HEART HOSPITAL
ANDERSON FLOOR
TO BE DEDICATED

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The new fifth floor addition to the University of Minnesota Variety Club Heart Hospital will be dedicated as the "Arthur W. Anderson floor" Monday (Jan. 12) at a dinner on the University campus.

Joseph M. Podoloff, Minneapolis, chief barker of the Variety Club of the Northwest, will present the keys to the floor to University President J. L. Morrill at the 6:30 p. m. dinner in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union.

The Variety Club of the Northwest, composed of men from all branches of the entertainment world, this year celebrates its 25th anniversary and the 10th anniversary of the start of the hospital's construction.

Anderson, who will speak Monday (Jan. 12) evening, served as the Variety Club's chief barker in 1945, when the idea for the hospital was born, and again in 1946, 1950 and 1951, when the hospital was dedicated. He also was chairman of the Variety Club Heart Hospital committee from 1945 to 1955. Branch manager of the Minneapolis office of Warner Brothers Pictures Distributing corporation, Anderson lives at 3450 Dupont ave., S., Minneapolis.

The new floor will be devoted to research in the field of heart ailments. Exactly how it will be used will be explained by Dr. Robert B. Howard, dean of the University college of medical sciences. Other dinner speakers will be Governor Orville L. Freeman and George Eby, Pittsburgh, Pa., chief barker of Variety Clubs International.

Music will be provided by a quartet composed of University music school faculty members.

'U' PROFESSOR'S
ESSAY SELECTED
FOR RECOGNITION

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

An essay by Joseph J. Kwiat, University of Minnesota associate professor of English and interdisciplinary studies, has been selected by members of the Modern Language association as one of three "outstanding and influential articles" in the category of American literature, 1870-1957, to be published in the group's journal in the past 75 years.

The essay, "Dreiser's 'The Genius' and Everett Shinn, the 'Ash-Can' Painter", appeared in the journal, Publications of the Modern Language Association, in 1952. In it, Kwiat attempted to establish the relationship of American literature to American painting.

Selection of the top essays was based on "consideration of the total scholarly audience in the field, discovery of really important facts, new insights presented, significant interpretations made, manner of presentation and probable continued value or stimulus to scholars".

A member of the University staff since 1944, Professor Kwiat spent 1953 to 1955 in Germany as a Fulbright lecturer and scholar.

FILM OF INDIA
WILL BE SHOWN AT 'U' WEDNESDAY

"Incredible India" -- an all-color motion picture -- will be shown at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (Jan. 15) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Filmed and narrated by J. Michael Hagopian, the free public program is sponsored by the University department of concerts and lectures.

Hagopian, president of Atlantis Productions, Inc., Hollywood, spent two years in India while making this film, often living with the people and dressing as they do. He first went to India as visiting professor of international relations at Benares Hindu university. After receiving his doctorate at Harvard university, he also served on the faculties of the American University at Beirut, the University of California in Los Angeles and at Oregon State college. His film, "Asian Earth", has won top awards at various American film festivals.

The film includes highlights of Indian religion, history, industry, and agriculture and scenes of its principal cities and provinces.

Native dance festivals are pictured, as are the three most important culture festivals of Hindu life -- Dusserah, Divoli and Holi, Brahman festivals and the procession of a maharaja. Family life in the new India, its education and government will be depicted. The place of the sacred cow in Indian life will be explained; the Rameswaram temples, said to contain the tombs of Cain and Abel, will be shown; brocade weaving in Benares will be illustrated, and the locust invasion of the Ganges valley will be featured.

VERBRUGGE NAMED
ASSOCIATE DEAN OF 'U' INSTITUTE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Regents of the University of Minnesota today (Jan. 9) named Professor Frank Verbrugge, associate chairman of the school of physics, as associate dean of the Institute of Technology.

Effective July 1, Professor Verbrugge will succeed Professor Benjamin J. Lazan as chief assistant to Dean Athelstan Spilhaus. University President J. L. Morrill reported to the Regents that Dean Spilhaus recommended the change because Professor Lazan has requested that he be relieved of the associate deanship due to his greatly increased responsibilities as head of the combined departments which now form the department of aeronautical engineering.

Professor Verbrugge, who will remain on the school of physics faculty, joined the University staff July 1, 1956, following 10 years as physics professor and chairman of the Carleton college physics department.

A graduate of Calvin college, Grand Rapids, Mich., Professor Verbrugge earned his master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees at the University of Missouri.

The new associate dean has served as secretary of the American Association of Physics Teachers since 1956 and was elected president of the Minnesota Academy of Science in 1958. He was chairman of the steering committee of and presided over the Minnesota Industry-Education conference held in Duluth last November 12-15.

Born in Chandler, Minn., Professor Verbrugge, 45, is married and has four children. The Verbrugge family lives at 1787 Shryer ave., Roseville.

BIRDS' LANGUAGE TO BE EXPLAINED
AT 'U' SUNDAY

How birds communicate with one another will be told in word and picture Sunday (Jan. 18) in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota. The free public program, entitled "Sound, Color and Action -- The Language of Birds", will be presented at 3 p. m. in the Museum auditorium by Dwain W. Warner, University associate professor of zoology and the museum's curator of birds.

Explaining that to the man on the street a robin's song, scold or chirp is just that -- a song, a scold or a chirp -- Warner says it means much more to another bird, and this he will attempt to point out in his talk, which will be illustrated with sound films and slides. He will tell how birds communicate with each other through such things as songs, dances and the display of certain colors at certain times.

At the January 25 program, Museum Director Walter J. Breckenridge will show 35 millimeter entries in the Nature Salon competition sponsored by the Twin Cities Area Council of Camera Clubs.

'U' SKI TRAIN
GOING TO VIRGINIA
EARLY SATURDAY

Six hundred University of Minnesota skiers will board the annual Coffman Memorial Union Ski Train at 5 a. m. Saturday (Jan. 17) for Lookout Mountain at Virginia, Minn. The trip to the newly opened winter resort area on the Iron Range will be sponsored by Coffman Union board of governors.

While the annual University ski-trips have been known as "ski trains" for many years, this is the first time since the '40's that an actual train has been used -- bus trips to out of state points have been the rule. Ten passenger cars, a ski equipment and luggage car, a special car outfitted with a "combo" for dancing, plus a car equipped with a snack bar, will make up the train for use on the round trip.

Transportation, lodging, a smorgasbord supper in Virginia and a dance in the Virginia auditorium, in addition to special ski instructions for beginners will be included in the weekend "package deal" according to Ken Pankow, general chairman of the sponsoring group.

"One big attraction of Ski Train this year," Pankow said, "is that we'll be at the entirely new Lookout Mountain lodge. It opened just this year, and is equipped with a chair-lift plus the usual rope tows."

Special busses will convey students to the slopes from the railroad station in Virginia and back from the slopes for the evening entertainment. Arrangements have been made to accommodate students who wish to attend church services Sunday morning.

Leaving trackage near the University at 5 a.m. Saturday, the train will arrive in Virginia at 11:30 a.m. It will return to the Twin Cities Sunday (Jan.18) night arriving at 11 p. m.

'U' TO DEDICATE
NEW BUILDING
AS 'DIEHL HALL'

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, JANUARY 18)

Dr. Harold S. Diehl, dean emeritus of the University of Minnesota college of medical sciences, will be honored Thursday (Jan. 22) at a symposium on medical education and dedication of a new medical school building as "Diehl hall".

Dr. Diehl served as dean from 1935 until his retirement last June. He now lives in New York City, where he is senior vice president for research and medical affairs and deputy executive vice president of the American Cancer society.

Diehl hall, at Essex and Union streets S. E., across from the University hospitals and the Mayo building, will house the University's medical-biological library and medical research facilities. Construction began in July 1958, and the four-story, $2,750,000 building will be completed late next fall. Two of its four floors are below street level.

At the dedication dinner at 6:30 p. m. in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union, University President J. L. Morrill will unveil a plaque which will hang in the new building.

Appropriations from the State Legislature and contributions from the United States Public Health service, the University, foundations, corporations and private citizens made the new medical building possible.

In addition to Morrill, dinner speakers will include Dr. Diehl and Dr. Robert B. Howard, present dean of the college of medical sciences. Items representative of Dr. Diehl's leadership in the medical school will be placed in a copper box which will be set in the building's cornerstone.

The Thursday (Jan. 22) morning session of the symposium honoring Dr. Diehl will feature a discussion of the curriculum of a student's first two years in medical school. Dr. Maurice B. Visscher, professor and head of the University's department of physiology, will preside, and speakers at the 9 a. m. program in Mayo Memorial auditorium will be Dr. Robert F. Williams, assistant dean of the Western Reserve university school of medicine; Dr. Edward H. Kass, associate professor of bacteriology and immunology at Harvard medical school and assistant physician at Thorndike Memorial laboratory; and Dr. W. Barry Wood, Jr., vice president of the Johns Hopkins Medical institutions. Their talks will be followed by a panel discussion.

The student's last two years in medical school will be studied at the afternoon session at 1:30 p. m. Dr. Diehl will preside, and Drs. Wood, Kass and Williams again will speak. At 4 p. m., Dr. Lester R. Dragstedt, professor and head of surgery at the University of Chicago, will address the group.

Persons interested are invited to attend part or all of the symposium.

(FOR RELEASE TUESDAY, JANUARY 25)

Three oil paintings by B.J.O. Nordfeldt that have never been exhibited in this area — "Christ Walking on the Water", "Judas" and "Lazarus"— will highlight the Nordfeldt exhibition in the University of Minnesota gallery during the month of February. The Nordfeldt show will be hung in the fourth floor galleries of Northrop Memorial auditorium.

While the majority of the exhibition of 17 large oils, six watercolors and 13 etchings are being loaned to the gallery by Mrs. Nordfeldt who now makes her home in Lambertville, N.J., one large oil, "Flying Gull", painted by Nordfeldt in 1944, is being loaned for this show by Hudson Walker of New York. The two large oils owned by the University gallery, "Green Hills", painted in 1934, and "Still Life With Leaves", painted in 1947, are included in the show.

A painter and teacher of art at the Minneapolis School of Fine Arts for many years, Nordfeldt's work has been widely exhibited in this area, but this show will mark a local premiere for some of his late work done in the East shortly before his death in 1955.

Of Nordfeldt, Sheldon Cheney has written: "This Nordfeldt who fully found himself as a painter only in later years, became then one of the most original and rewarding of American artists. His vision, responding to the times, brought him to the edge of abstraction but not to non-objectivism. His originality lay in the way in which he gave the subject full and vigorous expression, even while the abstract design became the more compelling reason for the picture— a bit of magic belonging to this world and some other."

Focus on Talent---
FEDERAL GRANT TO 'U' PROVIDES
SUMMER GUIDANCE INSTITUTE FOR HIGH SCHOOL COUNSELORS

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1959)

Minneapolis --- The high school counselor's role in identifying scholastic talent and ways of improving educational and vocational planning for superior students will be focal points in a University of Minnesota counseling and guidance training institute June 15-July 17.

Making the institute possible is a $63,732 grant to the University from funds authorized by the National Defense Education Act passed by the Congress in 1958 and administered by the U.S. Office of Education. The grant was announced today (Jan. 21) by Lawrence G. Derthick, U.S. commissioner of education.

Participating in the institute, which will be held during the University's first summer session, will be 60 counselors and teachers preparing for guidance work to be selected from public high schools and a limited number of additional registrants from private high schools. Public school representatives, under terms of the grant, will be paid while attending the institute -- at the rate of $75 per week plus $15 per week for each dependent.

Three-fourths of the participants will be selected from Minnesota applicants and the rest from surrounding states and other parts of the nation.

Institute director will be Professor Willis E. Dugan, educational psychology department chairman in the University's College of Education. Specific purposes of the institute, according to Professor Dugan, are to provide participants the opportunity to:

1. Increase their competence in the identification of talent through the use and interpretation of state-wide tests and other appraisal techniques.
2. Develop professional understanding and essential skills in counseling with particular reference to talented youth.

(MORE)

3. Develop increased competence in the use of educational and vocational information needed in motivating and counseling superior students toward fuller utilization of their talents for professional and scientific careers.

4. Prepare plans for use within secondary schools for fuller use of scholarships and financial aids for superior students.

5. Analyze and evaluate methods for enrichment and acceleration of school courses and programs for superior students.

6. Plan to utilize curricular and guidance programs more fully in dealing with superior students.

7. Receive professional testing and individual counseling through the University's counseling services.

Plans for the institute have been worked out by an advisory committee representing the Minnesota Counselors association, the Minnesota Association of Secondary School Principals, the Minnesota Association of School Administrators, the State Department of Education and the University's Graduate school, College of Education, psychology department and dean of students office.

"Minnesota, in common with other states," Professor Dugan stated today, "urgently needs more and better qualified counselors in its secondary schools. The demand for counselors throughout the nation has increased well beyond the supply available from programs for preparing counselors. Increasing numbers of teachers are being assigned to counseling duties on a part-time basis. Most part-time teacher-counselors and many full-time counselors have only a minimum professional preparation for counseling duties."

Institute participants, according to Dugan, will be divided, according to training and experience, into two basic groups of 25 to 30 students each and a smaller advanced group. The basic groups will concentrate on principles, procedures and techniques, while the advanced group will devote full time to supervised counseling experience using as subjects Twin Cities and suburban high school students registered in the University high school's summer program in vocational testing and counseling.

(MORE)

One of the features of the institute will be a series of five special weekly lectures by outstanding speakers on the general topic: "Understanding the Talented Student".

Faculty for the counseling and guidance program will consist of seven experts who will serve as full-time instructors and a consultant staff of 14.

Since all of the instructional costs will be covered by the grant announced today, Professor Dugan explained, the usual University tuition charges will be waived for participants in the institute.

A leaflet describing the summer institute will be distributed on or about February 15, according to Dugan, to Minnesota high schools and state departments of education and leading colleges throughout the United States. Anyone interested in applying for selection as a participant may write for application forms to: Professor Willis E. Dugan, Director, Counseling and Guidance Training Institute, Burton Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"Secrets of Scotland Yard" will be revealed at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (Jan. 29) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Speaker will be Robert Fabian, former superintendent of Scotland Yard.

Since his retirement in 1949, Fabian has been writing a series of articles for the Kensley Papers in England and for American Weekly here. Author of two books -- "Fabian of the Yard" and "London After Dark" -- he currently is working on a third, "World Underworld". Thirty-nine films have been made of his exploits, and he makes numerous radio and television appearances both here and in England.

In 1940, he was decorated by His Late Majesty, King George VI, with the King's Police Medal for Gallantry -- equivalent in honor to the Victoria Cross -- for dismantling a bomb in Piccadilly Circus.

In his talk Thursday, Fabian will outline a complete murder hunt, from his assignment to the case to apprehension and conviction of the guilty party. He will conduct a behind-the-scenes tour of Scotland Yard, describing the finger print bureau, criminal record office and photographic section and disclosing recent scientific devices and methods used to trap criminals, and he will tell how the practiced eye of an accomplished sleuth can accurately pick out a suspect. Throughout his talk, he will use personal experiences to illustrate his accounts and to make his points.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Included in the University of Minnesota's student body this year are 880 foreign nationals from 71 countries enrolled on the Twin City campuses, at the Duluth Branch and at Mayo Foundation at Rochester, according to Josef A. Mestenhauser, acting foreign student adviser.

Leading the world-wide parade of nations with students enrolled at the University is China (Formosa) with 146 students. Canada is in second place with 107, India, third with 94, and Korea, with 88, is fourth in enrollment.

Fourteen countries in the world have one representative each at the University: Algeria, Ceylon, Costa Rica, Cyprus, Ethiopia, Finland, Peru, Poland, the Ryukyu Islands, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Tanganyika, Uruguay and Wales.

The 731 foreign students on Twin City campuses are classified as graduates, undergraduates or adult special students. Included are the 47 representatives of the University's student-exchange program with the National Seoul University of Korea. The University's Duluth Branch has 28 foreign students -- 27 from Canada and one from Korea -- and the Mayo Foundation, 121 graduate fellows from distant lands.

In addition to the 880 foreign students, Mestenhauser points out that there are 135 foreign nationals affiliated with the University on special programs: 9 honorary fellows -- former graduate students who have completed their degrees and are remaining at the University to study and observe; 38 practical trainees in industry -- former students who have completed the courses of study in their fields and now are gaining practical experience in industry before returning to their native countries; 62 faculty and staff members; and 27 affiliated with the University in special programs in the school of agriculture.

'U' OFFERS NIGHT
CLASSES IN WIDE
VARIETY OF SUBJECTS

Popular spring and summer activities are included in the more than 400 University of Minnesota evening classes to be taught spring semester which starts February 16 and continues through June 13. With the exception of a few specialized courses, classes will meet on the Minneapolis campus or in the University's St. Paul Extension Center, 555 Wabasha street.

Practical and stellar astronomy will introduce you to the constellations and individual stars, or, if bird watching interests you, a course on birds of Minnesota will be conducted by Walter J. Breckenridge, director of the Minnesota Museum of Natural History, and Harvey L. Gunderson, assistant scientist at the museum. The bird course will include Sunday morning field trips.

For the would-be gardener, there's home landscape planting and construction and also garden flowers and home gardening.

If it's culture you seek, register for "Enjoying Music", introduction to art or American Jazz. The latter course is designed for the amateur who wants to know more about jazz in order to understand it better and enjoy it more. You also can sign up for the University Symphony orchestra or the University chorus; contrary to popular belief, members need not be day school students.

Because of a successful first semester, a course on Latin America and Spain will be repeated, and a follow-up session, language and culture of Latin America and Spain, is offered. Both will be conducted in English. For a foreign language, try Italian, French, Spanish, Japanese, Russian, Swedish, Finnish or Norwegian. Also being taught are English for the foreign born and English as a second language.

If you wish to enlarge your vocabulary and increase its quality, there is a night course entitled "Vocabulary Building: How to Expand Your Word Power". Another class, in parliamentary procedures, provides training for group leadership.

A course in the government of the Soviet Union is scheduled, and four new courses for personnel of social work agencies have been added.

Registration for these and all other University night school classes opens Monday (Feb. 2) and closes Wednesday, February 11. You can register at the University's general extension division office on the Minneapolis campus, 57 Nicholson hall; in Minneapolis at 690 Northwestern Bank building; and in St. Paul at 555 Wabasha street.

HEART EDUCATION
DRIVE SLATED
AT 'U' NEXT WEEK

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

No money will be collected during this year's University of Minnesota heart education drive next week, but the University Residence Hall council, in sponsoring the event, aims to keep the campus population aware of the need to prevent and control heart disease.

Highlight of the week will be the showing of three color films about the heart. Dr. Ray C. Anderson, assistant professor of pediatrics will serve as master of ceremonies at the 11:30 a. m. program Wednesday (Feb. 4) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The film presentation is sponsored by the council and the department of concerts and lectures.

One of the films, "Heart Surgery", shows an actual open heart operation at the University of Minnesota and is narrated by Dr. C. Walton Lillehei, noted University heart surgeon.

Other films will be "Circulation of the Blood", an explanation of the action of the heart and the part played by the arteries, and "Pump Trouble", the story of Cordell Pump, a worried little man with slightly elevated blood pressure, and his recovery from an imagined heart attack.

A "Listen to Your Heart" machine will be in Coffman Memorial Union throughout the campus heart education drive next week, and students can use the machine to hear their own heartbeat. Also, heart education literature will be available at various points on the campus -- the library, Union and residence halls.

President of the University Residence Hall council and chairman of the drive is Ralph L. Rickgarn of Hadley.

MARTIN CAIDIN,
MISSILES EXPERT,
TO SPEAK AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Martin Caidin, missiles expert and former consultant to the commander of the Cape Canaveral Air Force Missile Test center, will speak at a University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. Thursday (Feb. 5) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. His subject will be "The War for the Moon".

At 31, Caidin is recognized as one of the nation's leading authorities on military, atomic, rocket, guided missile, aviation and science subjects. He is editor of Space Age and author of the syndicated newspaper column, "Countdown for Tomorrow". He recently received the Aviation Writers association's James J. Strebig memorial trophy as the outstanding book author in the aviation field.

When only 16 years old, Caidin was a senior member of the Aviation Writers association and editor of Air News and Air Tech, the two biggest aviation magazines to come out of World War II.

His first books, "Zero!" and "Samurai!", were the result of his two years in Japan with the United States Air Force intelligence following World War II. While serving five years as atomic warfare specialist with the New York state civil defense commission, he wrote his first four books on rockets, missiles and space travel.

Caidin also has published a documentary novel on atomic warfare, a major history of the U. S. Air Force and a detailed volume on this country's Project Vanguard. His articles and short stories have appeared in many national magazines.

Sponsor of the free public lecture is the University department of concerts and lectures.

GREEK THEATER
ACOUSTICS TOPIC
OF 'U' TALK FEB. 9

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"The Greek Theater and Its Acoustics" will be the topic of an illustrated archaeological lecture at 8:30 p. m. Monday, Feb. 9, in the University's Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium.

Professor Henry C. Montgomery, classics department chairman, Miami University, Oxford, O., will deliver the free, public lecture, second in the annual series sponsored by the Minnesota Society of the Archaeological Institute of America and the University departments of history, classics, anthropology and concerts and lectures.

An authority on Greek drama and music, Montgomery has traveled widely in Europe and in North Africa in his studies of the ancient theater. His lecture will be illustrated by color slides of ancient theaters as they appear today and reconstructions by means of architects' drawings showing the theaters of classical times and their ingenious devices for the amplification of sound which anticipated modern electronic devices.

RELEASED BY 'U'

"Counseling and the Use of Tests", a publication describing the Minnesota state-wide testing programs today, has been released by the University of Minnesota's student counseling bureau, according to an announcement by Ralph F. Berdie, University psychology professor and bureau director.

Contained in the book are descriptions of the tests used in the state-wide testing programs, instructions and suggestions for giving the tests to students and for using the tests in counseling, and information about admissions policies and procedures of Minnesota colleges.

Authors of the book, Ralph F. Berdie, Wilbur L. Layton and Edward O. Swanson, all of the staff of the student counseling bureau, emphasize the need for each school to know the abilities, achievements, interests and personalities of their students. Approximately 550 copies of the manual are being sent to the Minnesota colleges and high schools which participate in the state-wide testing program.

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, FEB. 8.)

The tenth annual Young People's Symphony Art project— interpretive works "done to music" by Twin City school children— is being exhibited at the University of Minnesota gallery during the month of February. The 400 pictures are hung in the fourth floor galleries in Northrop Memorial auditorium and in the first, second and third floor halls.

First proposed by Antal Dorati, Minneapolis symphony orchestra conductor, in 1949 to encourage a deeper sympathy and understanding for music, the art compositions help the students to realize that the arrangements of tonal values, rhythms and line in music and art form compositions. Interest in the exhibition has grown to such an extent that the limited number of compositions have had to be pre-rated among the population of the public, private, parochial, rural and urban schools in the Twin City area.

As the ages of the children participating in this music-art project range from kindergarten to 12th grade, no competition between the students is involved. Interesting work is chosen from each grade to represent individual schools. All work is then sent to the selection center where the final exhibition choice is made.

The project is sponsored by the Young People's Symphony committee, the Minneapolis Orchestral association and the University gallery. In Minneapolis the project has been under the direction of Mrs. Richard S. Davis, while Mrs. Robert Parlich has supervised the St. Paul participation.

"On Strings of Song"— a program of music for voice and the ancient psaltery— will present Folksongs Americana by the Fiddler Beers at a University of Minnesota convocation Wednesday (Feb. 11.)

The free public program will be presented at 11:30 a.m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium under the sponsorship of the University department of concerts and lectures. The program will include the plaintive "Rockin' Chair" songs and other rediscovered American ballads as well as Irish, Scotch, Negro and Calypso songs.

Fiddler Beers and his wife live in Montana where Beers not only makes frequent appearances as an old-time fiddler but also serves as a member of the Rocky Mountain college faculty in Billings and as concertmaster of the Billings Symphony orchestra.

In this concert Beers, who is not limited exclusively to the violin as a musical instrument, accompanies his wife on his quaint and beautiful sounding psaltery. The priceless old instrument owned by Beers is one of the finest and largest of its kind in the United States. The psaltery is the direct ancestor of the instruments in the piano family but has no keyboard and is played by plucking the strings.

The Beers have appeared on radio and television programs as well as at festivals and on college and university campuses throughout the country, and presented a Summer Session convocation at the University in July 1958.

McKINNEY PLAY
AT 'U' THEATER
STARTING FEB. 11

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"A Different Drummer" by Gene McKinney will be given its initial area production by the University of Minnesota Theater's Studio Theater at 8:30 p. m. Feb. 11-14 at Scott hall on the Minneapolis campus. A matinee performance will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15.

McKinney's play was chosen for production on the TV program "Omnibus" after a nationwide search for new plays by college and university playwrights. The author, then a student at Baylor university, Waco, Texas, has remained there and is now an instructor in playwrighting.

The title, "A Different Drummer" is taken from a quotation from Thoreau, "If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer".

John Ahart, University speech instructor, will direct this production by the Studio Theater. Tickets at $1 are on sale at the Scott hall box office.

KUOM TO PRESENT
'THE CLAVERINGS'
STARTING MONDAY

A dramatization of Anthony Trollope's novel, "The Claverings", will be broadcast by KUOM beginning Monday (Feb. 9) at 1 p. m. Trollope's light romance was adapted for broadcast by H. Oldfield Box of the British Broadcasting corporation, and the cast for the 13 half-hour programs is drawn from the BBC Drama Repertory company. "The Claverings" will be broadcast as a feature of KUOM's "Your Novel" program, heard every weekday at 1 p. m.

Trollope's story, first published in 1867, portrays the typical life of the Victorian landed gentry, their dinners, their flirtations and their matchmaking, their squabbles and their thoroughly matter-of-fact and unintellectual existence.

It chronicles the activities of a Barsetshire family with two branches -- the rector and his family, and his nephew Sir Hugh Clavering. Harry Clavering, the rector's son, has to choose between Florence Burton, to whom he is engaged, and his old love, Julia Brabazon, who had jilted him for a rich, dissolute lord, but now turns again to him in her wealthy widowhood.

The broadcast version of Trollope's novel was produced for the BBC by Peter Watts. The leading roles are taken by Howieson Culff, John Westbrook and June Tobin.

N Y TIMES EDITOR
TO CONDUCT FIRST
CASEY SEMINAR AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Turner Catledge, managing editor of The New York Times, will lead the first Ralph D. Casey seminar at the University of Minnesota school of journalism next week. The three-day seminar Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday (Feb. 9, 10 and 11) will be composed chiefly of informal discussion sessions and is a tribute to Casey, who retired last summer after 28 years as director of the school.

Next week's program is the first of five annual seminars provided by a gift to the journalism school from the Minneapolis Star and Tribune. Aimed at fulfillment of Casey's desire that students receive more than classroom experiences from their years in Murphy hall (the journalism building), the seminars will bring an eminent journalist to the campus annually for professional discussions with the journalism faculty and students.

Managing editor of The New York Times since 1951, Catledge started his newspaper career in Mississippi after graduating from Mississippi State college. He joined The Times staff in 1929, and after a year on the city staff, he went to Washington as a correspondent. He served in that capacity for 11 years, five of them as the paper's chief Washington correspondent. He left The Times in 1941 to become chief correspondent and later editor in chief of the Chicago Sun but returned to the New York paper two years later. With Joseph W. Alsop, Jr., he is author of "The 168 Days".

On Monday (Feb. 9), Catledge will tour Murphy hall and meet the journalism faculty, student editors and publication staffs, and an afternoon coffee hour is planned.

Students in editing classes will discuss news selection and editing with him Tuesday (Feb. 10) at 9:30 a.m. in Murphy hall auditorium. The afternoon session will feature discussion of news gathering and news reporting. At a noon luncheon, Catledge will describe "New York Without Newspapers" to members of the journalism honorary societies, Theta Sigma Phi, Sigma Delta Chi and Kappa Tau Alpha, and other honor groups.

The largest group of students is expected to hear Catledge at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday (Feb. 11), when he will discuss "Major Areas of Challenge to Newsmen on National and World Scene". He will be the guest of the Star and Tribune for lunch and will attend a graduate student seminar later that day.

Dinners and evening parties will enable Twin City newsmen and University faculty members from fields other than journalism to meet with Catledge.

TWO 'U' LABOR
CONFERENCES SET
LATER IN MONTH

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Two labor conferences to be conducted at the University of Minnesota later this month will bring to the campus outstanding personalities in the labor field.

The Industrial Relations Center's annual conference, this year on "Government Regulation and Union Responsibility", will meet Thursday and Friday, February 26 and 27, in Room 4 Mechanical Engineering building, and a conference on labor and world affairs entitled "Asia and World Peace" will be held Friday evening and Saturday, February 27 and 28, at the Center for Continuation Study.

Both sessions are sponsored by the University's Continuation Center, the Minnesota AFL-CIO Federation of Labor, the Minneapolis Central Labor Union and the St. Paul Trades and Labor Assembly. In addition, the Industrial Relations Center at the University presents the first conference, and the workers education department and the World Affairs Center cooperate in offering "Asia and World Peace".

The "Government Regulation and Union Responsibility" session will include discussions of the impact of the McClellan committee hearings, corruption and collusion in labor-management relations, government control of internal union affairs and the conflict of rights between unions, management and the public.

Luncheon speakers on Thursday and Friday (Feb. 26 and 27) will be Robert Moore, deputy director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation board, Washington, D. C., and Boyd Leedom, National Labor Relations board chairman, Washington, D. C.

Other guest speakers will include John Herling, syndicated labor columnist, Washington, D. C.; Jack Barbash, University of Wisconsin professor of economics and worker education, Madison; Agnes Douty, assistant director of Roosevelt university's labor education division, Chicago; Jules Pagano, Communication Workers of America director of education, and Ben Segal, International Union of Electrical Workers education director, Washington, D. C.; and Joseph Karth, U. S. representative from Minnesota's fourth district, St. Paul.

The "Asia and World Peace" conference will start with a 6 p. m. dinner Friday (Feb. 27) in the Campus Club of Coffman Memorial Union. Guest speaker William H. Stringer, chief of the Christian Science Monitor's Washington bureau, will comment on "U.S. and U.S.S.R. Policy in Asia". Brief addresses of greeting will be given by University President J. L. Morrill, U. S. Senator Hubert H. Humphrey and Carl Winn, St. Paul, regional director of the AFL-CIO.

At the Saturday session (Feb. 28), University Professors Jan O. M. Broek, geography, and Malcolm B. Stinson, social work, will discuss "Social and Economic Problems and Prospects in Southeast Asia" and "Human Problems and Development in India". The labor movement's contributions to the growth and development of Asia will be Winn's subject, and John E. Turner, associate professor of political science, will discuss "Policies of U. S. and U.S.S.R. in China".

Speaker at the conference luncheon will be Bill Kemsley, director of the U. S. office of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, New York. He will outline the development of free trade unions throughout the world.

Anyone interested in attending either session is invited to do so. Registration information can be obtained from the Center for Continuation Study, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn.

MUSEUM VISITORS
AT U OF M HEAR
PIGEON LORE

(FOR RELEASE MONDAY, FEBRUARY 9)

Before establishment of a government cable service between the Great Barrier Islands and Auckland in the Antipodes in 1908, commercial "Pigtongrams" served as communications for 11 years over the 65-mile route.

This bit of information was offered Sunday at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History on the University of Minnesota campus by Minneapolis attorney Arthur Wangaard in his discussion of pigeon racing.

Speaking at the museum's weekly public program, Wangaard explained that the racing of pigeons got its start in Belgium and has been that country's national sport since 1732, when the birds covered a three-mile race course in two and one-half hours. Today's racing homer, he said, has been bred for speed and endurance over the past 200 years and, under moderate weather conditions, would cover the same distance in five to seven minutes.

Wangaard is one of some 30,000 homing pigeon breeders in the United States and a member of one of the Twin Cities area's six racing pigeon clubs. There are two national groups -- the American Racing Pigeon Union and the International Federation -- and they hold a joint convention annually.

However, he added that the sport is more advanced in Europe and enjoys much popularity in the British Isles, Africa, Australia, Japan and Formosa as well as in Belgium, where today approximately 33,000 races are held annually for valuable prizes and trophies.

Typical of the great majority of pigeon enthusiasts, the Minneapolis lawyer became interested in his hobby as a boy. Pigeon racing attracts few adult newcomers, he said, adding that juvenile clubs are active throughout the country and that the Boy Scouts of America offer a merit badge for pigeon raising.

Today's homing pigeon was developed in Belgium more than 100 years ago by blending several varieties -- probably, according to Wangaard, the carrier pigeon, the extinct horseman pigeon and the owl pigeon, used because of its "marvellous powers of flight and an intelligence of the highest order".

He stressed that the beautifully plumaged homing pigeon, capable of flying 600 miles a day to its home loft, is not to be confused with the street pigeon found strutting outside our public buildings.

Explaining the sport's popularity, Wangaard quoted Roger Tory Peterson, author of "A Field Guide to the Birds" -- "Men are interested in birds because they symbolize a degree of freedom that we would nearly give our souls to have. . . It is an antidote for the disillusionment of today's world, a world beset by pressures it has never before known".

Wangaard used slides to illustrate his talk.

CONANT TO PLAY
'U' RECITAL FEB. 26
ON HARPISCHORD

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Robert Conant, one of the leading exponents of the harpischord, will give a recital Thursday, Feb. 26, in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium on the University of Minnesota campus. The 8:30 p. m. recital is open to the public, but free tickets must be obtained from the box office in Scott hall, due to the limited seating capacity of the hall, according to Professor Paul M. Oberg, music department head.

A graduate of Yale university and the Yale school of music, Conant studied the harpischord with Robert Kirkpatrick and has taught at Yale. He made his debut in New York City's Town hall and played in Carnegie hall. He has made several tours of the United States and Canada and has been guest artist with the American Bach society.

Assisting Conant in the recital will be a local string ensemble featuring Shirley Thomson, violinist and Bernard Birnbaum, flautist.

Bach's "^Partita in B flat major" and "Fantasia in C minor" will open the harpischord program, and will be followed by the main event of the evening, Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto". After the intermission Conant and the string ensemble will play five sonatas by Scarlatti.

The concert is jointly sponsored by the University music department and the department of concerts and lectures.

MUSEUM SUNDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays", the Bell Telephone company's color film originally produced for television, will be shown Sunday (Feb. 15) at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota. The weekly free public program will be at 3 p. m. in the museum auditorium.

Using actors -- Richard Carlson and Dr. Frank Baxter -- animation, cartoon caricatures and puppets, the movie shows how scientists work to tract down cosmic rays and establish their character and behavior. Frank Capra produced and directed the film.

The museum's February 22 program will feature the "Cottontail Rabbit".

UNIVERSITY GALLERY
TO SHOW CHAGALL
WORKS IN MARCH

A group of forty signed lithographs and etchings by the Franco-Russian artist Marc Chagall will be hung in the University of Minnesota gallery during March. The prints, sent here from the Roten gallery, Baltimore, will be displayed in the third and fourth floor galleries in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The illustrations in this exhibit come from the "Dead Soul" series, the "Bible" series, "Falbes de la Fontaine" and the "My Life" series.

Born in Russia in 1887, Chagall studied under the famous Russian artist, L. N. Bakst. As a youth, he traveled to Paris where he fell under the spell of the then popular experimentations in cubism which he soon overlaid with his own expressionistic style. Since then, he has become a fore-runner of the surrealism and hyper-realism school, and, more recently, a fantasist. His paintings and prints are to be found in all of the major art collections of the world.

Chagall's art is childishly gay and emotional -- with some reference to Freudian ideas. Though sometimes awkward and without composition, generally his paintings and prints are filled with an almost infantile recollection of Slavic and Jewish fairy tales. Peeking through his adult mind from the fantasy of his childhood in Russia, people, cows and buildings float in the sky, heads look in several directions at once, woods and fields are filled with secret toy-like people and animals -- strange light illuminates these dreams.

SCHMITT NAMED
SPACE TRAVEL
BIOLOGY CHIEF

Otto H. Schmitt, University of Minnesota professor of zoology and physics (biophysics), has been named chairman of the executive council of the newly-organized Armed Forces-National Research Council Committee on Bio-Astronautics. His appointment was announced this week by Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council.

Professor Schmitt will head the nine-member executive council, which will be responsible for the committee's policy decisions and the programming of its activities. The entire committee of more than 100 members will advise the Armed Forces, upon their request, in any matter concerning the biological or medical aspects of space exploration. It will serve as a conference or forum of active investigators, meeting periodically to review scientific and technical problems, exchange information and establish liaison between investigators with allied interests.

Supported under the terms of a contract between the Air Force and the National Academy of Sciences, the committee will operate under the administration of the Academy-Research Council's division of medical sciences.

TALKS ON FISH
SCHEDULED AT 'U'
FRIDAY, MONDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Two lectures on fish are scheduled Friday (Feb. 13) and Monday (Feb. 16) by the University of Minnesota zoology department. Guest lecturers will present both programs, which are open to the public at no charge.

At 3:30 p. m. Friday (Feb. 13) in Room 313 Zoology building, Shelby D. Gerking, Indiana university zoology professor, will discuss "The Physiological Approach to the Problem of Fish Production".

A University of Minnesota graduate, James C. Underhill, assistant professor of zoology at the University of South Dakota, will present Monday's (Feb. 16) lecture on "The Post-Glacial Distribution of Freshwater Fishes" at 3:30 p. m. in Room 313 Zoology building.

Underhill received his bachelor of arts degree in 1949 from the University's Duluth branch and took his graduate work in zoology on the Minneapolis campus, earning his master of arts degree in 1952 and his doctor of philosophy degree in 1955.

ADMINISTRATION

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Midwestern hospital administrators will get tips in personnel management from men in industry at their annual institute next week at the University of Minnesota. Meeting Monday through Friday (Feb. 16-20) in the Center for Continuation Study, the session will be presented by the University with the cooperation of the Minnesota Hospital association and the American College of Hospital Administration of Chicago.

On Wednesday (Feb. 18), four Minnesota businessmen will explain the personnel practices of their organizations, and the hospital administrators will follow this with a discussion of how these methods could be applied in their hospitals. Businessmen participating will be James Claydon, personnel officer, Mayo Clinic, Rochester; and William Patterson, president of the M. F. Patterson Dental Supply company; Thomas Maetzold, director of personnel, Farmers and Mechanics Bank; and Carl Malmborg, director of group insurance annuities, Pillsbury company, all of Minneapolis.

Special emphasis will be given to rural hospital problems at this year's institute, and much time will be devoted to group discussions, enabling the administrators to share ideas and experiences. Half-day sessions on Monday and Tuesday (Feb. 16 and 17) will be concerned with general administration, legal aspects, accounting and nursing.

Visiting faculty members will be John M. Danielson, administrator of Evanston hospital, Evanston, Ill.; James A. Anderson, superintendent of Lutheran hospital, Fort Dodge, Ia.; F. Gordon Davis, public relations director, Cleveland Hospital Service association; John F. Harty, director of hospital law research study, University of Pittsburgh; and Colonel Frederick H. (FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The newly-organized University of Minnesota College of Science, Literature and the Arts and University College Alumni association will hear a report on Russia from six SLA faculty members at its first meeting at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, February 19, in the junior ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union.

Following the dinner meeting, "Our Impressions of Russia" will be presented by E. W. Ziebarth, dean of the summer session; John R. Borchert, professor and geography department chairman; Robert T. Holt and John E. Turner, political science professors; William S. Howell, professor and speech department chairman; and Thomas F. Magner, professor and Slavic language department chairman. These men and five other Minnesota educators spent a month in Russia last fall under terms of a Hill Family Foundation grant.

A short business meeting also will be conducted. A constitution will be adopted and a board of directors will be elected. Carroll K. Michener, Minneapolis, is chairman for the organization committee.

The College of Science, Literature and the Arts and University College Alumni association will be the twelfth group formed by individual University schools and colleges under the auspices of the Minnesota Alumni association.

Dinner reservations can be made at the University Alumni association office, Room 205 Coffman Memorial Union, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minn. The cost of the meal will be $2.50.

U OF M TO HONOR
HUMPHREY, MORSE
ON CHARTER DAY

(FOR RELEASE WEEK OF FEBRUARY 16)

Minneapolis --- United States Senators Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Wayne L. Morse of Oregon are among four University of Minnesota graduates who will be recognized for their distinguished achievements in Charter Day activities Thursday (Feb. 26) on the University campus.

Recipients of the University's Outstanding Achievement Award, in addition to the two Democratic senators, will be Levon West, New York City, photographer and etcher whose professional name is Ivan Dmitri, and Carlyle R. Carlson, Jr., vice president in charge of marketing, Deere and Company, Moline, Ill. The presentations will be made by University President J. L. Morrill at the annual alumni honors luncheon Thursday (Feb. 26) noon in the Coffman Memorial Union main ballroom.

The Charter Day convocation, celebrating the University's 108th birthday, will precede the luncheon at 11:30 a.m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium. This year's program, "World Beneath Your Feet", will feature the research work of University Physics Professor Alfred O. C. Nier, the first man to isolate U-235, an isotope of uranium, a discovery which proved an important milestone in the development of the practical use of atomic energy.

Purpose of the program, according to its author and director, Roger D. Gross, speech instructor, is to illustrate that matters of international import frequently get their start in research at the University. The musical program will feature a dance sequence on the evolution of atomic theory. Special music was written for the convocation by Russell D. Walsh, teaching assistant in music, and it will be played by Colman Hechter, University senior, and his instrumental group.

Exhibits in Twin Cities, suburban and Duluth business windows next week will tell the University's story of progress in such fields as engineering, education and art and will include models of the University's three campuses, a cosmic ray balloon, an actual beehive and nursing uniforms worn through the years.

More than 50 faculty and staff members take University of Minnesota Week out in the state through talks before alumni clubs and civic and fraternal groups. These talks began late in January and are scheduled through March to accommodate meeting schedules.

University of Minnesota Week is sponsored annually by the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce and the University of Minnesota Alumni association.

ORIGIN OF MAMMALS TO BE SUBJECT OF
'U' LECTURE MONDAY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A University of Chicago geologist will trace "The Origin of Mammals" in a lecture honoring the Darwinian Centennial Monday (Feb. 16) evening at the University of Minnesota.

Professor Everett C. Olson, associate dean of the physical sciences at the University of Chicago, will speak at 8 p. m. in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium. The free public lecture is sponsored by the Minnesota chapter of Sigma Xi, national honorary scientific fraternity.

Olson will discuss the evolution of mammals from primitive reptiles, a subject on which he has studied extensively. He will report new discoveries in this field, which covers a time span of from 250 million to 180 million years ago, when mammal-like reptiles were evolving on all continents.

A fellow in the Geological Society of America and a member of the Society of Vertebrate Paleontologists, Olson also is director of the University of Chicago's interdepartmental program in paleozoology. He recently served five years as editor of the publication "Evolution".

MUSEUMS TRADE
NATIVE MAMMALS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

In an exchange of native mammal specimens with the National Museum of Victoria in Melbourne, Australia, the Minnesota Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota has added three skins, a skeleton and a skull to its permanent collection.

The new acquisitions include the skin and skeleton of a spiny ant eater, a porcupine-like egg-laying mammal found only in the Australia region; the skin of a scrub wallaby, a kangaroo the size of a jack rabbit; the skin of a flying phalanger, the pouched equivalent of the flying squirrel; and the skull of a wombat, a pouched animal similar to the woodchuck. These specimens will be used in demonstrations and teaching exhibits.

In return, the Minnesota museum sent to Australia skins and skulls of the timber wolf, pocket gopher, flying squirrel, short-tailed shrew and several species of mice.

Of special interest to the museum staff here is the spiny ant eater, one of the small group of egg-laying mammals. Coarse quills cover its back, it has no teeth, and the male (the museum received a male) has spurs and a poison gland not found on the female. It is found only in Australia, Tasmania and New Guinea, according to Harvey L. Gunderson, assistant scientist at the museum, and this region also is the headquarters for the pouched animals received in the exchange.

U OF M PROFESSOR
NAMED USC
SOCIAL WORK DEAN

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1959)

Effective April 1, Malcolm B. Stinson, University of Minnesota professor in the school of social work, will become dean of the University of Southern California school of social work, it was announced today (Feb. 15) by President Norman Topping of USC.

He will succeed Arlien Johnson, who will retire in June from the USC faculty after heading the school of social work for nearly 20 years.

Stinson has been a member of the University staff since 1949, when he came here to study for his doctor of philosophy degree after four years on the University of Pittsburgh faculty. He received his degree in December of 1951 and promptly became an associate professor in the school of social work. His previous experience included ten years in public welfare work in Missouri and Illinois and six years as regional research consultant for the Federal Security agency. He is a graduate of Wittenberg college, Springfield, Ohio, and the University of Chicago as well as the University of Minnesota.

He returned last year from India, where he spent two years as an adviser on social work education. He was director of the St. Paul Family Unit Report Study project and has held numerous research consultant positions and civic research committee memberships.

Mr. and Mrs. Stinson and their four children live at 126 Arthur Ave. S. E., in Minneapolis.

ELEVEN MIDWEST SCHOOLS GRANT
MORE THAN FOURTH OF ALL PH.D.
DEGREES AWARDED THROUGHOUT U.S.

(FOR RELEASE WEDNESDAY, FEB. 18, 1959)

Minneapolis --- Although they number less than 1 per cent of the colleges and universities in the United States and enroll only 7 per cent of the nation's college students, the 10 member universities of the Western Conference ("Big Ten") plus the University of Chicago award 27 per cent of all doctor of philosophy degrees granted in this country, R. E. Summers, University of Minnesota dean of admissions and records, reported today.

Among them, the 11 universities grant 8 per cent of all bachelor's degrees and 15 per cent of all master's degrees, and they award a total of 10 per cent of all degrees granted by American colleges and universities.

Dean Summers cited a new report compiled for the Big Ten and University of Chicago Admissions Officers and Registrars by C. E. Harrell, Indiana university registrar, who based his study on enrollments and degrees awarded during the 1956-57 academic year at the Universities of Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and Chicago and Indiana, Michigan State, Northwestern, Ohio State and Purdue universities.

In the year studied, all U. S. institutions of higher education enrolled a total of 2,946,985 students of whom 226,032 were registered at the Western Conference schools and Chicago. That year, a total of 8,666 doctor's degrees (exclusive of medical and dental degrees) were awarded throughout the country with the Big Ten institutions and Chicago granting 2,382 of these. Figures for the current (1958-59) academic year would be quite comparable, Dean Summers said.

PHD DEGREES

Of the 2,382 doctor of philosophy degrees awarded by the 11 schools the year of the study, 239 -- just over a tenth -- were granted by the University of Minnesota. In addition that year, the University of Minnesota granted 110 doctor of medicine degrees, 78 doctor of dental surgery degrees, 48 doctor of veterinary medicine degrees, 892 master's degrees, 3,254 bachelor's degrees and 504 two-year degrees for a total of 5,125.

Among them, the 11 midwestern schools -- all but two of which (Northwestern and Chicago) are state universities -- awarded the following percentages of the nation's doctoral degrees in various fields of study:

Agriculture, 42.86; biological sciences, 32.82; business and commerce, 46.24; education, 22.45; engineering, 28.69; English and journalism, 27.68; fine and applied arts, 39.02; geography, 36.17; health professions, 56.67; foreign languages and literature, 25.58; forestry, 19.23; home economics, 21.74; and library science, 88.89.

Considering all academic degrees granted by all institutions, the 11 schools awarded nearly one-fifth (19.02 per cent) of the nation's degrees in agriculture and the following percentages of all degrees in several other fields of study: library science, 16.07; health professions, 16.04; geography, 15.84; architecture, 14.85; fine and applied arts, 14.08; forestry, 13.93; engineering, 13.64; biological sciences, 12.63; home economics, 12.27; psychology, 11.79; and law, 10.56.

With several land grant institutions, including Minnesota, among the Big Ten, it is "not surprising" that so many Western Conference students earn degrees in agriculture, Dean Summers commented, adding "but the statistics point up how these institutions span the entire range of advanced learning -- training top scientists, teachers and scholars. Each is a complex university with a strong liberal program at its core and offering advanced, graduate and professional study and research in many fields of knowledge".

TO SPEAK AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Anthropologist, author and lecturer Margaret Mead will speak Tuesday (Feb. 24) at a special University of Minnesota convocation at 11:30 a. m. in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Her subject will be "From the South Seas to Modern America".

The public is invited to attend the free lecture which is sponsored by the University department of concerts and lectures.

Well known for her studies of primitive cultures and problems of contemporary society, Miss Mead is associate curator of ethnology at the American Museum of Natural History of New York and adjunct professor of anthropology at Columbia university. She also is president-elect of the American Anthropological association.

Miss Mead, who spoke to a standing-room-only audience last March in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium, has written nine books and co-authored and edited others. Her most recent book, "New Lives for Old" is a restudy of a primitive community in the Admiralty Islands which she wrote about in 1935 in "Growing Up in New Guinea".

Through her studies of these South Seas cultures, she also is interested in the further development of cultural theories of human behavior.

She was recognized by the Associated Press as the "Outstanding Woman of the Year" in the field of science in 1949, and has received the women geographer's medal and a national achievement award.

Four University of Minnesota High school seniors and one former student have reached the finals of the 1958-59 National Merit Scholarship program, it was announced today by Robert J. Keller, University education professor and high school director.

The five students, who received certificates of merit in recognition of their academic promise, are Janet Darley, 1550 E. River Terrace; Kathleen Hall, 2419 E. Lake of the Isles blvd.; Barret Hansen, 1963 S. Sheridan ave.; George Koehler, 50 S. E. Melbourne ave.; and Barbara Reisman, 69 Arthur ave., S. E., all of Minneapolis. Kathleen Hall left University High school last fall upon her acceptance for early admission to Jackson college, Medford, Mass.

These students are among 10,000 who distinguished themselves by their high scores on the two college aptitude tests used in the national competition. Final judging is now in progress, and some 700 of these will be named "merit scholars" about May 1. They, and the colleges they have chosen, will share in $3.5 million in Merit Scholarship funds offered by more than 80 organizations and individuals.

Names of certificate of merit winners also are sent to some 1,500 colleges, universities and other scholarship-granting agencies, and, in the past three years of the program, these sources have been responsible for an additional $2.5 million in freshman scholarships annually.

Selection of merit scholars is based on high school grades, leadership, citizenship and extra-curricular activities, as well as test scores. The four-year scholarships range from $100 to $1,500 a year, depending on the need of the individual.

The fifth annual program will begin April 28, 1959, with the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test, to be given in an estimated 15,000 high schools.

NEW ZEALANDER
TO GIVE KELLER
LECTURE AT U OF M

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Selection of the speaker for the first annual Louis F. Keller lectureship in physical education to be held at 8 p. m. Sunday (March 1) in the auditorium of the Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota was announced today by Clarence Osell, chairman of the committee in charge. He is Philip A. Smithells, director of physical education at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

Smithells' topic will be "Physical Education and Sports in Education".

A native of Leeds, England, Smithells attended Cambridge university from which he graduated in 1932 with honors in English and economics. He received his master of arts degree from Cambridge in 1935. He was founder and first president of the Cambridge University Education society. Both as an undergraduate and a graduate, Smithells excelled in athletics and was particularly accomplished in crickets, football and lacrosse.

Smithells has become world-famed both as an author and lecturer in the field of physical education. In 1939, he presided as chairman of the Second World Congress on University Physical Education at Zurich, Switzerland. In 1955 he received the Carnegie Corporation Travel award to the United States and was guest lecturer at 10 Canadian and eight United States Universities. In 1956, he was the opening speaker at the World Congress of Physical Education at Melbourne university, Australia.

The lectureship under whose auspices Smithells will appear is named in honor of Professor Louis F. Keller who will retire June 30 after 35 years on the staff of the department of physical education and athletics at the University of Minnesota. Funds for the lectureship are being raised through gifts earmarked for the Keller Lectureship.

Smithells' lecture will be open to the public without charge.

'U' MAN AUTHOR
OF POPULATION
CONTROL VOLUME

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Professor Reuben Hill, director of the University of Minnesota Family Study Center, is author, with two other educators, of a 481-page book, "The Family and Population Control", recently published by the University of North Carolina Press at Chapel Hill, N. C.

Other authors of the book, subtitled "A Puerto Rican Experiment in Social Change", are J. Mayone Stycos, Cornell university, and Kurt W. Back, University of North Carolina.

The book describes a research program for understanding and controlling the fertility aspects of population growth. The social and cultural characteristics of Puerto Rico are considered in the presentation of results of a survey of some 900 childbearing families. The study concludes by pointing out implications of the findings for society in general, and it proposes a program through which Puerto Rico can control its population problem.

In 1956, a preliminary release of the findings described in the book won the Helen L. DeRoy Award of the Society for the Study of Social Problems as the best research of the year on a social problem.

Hill was general director of the Family in Puerto Rico Project from 1951 to 1957 and served as resident director in 1953 and 1954. Before joining the University of Minnesota faculty in 1957, he was professor of sociology and research professor in the University of North Carolina institute for research in social science.

His other books include "The Family, A Dynamic Interpretation" (with W. Waller), "When You Marry" (with E. Duvall) and "Families Under Stress", a study of family adjustments to war separation and reunion.

'U' TO OBSERVE
108th BIRTHDAY
ON 'CHARTER DAY'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The University of Minnesota will observe its 108th Charter Day Thursday (Feb. 26) with a convocation in Northrop Memorial auditorium and an alumni honors luncheon in Coffman Memorial Union.

The convocation, "World Beneath Your Feet", will pay tribute to the research of Physics Professor Alfred O. C. Nier, first man to isolate U-235, an isotope of uranium. The musical program will be at 11:30 a. m. in Northrop auditorium.

At the luncheon in the Union main ballroom following the convocation, four distinguished graduates will receive the University's Outstanding Achievement Award. They are United States Senators Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Wayne L. Morse of Oregon; Levon West, New York City, photographer and etcher whose professional name is Ivan Dmitri, and Carlyle R. Carlson, Jr., vice president in charge of marketing, Deere and Company, Moline, Ill. University President J. L. Morrill will make the presentations, and previous OAA winners will be luncheon guests.

Purpose of the morning convocation, according to its author and director, Roger D. Gross, speech instructor, is to illustrate that matters of international import frequently get their start in research at the University. Professor Nier's isolation of U-235 proved an important milestone in the development of the practical use of atomic energy. The convocation will include a dance sequence on the evolution of atomic theory.

During University Week, February 22 to 28, exhibits in Twin Cities, suburban and Duluth business windows will tell the University's story of progress, and faculty and staff members will do the same, speaking before alumni clubs and civic and fraternal groups throughout the state.

W. C. AG SCHOOL
BUILDING NAMED
'EDSON HALL'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Naming of the administration building at the West Central School of Agriculture and Experiment Station at Morris "Edson Hall" in honor of Allen Edson, former superintendent, who died last September, was announced today by University of Minnesota President J. L. Morrill. Mr. Edson had served on the school staff since 1922.

The action honoring the late Mr. Edson was authorized by the University's Board of Regents in the recommendation of the University Committee on Honors, President Morrill reported.

Three other former University staff members are being similarly honored, according to President Morrill:

The University library on the Minneapolis campus henceforth will be known as "Walter Library"---named for Frank K. Walter who served as University librarian from 1921-43 and who died in 1945.

In honor of former Superintendent Thomas M. McCall of the Northwest School of Agriculture and Experiment Station at Creekston, the girls' dormitory at the school has been named "McCall Hall". Superintendent McCall retired in 1956 after having served on the University faculty since 1911.

"Boss Field" is the name given to the athletic field at the Southern School of Agriculture at Waseca as a tribute to the memory of the famed University agronomist, Professor Andrew Boss, noted for his development of outstanding varieties of corn. Professor Boss, who died in 1947, served on the University staff from 1891 until his retirement in 1935.

The General Platoff Don Cossack Chorus and dancers, now making their 20th anniversary tour of the United States, will appear at the University of Minnesota convocation Thursday (March 5) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. The White Russian singers and dancers will appear at 11:30 a.m. and at 12:30 p.m. in two separate performances.

Membership in the Don Cossack Chorus has always comprised the best of vocal talent and dancers obtainable among White Russian emigres who fought Communism in Russia. The Cossacks, all of them now American citizens, were organized in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and made their debut in Vienna in 1927. Their first American concert was held at the San Francisco World's Fair in 1927. Many of the chorus are United States Army veterans from World Wars I and II.

Comparable with the singing of the chorus is the wild Cossack dancing—the Leginka, in which the dancer juggles 10 knives while whirling about the stage, and the Kozatchok, in which a dozen men join, each vying with the others, in spectacular leaps and whirls.

The public is invited to this concert sponsored by the University's department of concerts and lectures.

'U' NAMES 3 BUILDINGS, FIELD;
HONORS FORMER STAFF MEMBERS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Naming of three University of Minnesota buildings and an athletic field for former University faculty members was announced today by President J. L. Morrill.

In honor of Frank K. Walter, University librarian from 1921 to 1943, the University library will be known from now on as "Walter Library", the president reported. Walter died in 1945.

Allen Edson, former superintendent of the West Central School of Agriculture and Experiment Station at Morris, died last September. The administration building at the school now has been named "Edson Hall" in his honor. Edson had been on the school staff since 1922.

Honoring another former superintendent, Thomas M. McCall, who retired in 1956 as head of the Northwest School of Agriculture and Experiment Station at Crookston, the University has given his name to the girls' dormitory at the Crookston school. McCall, who first went to work for the University in 1911, lives in Crookston.

"Boss Field" is the name given to the athletic field at the Southern School of Agriculture at Waseca as a tribute to the memory of the famed University agronomist, Professor Andrew Boss, who died in 1947. Noted for his development of outstanding varieties of corn, Professor Boss served the University from 1891 until his retirement in 1935.

'U' INSTITUTE TOPIC

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MARCH 1, 1959)

Ways of releasing tension in today's fast-moving world will be suggested at a University of Minnesota physical education institute Friday and Saturday (March 6 and 7) on the Minneapolis campus.

The session, "Release of Tension and Modern Living", is sponsored by the University's department of physical education for women and the general extension division.

At 7:30 p. m. Friday (March 6) in Murphy hall auditorium, the first session will be a discussion of "Concepts Basic to Release of Tensions Through Exercise". Dr. Miland E. Knapp, director of physical medicine and rehabilitation at the Elizabeth Kenny Institute, Minneapolis, will emphasize physical and motor readiness, and Dr. Ralph Rossen, L. E. Phillips Fund for Psychobiological Research, Mt. Sinai Hospital, Minneapolis, will stress emotional and mental readiness for relaxation. A discussion period will follow their presentations.

The speakers will be introduced by Gertrude M. Baker, director of the University department of physical education for women.

"The Exercise Approach to Release of Tension" will be presented at the Saturday (March 7) session. At 9:15 a. m., Valerie V. Hunt, University of California associate professor of physical education, will give a demonstration-lecture in Room 153 Norris gymnasium. Marjorie U. Wilson, University associate professor of physical education, will preside.

Registration for the institute can be made half an hour before each program at the site of the lecture, or it can be made in advance by writing the General Extension Division, 54 Nicholson Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14, Minnesota. There is a charge of $1 for each session.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The economic development of the Philippines, neglected for 300 years, is the major concern of the research programs of the University of the Philippines, according to Dr. Antonio Isidro, the university's vice president for academic affairs, who is visiting the University of Minnesota this week.

"We are attempting to tie up the resources of our university to the needs of our country and to provide the leadership essential to our economic survival," Dr. Isidro asserted Monday (March 2). As vice president for academic affairs, he directs his school's instructional and research work.

Under a leadership grant from the United States Department of State, Dr. Isidro is visiting American universities from coast to coast on a 60-day tour examining research facilities and programs and visiting with university officials. On the tour, he reported, he is following up on recommendations made last year by a three-man survey team of American educators which made a study of his institution at Quezon City.

Host to Dr. Isidro at the University of Minnesota is William T. Middlebrook, vice president for business administration, who was a member of the survey team.

'U' ARTIST'S WORKS
SELECTED FOR TOUR

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

The works of Walter Qirt, University of Minnesota associate professor of art, have been selected to appear in a traveling retrospective exhibition, starting next fall, according to a recent announcement of the American Federation of Arts.

Qirt is one of 12 artists over 40 years of age to be so honored by the federation. All exhibitions will be arranged under a grant from the Ford Foundation.

Each display will be selected by an authority from the artist's entire body of work so as to show the growth and development of his artistic career. An illustrated definitive catalog will be produced to travel with the exhibition.

Qirt's exhibit will open at the University Gallery in the fall. In accordance with the aims of the Ford Foundation's program in the humanities and the arts, it then will be offered at low cost to smaller art centers where exhibitions of this scope are not ordinarily shown. After one year, it will be made available to museums of any size throughout the country.

A University staff member since 1947, Qirt previously spent 17 years in New York. He is recognized as a pioneer in American abstract art. The University Gallery displayed a one-man show of his paintings in January.

PEOPLE ARE NOT
'ACCIDENT PRONE',
DOCTOR SAYS AT 'U'

(FOR RELEASE 9:30 A. M. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1959)

Minneapolis ---

There is no such thing as an "accident prone" individual, Dr. John H. Foulger told a University of Minnesota advanced safety engineering institute this morning (Wednesday, March 4) at the Center for Continuation Study.

Rather, he said, all of us, while suffering from the physiological effects of certain stresses, are liable to an accident when placed in a hazardous situation. Dr. Foulger is director of medical research for E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Incorporated, Wilmington, Dela.

An accident occurs, according to Dr. Foulger, "when a vulnerable individual meets a hazardous situation". Everyone, in his lifetime, has many occasions in which he is vulnerable, he said, adding, "The fact that we do not meet a hazardous situation reduces our liability to accident".

In an effort to learn the effects of the physiological stresses to which an individual is exposed, studies were made of the blood pressure of workers on the job. Two factors were measured -- the diastolic pressure, indicating an increase or decrease in the elastic recoil of the large blood vessels through which the blood must be pumped, and the pulse pressure, indicating a rise or fall in the volume and force of the blood ejected from the heart at each beat.

According to Foulger, a rise in pulse pressure is caused by annoyance, severe pain or a general feeling of frustration. On the other hand, a fall in pulse pressure indicates an incipient illness, excessive fatigue or emotional depression, he said.

Rarely is there a rise in diastolic pressure, the doctor pointed out, but a decrease, producing an abnormal score, can be produced by severe fatigue or shock, acute exposure to hazardous chemicals, prolonged loss of sleep or worry over family matters.

-MORE-

The study, as reported by Dr. Foulger, made it evident that the ratio of the number of abnormal scores to those expected by chance increased from the beginning of the work day, up to about 11 a. m., and then diminished slightly during lunch time. It increased again in the afternoon until about one hour before the end of the work day. This trend coincided with that noted over the years for the number of accidents during the work day, previously explained by measurements of production or work load rather than the physical condition of the worker.

In citing the studies' significance, Dr. Foulger pointed out that since all of these factors which cause change in the blood pressure can affect any person at any time, it is improper to term a person "accident prone", or to use it as an explanation of the occurrence of accidents.

"The seriousness of the outcome of an accident is more related to the hazardous situation than it is to the vulnerability of the worker", he stated, adding that not only the safety of the equipment, but also the worker, must be studied.

In this connection, he urged that the plant physician play a more important role in the development and operation of a plant safety program. "The elimination of the hazardous situation is the business of the safety engineer," he said, and "The vulnerability of the individual is the concern of the industrial physician".

The advanced safety institute, sponsored by the University and the Northwest chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers, concludes today.

WATER OPERATORS
TO MEET AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis ---Minnesota sewage and water works operators will meet next week at the University of Minnesota for the annual schools conducted by the University's Center for Continuation Study, the League of Minnesota Municipalities and the Minnesota health department.

The sewage works operators will meet Monday through Wednesday noon, and the water school will start Wednesday noon and continue through Friday. Both will meet at the Continuation Center on the Minneapolis campus.

A report on sewage disposal practices in South America will be featured on the sewage workers' program Wednesday (March 11) morning. Speaker will be Edmund G. Wagner, former chief engineer and associate chief of field party, division of health and sanitation, Institute of Inter-American Affairs, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. At present, Wagner is a senior in the University school of public health.

The water works operators will hear a report of a limnological study of Lake Superior by Professors Herbert M. Bosch and Theodore A. Olson and Orlando Ruschmeyer, research fellow, all of the University school of public health.

Both groups will take field trips. The sewage operators will inspect the Northfield sewage treatment plant, and the water works operators will tour the Excelsior water treatment plant and the Minneapolis lime recovery pilot plant.

Men attending both schools can take written examinations for voluntary certification as Class B, C and D operators. These exams are optional.

Visiting faculty from outside Minnesota will include Harris F. Seidel, director of water and sewage treatment, Ames, Ia.; LeRoy W. Van Kleeck, principal sanitary engineer, state board of health, Hartford, Conn.; J. Darrell Bakken, sanitary engineer, South Dakota department of health, Pierre, S. D.; Raymond J. Under Hill Grant---
SUMMER SESSION BIOLOGY COURSE FOR GRADE SCHOOL TEACHERS OFFERED AT UNIVERSITY

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Eighty grade school teachers will attend a field course in biology at the University of Minnesota this summer as the result of a grant to the University from the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation in St. Paul.

The Minnesota Museum of Natural History will administer the $8,940.15 grant, which covers laboratory expenses for all participants. The botany and zoology departments of the college of science, literature and the arts will offer the course, and the arts college credits may be used toward a bachelor's degree in the college of education.

Water, soils, seeds, and local plants and animals will be studied, and the teachers will be taught to understand and use materials readily available in the community. Items such as a sun dial and herbarium will be constructed as learning aids in the course and can be used as teaching aids in the grade school classrooms.

Richard Barthelemy, research associate at the museum, will teach two sections of 20 students each during both of the University's summer sessions. A biology teacher, Barthelemy has worked as a naturalist for the Minnesota Division of State Parks.

Course consultant will be E. Lawrence Palmer, for many years supervisor of the Cornell Rural School Leaflets, natural history publications for elementary school children. Palmer and University personnel representing fields related to biology will appear as visiting lecturers.

Advance application for the course is not required, and teachers of kindergarten through the sixth grade will be accepted on the regular Summer Session dates (June 16 and July 21) until the class limit is reached. Persons registering must have elementary teaching experience and a basic college biology course or the consent of the instructor.

HOW MAMMALS SURVIVE DIFFICULT LIVING CONDITIONS
by Harvey L. Gunderson
Assistant Scientist
Minnesota Museum of Natural History

If an animal adjusted to an Arctic life were transferred to the desert, it would be unable to survive. The climates and conditions for life in the tropics, the desert and the Arctic are vastly different.

But, if you have ever given much thought to where on earth animals live, you must also be struck with the question of how on earth they live there. This question has been asked more and more frequently in the last 20 years, and more and more effort has been spent in trying to get an answer.

It is with these animals which adjust to hostile or extreme environments that we will concern ourselves mostly today. There are two other alternatives to not adjusting. An animal can move away from a hostile environment and here we need think only of migrations as an example, or it can perish (a choice we presume it does not make). The dinosaurs are a well-known example of a group that neither moved very much nor adjusted very well to a change in climate.

Water balance. An organism needs water for many things, for dissolving food materials, as a solvent, for chemical reactions, and to help with excretion. So it is mighty important for any animal to maintain constant water balance.

Temperature control. This problem of temperature control is not so great in the tropics as it is in the Arctic.

Food for Thought?

The "typo" — an error in printing — is always a source of amusement as long as it's in someone else's publication. There's one, for instance, in a University News Service release announcing the broadcast tonight at 10:30 p.m. over KTCA-TV of the Charter Day convocation program, "World Beneath Your Feet."

Thanks to the typo, it reads, "World Beneath Your Feed."

Entitled "World Beneath Your Feed," the program uses a large cast of actors, dancers, and musicians to dramatize the first isolation of U-235. This feat was the accomplishment of Professor Alfred O. C. Nier, Chairman of the University of Minnesota Physics Department. The program shows the realization by a group of students that important work is going on at the University, right here "beneath their feet."

Written by Roger D. Gross, Instructor in Speech and Theater Arts, the program was originally presented with a cast of 30 in Northrop Memorial Auditorium.

NATIONAL PARK
FILMS SCHEDULED
SUNDAY AT 'U'

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A Minneapolis dentist, Dr. Clayton G. Rudd, will show his films of Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks Sunday (March 15) at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota. Entitled "Home of the Trumpeter and Grizzly", the program will be at 3 p. m. in the Museum auditorium and is open free to the public.

Contrasts between the two parks will be shown in Dr. Rudd's color films and slides. Included will be highlights of the Jackson Hole area and scenes of Yellowstone's lakes and high country and the animals and birds who live there.

Grizzly bears were photographed by Dr. Rudd in the Trout Creek area of the Yellowstone Plateau. Trumpeter swans were filmed in both summer and winter surroundings. Other animals shown in the film include elk, bison, bighorn sheep and coyotes.

The March 22 program will feature a color film, "Oceanic Birds and Deep Sea Life".

SELECTION OF
'U' QUIZ BOWL
TEAM DELAYED

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Selection of the University of Minnesota's Quiz Bowl team has been postponed until shortly before the team's television appearance on the CBS College Quiz Bowl Sunday, April 12, it was announced today by Quiz Bowl Coach Donald K. Smith, University speech professor.

Smith had intended to reduce the team to four this week, but, he explained, "After more practice sessions, we decided to keep all eight boys on the squad and withhold selection until the latest possible time".

According to Smith, "This will enable us to study both the types of questions asked and our boys' responses". The eight members of the squad meet together to watch the weekly Quiz Bowl telecasts.

Members of the Quiz Bowl squad, selected from more than 40 applicants, are Donald Spicer, senior in mathematics and physics, 1772 Bohland, and Jerrold Dion, senior in international relations, 871 Cleveland Ave. S., both of St. Paul; Samuel Bennett, senior in mathematics, 913 Oliver Ave. N., David Calvit, senior in international relations, 2016 - 30th Ave. S., and David Lebedoff, junior in history, 2501 Twelfth Ave. N., all of Minneapolis; James Young, senior in history, Duluth; Harry Weber, senior in classics, Rochester; and James Thompson, sophomore, Fergus Falls.

Previous Minnesota Quiz Bowl teams earned $6,000 in scholarships for the University on the nationwide Quiz Bowl programs. In 1953-54, the students won eight contests, and, the following year, they ran up a record of 12 wins and one tie.

Darlene A. Kemp, 923 Igelhart, St. Paul, University of Minnesota senior in the college of education, was chosen as a member of the national intercollegiate Panel of Americans at the National Council for the Panel of Americans third annual national training conference March 6-7 at Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind.

Constance J. Tarasar, 313 Althea Lane, Hopkins, college of education junior, was judged one of the 12 runners-up in the contest. Initial selection of potential winners was made on the basis of written speeches submitted to the national council. At the conference semi-finalists were asked to deliver their speeches and then take part in question and answer forums.

University panel-co-ordinator John Jacobson and James H. Reeves, principal student personnel worker, accompanied the 10 student panel members attending the conference and competing for membership on the national intercollegiate panel.

The University of Minnesota is one of 19 universities throughout the nation taking part in this program in intergroup education. Membership on each panel is made up of a Roman Catholic, a Jew, a white Protestant, a Negro and a first-generation American. Panel presentations stimulate understanding and appreciation of the racial, religious and cultural differences among Americans and lead to intelligent efforts to decrease social tensions.

ASSISTANT FBI
CHIEF TO TALK
AT 'U' INSTITUTE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Quin Tamm, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, will address Minnesota police chiefs next week at their annual institute at the University of Minnesota.

He will speak on "The FBI and Disaster Planning" Friday afternoon, March 20, at the police chiefs' institute, first of six schools scheduled for municipal officials this month at the Center for Continuation Study on the Minneapolis campus.

Meeting Thursday through Saturday, March 19-21, the police chiefs will study their role in the community. In this connection, they will hear a discussion of the "Responsibility of the Police Chief in Protecting Citizens' Rights" by Professor Robert C. McClure and Associate Professor Yale Kamisar of the University law school.

The following week more than 300 municipal officials will attend University institutes to receive "in-service" training in their respective jobs. City managers, mayors and councilmen, finance officers and clerks, and public works officials will hold separate sessions Tuesday, March 24, and a joint session, Wednesday, March 25. Building inspectors will hold their meetings Wednesday and Thursday, March 25 and 26.

In their general session Wednesday, March 25, in the Minnesota Museum of Natural History auditorium, the city and village officers will put special emphasis on special assessments and city planning. They will hear a discussion of population shifts by M. Lee Taylor, University sociology instructor, and the economic effects of such shifts will be described by Darrell F. Fienup, assistant professor of agricultural economics.

Material of special interest to plumbing and heating inspectors is planned for the building inspectors' institute. The session also is intended for chief inspectors, city engineers and other municipal officials charged with the responsibility of building code administration. At a Wednesday evening dinner, March 25, sponsored by the Minnesota Building Officials association, the inspectors will hear a report on current legislation in their field.

DONNELLY NAMED TO KELLER POST
AT MINNESOTA 'U'

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. FRIDAY, MARCH 13)

Minneapolis --- Appointment of Professor Richard J. Donnelly as assistant director of physical education and athletics for men at the University of Minnesota was approved today (March 13) by the Board of Regents. Donnelly will succeed Professor Louis F. Keller who will retire in June after 35 years on the University faculty.

Professor Donnelly, 40, who joined the University staff in 1955, has been in charge of graduate work in physical education. In his new post, he will supervise physical education and recreation. The appointment, which will become effective September 16, will involve a promotion in rank for Donnelly -- from associate professor to professor.

Before coming to Minnesota, Donnelly served on the University of Michigan physical education staff for eight years, including three years as assistant supervisor and director of student teaching and two years as associate supervisor. In the latter assignment, he was administrative assistant to the department chairman and taught community recreation and the history, principles, administration and methods of physical education.

His earlier experience included high school teaching and coaching at Hillsdale and Dexter, Michigan. During World War II, he served in the United States Navy.

Professor Donnelly's book, "Sports and Recreation", was published in 1952, and he is co-author of the volume, "Active Games and Contests", issued in 1958. Several articles he has written have appeared in professional journals.

The new assistant to Ike Armstrong is co-chairman of the planning committee of the Governor's Advisory Council on Physical Fitness.

Born in Allen, Michigan, Professor Donnelly earned a bachelor of science degree at Michigan State Normal college, Ypsilanti, and the degrees of master of arts and doctor of philosophy at the University of Michigan.

Professor Donnelly, his wife and three children live at 2096 South Rosewood Lane in Roseville.

GEORGIA COLLEGE
HEAD TO SPEAK
AT 'U' GRADUATION

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MARCH 15, 1959)

Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse college, Atlanta, Ga., will deliver the University of Minnesota commencement address in 8:30 p. m. ceremonies Thursday (March 19) in Northrop Memorial auditorium. Mays, widely recognized for his work in promoting better understanding between the races, will speak on "Life's Paradox".

University President J. L. Morrill also will speak to the March graduates before presenting certificates of ROTC completion and conferring an estimated 560 degrees. Candidates for doctor of philosophy degrees will be presented individually by John G. Darley, associate dean of the graduate school.

Music will be provided by the University concert band ensemble, directed by Bandmaster Gale L. Sperry.

Following the commencement exercises, the graduates and their friends and relatives will be the guests of President and Mrs. Morrill at a reception in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union.

Head of Morehouse college since 1940, President Mays previously served six years as dean of the Howard university school of religion, Washington, D. C. He also has been executive secretary of the Tampa Urban League, national student secretary of the YMCA and director of a study of Negro churches in the United States. Interestingly enough, his career started in 1921 at Morehouse, where he spent three years teaching higher mathematics.

He has written three books -- "The Negro's God", "Seeking to Be Christian in Race Relations" and "A Gospel for the Social Awakening" -- and is co-author of "The Negro's Church". In addition, his writings have appeared in numerous religious and educational publications.

President Mays was a member of the central committee of the World Council of Churches from 1949 to 1953 and he is a former vice president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. In 1944, he was named on the Schomburg honor roll of race relations as one of 12 Negroes who have done outstanding work in building better race relations in America, and he was similarly honored the following year by Letter Magazine.

A graduate of Bates college, Lewiston, Me., Mays received master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Chicago, and he holds honorary degrees from a number of southern and eastern colleges and universities.

UNIVERSITY PLANS
SPRING ORIENTATION
PROGRAM FOR 250

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Approximately 250 new students at the University of Minnesota will take part in the spring quarter orientation-registration program March 25-26, according to Donald R. Zander, coordinator of the orientation program for the University's student activities bureau.

The program, planned by the office of Dean of Students Edmund G. Williamson in cooperation with all University faculties and departments, is designed to acquaint new students with the University, campus activities and registration procedures.

Scheduled for the first day of each session are general orientation group meetings, testing, physical examinations and guided tours of the campus. On the second day, new students receive registration materials, attend college meetings and meet advisers to arrange their spring quarter class schedules.

Twelve University upperclassmen will work with Zander as group sponsors for the orientation tours. Minneapolis sponsors for the 20-student groups are Eric M. Nathanson, 4104 Drew ave., S., SLA (college of science, literature and the arts) sophomore; Marilyn M. Mattson, 3301 45th ave., S., SLA sophomore; Patricia M. Lines, 5328 Hampshire, N., SLA junior; Gerald Schultz, 5144 Park ave., institute of technology senior; and Jon Wicklund, 4528 Zenith ave., N., SLA sophomore.

Group leaders from St. Paul are Judy Johnson, 2111 Commonwealth ave., SLA junior; Nancy Orme, 962 St. Clair ave., SLA sophomore, and Dick Stanford, 892 S. Wilder, SLA sophomore.

Suburban student leaders include Judy Carpenter, 4650 W. Broadway, Robbinsdale, SLA sophomore, and Suanne Bergan, 3938 Dakota ave., St. Louis Park, SLA junior.

Janet Karon, 317 N. 20th ave., E., Duluth, SLA sophomore, and Jay Ells, Fairmont, University college junior, are group leaders from outside the Twin City area.

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

William Hillard will return to KUOM's "Your Novel" program Wednesday (March 18) reading "Our Man in Havana" by Graham Greene.

The University of Minnesota radio station's "Your Novel" program is heard Monday through Friday at 1 p. m.

After an absence of several months, Hillard, who has won a large following for his versatile readings, will return to the program reading Graham Greene's book which pokes fun at the stodgy customs of diplomacy.

Hero of "Our Man in Havana", especially timely in view of the recent Cuban revolution, is Mr. Wormold, a vacuum cleaner salesman who assumes a post in Havana for the British Foreign office. The story concerns his purely imaginary reports to London which have a way of coming true.

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MARCH 22)

One pertinent fact in regard to the buying-habits of Twin City area art patrons has definitely been established by the University Gallery in the last five months—they most certainly will buy good lithographs, prints and etchings!

More than half of the pictures hung in the "Original Graphic Art for Young Collectors" show in November were sold—— many of the pictures going to enthusiastic buyers who bought several and gave them for Christmas presents!

Now, the Marc Chagall lithographs and etchings are hung in the halls of Northrop. The show opened March 6, with 57 lithographs and prints from Chagall's four series, "The Dead Souls", "The Bible", "My Life" and "Fables de la Fontaine". The little red dot indicating "SOLD" is nestling inconspicuously on the corner of 23 of the pictures now, and the show has another week to run.

The University of Minnesota will present a soils mechanics and foundation engineering conference Thursday, March 26, at the Center for Continuation Study on the Minneapolis campus. The course will be presented in cooperation with the Northwestern section of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Planned especially for engineers and architects in structural and highway fields, this year's program will deal with fundamentals of soil exploration and testing, correlations of soil test data to design and bearing capacity of structures on compacted soils. It is open to all persons with an interest in design and problems concerning soils.

Heading the visiting faculty is Ralph C. Peck, professor of foundation engineering at the University of Illinois.

Principles of dewatering foundations and the effect of ground water level variations on structures will be discussed by Adolph F. Meyer, Minneapolis consulting hydraulic engineer. Part-time professor of hydraulic engineering at the Universities of Iowa and Minnesota, Meyer is author of "Elements of Hydrology" and has served as consultant to many railroads, mining companies, public utilities and governmental units regarding their water problems.

CALIFORNIA MAN TO HEAD MIDWEST
LIBRARY CENTER

(FOR RELEASE 11 A.M. FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1959)

Minneapolis --- Appointment of Gordon R. Williams, assistant librarian at the University of California at Los Angeles, as director of the Midwest Inter-Library Center in Chicago was announced today (March 20) by Malcolm M. Willey, University of Minnesota vice president and chairman of the MILC board of directors.

Williams, who succeeds Ralph T. Esterquest, will assume his new post in mid-July. Esterquest, first MILC director, left the position to become library director of the schools of medicine and public health at Harvard university.

A native of Ontario, Oregon, Williams, 44, has been engaged in library work since 1949. He attended Stanford university, the University of Oregon and the graduate library school at the University of Chicago. Before joining the UCLA library staff in 1952, he worked in the University of Chicago and the John Crerar libraries. He served in the Navy during World War II.

The Midwest Inter-Library Center is a cooperative venture of 20 major university libraries of the Middle West designed to pool lesser-used research materials held by the member institutions and to underwrite cooperatively the acquisition of special types of scholarly material of a nature that no single library can be expected to provide.

Founded 10 years ago, MILC now has holdings exceeding a million volumes which occupy about 17 miles of shelf space -- the same amount of space which has been freed in the libraries of the member institutions by the MILC deposit system.

Members of MILC are: the Universities of Chicago, Cincinnati, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nebraska, Notre Dame and Wisconsin (and the Wisconsin State Historical society), the Illinois Institute of Technology, the State University of Iowa, John Crerar library (Chicago), Indiana, Marquette, Michigan State, Northwestern, Ohio State, Purdue, St. Louis and Wayne universities.

MEDIEVAL FRENCH
PASSION DRAMA
ON KUOM MAR. 28

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"The True Mystery of the Passion", a 90-minute medieval French play by the Brothers Gréban, will be broadcast at 2 p. m. Saturday, March 28, on University of Minnesota radio station KUOM.

This radio version is the first production in the English language of the 15th century passion play. It was translated and adapted for radio by James Kirkup, English poet and playwright.

Through the eyes of a spectator who relates his own and the crowd's reactions to the dramatic events of the Passion, the radio version retains the original technique of the medieval mystery plays, which lasted for several days and were performed, generally in the cathedral square, by the people of the town.

'U' PHARMACY
SCHOLARSHIPS
RISE SHARPLY

Minneapolis --- Scholarships offered to present and prospective pharmacy students at the University of Minnesota have almost doubled in the last year and one half, a recent study shows.

In September 1957, 15 scholarships representing $3,325 were available to students studying or planning to study pharmacy. Today, 18 months later, pharmacy students are offered 26 scholarships valued at $6,125.

In explaining this rapid increase, Dean George P. Hager said, "The members of the pharmacy profession in the state of Minnesota have been most alert in recognizing the growing need for financial aid for students in the college of pharmacy". He added his appreciation of their quick and generous action to satisfy that need.

Five new scholarships have been presented to the school in the last six months alone. Dean Hager pointed out that sponsors of these new scholarships are taking into consideration the dearth of scholarships available to high school graduates for their prepharmacy year and to students entering the college of pharmacy after completing their prepharmacy training elsewhere. Each of the five new awards is open to prepharmacy or first year pharmacy students.

The Cecil A. Krelitz Memorial Fund was established last fall to provide scholarships for prepharmacy students and pharmacy freshmen. Two Snyder's Drug Stores, Incorporated, scholarships recently were established to provide financial aid for high school graduates who take prepharmacy training at the University. The Minnesota State Pharmaceutical association, which previously offered a scholarship for a pharmacy senior, this year provided two additional awards for students entering the University for their prepharmacy training or for their freshman year in the college of pharmacy.

Nineteen of the 24 students who applied for scholarships for the 1958-59 academic year were awarded them, Hager reported, adding that several of the unsuccessful applicants were deserving, but awards for which they were eligible had been granted to other applicants.

Two scholarships awarded for the first time for the current year were sponsored by the Mando Photo company as memorials to the founder of the company, C. Earl Dougherty. These went to Dennis E. Wetter, Delano, and Gerald P. Schotik, 891 Case ave., St. Paul, both sophomores. The Dolores and Lawrence M. B. Atkinson scholarship, the only one available to prepharmacy students this year, was presented to Sidney B. Benson, 838 E. Clear ave., St. Paul.

The Northwestern Drug company established a scholarship which will support a deserving student throughout his four years in the college of pharmacy. This award went to Ronald W. Agerter, West Concord, Minn., a sophomore.

Two scholarships, the Bertha D. McWilliams Memorial scholarship and the Claude A. Mather Memorial scholarship, were not awarded because of lack of eligible applicants.

Other University pharmacy scholarships and this year's recipients are listed as follows:

American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education scholarships -- Carl R. Ingebrigtsen, Westbrook, Minn., and Frederic W. Weeks, 4043 Sunnyside, Minneapolis, both seniors.

Minnesota State Pharmaceutical association scholarship -- Patrick W. Dodge, Montgomery, Minn., senior.

Samuel W. Melendy Memorial scholarships -- Roger K. Becker, 4529 Minnehaha, Theodore G. Ranheim, 1318 Powderhorn Terrace, and Malle M. Jaska of Estonia, 2555 Bryant ave., S., all of Minneapolis, seniors; Joseph M. Doty of Royalton, Carl G. Baumann of Le Sueur and Douglas C. Kriesel of Owatonna, juniors; Patricia J. McGinty, 15615 McGinty rd., Wayzata, John R. Omacht of Osakis, Richard A. Schlorf, 5552 W. Bald Eagle blvd., St. Paul, and Arthur K. Malm, Jr., Excelsior, sophomores; and Norman E. Sladek, Montgomery, and Sandra J. Sutton, 1587 N. Griggs, St. Paul, freshmen.

HEALTH SOCIAL WORKER STUDY
GRANTS OFFERED

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Five or more scholarships in the medical-social field are being offered Minnesota students under the new health scholarship program of the National Foundation (formerly The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis), according to the University of Minnesota's bureau of loans and scholarships.

The scholarships, $500 a year for four years, will be available to qualified students in the fields of medicine, medical social work, nursing and occupational and physical therapy for the 1959-60 school year and may be renewed to permit completion of four-year courses.

The scholarships, established to help alleviate the national shortage of professional health personnel, are restricted to United States citizens who intend to serve as professional social workers in the health field. Eligible applicants must have been accepted by qualified and accredited schools before sending in applications for scholarships which will be granted on a competitive basis in the area of the applicant's residence. Recipients may attend any qualified school in the country.

Complete information and applications for these scholarships may be obtained from local high school principals, undergraduate deans of accredited colleges and universities and from the national office of the foundation, 800 2nd ave., New York City, as well as from the University of Minnesota's bureau of loans and scholarships, 201 Eddy hall, Minneapolis 14.

As applications for these scholarships must be in the hands of the judges on or before May 1, 1959, interested students are urged to obtain application blanks immediately.

MIT METALLURGY
EXPERT TO TALK
AT 'U' APRIL 3

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

A former St. Paul man, John F. Elliott, associate professor of metallurgy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will deliver the 26th Warren lecture at the University of Minnesota at 12:30 p. m. Friday, April 3, in Room 108 Appleby hall. He will present "A Fundamental Analysis of Some Metallurgical Processes".

Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stowe Elliott, 1148 Churchill, St. Paul, is recognized as one of the country's foremost specialists on the physical chemistry of steelmaking and thermodynamics of liquid metals. As editor of a book published last year on the physical chemistry of steelmaking, he provided new approaches to a more fundamental interpretation and understanding of iron and steel making processes.

Before joining the MIT faculty, Elliott was employed in the central research laboratory of the United States Steel corporation and the research and quality control divisions of the Inland Steel company. A 1942 graduate of the University of Minnesota, he also holds a doctor of philosophy degree from MIT.

The Warren lectureship was established in 1954 by Mrs. Alice R. Warren-Gaarden, a former member of the University Board of Regents, in memory of her former husband and father-in-law, Frank M. Warren and George H. Warren, pioneers in the development of Minnesota's forest and mineral resources.

Dear Mr. Fugina:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 9, 1959, addressed to Miles Lord, Attorney General, wherein as Chairman of the House University Committee, you request an opinion of the Attorney General

"outlining the limitations of authority of the Legislature in enacting legislation affecting the operation of the Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota as outlined in H. F. 1008."

You submit a copy of H. F. 1008 which reads as follows:

"A BILL

FOR AN ACT RELATING TO MEETINGS OF THE REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA, REQUIRING SUCH MEETINGS TO BE OPEN TO THE PUBLIC AND THE PRESS.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MINNESOTA:

"Section 1. Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, all meetings, including executive sessions of the Regents of the University of Minnesota, shall be open to the public and the press."

Summer
Session MAR 30 1959

OPINION

Territorial Laws 1851, Chapter 3, Sections 4, 7 and 9, later confirmed by Article VIII, Section 4 of the Constitution, provide in part:

"Sec. 4. The government of this University shall be vested in a Borad of 12 Regents, . . ."

"Sec. 7. The Regents of the University and their successors in office, shall constitute a body corporate,. . ."

"Sec. 9. The Regents shall have the power, and it shall be their duty to enact laws for the government of the University; . . ."

The Board is therefore a body corporate with the power of control and management over the University and in respect to its corporate status and government it is beyond the power of the legislature; as stated in State ex rel. University of Minnesota v. Chase, 175 Minn. 259, 220 N. W. 951, this means:

". . . that the whole executive power of the University having been put in the Regents by the people, no part of it can be exercised or put elsewhere by the legislature." It would appear from the foregoing decision that since the Board of Regents is the sole governing body of the University it alone has the power to determine whether or not its meetings, including executive sessions, shall be open to the public and the press.

Very truly yours

PROSPECTIVE 'U'
STUDENTS URGED TO SEEK HOUSING

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- High school seniors who are planning to attend the University of Minnesota on either the Minneapolis or St. Paul campuses next fall are urged to apply immediately for either University or non-University housing, according to C. Luverne Carlson, director of University residences, and Mabelle G. McCullough, supervisor of non-University housing.

Acceptance as a student at the University for the fall quarter is not necessary before making application for living quarters, according to the housing authorities. Reservation may be made at any time -- the sooner the better for choice locations -- and may be cancelled without penalty if the prospective student decides to attend another school or is not accepted at the University.

Two types of housing are available to both single and married students at the University: University housing -- residence halls and married students' apartments owned by the University and located on or adjacent to the campuses; and non-University housing -- fraternity and sorority houses, private homes, rooming houses and apartments -- University-supervised to maintain suitable health, safety and study conditions.

With the opening this fall of the new men's residence, Frontier hall, and 100 additional apartments for married students, the University expects to have adequate housing available for all students desiring these facilities, Carlson explained. An innovation in University housing next fall will be the opening of these facilities to all Twin City and suburban residents as well as to out-state students.

(MORE)

The completely self-supporting, student-governed residence halls are open to parental and student inspection at any time, according to Carlson. Miss McCullough explained that the lists of approved non-University housing may be obtained from her office for personal viewing and selection. Due to land needs of the new freeway and the University's expansion to the West campus, many non-University housing units have been lost, and there will be a definite shortage of campus-area approved units in the moderate price range, she pointed out.

Undergraduate students now attending the University are urged by Miss McCullough and Carlson to make arrangements for their fall quarter rooms before leaving the campus for summer vacations.

Specific information on all details of University and non-University housing may be obtained by all prospective students and interested parties by visiting the Minneapolis campus or by calling or writing C. Luverne Carlson, director of housing, 108-A , Wesbrook hall, for University housing, or Mabelle G. McCullough, student housing bureau director, 209 Eddy hall, for non-University accommodations. Though both offices are on the Minneapolis campus, all housing for both the St. Paul and Minneapolis campuses is handled through them.

SOCIAL ASPECTS OF LANGUAGE 'U'
TV SERIES THEME

"In a Manner of Speaking" -- a new University of Minnesota television series devoted to the social aspects of language -- will start Tuesday, March 31, at 9:30 p. m. on KTCA, Channel 2!

The 12 half-hour programs will be presented weekly by J. J. Lamberts, visiting lecturer in English at the University. He is currently on leave of absence from Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., where he is an assistant professor of English.

In the opening program, Lamberts will explore the concept of "good English" and the inadequacy of this and other terms presently identifying the language of the educated. He will indicate the basic distinction between grammar and usage and answer the question, "Who writes the grammar rules?", on the April 7 and April 14 programs.

The following week, he will point out ways in which people, usually unwittingly, indicate their social status through their language. Rebuffs and how to make them will be covered on April 28.

Succeeding programs will be devoted to slang (May 5), profanity and obscenity (May 12), "okay" words (May 19), dialect (May 26) and cliches (June 2 and June 9). Lamberts will end the series on June 16 with a discussion of the school's role in determining what kind of English is to be taught as "standard English".

U OF M SCHOOLMEN'S
WEEK TO ATTRACT
700 EDUCATORS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- "A Balanced Program of Education" will be the theme of the forty-fifth annual University of Minnesota short course and Schoolmen's Week to be held Monday through Wednesday (March 23-25) on the Minneapolis campus.

Approximately 700 Minnesota school administrators and supervisors are expected to attend the conference sponsored by the college of education in cooperation with various professional education groups.

Participating organizations will hold separate meetings Monday. At 8 p.m. Monday, Russell M. Cooper, assistant dean of the University's college of science, literature and the arts, will present the annual Lotus D. Coffman lecture sponsored by Eta chapter of Phi Delta Kappa. He will address a general session of all participants in the junior ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union.

General sessions for the conference begin Tuesday morning and will be held in the Mayo Memorial auditorium. Principal speakers at general and group sessions, in addition to Dean Cooper will be: Governor Orville L. Freeman, John Fischer, superintendent of the Baltimore schools; Arthur Corey, executive secretary of the California Teachers association; Forrest E. Conner, St. Paul school superintendent, who is president-elect of the American Association of School Administrators; Theodore Berning, Minnesota assistant commissioner of education; and the Very Reverend James P. Shannon, president of the College of St. Thomas.

The conference will conclude with a general session luncheon Wednesday, when Corey will speak on "Who Should Criticize the Schools?"

Forty-six contemporary paintings by Pacific Coast artists comprise the exhibition "Second Pacific Coast Biennial" opening Monday, April 6, in the University Gallery. The show, hung in the third and fourth floor corridors of Northrop Memorial auditorium, will continue through April 26.

In 1955, the Santa Barbara Museum of Art inspired and organized the first regional juried show of paintings and watercolors from all threrr of the Pacific states—Washington, Oregon and California. The success of the show induced the interest of the Smithsonian Institution under whose auspices the "Second Pacific Coast Biennial" is now travelling the country.

Final selections for this exhibition were made by representatives of the Santa Barbara museum who traveled extensively on the West Coast, observing many artists at work in their studios. Aim of this jury and purpose of the exhibition was to show examples of Pacific Coast painting in general, indicating also specific regional characteristics.

Among artists whose work was selected for this show are: Mark Tobey, Carl Morris, Howard Bradford, Leon Golding, Hans Burkhardt, Bill Allan, Richards Ruben and Keith Finch.

"The World of Folksong" will be the title of a series of 12 programs by Gene Bluestein, author, singer and recording artist, at 9 p. m Wednesdays, starting April 1, on KTCA-TV, Channel 2.

Bluestein, a former University of Minnesota English instructor now studying the heritage of folksongs in Minnesota under a Louis W. and Maud Hill Family foundation grant, will examine the history and development of folksong in Europe and America in this series. Special attention also will be given to the emergence of American folksong tradition.

Underlying many of these discussions in the program will be general ideas in regard to the relationships between folksongs and the fine arts -- especially belles lettres. The movement from a conception of folksong as literature to its final position as an independent genre will be traced and illustrated in philosophical as well as musical terms.

On all of the programs, Bluestein will sing representative songs, accompanying himself with a variety of musical instruments including a 12-stringed guitar, mandolin, and five-stringed banjo. Both the songs and discussions will be informally presented.

LOUIS UNTERMAYER
TO SPEAK AT 'U'
CONVO APRIL 2

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

"How to Hate Poetry in One Easy Lesson" will be the tale of Poet Louis Untermeyer in the University of Minnesota's first convocation of the spring quarter at 11:30 a. m. Thursday, April 2, in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

Sponsored by the department of concerts and lectures, the convocation is open free to the public.

In his entertaining way, Untermeyer will use his own unhappy schoolroom experiences to tell why most people hate poetry despite their instinctive love of rhyme and rhythm. In showing how he triumphed over his poetry assignments, he will reveal how delightful and powerful poetry can be.

Poet, editor, anthologist and critic, Untermeyer is said to have introduced more poets to readers and more readers to poetry than any other American. His collections of "Modern American Poetry" and "Modern British Poetry" have sold over a million copies and are standard textbooks in many schools and colleges. His "Treasury of Great Poems" is now in its ninth printing, and he followed it with "Treasury of Laughter". His latest major work, published in 1955, "Makers of the Modern World", presents a look at the 90 men and women who, in his opinion, have most influenced our way of life and thought during the past century.

Born and, he says, "miseducated" in New York City, Untermeyer taught himself the arts while employed in the family jewelry firm. At the age of 37, he left the business to devote his entire time to writing. He became "poet in residence" at various universities, writer for the Office of War Information, editor of the Armed Services Editions and, after the war, editor-in-chief of the cultural program of Decca Records.

NURSES TO STUDY
HOME MATERNITY
CARE AT 'U' INSTITUTE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Family-centered maternity care will be studied by state nurses at a University of Minnesota institute Monday and Tuesday (March 30 and 31) at the Center for Continuation Study. Family preparation before delivery and family participation in baby care after delivery will be the subject of the session which is sponsored by the University and the Minnesota department of health.

Guest participants will be David Treat, director of the Clara Elizabeth Fund for Maternal Health, Flint, Mich., and two of the fund's staff nurses, Florence Crotty and Alice Beckwith. Treat will deliver the keynote speech, "Parent Education: A Community Challenge", at 9:45 a. m. Monday (March 30).

Demonstrations in teaching techniques for maternity departments will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday (March 30) by Miss Crotty and Miss Beckwith. These will include prenatal classes, labor and delivery and postpartum. A discussion of "Weight Control in Pregnancy" by Eileen Reardon, nutrition consultant with the Minnesota department of health, will follow the demonstrations.

Thursday's program will include, in the morning, a panel of mothers who will relate their recent experiences in the home care of newborn and premature babies and, in the afternoon, a symposium, "Let's Consider Family-Centered Maternity Care". Treat will serve as moderator at the afternoon program, which will cover the roles of the obstetrician, pediatrician, parent education, nursing education and public health and midwifery in home maternity care.

'CONTROLLING LABOR COSTS' THEME OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS CONFERENCE

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- "Controlling Labor Costs" will be the theme of the 17th annual Upper Midwest Industrial Relations conference to be held Wednesday and Thursday, April 8-9, at the Leamington hotel, Minneapolis. Exploration of four major topics -- "Wage and Salary Administration", "Performance Ratings", "Administering the Collective Bargaining Agreement" and "Labor Legislation in the 85th Congress" -- will be carried out during the two morning and two afternoon sessions. Participants will be from Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

First speaker at the two-day conference, sponsored by the Twin City chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management in cooperation with the University of Minnesota's Industrial Relations Center, will be N.L.A. Martucci, manager of compensation research, National Industrial Conference board. He will speak at 9 a.m. April 8 on "Wage and Salary Administration". Elmer R. John, General Mills personnel research and programming director, will act as chairman for this session.

"Performance Ratings" will be the topic of the April 8 afternoon session which will be addressed by S. Rains Wallace, research director for the Life Insurance Agency Management association and vice president of the American Institute of Research. Theodore R. Lindbom, staff psychologist for the firm of Rohrer, Hibler and Replogle, will preside.

Earl R. Bramblett, General Motors corporation labor relations director, will speak on "Administering the Collective Bargaining Agreement" at the April 9 morning meeting of the conference. Gerry Morse, employee relations vice president of Minneapolis, Honeywell, will be session chairman.

The 1958 winner of the Pulitzer prize in journalism, Clark Mollenhoff, Washington correspondent for the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, will address the conference at 2 p. m. April 9. Mollenhoff's topic will be "Labor Legislation in the 85th Congress". Presiding over this final conference session will be Kenneth L. Sovereign, Waldorf Paper Products company personnel director.

Professor Dale Yoder, director of the University's Industrial Relations center, will address the registrants and guests at the conference banquet at 6:30 p. m. Thursday evening on "Outlook for Industrial Relations Based on 25 Years of Experience in the Field". Given this year in honor of Professor Yoder's quarter century with the University, the banquet will be attended by Professor Yoder's former students, associates in education and industrial relations and other business and labor executives. Now on leave of absence from the University, Professor Yoder is serving as professor of industrial relations at Stanford university's graduate school of business, Palo Alto, Calif.

STRUCTURAL ENGINEERS
TO MEET AT 'U' APRIL 4

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

More than 150 engineers from all parts of Minnesota will attend a University of Minnesota conference on steel construction Saturday, April 4, at the Center for Continuation Study on the Minneapolis campus. The session is presented by the University in cooperation with the American Institute of Steel Construction, Inc.

Theodore R. Higgins, national director of engineering and research for the American Institute of Steel Construction, New York, will give the keynote talk at 9 a. m. on "Specifications for Form Steel, Today and in the Future".

New types of fireproofing, which are saving materials and labor in buildings, and improvements in the art of welding, which are making the connections of steel members lighter, stronger and more reliable, are two of the problems to be discussed at next week's session, according to Paul Andersen, University professor of structural engineering.

Andersen will discuss the use of steel in foundations Saturday afternoon.

Visiting staff members, in addition to Higgins, will be Paul E. Masters, member of the facility and specialty engineering department of the American Bridge division of United States Steel, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Melvin Quayle, service manager of the Zonolite company, Chicago; and Ivan M. Viest, bridge research engineer with the American Association of State Highway Officials Road Test, Ottawa, Ill.

"Aspects of India", a new University of Minnesota television series, will start Wednesday (April 1) on KTCA-TV, Channel 2. At 9 p. m., for 12 weeks, Assistant Professors Burton Stein, history, and Karl H. Potter, philosophy, will endeavor to explain present-day India in terms of the continuous development of the Indian cultural tradition.

The first program (April 1) will be devoted to a basic discussion of the nature and relationship of diversifying and unifying elements in India's development. The remaining 11 weeks, these elements -- such as language, the caste system, religion, literature, art, education and government -- will be covered.

Music representing various parts of India will open each program, and a reading selection appropriate to the evening's discussion will be recommended at the close of each week's presentation.

FOREIGN STUDENTS
AT 'U' TO HOLD
WORLD FESTIVAL

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- Spicy foreign foods, beautiful examples of native dress, exotic music, native dances -- all will be available for the entertainment of Twin Cities area residents Saturday and Sunday, April 4-5, when University of Minnesota foreign students present their annual International Festival in the Coffman Memorial Union main ballroom.

The festival will be sponsored by the University's Foreign Student council and the Union Board of Governors in cooperation with the American-Foreign Students Relations committee, the organizational members of the Foreign Student council, the dean of students office, the foreign students adviser's office and the International Center for Students and Visitors.

Skits, dancing, singing and instrumental music will entertain the crowds at the festival's variety show program to be held at 8:30 p.m. Saturday (April 4) in the Union. While students from 71 countries throughout the world are enrolled on the University's campuses, according to Arthur Hill, Foreign Student council chairman and graduate student from Australia, the groups representing the following countries have signed up for participation in the variety show: Burma, China, Greece, India, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Japan, Korea, The Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Turkey and Uruguay. Tickets at $1.25 may be obtained at the door.

Foreign food "from soup to nuts" -- European appetizers to Turkish coffee, that is -- will be the piece de' resistance of Sunday's open house at the festival. Beginning at noon, meals will be served until 8 p.m., with three price ranges on the dinners. Assorted snacks and drinks also will be served.

Represented in the food department will be many specialties of the countries participating in the variety show as well as typical dishes from the Central and South American and the Scandanavian countries, the United Arab Republic, Tanganyika and the Philippines. Booths exhibiting native arts and crafts will be on display around the dining area in the Union ballroom, according to Hill, and colored slides of typical and interesting native scenes will be shown by students from all of the participating nations during the open house.

'U' COLLEGE BOWL
TEAM TO BATTLE
ALUMNI ON CH. 2

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Minneapolis --- The University of Minnesota's College Bowl team, which will meet the Barnard college team in a question and answer contest in New York April 12 over CBS-TV, will "scrimmage" with an alumni squad on KTCA-TV, Channel 2, at 9 p. m. Thursday (April 2).

Selected from among more than 40 applicants, the all-male varsity team includes: Donald Spicer, 1772 Bohland ave., St. Paul; James Young, Duluth; Harry Weber, Rochester; and James Thompson, Fergus Falls. The first three are seniors, and Thompson is a sophomore. Coaching the team is Donald K. Smith, speech professor. He is being assisted by Robert J. Ames, associate professor of interdisciplinary studies.

Making up the alumni team are four stars of the University championship radio college quiz bowl teams of 1953-54 and 1954-55: Mrs. Eleanor Vaill MacRostie, 1314 Grand ave., St. Paul; Joseph Shechtman, 1501 University ave., S.E., and State Senator Jack Davies, 130 Twenty-first ave., S., Minneapolis; and G. Charles Mohlke, 208 Oakwood road, Hopkins. Mohlke is doubling as coach.

Moderator of Thursday night's warm-up contest will be Arthur H. Ballet, associate professor of speech.

The 1954-55 radio college quiz bowl team, which included Mrs. MacRostie, Shechtman and Mohlke, racked up 12 straight weekly wins and one tie before bowing to Oberlin college. The Minnesota experts collected 3,565 points to 1,945 earned by their opponents in the 14 contests. In 1953-54, the Gopher squad won eight contests against hand-picked teams from other colleges.

If the 1959 College Bowl squad is successful in its contest with the Barnard team in New York April 12, it will be matched the following Sunday (April 19) against another college team in a battle which will be fought out before television cameras in the main ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union.

YOUNG BRITISH
PAINTERS' WORKS
SCHEDULED AT 'U'

(FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, APRIL 5)

"Young British Painters", an important exhibition of work by eight of Britain's leading junior artists will open at the University of Minnesota gallery Monday (April 6) and will extend through April 26.

The exhibition, which will hang in the fourth floor galleries in Northrop Memorial auditorium, was assembled through the joint efforts of the Arts Club of Chicago and Gimpel Fils, London. Loans for the show were obtained from private collectors and dealers in the United States and England. The Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition service is circulating the show throughout the United States.

Included are more than 40 oil paintings and drawings by Sandra Blow, Robyn Denny, Donald Hamilton Fraser, Peter Lanyon, Louis Le Brocquy, Ceri Richards, William Scott and Bryan Wynter. These works are excellent representation of British painting of the past decade, the majority having been executed in the last three years. All are characterized by boldness and assurance in dealing with movement, form and color, and by an interest in the paint itself which produces varied surface textures. They vary in mood from the powerful to the poetic.

Titles of the paintings indicate, on the whole, an interest in the natural world, as for example, Peter Lanyon's "Mountain Landscape", and Bryan Wynter's "Forest Frontier", but the images presented are toward an abstract conception. This abstraction varies in degree according to the predeliction of the artists and is expressed in highly personal idioms.

TWO 'U' MEN
RECEIVE GRANTS
TO TEACH FINNS

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Two University of Minnesota professors have been awarded Fulbright scholarships to teach in Finland for the 1959-60 academic year.

Carl L. Nelson, professor of accounting in the University's school of business administration, will lecture on cost accounting at the Turku School of Economics and also at the Swedish School of Economics at Abo, both in Turku, Finland. In addition to teaching, Nelson will do research on general business management in western Europe, and particularly in Finland. He and his wife will leave Minneapolis in August and plan to return in July, 1960.

Robert E. Nylund, associate professor of horticulture in the University's institute of agriculture, will help establish a curriculum and research program for the newly organized department of horticulture at Helsinki university, Helsinki, Finland. He also will study the influence of subarctic climate on the growth and production of vegetable crops, and he hopes to visit a crop experiment station in Lapland.

Nylund, who can speak Finnish, will be accompanied by his wife and two sons. They will leave for Finland in August and will stay until September, 1960.

Fulbright awards are financed by foreign currencies or credits owed to or owned by the United States Treasury.
