Wilma Marsh was a "nurse" when she was seven.

Now she's a nurse...for real...at General Motors.

There was a big difference between playing nurse and Wilma Marsh's first day as a nurse's aide at St. Joseph's Hospital in Flint, Michigan. When ordered to give a patient a bath, she fainted. Coming out of it, Wilma heard the doctor's remark, "This kid is never going to make it as a nurse."

That's when she made up her mind. "Wilma will make it!"

That was some 12 years ago, and Wilma has been in nursing ever since. Upon graduation from St. Joseph's she worked there for about 10 years. Now she's a full-time nurse at one of the Buick plant's 12 medical stations.

Her work is providing on-the-spot nursing service to employees with medical problems. Like all GM nurses, Wilma works under a doctor's guidance. She is well trained, capable, experienced and dedicated to her profession.

Nurses like Wilma Marsh are very special people at GM.

General Motors is people making better things for you.

I've worked hard for success but I've never been a slave to my job -- says Thomas L. Thorkelson, C.L.U., Santa Ana, California

"I'm the kind of guy who likes to be independent. That's what attracted me to the insurance business. As a Mass Mutual agent I have the freedom I crave. I can organize my working hours to allow me to spend time with my family in our cabin in the High Sierras and to accept various speaking engagements across the country. I'm able to devote hours each week to serving as a bishop in the Mormon church. I have time for the Santa Ana Junior Chamber of Commerce and our local Boys' Club, and to teach an insurance course at Santa Ana College. I'm not a slave to my job in any sense of the word.

"But don't get me wrong. When I work, I work hard. I prefer to see clients right here in my office. I've found that this gives me much more time to be of service to them. I feel my first duty is to show my clients what life insurance can do and how important it is to an over-all financial plan. Once this is done I help them set up a suitable plan to fit their own individual needs. This involves more than advising them on types and amounts of life insurance. Quite often I find this means calling in their lawyer to advise them on related matters, or suggesting they contact a broker about investing extra cash they may have on hand."

Tom Thorkelson is a 1954 Business Ad graduate of the University of Southern California who has been a Mass Mutual agent for seven years. He earned the Chartered Life Underwriter Designation from the American College of Life Underwriters during his first three years in the business—qualified for the industry's National Quality Award for the past three years—has been a member of the Million Dollar Round Table for the past six years—and is a member of our Company's Inner Circle, the exclusive group of those who place $2 million or more of new individual life insurance in a year.

He is one of the highly skilled group of professionals representing Mass Mutual, a Company over a century old, with $3 billion in assets. If you're looking for the kind of freedom in your career Mr. Thorkelson has found in his, write a personal letter to: Charles H. Schaaff, President, Mass Mutual, Springfield, Massachusetts. He is always interested in hearing from a good man.

BACK TALK

Sirs:

The degeneration of Big 10 football began when producing a football team (or any other team) became an end in itself rather than an extra-curricular activity for bona-fide students.

The only honest athletic policy would be to have no scholarship or any other form of aid dependent in any way on athletic ability.

The coaches and staff of the athletic department should have absolutely no part in determining what individuals enter their college.

The job of the athletic staff should be to give every student an opportunity to engage in athletics and to give those that can stand the gaff the toughest and most scientific training and a chance to compete with the toughest available competition.

This might not fill the stadiums up again, but it would better fulfill the universities' ostensible purpose of producing well-rounded individuals for future life.

An exception to the policy of no athletic scholarships is possible. The universities would admit frankly that they are farm clubs for the professional sports leagues and offer courses designed to produce professional athletes. The professional leagues might be willing to make some of the millions they pay in bonuses to rookie performers available for scholarships for such courses.

Students in such courses would be considered professional as soon as they accepted a scholarship, and adjustments should be made so they would not have unfair advantages in competition with genuine student-amateurs. However, some sort of open competition should be possible, not the impractical idealism of Mr. Avery Brundage.

I'm proud of a modest degree of athletic achievement. I did it the hard way, without any subsidy and without scientific coaching. In these subsidized days I might never have made the grade at all, and I believe many today are missing opportunities because of the emphasis on subsidized, minor league professional athletics conducted in the name of Alma Mater.

If you print this letter, please withhold my name and class. Too many of my friends think I'm crazy now.

P.S.

For background information, I can claim to represent a select group. I earned three major sport letters (classed as major—the sport was treated as minor) and qualified for Tau Beta Pi. I would venture that holders of three letters and either a Phi Beta Kappa or Tau Beta Pi key number less than 10 among all University of Minnesota graduates since their founding.

My coach was a marvelous gentleman and scholar to whom I owe much, but he was not a good coach.

I still like athletics. In football, I'd rather watch the pros as the best, rather than the college minor leaguers who are really pros in most cases.

I'd rather compete, and this summer I plan to compete in the Pan-American Game Trials on a sailing yacht, although I expect I'll be a bit older than most other contestants in the trials.

SUBJECT: The Alumni Fund Grows

Since its inception in 1963 the growth of the Alumni Fund has been heartening. Donors this year totaled 11,089. The total amount raised was $148,372, up per capita gift $13.38, and with a 10.08% participation by alumni. The best record yet.

A recapitulation of the Alumni Fund results since 1963 shows:

Total gifts 1963	$ 97,137.19
1964	116,442.44 up $19,305 or 19.8%
1965	133,599.57 up $17,157 or 14.73%
1966	148,372.87 up $14,733.30 or 11.05%
Total number gifts 1963	2948
1964	4844 up 1896 gifts or 64.3%
1965	7116 up 2272 gifts or 46.9%
1966	11089 up 3973 gifts or 55.83%
Per capita gift 1963	32.95
1964	24.03 down $8.92
1965	18.77 down $5.26
1966	13.38 down $5.39

Percent of participation of alumni

Mailed 1963 - 110,000	2.68% participated
1964 - 112,000	4.32% up 1.64%
1965 - 109,000	6.52% up 2.2%
1966 - 110,000	10.08% up 3.56%

In addition to the 11,089 graduates who gave $148,372 through the Alumni Fund (and this includes the substantial number who gave to the Williams Fund) another 1,864 alumni gave $401,793 to the University through other channels.

Alumni Gifts — 1966 (excluding Alumni Fund)

	No. of Gifts	Amounts
Special Projects Program	912	$ 18,374.50
Law School Scholarship Program	78	23,000.00
Medical Foundation	723	25,975.00
University of Minnesota Foundation	26	70,783.60
Regents	125	263,659.12
	1864	$401,793.22

Thus, for the calendar year 1966, 12,953 alumni gave $550,165 to the University, a record of support for which all Minnesota alumni can be justly proud.

Because the program of the Alumni Fund is still new, a number of questions are still being asked. The questions and answers follow: How much am I expected to give? As a practical minimum an annual gift of one dollar for each year out of the University is suggested.

What projects should I support? We suggest you support both the project of your own college or school (CLA, Medicine, Dentistry, etc.) as well as the Alumni Freshman Scholarship Fund. The Freshman Scholarship program depends upon your generosity for its complete support.

How many mailings will I receive? Each graduate receives a minimum of three mailings — one for your college project, and two for the Freshman Scholarship Program, one in the fall and one at the end of the year.

Don't I receive a class mailing too? There are two additional mailings to special groups. All female graduates who reside in the metropolitan area receive a request to support the U of M Alumnae Club Scholarship and Loan Funds. Likewise, alumni starting with their thirty-fifth reunion year (this year, classes of 1917-1932) are asked to give $10.00 a year for the next fifteen years or a total gift to their class of $150.00, with the class gift being made to the University at the time of the 50th or golden anniversary of their class.

Finally, where does the money go? The money received through the ALUMNI FUND is 99% restricted or designated for a particular college scholarship, loan or service fund — or for the Freshman Scholarship Program. Each spring the President's Project Advisory Committee meets to determine the use of all unrestricted monies. In the past the commitment of the Committee has been to support the Alumni Freshman Scholarship Program until at least one hundred such scholarships are available. Last year the funds supported 85 scholarships.

To all those who gave to the Alumni Fund or to the University through other channels during 1966, a BIG THANKS from the Alumni Fund Advisory Committee and the Alumni Staff.

Sincerely,

Ed Hauke

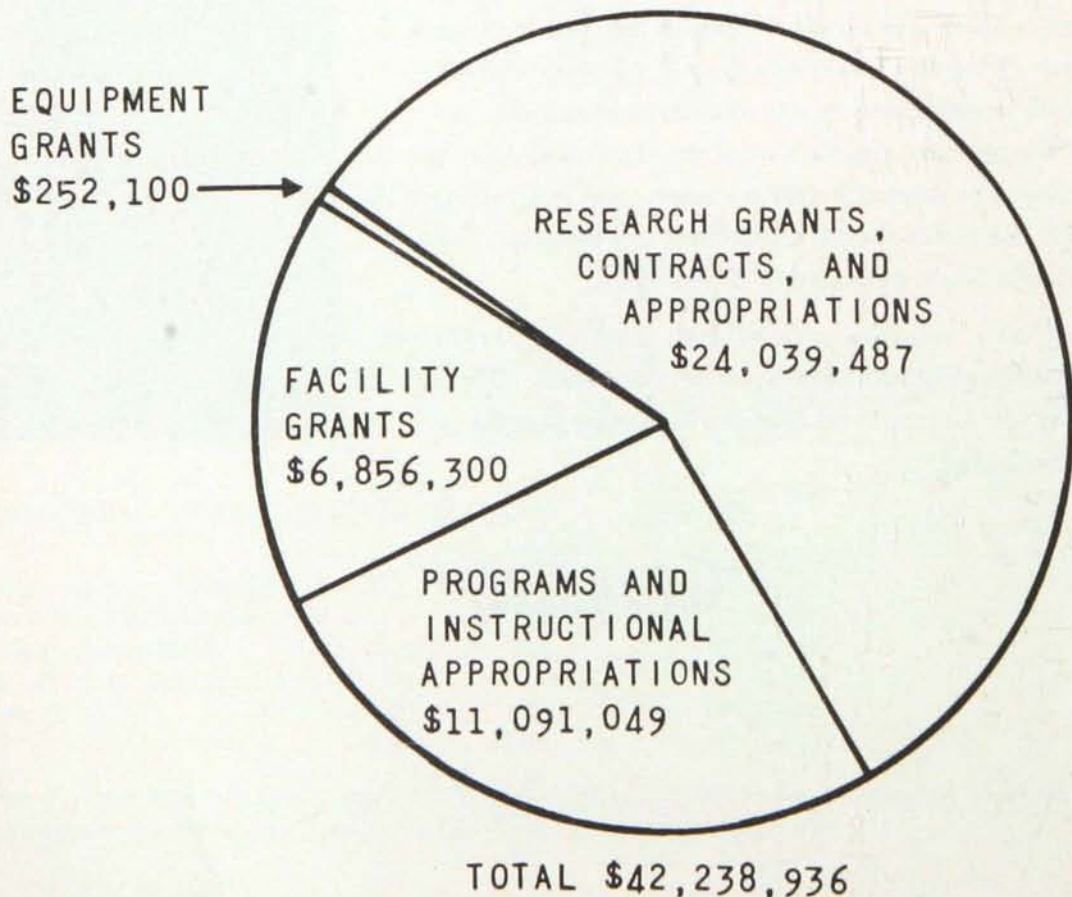

Whatever Else It May Be

Education

Is

Big Business

SUMMARY: FEDERAL PARTICIPATION (1965-66)

The explosive rise during the postwar years in the total cost of the nation's educational activities has driven home the realization that education, whatever else it may be, is unmistakably big business.

Collective public and non-public outlays on formal education are running at about $50 billion this year — a figure which includes expenditures for elementary, secondary and higher education but which excludes spending for such things as on-the-job training, military training, and vocational training in profit-making trade schools.

At this rate, education absorbs a larger share of the national product than any other single activity except national defense.

It is, moreover, a business with remarkable growth momentum. The $50 billion now flowing through school channels — about four-fifths of it for current expenditures, including salaries, and the other fifth for capital outlays — compares with only $4 billion at the end of World War II.

This twelve-fold increase works out to an annual growth rate of 12½ per cent — far more rapid than the climb in national product. Educational outlays have advanced from the equivalent of 2 per cent of gross national product at the end of the war to between 6½ and 7 per cent currently.

The 88th and 89th Congresses, responding to the desires of the people, enacted laws enabling the federal government to take its place in the local-state-national educational partnership. The federal government has gone beyond offering sporadic financial aid to taking an active, constructive part in improving American education. Toward this end, Congress has enacted 24 major pieces of legislation in the past three years. These new laws are channels through which billions of federal tax dollars go — and will continue to go — into our elementary schools, high schools, vocational schools, colleges and universities.

But this money is not simply handed out in the pious hope that it will be put to good use. Each of the education laws — the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the Higher Education Act, and the rest, old and new, is quite specific.

Categories and conditions of aid have been established to insure that these funds are spent in an efficient and prudent manner. This is seed money. It is intended to stimulate greater self-help in all agencies, institutions and organizations at every educational level. The federal government does not pretend to be able to pay America's total annual education bill. It acts on the theory that relatively small amounts of aid judiciously applied can make the difference between night and day in the opportunity and the quality of education.

According to figures recently released, the University ranks ninth among American colleges and universities in receipt of federal money.

For the fiscal year 1965-66, the University received $42,238,936 (excluding student loans and aids.) Massachusetts Institute of Technology received the most — $59.6 million — followed by the University of Michigan, UCLA, Columbia University, Cornell, the University of Illinois, the University of California at Berkeley and Stanford. Harvard and the University of Wisconsin received slightly less than Minnesota.

According to the University President O. Meredith Wilson, "the position is a reflection of federal agencies on the quality of the institution."

The largest amount of this money — $24,039,487 — went for research grants, contracts and appropriations. The remainder was divided among programs and instruction ($11,091,049), buildings ($6,856,300) and equipment ($252,100).

All told, federal aid amounted to 25.1 per cent of the University's $142,557,908 expenditures for the fiscal year.

There has been a marked increase in federal support of University programs over the years. In 1961-62, federal aid amounted to $19,190,243, or 20.4 per cent of the University's $93,984,838 total budget. The following year this increased to 22.2 per cent — $22,751,209 of $102,575,074. In 1963-64 it was 23.8 per cent — $27,160,381 of $114,230,834 — and in 1964-65 it was 24.3 per cent — $30,533,326 of a total University budget of $125,778,749.

Total 1965-66 research expenditures for the University from endowment income, gifts, grants, contracts and special appropriations from the state and federal governments amounted to $28,895,995. The federal government's share of this figure — $24 million — accounted for 83.6 per cent. Approximately $2 million, or 6.7 per cent came from the state, $2.6 million, or 9 per cent came from gifts, and $218,000, or .7 per cent, came from endowments.

In all research activities, the University charges 39.13 per cent overhead for indirect expenses. In 1965-66 this amounted to $3,646,062, and in the current year it is estimated to be $4,343,000.

The University's experience with government research grants is not unique. Government money — more than $1 billion annually — pays for a substantial portion of the research conducted by the nation's leading universities, but for relatively little of the research conducted at other institutions of higher education — and herein lies the rub.

Most federal research funds are allocated to institutions for the use of specific researchers working on specific projects. And, as the director of the National Science Foundation told a Senate subcommittee last summer, "The most creative individuals . . . tend to be concentrated in the leading institutions."

This has led to a concentration of grants in certain sections of the country and a relative scarcity in others which, in turn, has led to the following criticisms:

- That funds are not distributed equitably among states. In 1965, for example, Maine got $1 per capita; Massachusetts, $17.90.

- That too large a share of the money goes to large, prestigious institutions, leaving too little for the small institutions — which consequently have difficulty attracting and holding good faculty members.

The question has been raised — and debated — “What can be done to distribute federal research money more widely, without diluting the quality of research or harming the institutions which now receive large numbers of grants—”

Both the president and Congress have expressed concern about so-called “inequities” in the government’s allocation of research funds among colleges and universities. In 1965, President Johnson directed all government agencies to broaden their distribution of such funds to include a larger number of institutions, wherever possible.

As a result of this directive, several agencies devised plans to widen their research activities. The Department of Defense developed a complicated new system of dispensing new research funds. Said a department spokesman: “We intend to practice a new type of selectivity, aiming at obtaining a much more even geographic distribution . . .”

The National Science Foundation plans to expand its present programs and to begin two new ones designed to improve the scientific capabilities of various colleges and universities. According to NSF’s director, “This process of upgrading, improvement, and development . . . is the most certain and economical way to achieve widespread geographic distribution of competence and quality. As this is achieved, research and development funds will follow in due course.”

And the Committee on Academic Science and Engineering, an arm of the Federal Council for Science and Technology, has begun keeping detailed statistics on all government support for science, on an institution-by-institution basis. This is expected to help all agencies in planning their research-grant program.

Program assistance — which amounted to $11 million — is relatively new in federal-state programs and, according to President Wilson, “we are still seeing federal attempts to grant funds program-by-program rather than by supporting institutions as they develop their own programs creatively.

“Program assistance changes dramatically as federal emphasis changes. As a result, we are hopeful that program support will be more sustained and less categorical.”

Federally-supported programs at the University fall roughly into five major programs:

- National Defense Education Act Institutes — there will be four this year, in geography, English, reading and advanced study in modern foreign languages. Their purpose, generally, is “teaching teachers to teach.”

- Office of Economic Opportunity “Upward Bound” — a project to motivate capable high school boys and girls who live in a milieu of economic and cultural deprivation to continue and do well in their high school studies and to prepare them to enter and to be successful in college.

- National Science Foundation “Minnemast” Project — the largest of the present projects of the Minnesota Mathematics and Science Center, its purpose is the construction of a coordinated curriculum in mathematics and science for the elementary schools.

- Other NSF projects in the Minnesota Mathematics and Science Center are designed to develop science and mathematics materials for use in all levels of education.

- Biomedical Sciences Support Grant — will be used in catalytic ways to encourage the most effective and rapid evolution of institutions’ health-related research and research training capabilities in the non-health professional schools.

Another important area of federal assistance to the University is in the realm of academic and civil service salaries. Of federal funds received, $14,989,217 was expended for this purpose.

salaries are funded fully by the government are in residence at the St. Paul Campus, principally to engage in cooperative research. Many of them are awarded faculty status and privileges and, in addition to their cooperative research activities, many of them participate in teaching activities, including the advising of graduate students.

In the Institute of Agriculture, these scientists are members of either the Agricultural Research Service or the Economic Research Service of the Department of Agriculture. In the case of the North Central Forest Experiment Station, they are members of the U.S. Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Federal personnel accounts for 15.5 per cent of the professional research scientists in the Institute of Agriculture and 100 per cent – 40 in all – at the North Central Forest Experiment Station.

In addition, there are 54 full-time physicians stationed at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Minneapolis whose salaries are funded federally.

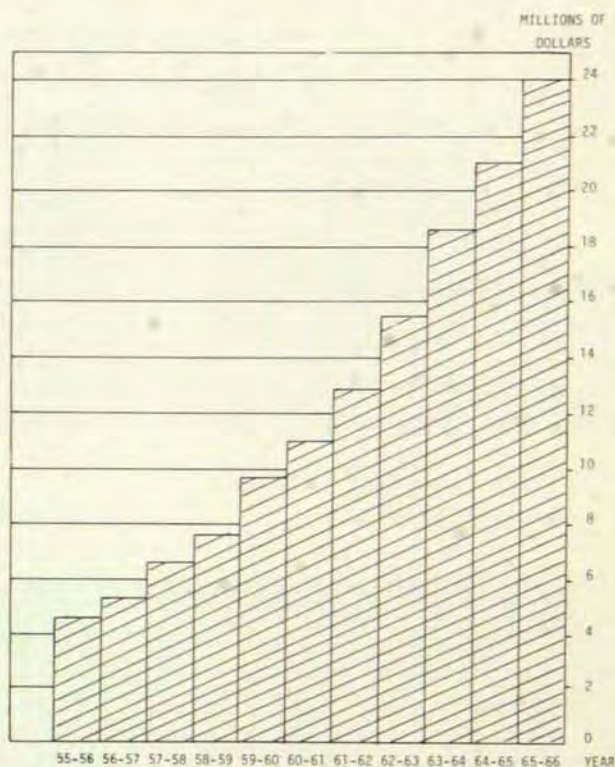

They serve the College of Medical Sciences in the areas of instruction for medical students in the junior-senior biennium, and for graduate students in certain specialized clinical medical fields.

These physicians are engaged in teaching 40 medical students and 152 medical fellows during this academic year, supplementing the 213 full-time staff engaged in teaching the same levels of students (as well as other levels within medical education) at the Medical Center, where there are 147 medical students and 298 medical fellows during this academic year.

But of all areas of federal participation, the most noticeable is in the proposed building expenditures, where it accounts for 39.6 per cent of the total. On the Twin Cities Campuses, it makes up 40.1 per cent of the program.

Several of the buildings could not be built without federal aid. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Science Center is being built with 79.9 per cent federal funds. The Child Psychology Center will be built with 50 per cent federal funds, the remainder coming from private gifts.

RESEARCH EXPENDITURES FROM FEDERAL SOURCES
1955-56 to 1965-66

President Johnson said when signing the Higher Education Act in November 1965 that in education "the final decisions, the last responsibility, the ultimate control, must and will always rest with the local communities."

Federal aid to education, then, is a help offered to the frontline educator—teacher, official, administrator—to enable him to do his job better.

The federal government hopes to strengthen American education by strengthening the hands of its partners.

THE UNIVERSITY

University Hospitals Named One of Nation's Top 10

University Hospitals is one of the 10 top hospitals in the nation providing major hospital services, the February issue of Ladies Home Journal reported.

The Journal surveyed experts from hospitals, medical centers, universities, and one from a state health department, to select the best 25 best hospitals representing the best in the nation.

Among the top 10 were: (1) Massachusetts General, Boston; (2) John Hopkins, Baltimore; (3) University of Chicago; and (4) Columbia-Presbyterian, New York.

St. Mary's Hospital, used by the doctors from Mayo Clinic, was number eight; hospitals at Stanford and Yale Universities shared ninth place, and University Hospitals shared 10th place with the University of Michigan Hospital.

Others mentioned among the 25 were Rochester Methodist Hospital, Rochester, Minnesota; Wisconsin University Hospital; and hospitals connected with Baylor, Alabama, California, Pennsylvania, Duke, Rochester and Vanderbilt Universities.

Other university and private hospitals comprised the rest of the list.

Some criteria used in selection were that the hospitals be large teaching hospitals with between 500 and 1,000 beds (University of Minnesota Hospitals, one of the largest teaching hospitals in the Upper Midwest, is an 824-bed complex with more than 2,000 employees and a daily patient census of nearly 1,300); provide a full scope of services; and maintain excellent departments.

Hospitals also were judged as to whether they had full-time staffs composed of qualified specialists, and whether they were non-profit.

Large teaching hospitals provide many beds and use medical students providing an economic base for the hospital, according to John Westerman '54LLB '58BBA '60MHA, newly-appointed director of University Hospitals.

Another feature is that "everyone is looking over your shoulder," not just to uncover mistakes, but to challenge performance, as well, according to Westerman. This 'goldfish bowl' situation stimulates performance, he feels.

The Journal article states that constant scrutiny by interns and residents into the specialists' performance, and post-operative scrutiny by pathologists, "keeps everybody honest." Because everything is in the open, few unnecessary operations occur, the article states.

Westerman mentioned several top-quality departments, particularly surgery, rehabilitation and pediatrics, which are nationally famous.

A full-time staff at the hospitals operates around the clock. Such a staff can fully dedicate their time to the medical care center, he said, unlike other hospitals which have doctors who also have their own private practices.

Charter Day To Be Televised

Charter Day Convocation, commemorating the 116th birthday of the University, will be televised live from Northrop Auditorium starting at 11:20 A.M. Friday, March 10.

The program will be carried on KTCA-TV Channel 2, Twin Cities; WDSE-TV Channel 8, Duluth; and KWCM-TV Channel 10, Appleton.

President O. Meredith Wilson will preside and Convocation speaker will be James Gray '20BA, Stamford, Connecticut, author of The University of Minnesota, 1851-1951, and 1964 recipient of the University's Outstanding Achievement Award.

To Leave University

Richard Kozelka '31PhD, professor and former head of the School of Business Administration, will retire in June to take a teaching post in Florida.

Kozelka, 67, who has one more year before mandatory retirement, will be professor and director of graduate studies in the College of Business Administration at the University of South Florida, Tampa.

Kozelka was dean of the School of Business Administration from 1944-60. Since he stepped down, he has been a professor in the school's department of quantitative analysis.

Johnson Gets Wrestling Post

Wally Johnson '42BSED '47MED, head wrestling coach, has been named by Chairman Dean Rockwell to the national Wrestling Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

Johnson currently is serving as chairman of the NCAA Wrestling Rules Committee, and is a member of the executive committee of the Olympic Games Committee for wrestling.

National Institutes of Health Approve $1,048,778 Program

The National Institutes of Health have approved a grant authorizing Minnesota to conduct one of several regional programs combatting the nation's three major deadly diseases.

Minnesota's Democratic congressional delegation recently announced approval of $370,904 to be used to facilitate development of a regular program.

The program will aid localities financially in organizing medical education, research, training and patient-care facilities which will, in turn, speed the flow of knowledge on cancer, heart disease and stroke from the laboratory to practicing physicians.

Under the program, the University will share medical information with area hospitals. In the past, the University has had only educational relationships with these hospitals.

The program will provide greater opportunity for patients to receive the latest advances in the diagnosis and treatment of the three diseases.

The total program will cost $1,048,778.

The association, which applied for the grant, plans to run the program through a foundation comprised of representatives from the University, Mayo Clinic in Rochester, and voluntary health organizations in the state.

The Medical School recently named Dr. Robert A. Ulstrom of the University of California at Los Angeles, as an associate dean with responsibilities for the University's role in the program.

The program was signed into law in October 1965 by President Johnson, and it authorized a three-year, $340 million program establishing "regional programs of cooperation" among medical schools, clinical research institutions and hospitals.

The program will provide greater opportunity for patients to receive the latest advances in the diagnosis and treatment of the three diseases, which in 1963 accounted for 71 per cent, or 1.25 million deaths.

Tickets Available For G.E. College Bowl

University of Minnesota students — champions in many areas — will have the opportunity to prove their mental prowess this month when the University again fields a team in national competition — the G.E. College Bowl.

One girl and four men students have been selected as members of the team which is coached by Robert L. Scott, professor of speech.

The team will appear on Sunday, March 26 in New York City on NBC Television. The show, however, will be taped the previous day, and a block of tickets has been reserved for alumni in the New York area.

Tickets, free of charge, are available through the Department of University Relations, 217 Morrill Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 55455.

The team will arrive in New York on Friday, March 24, and will compete the following day. If the team wins, another show will be taped the following day, for presentation on April 2.

The University is no newcomer to College Bowl competition. In College Quiz Bowl radio competition in 1954 the University won eight consecutive times; the team came back in 1955 and established a record, 12 consecutive wins. Then came television and the G.E. College Bowl in 1959, when the team won four consecutive games. In all, University teams have won $15,000 for scholarships.

This year, competition is limited to five consecutive appearances; one as a challenger and four as champion. Teams receive $1,500 for each winning appearance, with $500 going to the losers. Winnings go for scholarships.

Taiwan, India Top List

81 Nations, 1,556 Nationals Affiliated With University

Eighty-one nations are represented in the current directory of 1,556 nationals of foreign countries affiliated with the University during the current school year, according to Forrest G. Moore, director of the University's Office of the Adviser to Foreign Students. These include students, researchers and teachers, enrolled or working, in 164 major fields of study.

The decrease of 50 from the 1,606 listed a year ago, according to Moore, probably can be attributed to two new factors affecting foreign students who wish to continue their education in this country. These are the $10 credentials examination fee — a requirement passed after many of the prospective students had completed their registration — and the new rule requiring satisfactory grades on the Test of English as a Foreign Language.

The directory is prepared as a part of the nationwide annual census of "foreign students, staff members, doctors of medicine and persons engaged in training in the United States," and is sponsored by the Institute of International Education, U.S. Department of State, National Association for Foreign Student Affairs and the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

Because it is compiled in connection with these national programs, with reporting categories established nationally, the students listed in the directory do not represent official University registration figures, Moore points out. Many persons listed in it may not be registered at the University if they satisfy their legal status in other ways.

The Directory of Nationals of Other Countries shows a total of 1,023 foreign national students on the Minneapolis-St. Paul Campus, including 866 graduate students and medical fellow, 123 undergraduate students and 34 adult specials. An additional 196 students are affiliated with the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine, with 33 enrolled at Duluth. There are no foreign students at Morris this year.

Foreign nationals affiliated with the University on special programs include seven honorary fellows (foreign professors or other eminent scholars who have been granted temporary privileges of the library, research facilities and seminars of the University); 142 practical trainees (students who have completed their academic programs and have been authorized to seek up to 18 months' work experience in their fields); 38 special programs (persons not listed as "University students" but who are students who combine a program or work and study in special programs supervised by the Agricultural Short Courses office, Office of International Programs and other University departments); 23 transition (foreign nationals who are not presently listed under a student status but who plan to return to school in the near future); and 94 faculty and staff members.

Of the 81 countries represented, Taiwan (Free China) again has the largest group — 172. Others in the top 10 are India, 146; Canada, 115; Philippines, 56; Japan, 29; United Arab Republic, 28; Germany, 26; Iran, 25; Great Britain, 24; and Israel, 20.

The 27 countries each having only one national affiliated with the University are Afghanistan, Austria, British West Indies, Burma, Central African Republic, Congo Republic, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Haiti, Indonesia, Jordan, Macao, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Poland, Republic of South Africa, Rhodesia, Ryuku Islands, Soudan, Syria, Upper Volta, Vietnam, West Cameroons and Zambia.

Winter Commencement Will Be Televised

Allen J. Tate, Regents' Professor of English, will deliver the winter commencement address in Northrop Auditorium on Saturday, March 18.

The program will be televised live at 7:30 on KTCA-TV Channel 2, Twin Cities; WDSE-TV Channel 8, Duluth; and KWCM-TV Channel 10, Appleton.

Tate presently is on leave from the University as visiting professor of English at Vanderbilt University.

Another highlight of the program will be the presentation of Regents' Professorships to outstanding professors. The title Regents' Professor, which is the highest a University professor can hold, is held for the faculty member's entire remaining tenure at the University. The title, established last year for the first time, carries with it a gift of $5,000 from the University of Minnesota Founda-

NASA Sponsors 45 Doctoral Candidates

There are 45 University students studying toward doctoral degrees under National Aeronautics and Space Administration Programs, it was announced last month.

At the same time, it also was announced that the University will be one of several hundred colleges and universities throughout the country to participate in the NASA programs during the 1967-68 academic year.

More than 760 students throughout the country will be working toward doctoral degrees in space-related disciplines and by September, a total of 3,370 graduate students will be receiving NASA support.

NASA's purpose in graduate training support is to help meet the nation's future needs for highly-trained scientists and engineers. The program also will increase the ability of the schools to contribute to national technological advancement.

California Doctor To Head Surgery

Dr. John S. Najarian, professor of surgery at the University of California's Medical Center at San Francisco, has been named head of the department of surgery in the College of Medical Sciences.

Dr. Najarian will succeed Dr. Owen H. Wangenstein, noted surgeon-educator who has been head of that department since 1930, and who will retire June 30.

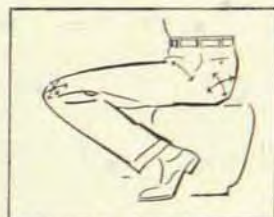

Well-known professionally as a tissue transplant surgeon, he has been on the faculty of the San Francisco Medical Center since 1959, and he started the transplant service there in 1963. Since the start of the service, some 57 kidney transplant operations have been performed, with a 75 per cent patient survival rate.

Dr. Najarian's selection is the result of an intensive search of surgeon-educators throughout the country, made by a select medical-school faculty committee headed by Dr. Robert A. Good, professor of pediatrics and microbiology. Dr. Najarian, 39, received the unanimous approval of this committee.

A graduate of the University of California with a degree in medicine in 1952, he was an intern and did his surgical residencies both at the University of California.

In 1960 and 1961 he received special research fellowships from the U.S. Public Health Service.

University Book-of-the Month

"Faculty for Cooking"

"Faculty for Cooking," compiled and edited by the Faculty Women's Club, University of Minnesota. ($3.25—$3.60 postpaid—277 pages.)

A brand new, all new collection of more than 600 favorite faculty recipes, "Faculty for Cooking" is a sequel to — but not a repeat of — the now-collectors-item "Curriculum for Cooks" published in 1958 by the University Hospitals Auxiliary.

From some 1,500 recipes collected from faculty wives, more than 600 were selected for inclusion by a special committee headed by Mrs. Edward Bade. Editor was Mrs. Leslie Zieve and chairman of the ambitious project was Mrs. Burtrum C. Schiele.

Many of the national and international recipes are signed by such readily recognizable contributors as Marian Wilson (Mrs. O. Meredith), Mary Louise Warmath (Mrs. Murray), Teckla Fenske (Mrs. Theodore H.) and Alice P. Mayo (Mrs. Charles W.).

Proceeds from the sale of the book are used primarily to support the Faculty Women's Club's three full- and two part-scholarships as well as its Student Loan Fund. Copies at $3.25 apiece — plus 35 cents for postage and handling — may be ordered from Mrs. Lemen J. Wells, 645-2195, or Mrs. Richard Donnelly, 377-9746, or with the attached coupon.

From Mrs. Wilson's kitchen is this recipe for Sweet-Sour Chicken:

SWEET-SOUR CHICKEN

Dip chicken pieces (breasts, legs, thighs) in egg wash, then roll in flour and sprinkle with monosodium glutamate. Brown in butter and place in casserole. Amounts given for sauce are right for 6 to 8 pieces of chicken:

- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 cup pineapple chunks
- 2 tbsp. onion, chopped
- 1 green pepper, cut in ¼-in dice
- 2 tbsp. cornstarch
- 1 tbsp. catsup
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ½ cup pineapple juice

Mix first 5 ingredients; then blend together remaining 4 and add. Cook mixture until it boils. Pour over chicken pieces. Bake 2 hours in slow oven.

Regents Change Department Name

The name of the department of plant pathology and physiology was changed last month by the Board of Regents to the department of plant pathology. According to Sherwood O. Berg, dean of the Institute of Agriculture, the name change was suggested because the department's work in plant physiology recently was moved to other departments within the Institute.

Research in the department is being conducted to develop disease-resistant varieties of field and horticultural crops. Tests also are being made on the behavior of plant diseases in the field, the use of chemical controls and the life histories of plant pathogens in their natural environments.

Staff members carry out their experimental work on about 30 acres of land on the St. Paul Campus, 160 acres at the experiment station near Rosemount and at facilities at branch experiment stations throughout the state.

Dr. Lillehei Presents Award to President

Dr. C. Walton Lillehei, professor of surgery and president of the American College of Cardiology, last month presented the first Distinguished Service Award of the college to President Johnson in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Lillehei, noted Minnesota heart surgeon and educator, made the presentation to President Johnson in a brief ceremony for his support of programs in the fields of diagnosis, treatment and research in heart disease. The presentation was part of the 16th annual scientific session of the college.

The college also honored Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey '39BA with the presentation of its annual Gold Medal. Humphrey delivered the convocation lecture prior to installation of the college's new president.

BACK TALK

Sirs:

After reading those nasty, hateful letters by the prophets of gloom and doom for athletics—and especially Minnesota athletics—printed in the ALUMNI NEWS, I am not in much of a mood to go anywhere or do anything to encourage the people who print this trash instead of dropping it in the wastebasket where it belongs.

Athletics are here to stay in spite of a few disloyal, discontents whose favorite pastime is objecting to something.

When it comes to loyalty, we could learn a lot from Purdue and Michigan State. No one is going to tell me that President Hovde or President Hannah are not A-No. 1.

We all love our President Wilson and it is with great sorrow we hear he is leaving us. Maybe we can get another of his kind. I hope so.

College football is drawing great crowds everywhere. Most all Big Ten schools are enlarging their stadiums or building new ones. Even Wisconsin is pouring money into athletics.

Now, as to our problem here. I have been through about 25 reorganizations here in the last 40 years. Life here moves so very fast, it is hard to keep members interested in our group. I put in many years as president here and know it is a hard nut to crack, but I would like to see a successful unit here. Some other universities have them here, I know.

Again, loyalty has a lot to do with it. The way things athletic have been handled in the ALUMNI NEWS hasn't helped any. There is deep-down dissatisfaction among the alumni on this score. They are not as articulate as the howling minority of malcontents.

If you think the alumni are not interested in backing Minnesota athletics, just pore over your list of contributors to the Henry L. Williams Scholarship Fund!

The writer who requested his name withheld was ashamed of what he had written and I do not blame him as I, too, am ashamed to see this in the ALUMNI NEWS.

Dr. Neil A. Faus '18DDS
Hollywood, California

Sirs:

I am 78 years of age, a graduate and lawyer for 52 years, and have seen the Golden Gophers in football for 60 years, taking in 90 per cent of their home games during that time, and at least one game away from home each year. I am not alarmed at the decline of Big Ten football recently.

When Bernie Bierman was coach, he won National Championships using Minnesota boys as players. President Morrill did a disservice to the University and the State when he brought in Ike Armstrong as athletic director, and Bierman was not elevated to that office.

Since the days of Bierman and the homegrown Swedes, Norse, Germans, etc. of Minnesota, we have had recruiting from all over the U.S.A.—good football players like Bell, Stephens, Munsey, Haines, Brown, Dickson, etc., good fine scholars, but not better players than the Widseths, Svendensens, Wildung, McNamaras, Martineau, Tonnemaker, King and Uram of Minnesota, who had friends and relatives in Minnesota, interested in seeing them play.

We are lucky to have the present athletic director. Gopher football will come up again, and when it does, I will be attending games, as I have in the past.

Z. L. Begin '14LLB
Marshall, Minnesota

Sirs:

It was truly a joy to read the well-organized material presented on the Peace Corps in your issue of February, 1967. As someone who has participated in several training programs during the last four years, I found myself saying "Amen" more than once to various statements in the issue.

Such a commendable performance, and yet no mention of who authored or edited the material. Though it may have been culled from various other publications and "handouts," the articles still were well-edited and showed a focus on some really critical aspects of the Peace Corps.

Richard W. Collier '48BA '59PhD
Lihue, Kanai, Hawaii

Editor's note: The article, like all unsigned articles in ALUMNI NEWS, was written—and culled—by the editor.

Sirs:

My wife and I just returned from a trip to South America and found the February 1967 issue of the ALUMNI NEWS. We were exceedingly interested in the article, "The Peaceful Crops of the Peace Corps."

We had many contacts with Peace Corps Volunteers in South America, queried them and heard their stories.

One particular conversation that I listened to was between a husband and wife volunteer and a dean from one of the universities in the United States. The general consensus of this conversation was that education graduates could go into teaching in the United States under an established program, but they did not have the qualifications to establish a reasonable program themselves. This was beyond their abilities, especially in a foreign country. Technical specialties, they felt, would be more advantageous than academic generalities.

Another Volunteer we met in the jungles of the Amazon had been there for six months. He was a two-year college student sent there to teach cooperative programming to farmers, so that they could jointly sell their products in the market place. He felt he was a failure at his job. He was not really sure why he failed, maybe it was his lack of practical experience or lack of ability to communicate to relatively uneducated people in a foreign country.

The next day, in the jungle down the river, we found a cooperative movement where natives joined to

SUBJECT: Unequal Educational Opportunity

Recently I was invited to appear before a legislative committee hearing to speak out in behalf of the need for scholarships. I didn't get a chance to say my piece but if there is one thing that I feel strongly about it is the need for more scholarships. I can state without fear of contradiction that this is particularly true at the University of Minnesota. Ours is the greatest country in the world for many reasons — because of our inalienable rights to freedom, just and fair opportunity, the fundamental equality of all men and the belief in the essential dignity of the individual.

One of the most remarkable phenomena of the twentieth century is the growth of public education because of our belief in the principle of equal educational opportunity. At the very core of our great democratic society is an educated citizenry.

Today while the precept remains, the opportunity for equal educational opportunity is fast dwindling. To be sure, at the primary and secondary levels, the opportunity to attend schools is still there — but schools, and teachers, and curricula are not equal. For instance, compare the schools of our impoverished areas with the incomparable schools in certain of our more affluent suburban districts.

When it comes to higher education, the opportunity to go to college depends more on the ability to pay than ability to do the college work. In the early history of our country there was a time when only the sons of the wealthy could afford to attend college. With the advent of the Land Grant Act and the subsequent development of land grant colleges and the state university, equal educational opportunity was placed within the grasp of every boy and girl in the land. But that, too, is fast changing. The costs of operating institutions of higher education have multiplied many times more than the cost of living (in the ten years 1953-54 and 1963-64 student charges have risen 80%, cost of living 17%). This has resulted in increased student tuition and fees which originally were presumed free, until today these costs are formidable barriers to those who have the ability but not the finances to go to college. And costs will continue to rise not only next fall, but for the foreseeable future. The best chance today of obtaining a college education is to be born of affluent parents. Sad as it is, no longer is there equal educational opportunity even at our land-grant colleges and state universities. Opportunity now has a dollar sign attached to it.

What about scholarships at Minnesota? Counting every conceivable scholarship available there are still less than 800 for the 39,000 student on the Twin Cities Campus (2%).

How many Freshman Scholarships are available? Of the 9200 new freshmen entering the University last fall, there were 327 Freshman Scholarships available and competing for these 327 scholarships were 2289 qualified applicants. The Alumni Fund provided $29,605 for 89 of these Freshman Scholarships, the grants ranging from $150 to $500. These scholarships are awarded on the basis of ability and need, and while there is no arbitrary scholarship requirement other than the requirement of the college in which the student matriculates (C or C+), the small number of scholarships available means that to qualify one must be in the top 15% of all students applying. A student, in order to receive a freshman scholarship, must have his family file a statement indicating its financial status and the extent to which it can help the student during the year. The student must, likewise, indicate how much cash he has saved for college. Then the amount of money required to allow the student to matriculate, with a chance to succeed, is determined. Only then is the amount of the scholarship determined, about one-third being given as a scholarship, one-third as a loan and one-third through work on campus. The average freshman scholarship award is $375.00.

Every time tuition and fees are increased — even as little as $5.00 per quarter — some qualified student finds the new differential too great and decides not to go to college, which is a great loss to society and to the individual.

Most parents of children attending State Universities or Land Grant Colleges never have gone to college. Their average yearly income is less than $6500, so their ability to help their children attain a college education is greatly limited.

At Minnesota, a large percentage of students have to work in order to meet expenses. About 60-65% work part time. This is the main reason why only 20% of the students who enter the University in any one year, receive a degree four years later. Fifty per cent eventually receive a degree within ten years.

Freshman Scholarships are essential to help those with ability and who need to get a start. A 10% student-scholarship ratio would be a modest one. For instance, many of the Eastern private schools have up to 50% of their undergraduate students on scholarships. Freshman Scholarships at Minnesota are for the first year only. There are practically no scholarships at the sophomore level — but once students are on campus they seem to find ways of continuing, usually through loan funds and outside work. At the junior year level, there are a considerable number of scholarships available — but competition is great. There are very few scholarships for seniors, and there are but a modest number of scholarships at the professional level — Medicine, Dentistry, Law and Pharmacy.

Finally, there is a great unmet need for what might be termed merit scholarships. Minnesota is getting its share of the good students, students in the top 10% of their class in ability — but the University is not getting its share of the top 2% of the very bright students. WHY? Primarily because these students are assiduously recruited and given scholarship grants ranging from $1500 to $2500 yearly. At Minnesota, we do not have a single scholarship with which to compete. To be sure, some of the very bright students in the top 2% do choose to come to the University, but most go where the scholarship money is. If Minnesota is to compete for the top scholars of the State, it must have the same kind of competitive scholarships available.

In my opinion, the present scholarship needs of the University are:

- a minimum of 3000 Freshman Scholarships at the yearly level of the cost of tuition and fees — presently $375.00.
- for sophomores, juniors and seniors, a like number of scholarships should be made available.
- for merit scholarships (no need), at least 100, averaging $1500 per year.

As you can see, there is a great need for a greatly-increased number of scholarships at the University. If any semblance of equal educational opportunity is to be maintained, the more that tuition, fees, and student costs go up, the greater need for scholarship programs to enable those of ability and need to get a college education. Unless we, in some manner, provide them, equal educational opportunity will be a thing of the past.

Sincerely,

Ed Hauslet

Minnesota's Ambassadors: The Board of Regents

President and chairman of the board, H. B. Fuller Company. Physician. Vice president and general manager, Minneapolis Star and Tribune Company. Farmer. President, Otter Tail Power. Housewife.

These are the University of Minnesota Regents, these and others. As Minnesota's chief counsellors, these prominent civic-minded men and women have taken on a dual ambassadorship between public and University, University and public.

The Regents bring to the University the pulse of the public's feelings, and at the same time are Minnesota's most influential representatives to the community.

Boards of regents, or boards of trustees, are peculiarly American institutions. Such lay boards, according to American educators, create greater stability and a closer relationship between citizens and their institutions of higher learning. Because early colleges in this country were largely theological institutions, the first boards were composed mainly of ministers. Today, more than 35,000 people serve as trustees or regents of colleges and universities throughout the nation.

The Board of Regents have always been an integral part of the University and the State of Minnesota. The by-laws by which the Board governs today often refer to the University's charter.

In the Act of February 13, 1851, establishing the University, the Territorial Legislature made provision for a governing body of twelve Regents, to be elected by the Legislature. It further provided that "Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of regent of the University, from any cause whatever, it shall be the duty of the Governor to fill such office by appointment, and the person or persons so appointed shall continue in office until the close of the session of the Legislature then next thereafter, and until others are elected in their stead."

The Act continued that "The Regents of the University and their successors in office shall constitute a body corporate with the name and style of the 'Regents of the University of Minnesota,' with the rights of such, of suing and being sued, of contracting and being contracted with, of making and using a common seal and altering the same at pleasure."

Many of the individuals who were deeply involved with the making of early Minnesota history also were involved with the beginning of the University. Governor Alexander Ramsey, in his second message to the Territorial Legislature, urged the creation of a state university. After provision for its establishment was made, Franklin Steele served as first president of the newly-created Board of Regents. He held the post until 1860.

It was Steele who made the decision to locate the University on a bluff near the Falls of St. Anthony, "The romantic beauty of whose bank surpasses that of the Hudson."

The first Board of Regents, elected that February day in 1851, reads like a veritable "Who's Who in Minnesota History:" Steele and Ramsey, Isaac Atwater, Joseph W. Furber, William R. Marshall, Bradley B. Meeker, Socrates Nelson, Henry M. Rice, Henry H. Sibley, Charles K. Smith (who resigned the following November and was replaced by John H. Stevens), N. C. D. Taylor and Abram Van Vorhes.

All were public-spirited citizens who served the early University, and who had a great faith that higher education was a way to a better life.

When the State Constitution of 1857 was adopted, it followed the pattern of the Territorial Act of 1851 and made the University Board of Regents a constitutionally independent authority. Over the years, this raised the question of whether or not the University was an agency of the State's.

As early as 1860, three years after adoption of the Constitution, in an act to provide for the government and regulation of the University, the Legislature made the following provision:

"The University shall be governed and managed by a Board of Regents consisting of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Chancellor, and five electors of the State to be appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, immediately after the passage of this Act, and such other persons as may be appointed in accordance with a subsequent provision."

Over the years, various changes have been made to reorganize and provide for the government and regulation of the University.

By Legislative Act of March 4, 1864, a special board of three Regents — Orlando C. Merriman, John Nicols and John S. Pillsbury — was appointed for a two-year term to handle the financial affairs of the University. They were empowered to pay claims against the University and to sell and buy lands to clear the indebtedness of the University. By a subsequent act on February 28, 1866, their term was extended two years — to March 4, 1868.

Other changes over the years have been:

February 18, 1868 — Legislative Act reorganizing the University provided that the government of the University be vested in a board of nine Regents. The governor and superintendent of public instruction would serve as ex officio members, with the seven remaining members to "be appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

April 29, 1872 — Legislative Amendment providing that the president of the University also serve as an ex officio member of the Board of Regents. This increased the Board to 10.

April 24, 1889 — Legislative Act increasing the Board of Regents to 12. The governor, superintendent of public instruction and president of the University would serve as ex officio, with the nine remaining members to "be appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

March 27, 1895 — Legislative Act providing that "The government of the University shall be vested in a board of thirteen (13) regents, of which the Governor of the State, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the President of the University and the Honorable John Sargent Pillsbury, for and during his good pleasure as an honorary member, having the same power as any other members, shall be members ex officio, and the remaining nine members thereof shall be appointed by the Governor by and with the consent of the Senate."

April 5, 1907 — Legislative Act returned the Board of Regents to 12 members, three ex officio and nine to be "appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." It also provided that "no appointed member shall, during the term for which he is appointed, hold any other office, elective or appointive, under the State of Minnesota."

April 21, 1923 — Legislative Act provided that the Board of Regents be composed of three ex officio members, and one member from each of the state's Congressional Districts. Once again, this brought the total number of Regents — appointive and ex officio — up to 13, necessitating the appointment of J. E. G. Sundberg to represent the 9th District.

Still, the question of whether or not the University was an agency of the State Government remained unresolved. The issue was finally decided in 1928 by the State Supreme Court in the famous Chase Decision.

The opinion of the Court was that "the purpose of the constitution remains clear. It was to put the management of the greatest state educational institution beyond the dangers of vacillating policy; ill-informed or careless meddling, and partisan ambition that would be possible in the case of management by either legislature or executive chosen at frequent intervals and for functions and because of qualities and activities vastly different from those which qualify for the management of an institution of higher education."

And in another quotation, "The whole power to govern the University was put in the Regents by the people — no part of it can be put elsewhere but by the people."

The Supreme Court held that the University, which had been perpetuated by the State Constitution adopted in 1857, was the territorial University established by the Legislature in 1851 — a University governed by a corporate body of Regents elected by the Legislature. The University was a corporation of which the Regents were the sole members and governing board — an Act which the Legislature cannot change.

The state attorney general, in a letter to the president of the Board of Regents on August 17, 1928, stated that under the Supreme Court decision, the organization of the Board was controlled by the law of 1851, which could not be changed by the Legislature. The same law provided that whenever a vacancy occurred, it was the duty of the governor to fill it by appointment.

The Regents in office had been appointed according to that law, but the attorney general ruled that election must take place at the next meeting of the Legislature, in 1929.

On April 4, 1929, the Legislature, in joint session, elected nine members who had been serving on the Board of Regents, and three new ones, thus ending once and for all the question of the Regents' authority. The Chase Decision had finally made it clear that the Board of Regents legally bears responsibility for all aspects of the University's operations.

To date, 160 have served, or are serving, as members of the Board of Regents — including 33 ex officio. All have taken their responsibilities seriously. This was true even during the early days when they decided whether a new gas lighting system was to be installed, whether the chemistry laboratory needed a certain piece of new equipment, and whether a teacher's salary was to be cut. It is told that the Father of the University, John Pillsbury, once asked to be excused from an important meeting of international milling executives because he was "due at a Regents' meeting."

Today's Regents are equally conscientious. Although many of them are men with far-flung commitments, almost all of them give much of their time to University-related business, in addition to regular attendance at monthly meetings in the Regents' Room on the second floor of Morrill Hall.

The present board consists of 12 members — four businessmen, two attorneys, one newspaper executive, two doctors, two farmers, and a housewife. Eight are alumni of the University.

Despite the diversity of backgrounds and interests, all share three common denominators: geography, success in their fields, and an honest and abiding concern for what is best for the University.

Two newest members of the Board, elected last month at a joint session of the Legislature, are Elmer L. Andersen '31BBA, representing the 4th Congressional District, and Dr. Herb Huffington '51MB '52MD, representing the 2nd.

Andersen, St. Paul, is president of the H. B. Fuller Company. A former member of the MAA board of directors, he was a member of the State Senate from 1949-58 and governor from 1961-63.

Dr. Huffington, Waterville, Minnesota, is president of the Minnesota Academy of General Practice.

Incumbents, re-elected this year, were Daniel C. Gainey, 1st District, and Herman F. Skyberg '16SchAg, 7th.

Gainey, chairman of the Board of Josten's, Inc., Owatonna, is senior

“The whole power to govern the University was put in the Regents by the people—no part of it can be put elsewhere but by the people.”

member of the Board of Regents. He is a graduate of Hamline University and has been a Regent since 1939.

Skyberg, of Fisher, Minnesota, was first elected to the Board in 1949. He now is a Red River Valley small-grain and potato farmer and long-time leader in various Minnesota farming organizations.

Andersen, Dr. Huffington, Gainey and Skyberg all were elected to six-year terms.

Other Regents currently serving are:

Albert V. Hartl, Fergus Falls, president of Otter Tail Power. He was elected in May, 1965, to a four-year term, replacing Gerald W. Heany of Duluth.

Mrs. Marjorie J. Howard '24BA, Excelsior, is the only feminine member of the Board. A housewife, she is an active promoter of higher education for women, a former vice president of the Minnesota League of Women Voters and active in the Republican Party. She has been a Regent since 1953 when she was appointed to fill the unexpired term of J. Seneca Jones.

Fred J. Hughes '34LLB, a St. Cloud attorney, is a former member of the State Board of Tax Appeals and the State Fair Employment Practices Commission. He was appointed to the Board in 1961 upon the death of Ray J. Quinlivan, and in 1963 was elected by the Legislature to serve a full term.

Lester A. Malkerson '35BAgE was first elected to the Board by the Legislature in 1951. As a University student he played on the hockey team and headed a committee that recommended building a student union. At present, business activities include an automobile dealership and a 900-acre farm and cattle ranch near Chaska.

Dr. Charles W. Mayo '31MSSurg is known the world over for his activities in medicine and in the United Nations. He is professor emeritus of surgery at Mayo Graduate School of Medicine. His extensive activities in the fields of education, science and public service have resulted in high appointments and honorary awards. He has served on the Board since 1951.

William K. Montague, a consultant for Reserve Mining Company, was elected to the Board in 1963. His collection of rare historical and other books has been presented to the UMD Library. An author himself, he has written a book on Shakespeare and also a humorous history of golf.

George Rauenhorst, who maintains a herd of 1,000 beef cattle on a 1,000-acre farm near Olivia, was elected in 1965 to a six-year term. He was the founder of the Trojan Feed Company, as well.

Otto A. Silha '40BA is vice president and general manager of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Company. He was appointed in 1961 to succeed the late James Ford Bell. In 1959 he was elected to the MAA board of directors and in 1960 served as its second vice president.

The officers of the Board of Regents are its president (University President O. Meredith Wilson); a first vice president, known as chairman of the board (Dr. Mayo); a second vice president, known as vice chairman of the board (Mrs. Howard); a secretary (Vice President Laurence R. Lunden); and a treasurer (Treasurer Clinton T. Johnson).

Also attending meetings are Vice Presidents William G. Shepherd and Stanley J. Wenberg, and staff members who are especially concerned with business before the Board. Several years ago, the Regents' Room was enlarged to also accommodate the working press.

The University of Minnesota has the reputation in educational circles of having a stable Board of Regents. In some states, there seems to be a continual war between the administration and the regents or trustees. This is not so at Minnesota.

Here there is an atmosphere of mutual respect and confidence between members of the Board and the administration.

Neville Sanford, in his The American College, states, "Liberal and outspoken faculty members quite generally see trustees in a minatory role and feel that the trustees should raise money, build buildings and then go away." There is little of this feeling at Minnesota.

Is the Board a rubber stamp?

If the alternative would be a Board that is suspicious, obstructive and haggling, surely it is clear which kind of Board best serves the interests of the University and the people of the State.

To choose an able administration (the most important responsibility of the Board is the choosing of University presidents), to scrutinize the president's proposals with care, and to back his proposals only with clear understanding and agreement are the proper exercises of a Regents' responsibilities. Someone has said that "trustees must sail the difficult course between the rocks of arbitrary authority and the shoals of abdicated responsibility."

The present University is the result of the imaginative vision of our frontier ancestors. It represents their dedication to higher education and their faith in a state public institution of higher learning. Throughout the hundred and more years of its existence, the Board that they created has successfully carried out its task as custodian of Minnesota's most valuable resource and its hope for the future—the University of Minnesota.

FACULTY CLOSE-UP

JULIUS F. WOLFF JR., UMD professor of political science, first became interested in Great Lakes shipwrecks in 1952 when skindivers happened upon a "nameless wreck" off Split Rock Lighthouse on Lake Superior's North Shore. He traced it through a letter in the files of the Lake County Historical Society at Two Harbors as the U.S. Steel Corporation barge "Madeira," which went down on November 28, 1905. But it took two years of research to pinpoint it and in that time he became a dedicated shipwreck buff. Now he has compiled an impressive amount of historical data on Great Lakes shipwrecks and is recognized as an authority in the field. He is shown here examining a bill of lading bracket from the side of a pre-fabricated ore car that apparently was part of the cargo of the Benjamin Noble, a 250-foot vessel that disappeared with a crew of 20 in Lake Superior on April 28, 1914. Neither ship nor crew ever were found but the bracket, with several other parts of the ore cars, was found in 1961 in 60 feet of water about 20 miles north of Duluth. Wolff, a native Duluthian, received his BA from Notre Dame in 1940 and PhD from the University of Minnesota in 1949, the same year he joined the UMD staff.

THE CANDIDATES

It's time once again to vote for candidates for the Board of Directors of the Minnesota Alumni Association. Ten candidates have been nominated this year for the five vacant positions on the board, which is the governing body of the MAA and the source of the Association's officers.

According to MAA Executive Director Ed Haislet, the voting period officially opens upon receipt by the members of their copies of this issue, the April issue, the ALUMNI NEWS, official publication of the MAA. All ballots must be in the office of the Executive Director by May 26 in order to be counted. Results will be announced officially at the Association's Annual Meeting on June 6.

The nominating committee for this year's election consisted of Waldo E. Hardell '26BSBus, MAA national president, chairman; Albert H. Heimbach '42BBA, Thomas M. Salmen '41BA(UC) and Harold B. Shapira '31BSPhmChem.

The official ballot, to be filled in and returned to the Alumni office for tabulating, appears on page 37.

DUXBURY

John R. Duxbury '49BBA since 1963 has been manager of the personnel department of Rosemount Engineering Company. A member of the School of Business Administration Alumni Association board of directors from 1960-65, in 1964 he served as that organization's president. Extremely active in civic affairs, from 1958-59 he was on the City of Crystal Planning Commission and from 1959-65 served as councilman. He presently is chairman of the City of Crystal Park and Recreation Commission. He also is a member of the American Cancer Society Public Education Committee and chairman of the Employee Education Sub-committee. A member of the U.S. Navy Air Reserve with the rank of lieutenant commander, he serves as administrative personnel officer.

HELTZER

Harry Heltzer '33MetE, immediate past president of the Institute of Technology Alumni Association and a 1966 recipient of the University's Outstanding Achievement Award, is president of Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Company. He joined the firm as a factory worker following graduation and, with a few others, was largely responsible for the development of "Scotchlite" reflective sheeting. He later became one of its first salesmen and in 1943 transferred to production. In 1952 he was named head of the reflective products division, became vice president in 1959, corporate vice president in 1961 and group vice president in 1963. He became a director in 1965 and president last year. He has served on the Alumni Selection committee for a successor to President O. Meredith Wilson and as a consultant in the search for a new dean of the Institute of Technology.

KNUTSON

Oscar R. Knutson '27LLB is chief justice of the Supreme Court of Minnesota. Following graduation from the University, he entered private practice until he was appointed to the district bench in 1941. He was elected to the bench in 1942, and in 1948 resigned to accept appointment as associate justice of the Supreme Court. He was elected in 1948, 1954 and 1960. He resigned that position to accept appointment as chief justice in 1963, and was elected to that position the following year. In addition to the University's Outstanding Achievement Award, he has been recipient of St. Olaf College's Outstanding Alumnus Award, an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the William Mitchell College of Law, and the Law Alumni Association Award.

belongs to four private hospital staffs in Minneapolis, in addition to Hennepin County General Hospital and Gillette State Hospital for Crippled Children, and serves as a clinical assistant professor in the Medical School. From 1948-63 he served on the board of directors of the Medical Alumni Association, and as president in 1962. He is a member of the "M" Club and civic activities have included work with the P.T.A., United Fund and Republican Party.

MAUNDER

Elwood R. Maunder '39BA has had wide experience as a newspaper reporter and feature writer, war correspondent and public relations counsel. Since 1952 he has headed the International Forest History Society with headquarters and research facilities at Yale University, where he directs a program of research and manuscript collecting through a network of 45 leading university and college libraries in the United States and Canada. Maunder received his Master's degree from Washington University in 1947 and studied for a year at the London School of Economics. He is editor of "Forest History" and co-author of more than 100 oral history interviews with prominent leaders of forestry, conservation and the wood-using industries. He is recognized as one of the leading authorities on gathering details of history through tape-recorded interviews.

ALUMNUS ON THE MOVE!

Who is Harry Peter "Bud" Grant, the man the Minnesota Vikings chose last month to succeed Norman Van Brocklin as their head coach?

He is not an enigma, because no man can be an enigma who has coached a team to championships six times out of ten years he has been at the helm (including four Grey Cups, emblematic of the Canadian Football League title, in Grant's ten seasons with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers).

Yet he is a man few apparently have gotten close to. "He's a helluva football coach," says one Winnipeg newsman who has known Grant for all ten of those years, "but I don't feel I've ever gotten to know him."

"He handles his players well," is another comment. "He's come to be known as The Fox. When a tough situation presented itself, the common saying among the Bombers was, 'The Fox will think of something.'"

"He was a very fine all-around athlete," says Bernie Bierman, who was Grant's football coach for his four letter-winning seasons at the University. "He was one of our key men and an outstanding receiver, even though we didn't pass such a great deal. He's established a fine record in Canada, and I think he'll be a good man for the Viking job."

Grant's success in Winnipeg obviously made an impression on Jim Finks, Viking general manager who had an opportunity to be so impressed while he was a coach and then general manager with Calgary in the Canadian League.

Finks took over the Calgary team in 1957, the same season that Grant, after four years there as a player, began his Winnipeg coaching career, beating Finks' Calgary team to reach the Western playoff final.

Finks, officially acknowledged by Viking board members as having made the Grant recommendation, says there were over 70 applications for the post.

"About 35 were discarded immediately, and the others were eliminated down to three or four early," according to Finks.

When Grant's three-year contract was announced, there was a general reaction that it "was nice to have a 'hometown' get the coaching job," a reference to Grant's outstanding career as a University athlete.

This approach was not completely fair to Grant. As Finks said: "I have had first-hand information about Grant's abilities for eight years. The fact he is a Superior, Wisconsin, boy and the fact that he went to school here are only additional pluses after consideration of his talents."

Finks' predecessor with the Vikings, Bert Rose, also was impressed by Grant, but at an earlier date, when Bud made mincemeat of the University of Washington's offensive plans (Rose at that time was the Huskies' publicist), and in one memorable Washington-Minnesota game messed up three Washington field goal attempts.

Bud Grant is also, by most accounts, a man with whom the job comes first. "He can be tough," is one Winnipegger's recollection. "His first season as coach, one of the first players he cut from the squad was one of his best friends.

"It was once said up here that if there was an atom-bomb attack, Bud Grant would be the sole survivor."

Grant, 39, was born and raised in Superior, graduating from that city's Central High School in 1945—the same year he entered the Navy. He gave a glimpse of what was to come by starring in football, basketball and baseball at Great Lakes until his discharge in the summer of 1946.

That fall he enrolled at the University with several friends from Great Lakes—including Billy Bye and Dean Widseth.

Freshmen were eligible for varsity competition during those post-World War II days, and he received the first of his four (1946-47-48-49) football letters.

He was a 6-foot-3 end who played offense and defense. He also played forward in basketball (1946-47-48), earning three letters, and was a pitcher-outfielder on the 1947 Gopher baseball team.

His football exploits made him a popular All-Conference choice in 1948 and 1949, and in 1949 he also was named to some Mid-Western and All-American teams.

Despite the handicap of a late start because of football participation, in 1947 he was named the basketball team's Most Valuable Player. The following year he was third in team scoring with 109 in Conference play and 178 for the season.

It was also at the University that Bud met the future Mrs. Grant—Pat Nelson from St. Paul—who was studying home economics and journalism.

Their courtship lasted for their three years in school—she was a year ahead of him and graduated in 1949—and while she worked as a playground director in St. Paul.

Grant quit the University two quarters shy of his degree—with a double major in political science and geology.

In 1950 he was the No. 1 draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles. But he played professional basketball for two seasons with the Minneapolis Lakers before trying professional football. In 1952, his first season at offensive end with the Eagles, he was second among National Football League pass receivers, catching 56 passes for 997 yards and seven touchdowns.

The next year he joined the Blue Bombers. He caught 68 passes for 922 yards to set a new record in his first year with the Canadian Football League.

He became Winnipeg's coach in 1957, although only 30 years old. In 10 regular seasons his teams won 103 games, lost 55 and tied two. His overall record, including playoff games, was 121-66-3.

The Blue Bombers won six Western Division titles and were participants in the Grey Cup six times, winning four.

In 1965 he was the League's "Coach of the Year." That year the Bombers won the Western Division title and the Grey Cup after finishing last in 1964.

Grant became the Vikings' head coach exactly one month after Van Brocklin resigned (February 11), and a month and a day (February 10) after signing a new five-year contract as Winnipeg's coach and general manager. It was the second time Grant had been offered the position. The first offer was made in 1961 when the team originated.

Asked why he accepted in 1967 and not in 1961, his reply was: "The time and opportunity is right for me now."

In 1961, Grant was coaching the Bombers. In 1959 the club was league champion and won the Grey Cup, and the following year lost only its final game.

"It was a young team and I felt it would be a winner for some time," Grant added. "But the Vikings were just starting. It was an expansion club that would suffer growing pains."

And now?

"Now the team is established and over those growing pains," he said. "Oh, there are problems, but not like those of 1961."

"Also, I took the job because an opportunity as good as this one might not develop again. I'm 39 years old. That's not 'old,' but pro football is a young man's game. Teams usually prefer coaches in their thirties."

Then he added another reason:

"It's a chance to coach in the National Football League. That's the desire of any coach who is worth his salt."

The Vikings feel Grant is just that. According to Finks, "There were many coaches available who would have taken the job and adjusted more quickly. But the deciding factor was that Bud is a winner and in time will have a winner. Over the long haul, we think he can do the job."

"I've been an admirer of Bud's for a long time. When I was general manager at Calgary, I saw that his teams were well-disciplined, conditioned and prepared."

"When Norm quit, I immediately thought about Bud."

About the job, Grant says:

"I've only seen the Vikings play one game, although I've seen them on television and film. Still, I think we have the nucleus to have a contender in a short time. But I'm not going to stick my neck out and say I think we're ready to win a championship."

"I'll have to see what personnel we have before deciding what style of play is best. I noticed, however, that last year's Viking playbook was quite similar to Winnipeg's. The terms were almost identical."

He sees no problem in switching from Canada's 12-man football to the U.S. variety. "The games aren't that different," he said. "You use just one football."

What type of coach is he? "Football is still a game and the players have to like it. We expect to have a team that enjoys playing football and to have a 'happy ship.' As for the image I present - I'll have to leave it up to you people."

Though he is on the job right now, and a permanent resident, the family will stay in Winnipeg until the end of the school year.

The Grants' first home requirement is space: sufficient bedrooms for their six children and acres of running room for their pack of black Labrador. The Vikings' new coach is a brand new father. Two-month-old Danny joined sisters Kathy, 15, and Laurie, 13, and brothers Peter, 12, Michael, 10, and Bruce, 6.

this is a university

The University of Minnesota celebrated its 116th birthday on Friday, March 10, with a traditional Charter Day Convocation and birthday party. Charter Day commemorates the founding of the University on February 25, 1851, when Minnesota's territorial government voted to establish an educational institution at or near St. Anthony Falls "to be known as the University of Minnesota." Principal speaker was James Gray '20BA, noted author, alumnus and historian and winner of the University's Outstanding Achievement Award in 1964. President O. Meredith Wilson, who was attending his last University birthday party as president, accepted the traditional huge birthday cake from two students—Howard Kaibel, president of the Minnesota Student Association, and Jan Jacobson, 1966 Homecoming Queen. Minnesota Governor Harold LeVander '35LLB, background, also received a slice of the cake, as did University Regents, students and guests. (Minneapolis Tribune photo)

The University of Minnesota Foundation and its Governor John Sargent Pillsbury Fellowship

Playing a vital role in assisting the University in many ways is the University of Minnesota Foundation and its Governor John Sargent Pillsbury Fellowship.

Membership in the Fellowship is composed of alumni and friends of the University who give at least $1,000 annually to the Foundation for 10 years, or who make a deferred gift through a bequest, life insurance agreement, life income contract or annuity. Many members have far exceeded these minimum requirements.

The University of Minnesota Foundation was born of alumni vision for and dedication to the University. It is independent of the University, organized on a non-profit basis, with tax deductibility for contributions. Its sole beneficiary is the University of Minnesota. Its direction and resources are under the management of a Board of Trustees of concerned dedicated citizens, largely alumni by design but with constitutional provisions for participation of non-alumni friends of the University. The Foundation's basic purpose is to provide funds to meet certain of these needs of the University for which tax funds are not available. These things are generally concerned with projects or people — or both — essential to the University's continued quest to be of greater service and forever increasing excellence in education.

The membership in the Fellowship is increasing steadily and as of March 1st, 1967 consisted of the following:

That was back in 1964 after William H. Koptis had spent 14 years as the owner-operator of a sporting goods store in Parma, Ohio. "I was working 80 to 90 hours a week," said Bill "but the big discount stores moved in and service became secondary to prices. I wanted to get into something where I would have independence and an opportunity to apply my philosophy and public service. After much thought I selected the life insurance business, and then New England Life."

Bill made his move in 1965. During that year he established the finest first-year record of achievement in the entire Company and received the New England Life Rookie of the Year award. In 1966 his success continued to the point where he is a leading agent of the E. Clare Weber Agency in Cleveland—one of New England Life's larger agencies serving business and professional men.

(Many men do not qualify; in fact, less than half are urged to investigate further a career with us.) To those that do qualify, New England Life offers a substantial training salary, an exceptional training program, and the freedom to work where you want — with the kind of people you want to do business with. THE UNIVERSITY

Regents' Professors Named At Commencement Exercises

Five new Regents' Professors were announced last month by the University at winter-quarter commencement exercises in Northrop Auditorium.

The Regents' Professorship, created in 1965, is the highest honor the University can bestow upon its most distinguished professors, and carries with it a $5,000 annual gift for as long as the faculty member remains on the University staff. The gift is given by the University of Minnesota Foundation.

The five new award winners and their titles are:

Neal R. Amundson, Regents' Professor of Chemical Engineering; Herbert Feigl, Regents' Professor of Philosophy; Walter W. Heller, Regents' Professor of Economics; Wesley W. Spink, Regents' Professor of Medicine; and Maurice B. Visscher, Regents' Professor of Physiology.

The winners were introduced by University President O. Meredith Wilson, who handed each a citation. Carlyle E. Anderson '32BBA, chairman of the board, and Arnulf Ueland '17BA, president, both of the University of Minnesota Foundation, plus members of the University Board of Regents placed around the necks of the recipients a maroon-and-gold ribbon bearing a heavy silver medallion.

The honored five thus join five of their colleagues who were the first Regents' Professors ever named (at June 1966 commencement exercises): Ernst R. G. Eckert, Regents' Professor of Mechanical Engineering; E. Adamson Hoebel, Regents' Professor of Anthropology; Alfred O. C. Nier, Regents' Professor of Physics; Allen Tate, Regents' Professor of English; and Owen H. Wangensteen, Regents' Professor of Surgery.

BACK TALK

gether to till the soil and raise crops. Our investigation of this found that this was a voluntary project, without any help from the United States, or any other country's efforts. They did it in their own way, starting with drinking tequila, then going to work and then returning for more tequila.

Other volunteers we met were teaching at higher education levels in medium-sized cities. They felt they were doing a very good job.

We talked with two girls who had master's degrees. They had just completed two years as volunteers and now were on their way back to the United States. They expressed great satisfaction in their efforts working with deaf people in Brazil. The Peace Corps was keeping this project going with replacements.

One of the projects we heard of in Ecuador was to modernize an age-old custom of hand carving. The craftsmen, who had learned their work from generation to generation, resented the idea of the mechanization that was being taught to them by the Peace Corps Volunteers. The advantage of a greater income through volume production by use of tools was a fraud. They felt that hand carving should be done by hand, and took pride in their work.

We met an executive of the State Department who was in A.I.D. in Ecuador. His department had some connection with the Peace Corps. He compared the Peace Corps to a baseball team—"You can't win them all."

We also met people who had been exchange students in the United States. They felt that this program was of much greater value to their country than the work of the Peace Corps. Their natives, properly educated in the United States, could see life in the free world and operation of the free enterprise system, then could return to their native country with better communication and teach these advantages to their own people.
