessions of the conference will be open to the public.

Co-chairman of the conference will be Assistant Dean Russell M. Cooper of the University college of science, literature and the arts junior college, and Dean J. Huntley Dupre of Macalester college. The Association of Minnesota Colleges will sponsor the meet, the Hill Foundation of St. Paul will pay the expenses of the delegates, and the Minnesota Statehood Centennial Commission is underwriting the program costs.

Registration will be Thursday, April 17, from 8:30 to 10 a. m. At 11:35 a.m. Wilbert McKeachie, professor of psychology at the University of Michigan, will talk about "How Do College Students Learn?"

That afternoon beginning at 2:15 the general theme "How Can Students Achieve Their Learning Potential?" will be discussed by various groups.

On Friday, April 18, at 9:15 a. m. Reuben Gustavson, president of Resources for the Future, Inc., Washington, D. C., will discuss "Contemporary Civilization and Its Challenge to College Teaching" followed by discussion groups concerned with two topics -- how can we cultivate continued growth on our part as teachers, and how can we improve our artistry of teaching?

At the noon luncheon Friday, Harold Taylor, president of Sarah Lawrence college, Bronxville, New York, will discuss "On the Way to Great Teaching". At 2:15 p.m. Ralph Tyler, director, center for advanced study in the behavioral sciences, Stanford, Calif.; will submit "The Evaluation of Teaching".

AUTHOR TO TALK
AT 'U' THURSDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Edward K. Strong, Jr., professor emeritus of business and director of vocational interest research at Stanford university, will deliver the fifth annual Walter VanDyke Bingham lecture at the University of Minnesota Thursday (April 10).

He will talk about "Interests and Satisfaction" at 8 p. m. in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium.

The lecture series honors the memory of Bingham, a pioneer in personnel psychology, and is based on the discovery and development of exceptional abilities and capacities. The talks are made possible through the generosity of Bingham's widow, Millicent Todd Bingham.

Best known for his research program in the measurement of vocational interests, Strong authored "Vocational Interests of Men and Women", "Vocational Interests 18 Years After College" and the "Vocational Interest Blank".

The Bingham lectureship honors those psychologists and institutions which have made outstanding contributions to research on the identification and stimulation of exceptionally promising young people. The University was chosen to host the lecture by the American Psychological association.

"The Russian Theater Today" will be the subject of Michel Saint-Denis, French actor, director and teacher, in a special lecture Tuesday (April 15) at the University of Minnesota. He will speak at 3:30 p. m. in the Scott hall auditorium.

Sponsors of the free public lecture are the department of concerts and lectures and the University Theater.

Saint-Denis is the general director of the Centre Dramatique de l'Est in Strasbourg, Alsace, France. He started his theater career in 1919 at the Vieux Colombier, where he served as secretary, general administrator, stage manager and actor.

In 1930, he founded his own company, the Compagnie des Quinze, and presented for the first time such plays as "Noah" and "The Rape of Lucrece", which since have become contemporary classics.

Saint-Denis moved to London in 1934 and established the London Theatre Studio with Marcel Breuer. His students at this time included John Gielgud, Alec Guinness, Laurence Olivier and Peter Ustinov.

During World War II, he served as a mobilized liaison officer with the British Army and, later, headed the French section of the BBC under the name of Jacques Duchesne. After the war, he became a director of the Old Vic and established the Old Vic Theatre Centre. This meant rebuilding the Old Vic Theatre and developing the Old Vic Theatre school and the Young Vic company.

Saint-Denis returned to France in 1953 to direct the Strasbourg Centre, one of the five provincial professional theater centers in the country.

WILLIAMS NAMED
ATOMIC ENERGY
RESEARCH CHIEF

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. (CST) APRIL 11)

Minneapolis --- The appointment of Professor John H. Williams, University of Minnesota physicist, as director of the research division of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, was announced today by K. E. Fields, AEC general manager. The appointment will be effective on April 17. Professor Williams was granted leave of absence by the University Board of Regents today (April 11) to accept the appointment.

He succeeds Thomas H. Johnson, who resigned on October 1, 1957, to manage the research division of the Raytheon Manufacturing company, Waltham, Mass.

Professor Williams is director of the proton linear accelerator project which the University of Minnesota is conducting for the Atomic Energy Commission. The fields in which he has worked include X-ray natural line widths and spectroscopy, nuclear physics, light nuclei reactions, and scattering of light nuclei.

He has been a member of the University's School of Physics since 1934, except for the war years when he served as official investigator for the office of scientific research and development in 1942-43 and as a member of the Manhattan engineer district project as a group leader in the physics division, Los Alamos Scientific laboratory, from 1943 to 1946.

The new AEC research chief was born in Asbestos Mines, Province of Quebec, July 7, 1908. He graduated from high school in Kelowna, British Columbia, and received his bachelor of arts degree at the University of British Columbia in 1928. As a teaching fellow at the University of California he received his masters degree in 1930, and as a Whiting Fellow received his doctor of philosophy degree in physics in 1931. From 1931-33 he was a National Research fellow in physics at the University of Chicago.

He joined the University of Minnesota staff as a physics instructor in 1933, was assistant professor from 1934-37, associate professor 1937-42, and professor of physics since 1946 when he returned from Los Alamos. In 1942 he was naturalized as a United States citizen.

Williams was president of Midwestern Universities Research Association (MURA) from March, 1956, to October, 1957, after serving as vice president of the organization from the time it was founded in 1954. He has been consultant to the commission's Los Alamos Scientific laboratory since 1946 and is a member of the policy advisory board of Argonne National Laboratory at Lemont, Ill. He also was a member of the board on neutron standards and measurements, National Research council in 1946-48, and served on the panel on ultra-high energy accelerators of the National Science foundation.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi and the American Physical Society.

In 1928, he married Miss Vera Martin. The couple have three children, Lloyd, an architect in Cambridge, Mass.; Ann, 17, and Susan, 12.

TEACHING CONFERENCE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A special session on teaching by closed circuit television will be featured at the Centennial Conference on College Teaching Friday (April 18) evening at the University of Minnesota. Interested people may obtain free tickets at the conference headquarters, 106 Coffman Memorial Union on the campus.

The first part of the television session will be held in Mayo Memorial auditorium from 8 to 8:50 p.m. "What Is Educational Television" will be explained by I. Keith Tyler, director of the institute for education by radio-television, Ohio State university. "Strategy and Results from Teaching by Closed Circuit Television" will be the subject of a talk by C. R. Carpenter, director, division of academic research and services, Pennsylvania State university.

From 9 to 10 p.m., two demonstrations will be staged in Owre hall. Dr. James R. Jensen, University professor of dentistry, will show the University's closed circuit television equipment, and Professor Hope Lunin Klapper from New York university will offer a demonstration of teaching the social studies by closed circuit television.

The three-day conference, to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday (April 17-19) will be attended by 260 representatives from all Minnesota colleges. The public is invited to attend the general sessions.

Main events Thursday (April 17) are a talk about "How Do College Students Learn?" at 11:35 a.m. and an afternoon discussion about "How Can Students Achieve Their Learning Potential?" at 2:15.

"Contemporary Civilization and Its Challenge to College Teaching" will be discussed at 9:15 a.m. Friday (April 18). At the noon luncheon Friday President Harold Taylor of Sarah Lawrence college, Bronxville, N.Y., will speak on "On the Way to Great Teaching", followed by a 2:15 p.m. talk about "The Evaluation of Teaching".

A luncheon at 12:45 will conclude the sessions Saturday. The closing address will be delivered by Theodore C. Blegen, dean of the University graduate school, whose topic will be "Trustees of the Centennial Heritage".

The Association of Minnesota Colleges will sponsor the meet, the Hill Foundation of St. Paul will pay the expenses of the delegates and the Minnesota Statehood Centennial Commission is underwriting the program costs.

Co-Chairmen of the conference will be Assistant Dean Russell M. Cooper of the University college of science, literature and the arts, and Dean J. Huntley Dupre of Macalester college.

MEDICAL EDUCATION WEEK
April 20-26, 1958

Radio and TV Spot Announcements

1. Ladies and gentlemen, this is Medical Education Week, and we invite you to think about the importance of our medical schools. Because of these schools and the doctors they train, we Americans receive the finest medical care in the world and are the healthiest people on earth.

2. What does a medical school mean to you? It trains our doctors, as well as the nurses, technicians, and all other members of the health team who serve our families. Its researchers conquer disease, and its teaching hospitals develop the most effective techniques in medical care. In short, medical schools mean longer and healthier lives for all Americans ... we salute them during this Medical Education Week.

3. President Eisenhower, in acknowledgment of the progress being made by the expansion of medical school enrollments, research, and community services, has said we should set aside a special week each year to consider these accomplishments. This is now Medical Education Week, and we are honoring our nation's medical schools for their service to all Americans and the world.

4. When you are ill you want to be sure that the doctor you call knows his business ... and in America you can be sure ... because our medical schools are the best in the world. We invite all Minnesotans to join us in honoring our medical schools during this Medical Education Week.

5. Today's medical schools are training tomorrow's doctors -- and they are training more than ever before. In just a quarter of a century, the annual number of graduates has increased by more than 2,200. These doctors now give us the world's best medical care. For this progress, the nation now salutes our medical schools during Medical Education Week.

6. This is Medical Education Week -- when all Americans are asked to salute our nation's 83 medical schools -- to pay tribute to their great achievements and to consider their problems. More doctors, new drugs, and new techniques -- these are the products of our medical colleges which assure us longer and healthier lives.

(MORE)

7. This week is "Medical Education Week". In the last half century we have seen greater progress in medicine than in all previous years. These advances have their origins in the classrooms and laboratories of our medical schools, and Minnesota now salutes them for their unparalleled leadership.

8. Typhoid? Diphtheria? Small pox? Polio? Going, going, or gone! They have been licked in the medical science research laboratories by men trained by our medical schools. For their important role in the conquest of disease, we pay tribute to the nation's 83 medical schools during this Medical Education Week.

SECRETARIES
TO TAKE EXAMS
AT MINNESOTA 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The University of Minnesota has been selected as one of 66 test centers throughout the United States, Canada, Hawaii and Puerto Rico at which the annual CPS -- Certified Professional Secretary -- examination will be held May 2 and 3, 1958. Ernestine Donaldson, associate professor in the University's school of business administration, will serve as administrator for the examination on the campus.

A new high total of almost 1,600 secretaries is expected to take the 1958 examination which will extend over two days and cover such subject areas as personal adjustment and human relations; business law; business administration; secretarial accounting; secretarial skills and secretarial procedures. To receive the CPS rating and certificate, secretaries must pass all parts of the test, according to Professor Donaldson. To date 1,227 secretaries have done so.

The CPS program, sponsored by the National Secretaries Association (International), is administered by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries. A department of the Association, the institute is composed of businessmen, educators and secretaries and is headed by a dean, Inez Ray Wells of Ohio State university, Columbus, O. Duties of the institute include supervising and developing the test which is based on actual secretarial duties and responsibilities.

The examination is open to all qualified secretaries, 25 years of age or older, men as well as women, members or non-members of the National Secretaries Association.

"Aimed at giving secretarial work professional status, CPS has made it possible for the busy executive to hire a secretary and know in advance that she is capable of filling a top-level position in her field," Miss Donaldson explained.

SPIILHAUS TO SPEAK AT 'U' CONFERENCE ON UTILIZATION OF ENGINEERS, SCIENTISTS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Athelstan Spilhaus, dean of the University of Minnesota institute of technology, will outline the "Outcomes of the International Geophysical Year" at the Minnesota conference on utilization of engineers and scientists to be held Friday and Saturday (April 25 and 26) at the University Center for Continuation Study.

Dean Spilhaus will speak at the conference dinner at 6 p. m. Friday (April 25) in the Coffman Memorial Union junior ballroom.

The Minnesota session is one of five meetings being held throughout the United States in response to a request of the President's committee on scientists and engineers, organized in 1956 to alleviate the shortage of scientists and engineers.

Aims of the meetings in Minneapolis, Charleston, W. Va.; Houston, Texas; Boston, Mass.; and Denver, Colo., are to bring the need for establishing a climate for the continued educational and professional growth of scientists and engineers to the attention of top-level policy-making management and to alert them to the possible use of technicians.

The program will include a number of panel discussions, including one on "The Selection and Education of Future Scientists". Also scheduled are a talk on "The Greatest Scientific Challenge of Our History" and tours of the institute of technology laboratories and the St. Anthony Falls Hydraulic laboratory.

Guest speakers will include William Torpey, consultant, the President's committee on scientists and engineers, and Paul H. Robbins, executive director, National Society of Professional Engineers, both of Washington, D. C.; and Frederic Croke, manager of engineering, International Business Machines, Rochester.

Sponsors of the institute are the Center for Continuation Study, the institute of technology, the Minnesota Society of Professional Engineers and the President's committee on scientists and engineers.

He will present highlights from a before-and-after study of the KTCA audience now being completed. He will appear on the program "Public Opinion and Behavior", as part of the current TV series, "The Proper Study of Mankind" presented by the University's social science research center as its 11th annual public discussion of matters of common concern to the community and the social scientist.

Appearing with Jones will be Professor Henry W. Riecken, sociology, and Professor Kenneth E. Clark, psychology.

The KTCA study is the first of its kind in the country, according to Jones, in which the same sample of viewers was studied both before and after the station went on the air, in order to measure among other things the impact of educational television on a person's attitudes, information and behavior, that is, whether he may have registered for any courses, read any more books, or discussed any of the programs with friends, for example, as the result of his exposure to the station.

Some 450 persons, a cross-section of the Twin Cities population, were interviewed in the study headed by Jones and William A. Mindak, assistant professor of journalism, under a grant from the Educational Television center, University of Michigan. A full analysis of data is due in May.

Herbert Graf, stage director of the Metropolitan Opera association, will present a "behind the scenes" visit to the Met in his illustrated lecture Thursday (May 1) at the University of Minnesota. As convocation speaker, Graf will talk on "Opera Production - From Rehearsal to Curtain" at 11:30 a. m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Graf, who also is director of the Opera association of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, will use slides to show life at the opera.

Born in Vienna, Graf earned degrees in music and philosophy at the university there. He started his career as an actor, singer and stage director in Munich. Following a career as stage director in various opera houses throughout Europe, he was called to America in 1934 to stage productions for the Philadelphia Orchestra association.

He founded the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center and was its director from 1940 to 1942. Appointed director of operatic production for the National Broadcasting Company's television department at its inception, Graf staged numerous television productions abroad as well as in this country. He recently received a Rockefeller Foundation grant for the study of new methods and techniques of producing opera in America.

His books include "The Opera and Its Future in America" and "Opera for the People".

'U' ROTC UNIT
WINS TOP AWARD
IN RIFLE MEET

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Company E-2 Pershing Rifles, representing the University of Minnesota Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC), won top honors at the annual Pershing Rifles regimental drill meet recently held at Marquette university in Milwaukee.

With a combination of four first, one second and two third places, the University gained the highest point total and an overall first place for the third straight year.

Placing in seven of the nine events in competition with other midwestern universities including Big Ten schools, the University won permanent possession of the first place traveling trophy on which its name has been engraved five times in the nine years of its existence.

Army ROTC regimental commander and Pershing Rifles Captain Burl A. Zorn, 3052 Florida Ave., St. Louis Park, a law school sophomore, won top individual honors in rifle marksmanship, third place in individual drill and led the drill platoon and the rifle team each to a first place. Zorn was awarded the Gold Achievement Medal, Pershing Rifles' top award, at a banquet and dance following the meet.

Other events were won by: John Shasky, 4740 Washburn S., college of science, literature and the arts freshman, freshman individual drill, first, and squad drill, second; Jack A. Fecht, education junior, 907 S. E. Eighth, third in exhibition drill; and Robert R. Wolff, 3700 E. 34th, SIA junior, received the Silver Achievement Medal.

Pershing Rifles, a national ROTC honor society, was founded in 1894 by General John J. Pershing. The Minnesota unit -- Company E-2 -- was chartered in 1930.

FRENCH PUBLIC HEALTH LEADER
TO VISIT HERE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Lucien Viborel of Paris, France, will arrive in the Twin Cities Saturday (April 26) to observe public health education facilities and to discuss graduate programs with local public health education personnel.

Viborel, secretary general of the International Union for Health Education of the Public, is visiting the United States on a fellowship awarded by the World Health Organization. A world pioneer in health education, he also is director of health education in the French Ministry of Health, part-time consultant in the French National Tuberculosis association and secretary of the French National Committee for Health Education.

Monday (April 28) he will visit the University of Minnesota school of public health, where he will confer with Professor Ruth E. Grout and other school personnel. During the week, he also will meet with representatives of the Minneapolis public schools' department of health, physical education and recreation; the Hennepin County Tuberculosis association, and the Minneapolis Public Health Center.

The International Union was Viborel's idea; he helped establish it, and he has undertaken the chief administration duties of the organization. He has participated in many international conferences and visited several European countries as a consultant in health education.

Largely through his efforts, the School of Public Health in Paris is about to introduce courses in health education in the curriculum of medical officers and other public health workers and to establish a program for the training of public health educators. Viborel also played an important part in establishing the anti-tuberculosis movement in France.

MEDICAL SCHOOL
ADMISSIONS AT 'U'
TO BE INCREASED

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Admissions to the University of Minnesota medical school will be increased from 125 to 140 students for the next school year (1958-59) and to 150 in 1959, Dr. Robert B. Howard, associate dean of the school, announced Wednesday (April 23).

By 1962, the four medical school classes will have a combined total enrollment of approximately 600 as compared with under 500 at present.

Enlarged and improved laboratory facilities and strengthening of the staffs of the University's basic medical sciences departments are the principal factors which permit the step-up in enrollment, Dr. Howard explained. The basic medical sciences include: anatomy, pathology, physiological chemistry, pharmacology, bacteriology and pathology.

"This move will ultimately produce more physicians to care for the people of our state," Dr. Howard stated.

About 300 applicants now seek admission to the medical school each year, according to Dr. Howard. A minimum of three years of college is required for entrance, and the medical school course leading to a doctor of medicine degree takes four years to complete.

In announcing the upping of the admissions limit, Dr. Howard emphasized that the University medical school has absolutely no admissions quotas based on race, sex, religion or father's occupation -- "contrary to rumors that such quotas exist".

TOPEKA CHILD
PSYCHIATRIST
AT 'U' FRIDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Dr. Lois Barclay Murphy of the department of child psychiatry of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kans., will answer the question, "How Do Children Manage to Get Along?" in a special lecture at 3:30 p. m. Friday (May 2) in Room 55 Ford hall at the University of Minnesota.

Sponsored by the institute of child development and welfare and the department of concerts and lectures, her talk is open free to the public.

A graduate of Vassar college and Columbia university, Dr. Murphy has taught at Sara Lawrence college, the Bank Street schools and City College of New York. Her research has been conducted with the Social Science Research council and the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis.

She has studied the nursery school experience of children, the development of sense of sympathy in young children, social relations of youngsters and, more recently, projective techniques and clinical methodology with disturbed youngsters.

Her talk Friday will be based on her research in the personality development of children -- how they meet trying experiences and the various techniques they use to cope with problems set for them by adults and other children.

Dr. Murphy's recent book, "Personality in Young Children", was published in two volumes.

KAISER $1500
FELLOWSHIP
AVAILABLE AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical corporation, Oakland, Calif., has established a graduate fellowship in business administration with the University of Minnesota school of business administration.

The fellowship of $1,500 plus tuition was established to provide financial aid for qualified graduate students interested in marketing and business administration. Although the initial grant is for one year, Kaiser intends to renew it in future years, according to Professor Robert J. Holloway, chairman of the University's department of business administration.

Graduate students who are presently enrolled or plan to enroll in business administration may apply for the grant by contacting Holloway, 115 Vincent hall. Applications must be submitted by May 15.

Applicants will be judged on the basis of their academic aptitude, vocational promise, character, leadership and financial need.

In announcing the grant, Holloway said, "The establishment of this grant by Kaiser is one of the several sources of financial aid available to graduate students who wish to take advantage of the new and expanded educational programs being instituted by the department of business administration at the University."

KUCM TO AIR
ANNIVERSARY
PROGRAMS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

University of Minnesota radio station KUOM will present a year-long schedule of programs commemorating its 20 years of expanded broadcasting on 770 kilocycles beginning Friday (May 2).

On that morning Burton Paulu, director of radio and television, will sign the station on at 10:30 a. m. as he did 20 years ago. At 3:30 p. m., he will be interviewed by Robert Boyle on "Background of the News".

WLB, as KUOM was called prior to 1945, began major radio activities in 1938 with an average program schedule of 40 hours per week. Previously the station broadcasted approximately 8 hours a week. Repeat programs recalling the station's history will be aired in addition to new programs with an anniversary theme.

Several former students and faculty members -- including Asher N. Christensen, political science professor, and E. W. Ziebarth, dean of the summer session -- will return to participate in the anniversary series.

'U' ENGINEERS'
OPEN HOUSE
BEGINS FRIDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Doors of the University of Minnesota's Institute of Technology will swing wide Friday and Saturday (May 2 and 3) when the institute will be host to the science-minded public at Centennial Engineers' Day Open House.

Dean Athelstan Spilhaus today joined student Engineers' Day planners, Jerry Gruenhagen, general chairman, and William D. Miller, open house chairman, in inviting everyone interested in engineering and scientific research to visit the institute on those days.

Beginning at 11 a.m. Friday, the open house throughout the institute will continue until midnight Friday night and will reopen at 9 a.m. Saturday. Closing time has been set as 1 p.m. Saturday.

Students and staff members are busy this week preparing exhibits and demonstrations in all of the institute's many departments including physics and chemistry. A comprehensive display of industrial exhibits is being set up on the drill floor of the University armory where a complete "ham" radio operation also will be demonstrated for visitors.

Among the scores of exhibits and demonstrations which guests will see are: wind tunnels, solar heating experiments, the Van de Graff generator -- one of the most powerful atom smashers of its type in the world -- the new gamma irradiation facility, the engines museum, automobile and tractor safety experiments, pilot ejection seats and capsules, the University's new sub-critical atomic reactor, demonstrations of the mass spectograph and induction furnace, a model taconite plant and a "hi-fi" demonstration.

High school classes will be taken on guided tours of the institute. Guide maps to the many exhibits will be furnished to visitors in the lobby of the main engineering building on Church street and in the armory at 17th and University avenues, S.E. Footsteps painted on sidewalks and arrows on corridor walls will lead from exhibit to exhibit.

To facilitate parking, visitors are urged to use the University parking ramp at Washington and Union streets, S.E., just across the street from the engineering quadrangle. Other parking lots are available within easy walking distance of the Institute of Technology buildings.

U LECTURESHIP
TO HONOR FORD,
FORMER PRESIDENT

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A new lectureship honoring Guy Stanton Ford, former University of Minnesota president, will be inaugurated next week when T. G. P. Spear, author and educator, delivers three talks on Indian history at the University.

His general theme will be "The Main Strands in Indian History" which he will review at 3:30 p. m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 6-8, in Murphy hall auditorium. Individual lecture topics on the three successive days will be "General Factors and Forces in Indian Life", "The British in India" and "The Indian National Movement".

A graduate of Cambridge university, Spear was in India from 1924 to 1945 at the University of Delhi teaching history, serving as head of that department and as dean of the faculty of arts. During World War II he served in the Indian government's information department. He then returned to Cambridge as a fellow and bursar of Selwyn college where he supervises the research of students working in Indian history.

Currently a visiting professor at the University of California, Berkeley, he has authored, "The Nabobs", "India, Pakistan and the West", "Delhi", and "The Twilight of the Moguls".

Ford served as history professor and dean of the graduate school from 1913-38, acting president in 1931-32 and 1937-38 and president from 1938-41. After retiring, he spent 12 years as executive secretary of the American Historical association and editor of the American Historical Review. Since 1953, he has been living in Washington, D.C.

Friends and colleagues of Ford established, in his name, the lectureship which will bring a speaker to the University annually.
