Editor Alumni Weekly,

The following alumni have taken out life memberships in the General Alumni Association since my last report:

Maynard C. Perkins, New York; Jane
A. Squyer, Minneapolis; Alden J. Blethen, Jr., Seattle, Wash.; Dr. William E. Leonard, Minneapolis; Andrew Benton, New York; Wendell Hertig, Minneapolis; Dr.
E. W. Spottswood, Missoula, Mont.; E. B.
Johnson, Minneapolis.

Also from the faculty, Dr. William A.
Schaper,

Very truly yours,
Charles F. Keyes,
Secretary-Treasurer.

REGENTS APPROVE PLANS

At a joint meeting of the executive and building committees of the Board of Regents yesterday afternoon, further plans for the new main building were discussed. Elevations, plans, and specifications for certain building material as presented by the architect were approved.

Also plans for a new farm school building were adopted.

PREXY'S BON MOT.

Last Thursday evening President Northrop presided at a Washington banquet at the First Congregational church. During the course of his remarks he took occasion to commend the pastor, Mr.
Clark, on his financial ability. He said:

"Mr. Clark's method is hardly scriptural, for in the scriptures we read of one who struck the rock and water gushed forth—Mr. Clark 'struck' us and the 'rocks' gushed forth."

GERMAN DRAMA

Dr. Ludwig Fulda, of Berlin, Germany, will lecture in the University Chapel tonight on the German drama. Dr. Fulda is, next to Hauptmann and Sudermann, probably the best known of German dramatists, and his visit will be of interest not only to students of German, but to the public at large. There is still another reason however why the coming lecture is of particular importance.

An effort is being made to get Germans of national and international reputation to lecture at different American colleges and to send some of our best men to Germany in return. In this way the institutions of the two countries will be brought in touch. The lecture by Dr.
Fulda is the first of the series, and whether any more will follow and the scheme be carried out depends on the interest shown in this lecture. Yale, Columbia, Chicago and other colleges have taken hold of the project, and it is to be hoped that the experiment will prove successful at Minnesota.

MINNESOTA WINS FROM WORTHY MEN

A Decisive Victory though the Vanquished Divide the Honors with the Victors

The annual debate with Iowa, which was held in the University chapel last Friday evening, resulted in a decision for Minnesota, the vote of the judges being two to one in favor of the negative, which was the side upheld by Minnesota.

The question was, RESOLVED, That the United States should establish a fiscal protectorate over any West Indian, Central or South American republic whenever it shall manifest a chronic failure to meet its foreign financial obligations.

Granted: That neither these republics nor any other nation would object.

Minnesota team: John P. DeVaney, Ellis A. Robinson, Gustavus Loevinger; Iowa team; C. H. Barnard, William Brinton, Ray Files.

A fair sized audience witnessed the contest and the good points made by both sides were cheered most heartily. Naturally Minnesota received rather more cheering than Iowa, and yet the Iowa men must have realized that the audience felt a genuine admiration for them and their work. The spirit displayed on both sides was most admirable. The debaters were so thoroughly at home with their subject and handled it in a masterly manner.

Mr. Barnard, the first speaker for the affirmative, called attention to Europe's growing disposition to collect debts from the Central American republics. He painted a picture of the distressing conditions which exist in those republics to-day. In some cases conditions have gone so far as to necessitate the granting of unheard of concessions to private corporations, who agreed to assume the debts of the nation. In every such case, such an arrangement has resulted in an increased debt to the country and in unheard of loot on the part of these corporations. He then pointed to Santo Domingo as an example of a better condition of affairs. He claimed the United States had established a fiscal protectorate and in less than a year 55 per cent of the revenue, which had amounted to upwards of $1,000,000 had been put aside to meet the debts of the country, and that 45 per cent of the revenue, which had been devoted to the support of the government, had accomplished more than the full revenue prior to the time the United States took hold of the revenues to administer them for the benefit of creditors. He pointed out the fact that our past policy toward these small nations had not been able to prevent the present distressing conditions, and therefore it was improbable that this policy would be able to do anything toward removing conditions as they now existed. He emphasized his claim that Europe was constantly on the lookout for commercial and territorial control of the countries of Central and South America. He said the battle for commercial supremacy, which has already begun, will undoubtedly be the most stupendous battle of history and asked why the United States should not take advantage of her opportunity to control the destinies of this continent. He also pointed out Cuba as an example where fiscal control had resulted in untold benefit to the country.

Mr. Barnard's presentation of the case was clear, concise and convincing.

He was followed by Mr. DeVaney of Minnesota, who freely admitted that the Monroe doctrine did not relieve these countries, which manifested a chronic disposition to fail to meet their foreign obligations, from responsibility to meet those obligations. He claimed, and presented the authority of Assistant Secretary of State, in support of his claim that the present arrangement of Santo Domingo is not a fiscal protectorate. He showed that the adoption of the policy advocated by the affirmative would mean the abandonment of a policy which has prevailed for eighty-five years and under which the western hemisphere has made wonderful progress. He demonstrated clearly, that under the statement of the question, there could be but one basis for interference by the United States and that was the failure of these countries to meet their foreign obligations. Second: That in case of such a failure the United States must act; and third, that the remedy proposed, fiscal control is the only remedy to be applied no matter what the conditions might be. He pointed out the unwisdom of confining ourselves to a single solution of such a tremendous problem; that such a new departure would be unwise and dangerous, and would involve us in endless trouble and would tempt us, as a nation, to maintain control of these countries even after the cause which took us there had ceased to exist. He showed that the debts of these countries were for the main part in the nature of bonds which were being slowly paid. He also demonstrated clearly that such an arrangement as that proposed by the affirmative would bring about what it was most desirable to avoid, immediate pressure on the part of the bond holders for instant payment. He also showed that we must abandon a time-honored policy of non-interference, and must assume absolute and entire control of all lines of government so long as the protectorate continued. His argument was strong and convincing and he was at his best. He spoke straight to the audience and made a wonderful impression by his presentation of the case.

Mr. Files, who followed Mr. DeVaney, was the next speaker on the Iowa side. He had an ingenuous frankness which was very effective; and his clear and logical presentation of his side of the case told strongly in favor of the affirmative. He reviewed certain points made by his predecessor on the affirmative, and maintained their claim that Europe was on a constant lookout for territorial and commercial supremacy. He also made a very strong argument showing that the collection of financial claims against these countries furnished the best, indeed the only pretext for gaining a foothold on this continent. He also showed that the permanent occupancy of the American territory by a foreign nation would be a constant menace to this country. That in establishing a fiscal protectorate, to collect these debts of foreign nations, the United States would remove the only danger or excuse for foreign countries to obtain a hold on this continent. He showed that in Santo Domingo, where conditions were most distressing, that as soon as honesty of administration was guaranteed, the revenues of the country immediately produced sufficient to maintain the government of the country and to allow the putting aside of a substantial amount towards the debts of that country. His presentation of the case was exceedingly strong and closed with a final plea for the removal of the only pretext which could exist for the foreign acquisition of American territory.

Mr. Robinson, who followed for Minnesota, pointed out again that the present arrangement in Santo Domingo is in no sense a fiscal protectorate, even under the definition which had been proposed by the affirmative, which claimed such a protectorate could only exist as a result of a formal treaty between the U. S. and a country over which a protectorate was to be established. He showed that the United States did not even appoint the present financial agent, who is in charge of the affairs at Santo Domingo, and that he was appointed by the Santo Domingo government. He also emphasized the point, made by Mr. DeVaney, that such a control must be complete and absolute in order to mean anything. He reviewed briefly the condition of affairs in Mexico which were more deplorable than any existing at the present time in Central or South America. That Mexico, left alone had worked out her own salvation. His argument was particularly strong in favor of the "let alone" policy under which Mexico has made such satisfactory progress. He also showed that in Argentina a similar policy had resulted in a similar solution. He pointed out the fact that the proposed policy would be detrimental because it would take away all participation of the people of the country in the government. It would take away all incentives to progress and would remove incentives for securing better conditions and destroy patriotism of the people and cause them to lose their self dependence. We should teach them but should not exercise over them parental control. He pointed out that the tendency among a part of the United States would be to exercise such control under ever diminishing excuses as time went on. He gave as an example of this in the English occupation of Egypt. England entered Egypt for the purpose of collecting foreign debts. They still occupy Egypt and yet the debt of Egypt is greater than at the beginning of English occupation. Mr. Robinson was clear cut and forceful and his argument carried weight.

Mr. Brinton, who followed for Iowa, quibbled some over the interpretation of the question. He claimed that the policy described by the affirmative would not call for interference unless a request for such interference was made by the country itself, nor unless foreign nations should consent to such an arrangement. He claimed that our failure to establish such a protectorate would result in foreign nations collecting for themselves, and claimed that such a protectorate was the only form that could be adopted which would leave the country in better condition after the debt had been paid. That such occupation by the United States so far from being detrimental to the country, would serve as an object lesson in good government. Mr. Brinton spoke rapidly and to the point and made a very good impression on the audience.

Mr. Lovinger of Minnesota, who followed showed that the affirmative's argument had been based entirely upon conditions in Santo Domingo and that the control which now existed in that country was in no sense fiscal control as contemplated by the terms of the question.

That we are in Santo Domingo, in so far as we are there at all, as the result of an award. He protested against binding ourselves in the solutions in such grave problems to a single method. He said that over thirty similar cases in Central and South American countries had been settled in previous years by arbitration. The present policy of "let alone" has been sufficient. The nineteenth century has produced two great institutions, one the Monroe Doctrine and the other the Hague Tribunal, and these two are capable of solving present and any new conditions that are likely to arise. That it is now too late in the history of the world to adopt the policy of the strong to control the weak by sheer force. He drove his arguments home by sledge-hammer logic and rounded out the constructive argument of the negative.

Mr. DeVaney, who followed, made the first speech in rebuttal, and said that Minnesota had no desire to quibble in regard to exact terms of the question, and was willing to accept any interpretation of the question proposed by the affirmative. He showed the fallacy of the affirmative who claimed that Europe was anxious to secure territory in the United States, and yet who in the same breath argued that Europe would consent to a policy which would keep them out of America, according to the claims of the affirmative. He showed that in all probability, under the interpretation of the question proposed by the affirmative, that the policy would be a mere dead letter, for unanimous consent would never be secured. He made a clear cut answer to the points made by the affirmative and one of the strongest arguments of the evening.

Mr. Barnard, who followed for Iowa, claimed that the protocol which is in effect a treaty, does exist between the United States and Santo Domingo at the present time.

Mr. Robinson followed for Minnesota and emphasized a point previously made, that Europe, if it had a veto power, would not consent to such an arrangement if it removed her only excuse for American interference. He pointed to our past policy. Eighty-five years of peace shows us that we have already sufficient power to meet any conditions that are likely to arise. He protested against involving the United States in foreign entanglements in order to collect debts of speculators.

Mr. Brinton, followed, and for the first time defined the term "fiscal protectorate" for the affirmative. He gave several academic definitions of the term, and emphasized the point previously made that such a protectorate removed all the excuses for foreign interference.

Mr. Levinger, who followed, pointed out that the statement of Assistant Secretary Adeo, was better than any academic definitions of the terms of the question. He said that Egypt was the only precedent and that in Egypt conditions were worse now than before English control. He showed that many times has Europe been in this country for collection of foreign claims, but had always withdrawn as soon as these claims had been settled. The policy which has served us so well in the past will serve us no less well in the future.

Mr. Files closed the debate and made a plea on the ground of our moral obligation to aid these small republics, and claimed the only case in history where this had been tried, had worked satisfactorily, and that this case was Santo Domingo.

Dean Pattee presided and announced the decision of the judges which was cheered to the echo. The Euterpean Octette gave two selections that were heartily cheered.

PERSONALS

Miss Myrtle Thayer has removed from Washburn, Wis., to Spring Valley, Minn.

Dr. L. P. Solsness, is now at 419 West Monroe Street, Chicago. He is doing graduate work in Chicago for a few months and will then go abroad. He will return to his old home, Revere, Minn., some time next year.

Mr. Louis Schwager, who was credited in a recent number of the Weekly as being the donor of a new flag staff for the University, writes to say that the flagstaff is the gift of the firm of Schwager & Nettleton, of Seattle. Mr. Nettleton was formerly a member of the class of 1901.

Jesse Eliphalet Pope, professor of economics and finance at the University of Missouri has recently published a book "The Clothing Industry in New York." The Annals of the American Academy says of it, "The work has been well done and the result is not merely a good history of a special trade but it teams with social facts of great value."

Judge E. A. Jaggard was recently honored by the University of Pennsylvania which conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws.

Miss Cara May Adams writes that she leaves this week for California and a trip through the west. She has been enjoying a year of rest and pleasure in Chicago and now intends to have a grand finale. She intends however to have the Weekly forwarded to her so that she may still keep in touch with the "U."

Sumner W. Matteson, '88, lectures at the Trinity Baptist church Tuesday night. He will exhibit an entirely new set of lantern slides of western life in its various phases.

CIVIL ENGINEERING NOTES

N. A. Bogue, C.E., '04, was a recent caller at the department. He is in the employ of the Northern Pacific railroad as resident engineer in charge of some very heavy construction work in this state and Dakota. His immediate superior officer is W. C. Sault, C.E., of the class of 1890.

Mr. F. O. Fernald, C.E., of 1902 is located at Livingston, Montana, as resident engineer in charge of a division.

Professor Hoag has recently received a letter from C. A. Stewart, C.E., '04, written at Spokane, Wash., where Mr. Stewart is located. He is employed with the Spokane and Inland railway, a line connecting Spokane with Lewiston, Idaho.

Mr. Stewart is in search of civil engineers to take charge of construction. He offers very flattering inducements to men desiring to enter upon work lasting a year or two.

W. D. Taylor, C.E., '96, after giving up the pursuit of professional work to assist his father then general auditor of the Northern Pacific Railroad has returned to civil engineering work and is now chief engineer of the Minnesota Central Railroad. His present work is now with a short line between Albert Lea and Mankato.

Professor Hoag is having two special machines built for the Good Roads Laboratory. One of these is to test the relative value of different kinds of brick for use in pavement. The other is for determining the cementing properties of different stones for use in macadam road.

With the state highway commission now well entered upon its line of important work and the close sympathy that exists between the chief officers of this commission and the Dept. of Civil Engineering, the time seems near at hand when the college of engineering will become what Prof. Hoag has long worked for, the central information bureau for the good road workers.

It is expected to have these machines installed and ready for use with the present sophomore class who take this work the latter half of the present semester.

LAW REUNION

Minnesota Alumni Weekly,

At the second annual reunion of the 1904 Day Law Class which was held at the West Hotel Club Rooms, Friday evening, February 16th, the suggestion which was made at the meeting of the Alumni Association held at the Army on the 10th inst., was taken up and the writer was requested to act as class reporter to the Alumni Weekly for the 1904 class organization.

—John F. Nichols.

The memories of old college days were recalled by the alumni of the law class of 1904, who gathered for their second annual reunion in the club rooms of the West Hotel. Seated around the long table, which was beautifully decorated with class colors and banked with pink carnations and ferns, they toasted their alma mater, the class of 1904, sang the songs that had been popular in their student days, and also discussed the current questions of universal interest.

Owing to a peculiar coincidence, due to the fact that the majority of the class have entered the circles of domestic life, the engagement of the 3-months-old son of W. B. Carman, of Detroit City, and the 3-months-old daughter of E. R. Frissell, of Minneapolis, was announced by an enterprising member with becoming solemnities.

A. S. Maloney acted as toastmaster and called upon the following for toasts:

"The University of Minnesota," Charles A. Johnson; "The West as a Location," Dorance D. Greer; "As We Grow Old," William H. Oppenheimer; "The Advantages of an Official Organ," Samuel Clark; "A Republican State with a Democratic Governor," George P. Jones, of Rock; "Duties of a Lawyer to his Country," Benjamin J. Wood; "The Experiences of a Young Lawyer," Arthur W.

Fowler; "Benefits of Class Organization," Ervin R. Frissell.

Among those present were:

Messrs. Benjamin J. Wood, St. Paul; Charles A. Johnson, St. Paul; William Oppenheimer, St. Paul; George Gredge, Minneapolis, D. D. Greer, Lake City; Samuel Clark, Thief River Falls; Patrick J. Ryan, St. Paul; H. A. Johnson, Minneapolis; E. R. Frissell, Minneapolis; J. W. Smith, Minneapolis; Raymond Bridgeman, Minneapolis; John L. Redding, Lowell, Mass.; Irving Caswell, Anoka, Minn.; A. S. Maloney, Wascea; D. T. Collins, East Grand Forks; Day Grannis, Cresco, Iowa; George P. Jones, of Rock, Hutchinson, Minn.; E. O. Dieson, Heron Lake, Minn.; Warren O. Williams, Minneapolis; Frank Reed, Minneapolis; Harry H. Volk, Mankato, Minn.; John F. Nichols, Minneapolis.

DEPARTMENT OF GEOLOGY AND MINERALOGY

A series of Saturday morning lectures on Industrial Geography. Given by the Department of Geology and open to anyone interested will be given in the Geology lecture room, Pillsbury hall on Saturday mornings, at 8:30 o'clock:

Parsons; May 5th, The world's water supply: community use of the present century, C. W. Hall; May 12th, Water power and its utilization: The relation of Water power to manufacturing progress, illustrated, J. J. Flather; May 19th, The geography of drink—climatic control of artificial beverages—an historical resume, C. W. Hall; May 26th, Industrial Britain: a sketch of the geographical causes of British supremacy to 1900, F. M. Ball; June 2d, Industrial America: A semester's retrospect, C. W. Hall.

During the spring months a series of excursions will be made to places of geographic interest, manufacturing establishments and centers of commercial activity, that the industrial relations of geography and the control which geographical conditions hold over industries may be exemplified and their mutual relations kept in view.

While at this time no dates for the excursions are named assurance is given that full opportunity will be afforded of becoming acquainted with the sources of illustration which the Twin Cities possess in the lines of physical and industrial geography.

BANQUETS

The eighteenth annual banquet of the Twin City Alumni Association of Phi Kappa Psi was held last Monday evening at the Minneapolis Club. The following toasts were responded to, Warren M. Horner acting as toastmaster:

"Our Founders, Judge H. D. Dickinson; "Minnesota Beta," Fred R. Putnam; "Our Present Lot," George S. Johnston; "It's up to us," Herbert C. Maughan; "Minnesota U.," Prof. G. F. James.

The Third Annual Banquet of the men of the University Catholic Association was held at the Hotel Nicollet last Saturday evening. Owen P. McElmeel acted as toast master and called upon the speakers who responded to the following toasts:

"Christian Apologetics," Rev. James C. Byrne; "The University Catholic Association as a Religious Organization," John McGroarty; "Social aims and services of the University Catholic Association," Louis Fagan; "Catholic Art and Culture in Europe," Rev. J. M. Cleary.

VARSITY PLAY AT FERGUS FALLS

A three-act college comedy "Mose," by Carlton W. Miles, ex-'06, was presented at Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 5th with great success. The play has its scene laid at the University of Minnesota. Among the university people who took part in the production were Miss Maude Hysler, '04, Miss Ruth Hutchinson, '01; Miss Marion Harris, '04, Dr. Charles Nelson, '04, and Dr. John Schact, '03.

DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic club gave their two plays at Faribault last Thursday night and at Hastings on Friday night.

Mr. Holt did not go on the trip but Mr. Andrews, assistant business manager, had charge of the casts and looked after the business end as well.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH OBSERVED

Appropriate exercises were held Thursday afternoon in commemoration of Washington's birthday. President Northrop presided over the meeting. Prof. West spoke on "The United States and International Arbitration," and Dean Pattee on "The Hague Tribunal."

The octette from the Euterpean Club furnished music and Miss Hanson played a piano solo.

READY NEXT FALL

Swift strides are being made toward the completion of the new Medical building which will house the Bacteriological and Pathological departments.

Large forces of workmen have been at work even in the coldest weather and a strong effort is being made to have the building ready for occupancy at the beginning of next semester.

Everything is to be finished in the most substantial fashion, the entire building being made of fire-proof brick with a slate roof and large skylights.

The basement will be principally filled with an elaborate system of ventilation which will render the building sanitary and odorless even in the warmest weather.

On the first floor will be a large chemical laboratory, two research laboratories and two Pasteur laboratories, a machine shop, wood shop and a large lecture and museum preparation room. The two professors of surgical pathology together with the two assistants will each occupy a separate office on this floor and a kitchen, living room and bed room are to be constructed nearby the arena where the operating will be done.

The next floor will contain the autopsy amphitheater, the library and museum, the office of the demonstrator of bacteriology, and the director, while the third floor will be entirely occupied by photographic rooms and apparatus.

DATE SET FOR PILLSBURY CONTEST

March 16 has been set as the date for the Pillsbury Oratorical contest.

M. H. Aygarn—"The Democracy of John Marshall."

Fannie Fligelman—"Back to Democracy."

O. B. Flinders—"John Marshall, The Nation Builder."

J. G. Nebbergall—"Our Country's Call."

John F. Sinclair—"The American Crime."

Lucile Way—"The Passing of the Home."

Flinders, Sinclair and Aygarn are Castilians; Mr. Nebbergall is a Forum and Miss Fligelman is a Minerva.

The Pillsbury Oratorical contest is one of the most important of the contests in oratory held at Minnesota. The winner of first place represents Minnesota in the Northern Oratorical contest and receives a prize of $100, the winner of second place receives $50, and third place $25.

All of the contestants are preparing earnestly for the contest and will give a good exhibition of oratory on the evening of March 16.

The alumni can encourage the growth of interest in oratory by being present at this contest. The students will appreciate such a display of interest and the contest promises to be of unusual interest on account of the fact that two young women are to compete.

SUMMER SCHOOL 1906.

The summer school catalog, which was issued last Saturday is full of things of interest to those who are planning to do some University work this summer. The school will open on June 19, the Tuesday following commencement, and will close July 31.

The courses with University credit offered, in the present session, amount to two-thirds of the total number of hours required for the bachelor's degree. By taking advantage of these opportunities teachers who have not been able to finish their University work may be enabled to meet a considerable part of the requirements for graduation. Instructors will endeavor to meet the needs of advanced students by giving individual attention and guidance in the investigation of special topics, for which appropriate courses are not established.

One of the most attractive features of the Summer School will be the series of public lectures given in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. The course will be opened by Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga of the University of Chicago, a popular and scholarly lecturer, upon Japan and her position in world politics and civilization. Dr. G. W.

Gerwig of Pennsylvania will give a series of lectures on various literary and educational topics, and Mr. D. R. Augsburg, whose previous lectures before the Summer School proved so popular, will give illustrated talks on drawing. Professor Willis M. West of the University of Minnesota will treat some phases of English Life in the Seventeenth Century. Professor Frank L. McVey of the University of Minnesota will lecture on Kingsley, Toynbee and Modern Socialism. Additional lectures, some of them illustrated with the lantern, will be announced at the opening of the session.

FACULTY'S NEW PLANS.

Tuesday afternoon at the meeting of the faculty it was voted that senior academics should receive six hours' credit per semester for Law department work.

Some time ago a petition was drawn up and presented by the seniors and this request was approved by the faculty.

It was recommended also that credit be given for one year drill as well as for two years. This makes it possible for a man to receive credit for one year whereas he was formerly required to complete two years before receiving any credit.

It was also recommended and referred to a committee, that entrance credits be allowed in commercial history and arithmetic and several other high school subjects. For some time commercial and manual training high school course students have had trouble in entering the University on account of the fact that these subjects are not listed among the entrance requirements at present.

The tuition fee in the graduate department was recommended to be reduced to $10.

GRADUATE CLUB.

The club will meet next on March 9. Dr. Eddy, dean of the graduate school, will speak upon the "Functions of a Graduate School in a State University." He will give his ideas of what the work of a graduate club should be and outline his plans for the newly created school.

C. A. SMITH GENEROUS.

Professor Sanford announces that the Rhetoric department has received a gift of $50 from Mr. C. A. Smith to apply on the $150 prize money awarded to the winning Iowa debate team.

Professor Sanford has hopes of securing the entire amount from other friends of University oratory and debate.

SECRETARY TAFT.

Secretary Taft, of the United States War department, will deliver the graduation address in June, 1907.

Minnesota has tried for sometime past to get Secretary Taft here, but without success.

He was asked to speak at the commencement exercises this year, but was unable to accept.

"RAHAB" WILL BE OUT THIS MONTH

Dr. Richard Burton's drama, "Rahab," will be published in March by Henry Holt & Co., of New York.

It is a poetic drama built around the beautiful Bible story of Rahab, the harlot of Jericho, interspersed with lyrics by Mrs. Potter and Miss Peck.

The play will be welcomed with great interest by 'varsity students, especially those who availed themselves of the course on the "Bible, as literature," offered by Dr. Burton last fall.

MUSICAL CLUB'S TRIP.

The members of the Glee and Mandolin clubs returned Saturday morning, Feb. 24, from their trip to Wilmar and Litchfield.

At Wilmar, where the performance was managed by the Elks, an enthusiastic audience was secured and the expenses of the trip were covered. The clubs were entertained after the concert by the Elks.

The Litchfield concert was not so successful financially, altho the clubs were well received.

Another trip is planned for April, which will include St. Cloud, Brainerd, Fargo and Moorhead.

FOR THE JACOBS CUP.

One of the last debates in the University this year will be the final inter-society debate, which will occur in the near future.

The contesting teams of the two societies, the Forums, and the Law Literaries, will probably be the same as in the preliminary rounds. These were, for the Forums: Messrs. Z. L. Potter, H. C. Deering and A. Colburn; for the Law Lits: Messrs. J. Diesen, E. L. Kimball and J. Swinland.

The contest will be for the Jacobs cup, which was last year won by the Forum society. Both of the teams have at different times won this cup, but in order to permanently hold it, a society must win it for three successive years.

The Jacobs cup is a handsome loving-cup, which was presented to the societies many years ago. It is now in the trophy case in the library building.

In spite of the fact that it has been here so long a time, no society has yet been able to win it permanently.

Tuesday afternoon the Law Lits submitted their question to the Forums. It deals with the adoption of a system of compulsory life insurance for workmen, the same to be under government control. A clause is added to the proposition which waives its constitutionality.

LECTURE COURSE TO BE DISCUSSED

This week a meeting of all students interested in the advancement of general culture will be called for the discussion of the University lecture association. The exact time for this meeting has not yet been decided upon, a time being desired to find an hour agreeable to both students and faculty.

The agitation of this project has met with considerable favor among faculty members, the only objection raised being that of the financial support of the association.

Professor Sanford said of the proposed association that it would indeed be a good thing—if sufficiently large attendance of students could be assured, but that nothing was more painful than the meagre attendance given to lectures at the University by prominent men.

The opinion of Dr. Wilde was that there can be no doubt as to the value of the movement, especially as the rage for lectures over town seems to have ceased of late. He said there is certainly a need of them and that under a University organization, lectures could be heard of a different character from those given over town.

It is the desire of those agitating the movement, to work up the organization this year and bring the lecture course next fall. There is a plan to obtain financial support from men outside the University, if sufficient enthusiasm can be found among the students and an enrollment of at least four or five hundred is thought necessary as an evidence of such an enthusiasm.

Dr. Schaper said, in effect, "The University needs something which it cannot get through books, but through personal contact with inspiring and interesting men from the outside. But the objection to a student association attempting this work, is first, that students could not finance such an undertaking, and second, that interest in the plan might fall through the diversified interests of both students and faculty.

"But another method by which the benefits of the lecture course could be obtained would be this—The different departments should invite men to lecture before classes or groups of classes on subjects connected with their general work. In this case there is a surety that the lecturer is speaking on a subject of direct interest to the audience, which they can appropriate and make their own."

MAY OUST THE FACULTY.

At a recent meeting of the subscribers, a new constitution for the Minnesota Daily was proposed, in accordance with the recent decision of the Daily stockholders to abolish the Daily corporation and place the paper in the hands of student subscribers. One of the articles of the proposed constitution provides for three faculty representatives on a board to be chosen by the subscribers as a governing body for the reorganized paper. This article is in accord with the present system, which provides for three faculty members on the board of directors.

Members of the Daily staff led the fight which followed on the proposed article, and it was defeated, a board of student directors only being authorized.

GIRLS' TOURNAMENT.

Thursday March 8 is the date set for the annual tournament of the girls' class basket-ball teams. The affair is an event of social as well as of athletic interest and is one of the few traditional events of our college. As usual each class will have a corner of the Armory and will decorate in its colors.

The girls have been hard at work since Christmas and some of the members of the teams have already been chosen. All of the teams contain unusually good material, so that the contest will be an exciting one.

The seniors and sophomores seem to have the brightest prospects and the freshmen and juniors seem to be a little slow.

The senior class has voted $25 for the support and supplies of their players. The teams consist almost entirely of 'Varsity first team girls who have been practicing regularly since the season opened.

Juniors will enter the contest greatly handicapped. Many of their regular girls cannot play this year and those who will play have only been practicing a week.

The sophomores are somewhat stronger with several second team girls on their lineup. Their play is fast, but the extra girls have hard times keeping up with the play of the regulars.

The freshmen five are all good, steady and strong players, nearly all of them being stars of past Central High teams. George Foster, the freshman manager, is raising money from the class for their equipment and also for decorations.

MENS' TOURNAMENT TO COME MARCH 22.

The mens' inter-class, inter-department basket-ball tournament will be held, Thursday, March 22, in the Armory.

The tournament this year will include the following teams: The four academic class teams, the engineers, laws, and faculty.

The men who will play on the teams have not as yet been definitely picked, but will be chosen within the next two weeks.

The senior academics have the following old men to play: Clark, Mart, Greaves, Louis Larson and Critchfield.

For the sophs are Deering, Peterson, Ostegren, Rossman, Mallory and Olson.

The freshmen academics are an unknown quantity, but the team will probably be made up from the following men—Foster, Pigeon, Wilson, Midal, Wentzel, Potter, Robertson, Chamberlain and Shield.

The faculty team will probably be Cook, Willis, Sanford, Leach and Pierce. For the engineers, McRae, Marsh, Wyzel, and Woodrich will play.

For the laws Oliver, McHugh, and Brown will form the nucleus of the team.

The academic championship will be decided in the afternoon, when the freshman-junior and sophomore-senior games will be played, and the contest between the winners will be pulled off.

In the evening, the engineers will play the laws; the academics will play the faculty, and the two winners will meet for the championship of the tournament.

The faculty probably have the strongest team, having already defeated the 'varsity regulars once, but the senior academic team has played together for a number of years and promises to give them a hard run, while the engineers, who won out last year, will put up a strong fight.

A very interesting contest is expected.

A VOICE FROM MICHIGAN.

In the February number of the Michigan Alumnus there is a six-page article by Professor A. C. McLaughlin upon "Athletic Conditions at Michigan." Professor McLaughlin has been many years one of the five faculty members of the athletic board of control. Naturally he puts his statement of the case in a light as favorable as possible to Michigan. The whole article, however, bears evidence of a disposition to meet charges made, fairly and fully. He touches the heart of the trouble when he says:

"The prevailing hysteria over the whole matter is deplorable. The very need of a long article of this kind to justify the conduct of self-respecting men in the management of inter-collegiate sport is proof enough that there is something wrong with inter-collegiate athletics in general. * * * The trouble to-day, which the recent work of the conference colleges hopes to correct, is not with the athletics in any considerable measure, but with the atmosphere in which the game is played, the atmosphere furnished by those that are not in the game at all. And it is just as unsportsmanlike lightly to impute to teams and managers all disagreeableness and falsity of spirit, as to engage in unsportsmanlike conduct on the field, for which there may be at least the excuse of excitement and desperate earnestness. I do not declare that our teams have been perfect. I only say that, though we have sought for evidence of breaches of the rules, we have not found it in cases where we have not acted. I should not feel chagrined or humiliated, if to-morrow positive proof of a violation of the rules should be discovered; I should be disappointed, and rightly so. But such a violation, in spite of our care and hard work, would be only a discouraging example of the pressure under which modern 'sport' is carried on. Have the loyal alumni, whose good opinion we all covet and who are rightly annoyed when our teams are justly criticised, or have the thousands of spectators at the big spectacles, into which the old football game has been transformed, a proper conception of the influence exercised in many ways by this extra-collegiate excitement, or an adequate realization of how strong and imperative is the demand to turn out a winning team, even when, as we know is the case, the alumni and the public disapprove of unfair tactics or violations of rules of agreement?"

BOSTON UNIVERSITY'S NEW HEBREW PROFESSOR.

The trustees of Boston University have unanimously elected Prof. Albert C. Knudson [Minnesota '93], of Allegheny College, to the chair of Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis in the School of Theology. Dr. Knudson was born in Grand Meadow, Minn., in 1873. His father is a member of the Norwegian-Danish Conference, having been in the active ministry, as pastor and presiding elder, for thirty-four years. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1893. Boston University gave him the degree of S. T.

B. in 1896. The next year was devoted to post-graduate work in philosophy and theology in the same institution. He was then elected Jacob Sleeper Fellow for the year 1897-'98, and did his work at the Universities of Jena and Berlin. Boston University gave him the degree of Ph. D. in 1900. From 1898 to 1900 he was professor of church history in Denver University, doing some Biblical work at the same time. From 1900 to 1902 he held the chair of Biblical literature and history at Baker University, and since 1902 he has been professor of the English Bible and philosophy of religion in Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa. Joining the Colorado Conference in 1898, he was transferred later to the Kansas Conference, and is now a member of the East Ohio Conference. Along with his college work he has done quite a little preaching and public lecturing on Biblical themes.

During Dr. Knudson's connection with Baker University, Kan., he made a reputation as an efficient and inspiring teacher of his specialties. During the four years he has been with Allegheny College he has taken high rank in all particulars which mark a college professor. As a scholar he is direct, thorough, enthusiastic, persistent; as a teacher he is inspiring, earnest, and in every way efficient; as a man he is delightfully companionable, reasonable, and helpful in his associations with students and faculty; as a preacher he has earned the reputation of being scholarly without being pedantic, of being profound without being heavy, of being direct and forcible without being sensational. He has rare equipment, and in his chosen line he will do discriminating, wise and successful service for the church. Personally he is modest, unswayed by ambition, and incapable of harboring unhappy thoughts of any sort. The faculty of the School of Theology, after very careful and prolonged consideration, unanimously recommended him to the trustees for election. We are assured that the announcement of his election will meet with hearty approval, not only from the alumni of the School of Theology, but from the church at large.—Zion's Herald.

PATTEE PREACHES.

Dean W. S. Pattee of the university law school delivered an address in St. Cloud Sunday on, "Some Achievements of Modern Thought."

ED. ROGERS MARRIED.

The marriage of Miss Mayme Constance Ballton and Edward L. Rogers, of Walker, Minn., was solemnized last week. Rev. Henry Jajesk read the service, in the presence of a group of relatives of the bridal couple, shortly before morning mass, in his study, and later the bridal party proceeded to the Church of the Holy Cross for service. Several hundred of the friends of the bridal couple joined them at the church. Mr. Rogers is one of the heroes of the football field and played end on the Minnesota team from 1900 to 1903. His best man, George Webster, was also of the famous Minnesota eleven and played tackle. The same evening a large reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roskoyeck. Mr. Rogers and his bride left on a late train for the East. They will be at home in Walker, Minn., after April 1. Mr. Rogers will practice law in Walker and will be connected with the logging interests of his father.

LEAVITT-JOHNSON WEDDING.

The marriage of Miss Emma Leavitt, formerly a student at the University, and J. William Johnson, took place Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. H. H. Leavitt, 2015 James avenue S. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be at home at 905 W. Franklin avenue.

MISS BEN-OLIEL SPEAKS ON ORIENT.

Miss Ben-Oliel spoke in chapel this morning on Palestine and has a deserved reputation for speaking very entertainingly of the conditions and history of Palestine. Those of the faculty who have heard her are enthusiastic in their praise and say that ones understanding of Bible history especially of the New Testament is aided materially.

Miss Ben-Oliel will give a course of lectures Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 5th, 6th, and 7th at Andrew Presbyterian church. They will be on Palestine and are expected to be of special interest to University students.

BASKETBALL TRIP IS SUCCESSFUL.

The Basket Ball team arrived home Friday morning after a long and arduous trip around the circuit.

The boys are sore in body but happy in spirit, having exceeded their expectations by winning from three out of the four big nine teams played. Their last triumph came Thursday night when they defeated the strong Chicago team by a score of 31 to 29. The game afforded a splendid exhibition of the "Minnesota never quits" spirit.

The Gophers were tired and jaded after four hard games, and several of them started in the contest handicapped by painful injuries. To make matters worse, Chicago has the best center in the country. A man who was picked at the St. Louis Exposition as American all star center, and he of course, was able to knock the ball any place he wished at every throw up, a very disheartening thing for an opposing team to go up against. Aided by greater familiarity with their own floor, the Chicagoites ran up a score in the first half of 17 to 8 against the Gophers. Shortly after the opening of the second half the score was 19 to 8 in their favor. Yet undiscouraged and more than ever determined to win, the Minnesota team started in to even up the score. Several of them were hobbling around with game knees and wrenched ankles, but their splendid team work never faltered and aided by frenzied rooting from the substitutes, they gradually overcame Chicago's lead, and finally won by two points.

It was a magnificent exhibition of grit and determination, and the team were roundly applauded by the Chicago rooters, who thruout the game were more than generous in their treatment of the visitors.

The Illinois contest was a similar game, the home team having a lead of seven points at the end of the first half, and the Gophers making a sensational rally in the second, and coming off victorious. In this game four of the Minnesota men were severely injured, thru no fault of their opponents, however, but they kept doggedly on, till they had finally pulled the game out of the fire and won by 27 to 28.

The team are most enthusiastic about the treatment they received while on the trip. They everywhere received most courteous treatment from their hosts, and the squarest of square deals from the officials. Every game was hard played and rougher than games used to be under the old rules, but their opponents played in a clean and sportsmanlike manner in every case.

Minnesota has now scored five victories to one defeat in the league games, and with the remaining contests to be played on the home floor, stands an excellent show of winning the championship.

Wisconsin, tho she won at home, her floor being of rather peculiar formation (with a brick wall, and no outside line at one end) can hardly expect to duplicate the trick up here. The Wabash game, where the team suffered its only other defeat, was more of a farce than anything else. The Wabash gymnasium is about half the size of our girl's court, and there was about as much chance for team work on it, as in a freshman-sophomore cane rush. Captain McRae expressed the opinion that Wabash playing at home could beat any team in the country.

March 10th will be the date of the Chicago game, and Wisconsin will come up here one week later. These two games will decide the western championship.

Thru the defeat of Wisconsin by the Chicago quint Friday night Minnesota goes to first place in the Western Intercollegiate Basketball league. Wisconsin and Illinois are playing this afternoon. If Wisconsin wins they will tie the Gophers, but if the Illini are victorious the Minnesota players will have still further lead.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENT APPROVED

By the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Kitson, I enjoyed recently the gracious hospitality of those two famous artists in their delightful home by the sea, at Quincy, Mass., and had the rare pleasure of being entertained in their studio.

In the workshop of these creators of the beautiful in art, I was first shown the completed clay model (heroic size) of the soldiers' monument for the University of Minnesota, now ready to be cast in bronze. It is a beautiful, inspiring figure which I hope may long stand to teach that there are some things better than life, and that it is only as one dedicates himself to these, he wins an immortality of righteous influence. Mrs. Kitson, in this statue has, with rare genius, depicted the American volunteer of 1898. Another piece, in clay, from the hand of Mrs. Kitson is the model for the statue to the famous army nurse of the civil war, Mother Bickerdyke, soon to be erected at Galesburg, Ill. It is a most beautiful and lifelike representation of this noble, patriotic woman and represents her holding up a wounded soldier against her knee as she kneels and gives him water from a canteen.

After looking upon Mr. Kitson's "Minute Man," or "Captain Parker," at Lexington, a day or two before, I was somewhat prepared to expect another rare treat, but when he uncovered the work he is now doing on the panels (six of them), in high relief, for the Vicksburg memorial for the state of Iowa, to cost $100,000, my expectations were so far surpassed that it was difficult to express my admiration in words.

One of Mrs. Kitson's most famous figures is that of "The Volunteer," the Massachusetts memorial on this same field, while another of Mr. Kitson's best works is the statue of Admiral Farragut, in Marine park, South Boston.

As I stood before the work of these modest and divinely-gifted artists, I could not but express the wish that I, too, had this heavenly gift; but my genial host consoled and at the same time pleasantly rebuked me, by saying: "You are working on better material, for my work is only on clay."

University of Minnesota.

HURT IN A RUNAWAY.

Dr. A. E. Hedback, Med. '97, 1103 East Franklin avenue, was painfully bruised in a runaway last week and one of his horses was instantly killed. Dr. Hedbeck and his coachman were driving down Hennepin avenue. When they neared Fifth street the horses became frightened at a car and dashed down toward First avenue. Just as they turned the corner the occupants of the carriage were thrown to the ground and the team dashed on. Dr. Hedback received several painful bruises, but the coachman escaped uninjured.

Before the maddened team reached First avenue they smashed a window in one of the stores and then one of the animals dashed into a telephone pole breaking his neck. Dr. Hedback was able to go to his home. His injuries are not serious.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

At the meeting last week the board of control decided to instal a baseball cage in the armory for indoor practice. It is planned to extend the cage from the floor to the top girders to give opportunity to practice batting. The candidates will be run as they are now, in three squads, one squad practicing in the morning and two in the afternoon. "Spike" Anderson is very enthusiastic about the material and predicts a strong team.

Games have been scheduled with all of the big nine colleges and Manager Reed promises from fifteen to twenty good contests for Northrop field.

If you wish to secure a position to teach, write to James F. McCullough, Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Don't forget the Pillsbury Contest on Friday night of this week.

FINDLAY PLAYED FOR REAL CASH

Findlay, star half-back on the Badger team, testified, last week, before the legislative investigating committee that he received $92 in cash for playing on the Wisconsin team last fall.

Worse exposures than this are said to be coming. He also testified that after the Minnesota game, $100 worth of champagne was bought for the team in St. Paul.

We publish this item of news, not from any desire to show that conditions at Wisconsin are worse than elsewhere, for we have no reason apart from the present report, to believe that to be the case, but to prove to those who have been decrying the fight against present football conditions, that there is cause for all that has been said and need of all that has been done.

CHANGES IN ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

By a vote of the faculty of the college of science, literature and the arts, all students graduated from accredited high schools in the state will be admitted to that college without conditions.

Under the former system students, even of high schools accredited by the state board, were admitted to the university according to the studies they had completed in the high school. In many cases where one or two subjects required by the university for entrance were not required for graduation from the high school the students were conditioned and forced to make up that work during their freshman year. This caused much criticism on the part of high schools, and it has now been decided to accept certificates of graduation as sufficient without regard to the specific studies pursued in the high school.

This regulation, however, does not apply to the subject of English, in which an examination is required of all candidates.

In the opinion of many, little has been accomplished by this examination and considering the number of applicants for admission to the freshman class and the rush of work at the University during the registration week it is impossible to conduct satisfactory tests.

The move to abolish this examination will probably be opposed by a number of faculty members, who believe that the English entrance requirement regulation was a step in the right direction, and that better results will be obtained in the preparatory schools if this examination is retained. The matter will be settled soon.

NEW MAN IN PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. James Burt Miner has been appointed Assistant Professor of Psychology to take the place of Mr. Johnston, who resigned last summer.

Dr. Miner graduated from Minnesota, B.S., '97; L.L.E., '99; M.A. 1901. His advanced work has been done mainly at Columbia where he held a fellowship and assistantship until 1903, when he received his degree of Ph.D. His dissertation on Motor, Visual and Applied Rhythms was published as a Monograph supplement to the Psychological Review. In 1903 he was called to the University of Illinois as instructor in Psychology, and next year to the University of Iowa where he was Assistant Professor of Philosophy. Dr. Miner is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, the American Psychological Association, the National Educational Association, and a Fellow of the Association for the Advancement of Science. His interests are chiefly in educational and experimental psychology and he will have charge of both these subjects in the University. Dr. Miner is one of the most active of our younger psychologists and his career as a teacher has been most successful. His appointment will enable the department to resume the work it has been forced to abandon this year.

NOTED MAN TO SPEAK

The visit of Dr. Ludwig Fulda, the noted German poet and dramatist, to the University is creating considerable interest among the students and faculty of the German department.

A committee of professors and prominent citizens has charge of the arrangements for the visit of the noted lecturer and he will deliver an address in the university chapel Monday evening, Mar. 19th. His subject will be "Schiller and the New Generation."

Herr Fulda is one of the younger generation of German writers holding a position between the German classics and the ultra-modern authors. He has already achieved great fame as the author of a number of dramas, many of which have been translated into other languages. Among these are "The Lost Paradise," "Der Talisman," "Die Sklayvin," and a number of comedies. He is also a translator of note and a literary critic. The lecture at the university will include a review of modern German literary growth and development.

A CORRECTION

It appears that in the note in the Weekly of last week, under the caption "May Oust the Faculty," we were led into an error by following a report which appeared in the Daily. The faculty has had no representation on the Daily since it has been under corporation control. In the proposed plan of re-organization, a clause was inserted, giving faculty representation. This clause was voted out, and while the faculty were not given representation they can hardly be said to have been ousted.

Later.

At a later meeting of the subscribers of the Daily, it was decided to allow two faculty members on the Board of Publishers, a body which succeeds the old Board of Directors.

It was also decided that the board should appoint the staff, after the candidates have been recommended to them by the managing editor.

A motion was made to the effect that the Business Manager should receive no compensation unless there should be a net profit after the close of the year.

But even now it is said that all is not well, and reports to the effect that the subscribers may again reverse themselves are current.

MRS. POTTER AND MISS PECK

Mrs. Potter and Miss Peck, who are traveling in Europe were recently honored by an invitation to the home of Henry James, at Rye, Sussex county, England.

They were favored further by being asked to visit Mrs. Humphry Ward, the great English novelist, who spoke in highly complimentary terms of Mrs. Potter's novel, "The Ballingtons."

SUPERINTENDENTS WILL GATHER

The annual convention of the school superintendents of the state will be held at the University on Thursday and Friday, March 30th and 31st.

This is of special interest to seniors who expect to teach, as many of the superintendents will consider applicants for positions at that time.

UNIVERSITY OWNS RARE COLLECTION

Upon the arrival of two shipments of volumes which are now en route, one from the Superintendent of Documents in Washington, D. C., and the other from Lowdermilk, the Washington publisher, the University will lack but 34 volumes to make complete its "Congressional set." This set consists of all the documents published by order of Congress since the beginning of this nation. The task of obtaining this set is a very difficult one as these documents are very rare and but one school in the country, Harvard, has a complete set of them in its library. Our own librarian has labored at this task for 30 years, and has at present date succeeded in obtaining all but 34 volumes of this valuable collection. The number of volumes now in the library is 4,896, or a practically complete set, the value of which is at the lowest estimate, $7,500. Dr. Folwell considers it the finest collection of these records in the country with the exception of that of Harvard, and a credit to this institution, well worthy the tremendous effort necessary to obtain it.

GREEN LECTURES

Profesor Samuel B. Greene, last week, delivered the third address in a series which has been arranged by the economics club at the University. The question of forest reserves was discussed.

BIDS COMING IN

Bids for the superstructure of the new main building and for the administration building at the farm school will be opened by the state board of control today. The foundation of each building is in, and it is hoped to have work begin as soon as the weather will permit, so the buildings may be used for the next school year. The two contracts will amount to about $500,000.

CONTRACT LET FOR NEW WOMAN'S BUILDING

The ontract for the construction of the new Woman's building has been let to J. & W. A. Elliot. The contract calls for the building complete, including the plumbing, heating, and wiring.

Inside arrangements include, a lunch room, rest parlors, a large assembly hall and probably rooms for the literary societies as well as quarters for the Y. W. C. A.

The executive committee of the board of regents has not yet decided on the exact location of the building, but it will probably be on the old main site. Work will be begun on the building on April 1 and the contract calls for its completion by the 15th of September. The entire cost of the building will be $60,000.

A women's building has been the aim of the league for about five years, and tireless efforts have been made by the girls to raise money for this purpose. In many different ways they have raised a found of about $1,600 which will now be used toward furnishing the building, which they expect to have the use of next year.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

The freshman-sophomore oratorical contest will occur on March 22d.

The freshman orators are A. N. Gilbertson, Jens Johnson and Z. L. Potter. Their subjects are, respectively, "The Theory of Evolution and its Significance," "The Negro Problem," and "Who Shall Solve the Negro Problem?"

Albert Evans, Harold Deering, Edwin Aygarn and Wm. Davis will represent the sophomore class with the following orations: "A Plea for the South," "The Real Railroad Problem," "A Plea for Disarmament" and "The Mission of the Sword."

ABBOTT UNABLE TO FINISH LECTURES

Professor Abbott of the law department has notified Dean Pattee of his inability to proceed with his course of lectures on corporations this year.

Profesor Willis will continue the lectures, so that no delay will be caused to the middle class.

FORENSIC HONOR LEAGUE ELECTS

The Forensic Honor League has admitted three new members, C. R. Thompson, Stanley Houck, and E. A. Robinson.

Of these men, Thompson and Houck were members of the Northwestern debating team and E. A. Robinson was in the Iowa contest.

At the same meeting the proposition of extending the league to other colleges was discussed, altho nothing definite was decided. The matter of admitting, as honorary members, graduate orators and debaters was also considered.

A banquet is being planned by the League which will take place sometime this month.

TRIGGS TALKS TO ADVERTISERS

The founding of universities by financiers was declared to be misuse of wealth by Professor Oscar L. Triggs, '89, at the banquet of the Chicago Advertising association last week.

Why should a financier amass a great fortune by the manufacture and sale of some commodity and then found an institution of learning with the wealth so collected?" asked Professor Triggs. "Rather let him educate the populace during the years he is in business. Let him tell of the process of manufacture; let him show where lies the opportunity for the youth of the land to engage in an occupation which is useful to society. Let him employ art and skill in the advertising which he places before the eyes of the reading public.

"Speculation and gambling are much more of an art than business as it is carried on today. Let us use imagination courage and enthusiasm in the writing of advertisements. Why should I not write lectures on wall paper? I have written several books. The books did not sell, but the advertising does."

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Defeating the juniors and sophomores by overwhelming scores, the senior co-eds of the University last Thursday night captured the university girls' 1905-1906 basketball championship and gained permanent possession of the handsome Weld trophy.

The sophomores defeated the freshman girls by the score of 16 to 8. The seniors then piled up twenty-eight points against a fat zero for the juniors, and then turned in to defeat the sophomores by the score of 18 to 7.

Never before has the annual girls' tournament at the "U" been so interesting. The crowd was larger and more enthusiastic than ever before. The armory was a maze of the colors of the rival classes. Each class had its mascot, dogs, serving for the seniors, juniors and sophomores, with a boy, his head incased in a huge basketball trying in vain to cast the spell of good fortune upon the hapless lower class co-eds.

The fouls were few in all games, and highly interesting play was exhibited thruout. It was the final deciding engagement between the senior and sophomore girls that spurred enthusiasm to the highest pitch it ever has, surged in the big hall.

The seniors started strong and rolled up 13 points to 4 against the sophomores in the first half, despite the plucky work of the latter. In the second half the sophs took a brace, and then hearts sank in the senior gallery. The season's honors, the past achievements of the class and the knowledge that this victory would carry the Weld trophy, spurred the seniors, however, and they quitted the game victorious to be resuscitated after their mighty efforts by the mighty cheers of the multitude that attended.

The teams lined up as follows:

Seniors—Forwards, Hattie Van Bergen and Mildred Gordon; center, Isabel Dunn; guards, Iris Newkirk (captain) and Mabel Stocking.

Juniors—Forwards, Irene Dunn and Marjory Vance; center, Julia Bearnes, (captain); guards, Rose Marie Schaller and Mary McMillan.

Sophomores—Forwards, Helen Cummings and Mary Shieley; center, Lou Fleming; guards, May Newton (captain); and Grace Gaghagen.

Freshmen—Forwards, Mabel Jackson and Pauline Smith; center, Carol Brown; guards, Elsa Ueland (captain), and Geneve Wales; substitutes, Agnes Ergall and Rose Frenzel.

GOOD WORK OF "U" MAN

In its parental school the Chicago board of education has an unusual educational feature but one that is being found a necessity in all the larger cities. This school, organized in January, 1902, is presided over by T. H. McQueary, '97, by whom the plans for its establishment were chiefly formulated and whose educational ideas it embodies. Mr. McQueary was for several years pastor of All Soul's church in Minneapolis, and was the first resident at Unity house. He came to Chicago as head of the military school for boys at Highland Park. His sociological experience at Unity House caused him to be greatly interested in the plan then under consideration for the establishment of a parental school for the purpose of making effective the compulsory education law. His interest soon led to his official identification with the work when steps were taken to put the plan into operation. In his analysis of the causes of truancy and crime derived from his own records and those of other schools Mr. MacQueary states his belief that nine-tenths are caused by defects in environment.

The average stay of pupils is about eight and one-half months, a very short time to overcome the bad habits of years but about eighty per cent of the boys receive such an uplift and impetus in the right direction that they give no further trouble. All pupils committed are released on parole except under unusual circumstances and remain under close observation for a year, reports being made to Mr. MacQueary by the school teachers every two weeks.

HOSPITAL BURNED

Dr. C. W. Bray, '91, Med. '95, announces that he will erect a solid brick hospital building on the site of the structure destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, one week ago. Mrs. Bray (nee Mary Bassett, '93, Med. '95,) and children, the patients and the mothers of Dr. and Mrs. Bray were rescued though none had time to dress and all were wrapped in blankets and carried across the street to the home of a neighbor. Dr. Bray's instruments were saved, along with a few pieces of furniture. Dr. Hovde, Med. '03, lost practically his entire personal belongings.

During last summer and fall Dr. Bray made extensive improvements to the hospital, putting on an addition, stone basement and heating plant. The loss is estimated at about $12,000 and the insurance carried was about half that amount.

SECOND CHICAGO CONFERENCE.

The reports of the second Chicago conference are as yet too indefinite to allow intelligent setting forth or comment. It is hardly likely that this conference will make any serious changes in the rules proposed by the former conference, though it is rumored that there are some members of the conference who are in favor of coming back to the single test of scholarship. We hope to be able to make a full report next week.

MINNESOTA 20—CHICAGO 17.

This tells the tale of the final score only, though it indicates a close game throughout. Garfield Brown, one of Minnesota's star forwards, was out of the game until just before its close, having been laid up for several days with a severe attack of tonsillitis.

At the end of the first half the score stood 15 to 5 in favor of Minnesota, the home team having put up an almost faultless game, and every man playing a star game. With the opening of the second half, however, the tide changed and Chicago began to pile up the score, while Minnesota failed completely to make a showing. With almost certain defeat staring the team in the face, Garfield Brown, though not in condition to play the game, replaced Uzzell. Brown immediately saved the day for Minnesota by making a difficult basket upon a pass by Captain McRae. It was a fine exhibition of basketball, and one of the best games ever played on the Armory floor. By winning this game, Minnesota is again tied with Wisconsin for first place, and the prospect for a western championship in basketball looks good to followers of the game.

All the men of the gopher team deserve credit for the victory. Uzzell, whose place was taken by Brown, played a splendid game, and the other four men showed the effects of a rigorous coaching system under Hugh Leach. McRae, captain of the team, seemed to have regained his old-time accuracy, and covered all parts of the floor with a regularity that reminded the rooters of "Bill" Deering's work. The Larson brothers, too, earned the applause of the crowd, and Louis Larson, by his work against the great Schommers, earned a place as a regular on the 1906 quintet. The lineup:

Minnesota—		Chicago—
McRae	l. f.	McKeag
Clark	r. f.	Chessman
Louis Larson	center	Schommers
Uzzell, Brown	l. g.	Lehring
M. Larson	r.g.	Houghton

Goals from field, McRae 3, L. Larson 2, M. Larson 1, Uzzell, 1, Brown 1, Schommers 4, McKeag 2, Chessman 1; goals from fouls, McRae 4, McKeag 1; referee, King, Milwaukee.

MAYOR JONES.

Mayor Jones, '83, made an address of welcome to the delegates attending the state prohibition convention, in this city, last week. Mayor Jones struck a responsive chord and was cheered to the echo. In speaking of the "Minneapolis lid," he said—

"For three months we have had the lid on in Minneapolis. It sets pretty well and I guess we shall keep it there. The sturdy citizenship of Minneapolis has demanded this moral reformation and the man who dares to face the people of this city as a candidate for mayor who fails to squarely state his position on the matter of Sunday closing goes down to an ignominious defeat. There isn't ten per cent of the residents of Minneapolis who would favor the reopening of the Sunday saloon. The saloons must close on God's own day, and I defy the man who seeks office on a contrary platform.

"There must be an absolute separation of politics from the saloon question. It has been the custom too long for the liquor dealer to contribute to the campaign funds of this party or that party as bribes for favoritism, and the political parties must cease this unholy business or be blotted from the face of the earth."

Following the mayor, and in response to his address of welcome, the Rev. Stanley Roberts said:

"Mayor Jones belong to the same type of men as does Weaver of Philadelphia, Folk of Missouri, Johnson of Minnesota and the other first-class men of the first-class cities and states in the country. We are proud of him, and every mother in the land murmurs 'God bless you.'"

Following Mr. Roberts, Homer L. Castle of Pittsburg was introduced.

"I came," said Mr. Castle, "a thousand miles to be with you, and I'm glad I'm here. It did me good to hear that mayor talk. Why, I can hardly believe that he is a Republican. But joking aside, it doesn't matter on what political platform a man stands if he is clean-cut and has the right ideas. We elected a Democrat in Pennsylvania, and we did right. You elected a Republican here, and you did right.

"I want to say now that we Prohibitionists are keeping our eyes open for a candidate for president in 1908, and Jones looks good to us."

VETERANS ON NORTHPROP FIELD

The Board of Control has offered the use of part of Northrop Field for the G. A. R. encampment in August. Tents will be placed around the edge of the field, but not on the gridiron.

FIFTY-EIGHT FLUNKS.

Registrar Pierce reports that about fifty-eight students have been dropped from the rolls because of a surplus of flunks or conditions.

Every student was given an opportunity to appear before the committee on students' work and explain why the usual course should not be taken in their case.

Out of the whole fifty-eight, only five were able to get back, they claiming their poor work was due to prolonged sickness.

WILL BUILD.

A new house is to be built in the spring by the Phi Kappa Psi's on their lot between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues on University.

The ground will be broken as soon as the frost is out of the ground, and the work is to be pushed in order that the house may be ready for the fall term.

The new house will be slightly larger than the new Deke chapter house, but will not be of the same style of architecture. It will however be a frame house.

The building of this house will make one step nearer the realization of the hope of all fraternity men, that the other side of University avenue from fifteenth to eighteenth, may develop into a fraternity row.

THETA DELTA CHIS FEAST.

One of the most enjoyable banquets even held by the Tau Deuteron charge of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity was that given at the Hotel Nicollet Saturday night. Forty alumni and active members of the fraternity attended. Many of the representative members from various parts of the Northwest were in attendance and furnished fraternity enthusiasm for the new brothers.

Following an elaborate repast, toasts, college songs and stories were in order, and the hours passed pleasantly with the variety of entertainment. E. H. Crooker was toastmaster and furnished considerable spice by his appropriate introductions of the various speakers. The speakers of the evening were: George H. Tyler, W. A. Deering, Ray Chamberlain, Earl Huntley, M. C. Bacheller, W. W. Bardwell and others of the prominent members of the fraternity.

MAKE ADDITIONS TO POWER PLANT.

The power plant of the University will shortly be increased by the addition of several new engines and generators. Professor Shepardson of the electrical department is preparing plans for a producer gas engine, several new dynamos, a steam turbine and a large storage battery. The producer gas engine will be used both to furnish power and as a demonstration to the engineering classes. The steam turbine, which heretofore has been used mainly for marine purposes, will be connected with one of the new dynamos. Both these engines are innovations at Minnesota, and their tests will be watched with great interest. With these in, the power plant will be very complete, containing nearly every kind of prime mover. The addition of a storage battery will eliminate the necessity of running the engines all night, as it will be able to take care of the light load. Two new 150 horse-power boilers will also be added to the heating plant.

PROFESSOR McDERMOTT WILL RETURN.

Professor E. E. McDermott, instructor in debate and oratory, has given up his proposed trip to Europe and will return to Minneapolis the first of April. He will not be here in time to coach this year's Pillsbury orators, but will start at once planning for next year's contest. He will, however, coach the winner of the Pillsbury for the interstate contest this year.

BOOK BY BABCOCK

"Rise of American Nationality," by Kendrick Charles Babcock, '89, Ph.D., President of the University of Arizona, has just been issued from the press of Harper and Brothers. The War of 1812 is the chief topic of the volume. The author shows how, out of the weakness of the war period, came a new national spirit, causing European nations to adopt a new attitude towards the republic, and causing a better status of parties at home, the founding of a new national finance, and the hastening of internal improvements.

PRESIDENT NORTHROP

MANY VISITORS

One week ago last Saturday, the following alumni were seen about the University, Nora Frye, '91; Rita Kendall, '04; Ruth West, '03; Annie D. Blitz, '04; all the teachers in the Stillwater high school. Lois Goodrich, '05, Belle Plaine; William H. Lippold, '04, Fort Dodge, Ia.; Ethel Case, '05, Central High School; Fanny Bradford, '04, Shakopee; H. G. Sydow, '04; St. Cloud.

JOHN MERRILL

The Weekly has just received from John Merrill, '92, a souvenir post card showing a view of the buildings of the college with which he is connected.

Mrs. W. I. Gray entertained a group of Mr. Gray's Friends one evening last week, at her home, 1619 Park Avenue, in honor of his birthday anniversary. The twenty guests were all members of Mr. Gray's fraternity, the Theta Delta Chi, and both the active and alumni chapters were represented. The decorations and appointments were in the fraternity colors, black, white and blue. A delightful program of songs and instrumental numbers was given by the guests, and supper was served.

DELEGATES RETURN FROM NASHVILLE.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. delegates to the Nashville convention returned Wednesday and report one of the most interesting conventions ever held.

This convention of student volunteers was held from Feb. 28 until March 6th. About 3,050 students were present, representing 700 institutions of higher learning, thru the United States and Canada.

Beside these students there were present 386 professors, 144 missionaries, representing 26 countries, 8 fraternal delegates, 44 press representatives and 397 Nashville delegates, making a total of 4,188. This does not include the students from the Nashville Schools, who attended the convention in large numbers.

A missionary exhibit was held during the convention and was one of the most interesting features of the convention.

Dr. Fred L. Williams is practicing at Argyle, Minn. He has been very successful and has built up a substantial practice. Dr. Jacob Biederman, '01, Med. '04, is also located at the same place and is likewise doing well in his profession.

W. B. Newhall, Eng., has asked to have his Weekly addressed to 408 Harmon St., Oakland, Cal., instead of to San Francisco, as heretofore.

INTER-SOCIETY DEBATE

The Forum debating society has chosen the negative of the question, "Resolved that a system of compulsory insurance for working men under control of the Government would be of benefit to the United States," for their debate with the Law Lits.

The Forum team is the same that represented the society against the "Shaks.": Z. L. Potter, A. Colburn, and Harold Deering.

The Law Lits have two new men on their team. They are Messrs. Kimball, Sigman and Richardson.

This is the final debate in the inter-society contest for the Jacobs cup.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE CLOSES.

The seventeenth annual commencement of the school of Agriculture will occur this week. These exercises will mark the close of a successful year. Something like one hundred ten students will graduate and the great majority will go back to the farm fitted to perform their duties as farmers, housewives and citizens, having always in view high ideals of such duties and privileges. We congratulate the young men and women who have had a training to fit themselves for their life's work and we congratulate the communities into which they are to settle down to live.

COACH'S SALARY CUT.

The University Council met last Saturday afternoon and among other things voted to reduce the salary of Minnesota's coach to $2,500. The action of the recent Chicago conference called for such reduction as soon as existing contracts should allow such action. Minnesota's contract with Dr. Williams allowed such change and the council decided to make the change. The football coach is thus placed upon the same basis as other professors. This action has been severely criticised upon the ground that it was in reality a breach of good faith. While we are not informed as to the arguments put forward in favor of this action, we believe that the council did what it believed to be just and that the future will vindicate its action.

MISS WAY WINS.

For the first time in the history of the University, Minnesota will be represented by a woman in the inter-state oratorical contest. Miss Way, to whom this honor has come, has earned it fairly and by dint of hard work. She has fine native ability in this line, and she will prove a worthy representative of the University in the Northern Oratorical League. We hope that she may succeed in capturing the honors in the inter-state.

Miss Way's oration was upon "The Passing of the Home," a most unhackneyed topic and one that she handled in a way to prove that she had given it much thought, and devoted much time to careful preparation. We commend what Miss Way had to say to the thoughtful consideration of our readers. It will be found in full in another column.

The contest as a whole was just about average, and the audience, while not large, was appreciative and enjoyed, if one may judge by the cheering, the contest throughout. Mr. O. B. Flinders won second place and Miss Fannie Fliegelman third place. The first place carries with it $100 in cash and the right to represent Minnesota in the Northern Oratorical League. The second place $50 in cash, the third, $25.

The program was as follows:

Cornet solo, Hearts and Flowers, Adolph Blix, accompanist, Miss Verna Hanson; The Democracy of John Marshall, Magnus H. Aygarn; Back to Democracy, Miss Fanny Fliegelman; The American Crime, John F. Sinclair; John Marshall, The Nation Builder, Orlo E. Flinders; Our Country's Call, James Z. Nebbergall; The Passing of the Home, Lucile Way. Judges: Principal W. Frank Webster, Superintendent C. M. Jordan, Mr. J. Edward Meyers. Presiding officer, Professor Maria L. Sanford.

MANY MATTERS SETTLED.

Shevlin Hall, the much-heralded Woman's building will be erected upon the site of the old Main.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the board of regents last week this site for the new edifice was selected. The structure will be erected some distance in the rear of the line of the Old Main, forming a semi-circle of the Law building, Shevlin Hall and the Library. The roadway will be reconstructed, making a graceful curve and greatly adding to the beauty of the campus.

The regents for some time, have been considering the various proposed sites, and the one that was selected was chosen only after much discussion.

J. and W. A. Elliot have been awarded the contract to construct the building.

The girls are taking great interest in the work. During the last five years, they have in different ways raised approximately $1600, which they intend to use in furnishing their new home.

Ground will be broken on the first day of April and the entire structure completed by September 15th.

The building is a gift of Thomas Shevlin, who has given $50,000 for its construction.

The contract for the construction of the main building has been awarded to J. and W. A. Elliott of Minneapolis. The cost will be $286,950, that being the lowest bid submitted to the state board of control.

Work on the building will be begun immediately, but the building will not be ready for occupancy until July, 1907.

Several sub-contracts, such as the wiring, etc., will have to be let and about $60,000 is available for this purpose.

The foundation of the building was put in last year at a cost of $5,390.

The building will consist of three stories, together with a basement and sub-basement. There will be a nine-foot base of solid granite. The remainder of the building will be of Twin City pressed brick with trimmings of Terra Cotta.

There will be a frontage of 322 feet and a depth of 96 feet. The building will have an entrance for each of the streets surrounding it. Ample provision is made on the various floors for college publications, societies, language and science, recitation rooms, an office for the dean with a faculty parlor adjoining, and all other things for which space is needed, such as the postoffice, cloak and locker rooms.

SECOND CHICAGO CONFERENCE.

Football reform has at last crystalized in the adoption of a set of rules by the big nine colleges. The rules adopted by the conference follow:

Rule 1. No freshman shall take part in any intercollegiate athletic contest. Effective at next fall semester.

Rule 2. No student shall participate in intercollegiate athletics for more than three years in the aggregate.

This rule shall be come effective on Sept. 1st, 1906, except for students who participated in college athletics in the years 1905 and 1906. For these the rule becomes effective Dec. 1, 1906.

Rule 3. Participation in intercollegiate football shall be confined to students who have not graduated from any department of a college or university.

Rule 4. No team consisting wholly or in part of college students shall play football with high schools, academies or independent professional schools. Effective Sept. 1, 1906.

Rule 5. That no more than five intercollegiate games shall be played in one season. Effective Sept. 1, 1906.

Rule 6. Freshmen teams and second elevens shall play only with teams from their own institutions. Effective Sept. 1, 1906.

Rule 7. No more than 50 cents shall be charged at any game for any seat whether reserved or not, for members of the university, and a less sum shall be charged if possible.

Rule 8. There shall be no training table or training quarters for any athletic team. Effective Sept. 1, 1906.

Rule 9. A competent university officer shall state in his certificate of eligibility (1) that the student has passed all his entrance requirements; (2) that he has passed all intervening work as regularly required in each university, for the period involved; (3) that he is taking full work in the current semester.

Rule 10. We recommend that no coach be appointed except by the university governing bodies on the recommendation of the faculty or president, in the regular way, and with a moderate salary. This recommendation becomes effective as soon as the existing contracts in the several institutions permit.

Rule 11. There shall be no preliminary training prior to the beginning of academic instruction. Effective Sept. 1, 1906.

Rule 12. The season will end on the first Saturday before Thanksgiving.

Rule 13. Steps shall be taken to reduce the receipts and expenditures; that the athletic surplus be devoted, as far as possible, to permanent university improvements; that the financial management of athletics be entirely in charge of the faculty, who shall publish all reports of the receipts and expenditures. Effective Sept. 1, 1906. (This also absorbs the old rule No. 14.)

GRADUATE CLUB.

Friday evening, March 9th. Dr. Eddy addressed the Graduate Club on the "Functions of a Graduate School in a State U." Many members of the faculty attended the meeting.

Dr. Eddy gave his ideas on the need of such a school in Minnesota, the particular benefits to be derived therefrom and the method of conducting it. He stated that reforms usually begin at the top and go down. Hence the necessity of trained specialists, who by special training are fitted to render practical service to the state and to society.

He believed the state would be amply repaid for its expenditures in establishing a graduate department at Minnesota the equal or even the superior of European institutions of like character.

Just as the public schools complement the kindergarten, the high schools complement the public schools; the University, the high schools, so the Graduate School is the complement of the College. In a state university, especially in the Northwest, the graduate student is not merely a scholar, but his investigation and research is and must be practical, utilitarian.

NASHVILLE CONVENTION.

3060 students from 700 different institutions of higher learning in the United States and Canada, with over 1100 other delegates made the convention great, and it goes down in history as the greatest and most far-reaching conference ever held in the life of the Christian church. College, state and national lines were forgotten, and nearly every section of every continent was represented. Creeds and denominations were forgotten also, and leading figures in protestant Christendom were present.

The sessions were held in Ryman auditorium, having a seating capacity of about 5,000. Across the ceiling were red, white and blue streamers, and around the auditorium were suspended the flags of the nations where the evangelization of the world has begun. From the center of the ceiling above the platform was the flag of the crusaders, while back of the platform was a large map of the world 30x70 feet, showing the progress of evangelization; on one side of the map was hung the stars and stripes, and the Canadian flag on the other. Above the map in large bold letters was the motto of the Student Volunteer movement: "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation." The whole sight was an inspiration.

The personnel of the leaders and speakers challenges our attention. John R. Mott was chairman and presided. Aside from the leaders in Christian thought and education there were on the program many noted laymen and statesmen. Sir H. Mortimer Durand, British ambassador to the United States, Ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster, the Hon. H. B. F. McFarland, President of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, the Hon. S. B. Capen of Boston, Dr. G. T. Manley of Cambridge, England, Dr. H. P. Beach, F.R.G.S., Mr. J. A. McDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, and many others. It was a broad glimpse of Christian work. A statesman's view of missions was had. Surely, such a gathering must profoundly influence the religious life of our colleges, and thus disseminate the teachings of Jesus Christ wherever these students go after leaving college.

OTHER COLLEGES TO JOIN LEAGUE.

Plans for the perfection of the Forensic Honor League into an inter-collegiate honor society are now rapidly maturing. Oberlin has been selected as the place of convention during May at the time of the Northern Oratorical League Contest. At that time representatives of Minnesota, Northwestern, Chicago, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin and possibly others will meet for the selection of a name, probably Greek letter, constitution and pin.

Only those who have represented their University in an intercollegiate forensic contest and are of good character are eligible.

All the universities are very enthusiastic over the plan and are as anxious as Minnesota, where the idea originated, to have the intercollegiate organization completed.

Meanwhile, the local organization is being perfected. At its last meeting, the Forensic Honor League voted in nearly a hundred of its former representatives in intercollegiate oratory and debate.

As a number of former "U" representatives have already asked to be admitted, the success of the organization is assured.

It is hoped that a banquet of all the members can be arranged for in the spring, and that before long, the Forensic Honor League will be publishing a periodical in behalf of debate and oratory, local and intercollegiate.

HONORS GIVEN IN SENIOR CLASS

Vera Barrows, Theodore Christianson, Theodore Buenger, Charles Johnson, Edward Johnson, Theresa Olson, Fanny Fligelman, Elizabeth Hatch, Nellie L. Thompson, Alvin Stakman, Alice Steward, Sara Godlman, Jarvis Partridge and Irene Radcliffe were awarded Phi Beta Kappa honors in chapel Tuesday morning. Friends of the successful candidates filled the seats and aisles and voiced their approval as each name was read.

GOOD ROADS LABORATORY.

Preparations are now being made for the equipment of a good roads laboratory at the engineering building. Professor Hog has been advocating this measure for many years, and at last, both money and room have been set aside for this purpose.

Place in the instrument room twenty by thirty feet has been appropriated for this purpose, and two machines are now being constructed at Champaign, Illinois, for use in the laboratory.

One is for testing the value of rock as a road metal in macadam roads; the other for testing the relative values of different paving brick.

These are only two of a half dozen machines valuable for laboratories which it is planned to install soon.

With these and the machines for chemical tests which may be installed it is hoped to give Minnesota a good roads laboratory as good as any in the country.

At the present time, these laboratories are in use only at the Universities of Cornell, Columbia, Illinois and Colorado.

"U" ENGINEERS IN DEMAND.

Professor Shepardson reports that applications have already been received from various manufacturing firms sufficient to locate twenty-four of the twenty-nine seniors in the electrical engineering course.

GIRLS' PRESS CLUB.

An organization in the nature of a girls' press club was formed last week by the co-eds of the University engaged in work on the various college publications. The object of the club is social, being the promotion of good-fellowship among its members.

MISS CLOPATH TO LECTURE.

Tuesday afternoon, Miss Clopath is to give a lecture on Modern Industrial Art and Its Relation to Social Conditions. The lecture is to be illustrated by stereoptican views, some of which have been tinted by a Japanese artist.

The lecture is intended principally for the students in the class of design, but it will be of interest to all art students.

THE PASSING OF THE HOME.

The genius of man has not planned, the evolving forces of nature have not developed, nor the wisdom of God ordained an institution more divine in its conception or more far reaching in its power for good than the home. It is the cementing force of civilization. It is the nucleus about which the world as it is has grown. It has ever been the unit of patriotism, for without the home the state could never have been. Since it is all this, is it not the one institution which, above all others we should guard most securely, and, against all odds, keep pure and worthy?

This is a commercial, an industrial, a finance-frenzied age. There is some thing in the very air we breathe which impels us toward the making and the getting of things. So intent have we become in this half dazed struggle that we reck not how the wheels are kept turning, what the cost to society nor what the menace to posterity.

The invention of the steam engine, and the resulting introduction of the factory system have led to the invasion of the industrial world by women and this is rapidly accomplishing a degeneration in the home. Not only the homes of the poor laborers, but more particularly those of the middle classes have been touched, the one by the bitter necessity, the other by the bewitching power of modern industrialism, and woman enters the labor field either because she must or because she will. At any rate she is there—a fact more deplorable than many of us think.

To some it seems that woman is thus only reaching out into a larger life, more independence and greater possibilities. To be sure her ideals have changed. We would not if we could, have woman return to her former state of physical and mental dependence. Our ideal woman is no longer of the delicate, dainty, flower-like type, intellectually incapable and physically inefficient. From a standpoint of science and economics we see the value to women of health and strength, and our aesthetic eyes also have learned to see more beauty in a hand with power to do than in one delicately tapered but impotent. Our ideal of woman is high, but the industrial world is so organized as to make its realization less and less possible.

In all things we are inclined to be a little over confident of success. We compare our world with that of the past and failure seems impossible. But we overlook the fact that success in one direction may mean failure in another. One of the great aims of the past century was to reduce the cost of production. It has been accomplished, but as regards the home, at what a sacrifice! How many children have been stunted in growth, how many women robbed of their birthright, and how many men reduced to mere machines in the accomplishing of this end. Nor has this sacrifice reduced the cost of production as materially as at first appears. It is true that today men of all classes can buy a greater number of things for the same money, than their grandfathers could. On the other hand, how many of these grandfathers would have been willing to put up with the cheap, shoddy materials which flood our markets today? Our prices are low, but the quality of our product is also low. And beside this, there is in every yard of cotton cloth, in every ready made garment, and in fact in the output of every industry, a human tragedy, the mere contemplation of which, did we stop to think, would depreciate its value a hundred fold. It is a tragedy which reaches to the very soul of society, for it attacks the home. This may seem like a sweeping statement, but let us examine the facts. The twelfth census reports three hundred and three separate employments in two hundred and ninety-five of which women are employed. This leaves only eight in which women are not found. There are no women soldiers, sailors, marines or street car conductors, and there are no women members of fire departments, none who are apprentices to roofers and slaters, helpers to steam boiler makers or to brass workers.

Moreover, there is a constantly increasing tendency for women to slip lower and lower down in the scale. This is perfectly in keeping with a simple law of the industrial world—that the hardest manual labor, that requiring the least skill, shall be done by those least efficient. Woman is, without doubt, physically inferior to man. She has less power to apply herself constantly and directly to a task in hand and master it. This fact operates to keep her in those processes which require least skill but at the same time make the greatest demands upon the nervous organism. This is a sad state of affairs, for woman who thus seems doomed to furnish a substratum for her more efficient brother workers to build upon, and for society which is being sapped of its vigor and vitality. Of the total number of people gainfully employed in the United States in 1900, nearly one-fifth were women. Suppose that the five and a half million women in the United States who are engaged in gainful occupations, largely outside the home, were to withdraw from the field and do their share of the world's work within the home. Much of the work which they are now doing would be done by men, probably at a higher wage. But we are willing and ready to grant that not all the vacancies thus created would be filled by men, for there would be an accompanying diminution in certain industries.

There would be a smaller market for the disease breeding garment of the sweat shops, there would be fewer bakeries dispensing alum bleached bread, not so many canning factories shipping tons of adulterated and half cooked foods, there would be less opportunity for the great packing houses to dispose of their scraps, poor in food value, in the various tempting forms of pressed, deviled and minced meats. Such products owe their very existence to the fact that so many women are finding employment outside the home.

All this would not be so lamentable if it were necessary. We can forgive a woman for putting tinned food before her family, for buying cheap, ready-made clothing if necessity drives her from the home, into the shop or factory. But the statistics of the last census show that it is not the women of the laboring classes who are so greatly augmenting the ranks of those who work outside the home. It is the women of the middle classes. This fact tells us a painful truth. It is the young women who want to dress a little better than their fathers can dress them, it is the women who want a little more "pin money," or those who have just brains enough to look down on house work,—it is these women who are working the evil and making the problem more and more difficult of solution.

If the injury were to the individual alone, the situation would be a different one. We should say, "If this or that woman prefers to work outside the home, let her do it, it is her own business." But the injury is not primarily to the individual, but to the home and to society in general. It is not difficult to see that many of the evils of our time and particularly those which most intimately affect the home are largely dependent upon this practice.

With the so called emancipation of woman and her attempt to establish her independence, there has been a corresponding decrease in the number of marriages, an increase in immorality and a tremendous increase in the number of divorces. The decrease in the number of marriages is undoubtedly due, partly at least, to the fact that so many women are acquiring a distaste for the duties of matrimony and home, thinking that they are intended for higher things. Or perchance they have spent their younger lives out in the busy world, have found a certain charm in its hurry and excitement and have come to realize that home life and home duties would be too monotonous for them. On the other hand the wages of man have something to do with this decrease. What man of self respect will ask a woman to share with him a wage only slightly greater than one which she is able to earn by her own efforts. Rather than do this he lives on in single blessedness, in a boarding house and allows her to plod on alone also—probably in another boarding house.

The increase in immorality may be due partly to the decrease in marriage and partly to the fact that while woman possibly is not more moral than man, she has in the past, been more protected. She has been more secure in the home. But when she goes out into the world she subjects herself to temptations which are beyond her power to resist, particularly if she is earning a wage so low as to impel her to a life of shame.

The increase in divorce may also be due to several causes—the woman weary of the business life and eager for change, may marry, to find out when it is too late that her whole life has been cultivating in her a distaste for household duties. She is unfitted to reach anything like perfection as a home maker. She becomes dissatisfied and, feeling confident of her ability to support herself, she seeks divorce. Or it may be that the woman of ambition whose tastes have been perverted by the spirit of time, feels that the home confines her within too narrow limits. She feels that she has power to do great things, she longs to try her wings in what she calls a larger life. Her condition seems to her like slavery because perchance she has not been paid in hard, round dollars for her work. She demands freedom and secures it in the divorce court. Nor are these the only social evils that are robbing the home of its glory, which are at least partly due to the commercial tendency of the age which drags both woman and children from the home. For example—intemperance is considered by many the crying evil of the time, and one of the greatest causes of poverty. It is often not a cause of poverty but a condition of poverty, a condition for which other evils are responsible. If we were to go into the homes of many of the intemperate poor we would not wonder that the man of the family tries to drown his discomfort in drink. His wife he chose from the factory hands. She chose to work in the factory because she considered herself above house work. She was so far above it that she has never been able to make more than half use of the slender means which her husband has earned. The food which he provides she puts before him either raw or scorched; the handful of furniture which he has been able to get together is misused or abused; everything about the little place which he had hoped to call home is dirty and slovenly. The saloon is bright and clean. Can we wonder at his choice? But we must not blame the poor woman, his wife. She is the product of the system. She could doubtless tend a power machine and do it perfectly. That she has learned to do. Upon it she has spent the best part of her life. There she had worn away her energy and her reserve power before she chose to marry. But of the simple duties of home she is ignorant. Thus it is found by many charity workers that much of the poverty out of which intemperance arises is caused not so much by a lack of means as thru ignorance of the proper use of the means at hand. And relief as often comes thru education in the simple economics of house keeping as thru material aid.

But as before suggested it is not primarily from such homes that the greatest number of women are drawn into the industrial field. It is from the homes of the middle classes. How then are we to remedy the evil, keep the women in the home and preserve that benign institution for future generations?

The remedy must come thru a change in our attitude toward the whole system. There are few who do not recognize the true place of the home in civilization. But we are all too busy to give the matter vital thought, much less to give it expression. When we do talk to our boys and girls about their future we hold before them as ideals, men and women who have done great things—won great battles or acquired great fortunes. This is all very well to a certain extent. But let us not emphasize it until it becomes the habit of the young to look forward to brilliant careers in public affairs. Let us more often lay stress upon those men and women who have lived, simple peaceful lives within the home. If our private life were better and purer, there would be less need for men and women in public positions. We want every woman to be interested in politics, but the best politics for her is to "train up her child in the way he should go," for after all what we need, more than we need law makers, is fewer law breakers.

There must be nothing half-hearted in our attitude toward the whole matter. It is vital. It is far-reaching. We must check the movement of the woman from the home, lest she become the bread winner and not the home maker. We never object to great sacrifices for great causes but is the desire for greater material wealth, which inspires the business world today, a cause great enough to call for the sacrifice of the home? No, the home must not go. It must be preserved and that not merely as a place where individuals are held together by a tie of kinship, but rather as a haven of rest and peace, and companionship and sympathy and love. And it can be so preserved only when our women come to feel that in the making of such a home, they have best served themselves, their age and posterity; have lived the largest lives possible and have most faithfully performed their sacred duty to God.

FROM SEATTLE, WASHINGTON.

Seattle, February 19, 1906.

My dear Mr. John,—or "Dear E. B.," as I almost said—

Some time ago I was speaking with J. H. Kane of '02 in regards to organizing a Minnesota Alumni Association here in Seattle. I also spoke to A. J. Blethen, Jr., '91, who said that some years ago they had organized such an Association, but at that time the number of Minnesota people was not sufficient to make it interesting. He said he would be glad to go in for reorganization on a good strong basis.

I have just been looking through the Minnesota Alumni Weekly of December 19, '04, which is a complete directory of the alumni of the University of Minnesota. This shows that there are forty-three alumni in Seattle, about fourteen in Tacoma and about fifteen in the towns near Seattle, and in the entire state 130. I should be glad to hear of any new alumni of Seattle and surrounding towns which you may know of, also any advice or directions for procedure in this organization. It might be well for us to have a sample of the constitution of the general Alumni Association. I hope this will not put you to too much trouble. It reminds me of old times to be dropping you a note again and makes me anxious to be back at the dear old campus again.

Remember me to any of the old timers and feel assured that I am yours, as ever,
—E. N. Parmelee.

MINNESOTA 16—WISCONSIN 10.

Last Saturday night in the University armory, the 'varsity quint won the western championship in winning the game from Wisconsin. The game was close and exciting throughout and the men on both teams played up to the last ounce of energy each possessed.

Minnesota took the lead at the start with two field baskets and her lead was but once reduced below three points. There was but one criticism to be made of the Minnesota men and that was in their work at guarding. In this respect the Wisconsin team showed itself the superior team.

The Wisconsin men were heavier than the Minnesota men, but were quick and always where they could make the most trouble for Minnesota.

Wisconsin has always played a rough game of basket ball and under the new rules roughness was more in evidence than ever before. The Minnesota men were not free from this fault, however, and the result was that the game was fast and furious throughout.

The victory, which carried with it the western championship, was followed by a celebration which was confined to the armory, but which savored of the old fashioned foot ball zig-zag. Headed by the band and carrying the victors on their shoulders, the students paraded the armory and gave vent to their joy by creating noise.

The officials were fair and though many more fouls might easily have been called on both sides—neither side got the worst of the decisions.

The line up:

Minnesota—	Position.	Wisconsin.
Louis Larson	center	Bush (Capt.)
Brown	right guard	Eisler, Wolford, Sweinbold

Goals from field, L. Larson 1, McRae 2, Brown 1, Clark 1, Bush 2, Wolford 2. Goals from fouls, McRae 6, Bush 4. Referee, Davis.

PICTURES ON EXHIBITION.

Two of Miss Clopath's pictures in the State Art Society exhibit at the State Capital are worthy of especial notice. They are "Twilight" and "The Willow Pond."

The former is remarkable for its softness of tone and harmony of coloring and is done in Raphael. In the foreground is a hay stack tinted purple and with the dark green of the trees in the background the effect is very pleasing.

"The Willow Pond" shows a weird willow tree bending over a pond in which it is reflected. Miss Clopath's work shows a delicate technique and a facility in seizing upon strange effects and unusual colorings.

The picture displays Miss Clopath's delicate technique, so characteristic of her work, and also her happy skill in catching expression. The coloring is exquisitely soft and the harmony marvelous.

If you wish to secure a position to teach, write to James F. McCullough, Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

BASKET BALL WITH NEBRASKA.

Games have been arranged with the Nebraska basket ball team for the 23rd and 24th of this month. These two games will be among the best seen here this season for Nebraska has the same team which she had here last year, when she defeated Minnesota in two successive games. The gophers however will be in the best of condition by that time and will show the visitors an exceedingly fast time.

The Red Men team from Red Wing is also negotiating for a game with the gophers. This team is composed of men who have played together for several years and they are exceptionally strong.

Photographs that have style and character—the only kind produced by Sweet Studios. They will last for many generations and will always be works of art.

FACULTY AND STUDENTS

The past week has been noteworthy principally for the attitude taken by both faculty and students in regard to matters in which the interests of these parties seem to clash. The students have resented the action of the University Council in assuming certain rights, which they claim belong to the student body. The point seems not to be so much the action of the faculty; that is, what was done, as the position taken by the faculty regarding the extent of its right to supervise and direct student enterprises.

In past years the students have been allowed to do pretty nearly as they have pleased. With the revelations made in regard to last year's Gopher, there came a reaction, and the faculty has been gradually assuming power to direct student enterprises in a way that has become irksome to the student body. While there is no question whatever that the "let-alone" policy of the past has been bad, we are rather afraid that the faculty are in danger of overdoing it in the other direction. We believe that the student body, if persuaded that conditions are not as they should be, can be depended upon to right such conditions, and we feel still more certain that students can be much more easily led than driven.

We trust that the present unfortunate state of affairs may pass without any loss of self respect on the part of either the faculty or student body. The interests of both are identical, and we hope to see matters closed up without any serious conflict of authority.

ARTHUR UPSON.

The friends of Arthur Upson will be greatly shocked to learn, what has been given such wide publicity in the public press, of his attempted suicide last Friday. Mr. Upson is at a hospital in a serious condition, tho his recovery is probable. His action is explained by his nearest friends on the ground of temporary dementia induced by overwork and worry under the responsibilities which have come upon him in connection with his work in the English department. Those who do not know Mr. Upson personally, but only thru his works, will join his friends in wishing him a speedy and complete recovery. He deserves and has the heartiest sympathy of those who know of the unfortunate circumstances surrounding the affair.

RANKIN ACCEPTS

A. W. Rankin, '80, has formally accepted the appointment of assistant professor in the department of pedagogy. The school of pedagogy was instituted last fall, with Dr. Geo. F. James as dean and Mr. Rankin as assistant professor. The development of this department will permit of greater attention to the training of those intending to teach and is an institution which has been greatly desired many years past. Mr. Rankin has been state inspector of graded schools for eleven years, and brings to the work practical knowledge of school conditions, gained during his many years of service in this state as inspector of graded schools. The University is to be congratulated that Mr. Rankin has decided to accept.

PROFESSOR SOARES

Dr. Theodore G. Soares, '91, who was recently elected to the chair of homiletics of the divinity school of the University of Chicago, delivered the convocation sermon at that institution one week ago last Sunday. Mr. Soares' friends will rejoice to know that his present position is one which will afford him an excellent opportunity to make the most of his broad scholarship and unusual ability as a preacher.

MINNESOTA 25—NEBRASKA 16.

Minnesota clinched a title already won by defeating the strong Nebraska team last Saturday night on the Armory floor. The game, while not of such great interest as that with Wisconsin, was a good exhibition of basket ball. Basket ball is assuming a more commanding position among college sports and deservedly so. It gives the broadest possible field for individual effort, and at the same time the possibilities for team work are almost limitless. It is a game which holds the interest of the spectator and affords one of the best opportunities of any game for an exhibition of athletic skill and agility.

KEPNER'S THESIS.

The Weekly has received from Thomas E. Kepner, 'Law '94, LL.M., '96, of the Manila bar, a copy of a "Brief on the Origin of American Jurisprudence." The edition is limited and is intended for private distribution. In his preface, Mr. Kepner says—"The evolution of those principles of justice embraced in the constitution of the United States covers a period of approximately forty centuries of authentic history. * * * * They were old when Moses compiled his code; how old no one can say. * * * * It is hoped that no one will think that this brief is presented as either new or original; it is neither. When completed, perhaps I should say, if completed, the work will consist of seven volumes; lack of time, poor library facilities, certain financial considerations, together with the magnitude of the subject, preclude the completion of the work at this time. Each volume of the proposed work is presented in outline in a short chapter. With this preliminary statement, the brief is submitted for the candid examination of my friends and others who may care to read it."

"THE CITY."

The March number of the "Critic" contains a review of Arthur Upson's poem-drama, "The City."

A resume of the setting and plot is given by the Critic, and the strength and purity of the lines receive considerable praise. The review touches upon the other poems which appear with "The City," and the same measure of praise is given them. Of "The City," the Critic says, "Mr. Upson has achieved a most creditable piece of work in his poem-drama, and his lines are notable both for substance and for manner. He has woven most judiciously, with firmness and with delicacy, into his drama, personages which live, move and have individual being to an unusual degree."

MINNESOTAN AT COLUMBIA.

Professor Henry Johnson, '89, formerly instructor of history in the Moorhead normal school, more recently of the Eastern Illinois Normal, has been called to a chair in Columbia university. The present remuneration attached to the position is $3,500, but it is understood that this is to be increased to $5,000 per year. He recently spent a year abroad studying at the Paris university, and it was while there that he received the call to Columbia university.

CHOWEN IN CALIFORNIA.

Mr. W. A. Chowen, Eng. '91, has recently been appointed manager of the western liability department of the Aetna Life Insurance Company. Mr. Chowen is recognized as an expert in casualty insurance, and the new appointment is given in recognition of his success in that line of work. His office will be in San Francisco, Calif. The Weekly is indebted to Mr. Chowen for some newspaper clippings, describing the Rugby game of football as played by the championship team from New Zealand and an All-British-Columbia team on the field at Berkeley, Calif. The game was witnessed by Mr. Chowen, who says: "In my opinion the American college game is far inferior in point of interest to spectators, and in the possibilities for the development of team play."

PERSONALS.

Miss Sophie S. Holt, '99, of Duluth, formerly a missionary in Turkey, will speak at the W. B. M. I. annual meeting next month, at Montevideo. Miss Holt is the new field secretary for the Minnesota branch of the W. B. M. I.

Marshall A. Nye, '04, and Miss Sarah Pratt, both of this city, were married last week. After a two weeks' wedding trip, they will be at home at 708 8th Av. S.

Antoinette Belden, '05, is teaching in the high school at Lyle, Minn.

C. S. Buck, who is cashier of a bank at Calvin, N. D., was in the city last week. He reports a thriving business and the best of health and spirits.

A. N. Farmer, superintendent of schools at Browns Valley, Minn., visited University friends last week. Mr. Farmer is enjoying his work, and as interested in "U" affairs as when a student.

Jeanie M. Jackson, '99, is teaching at Lincoln, Kansas. She expects to visit Minneapolis friends during the coming summer.

Kyle F. Marlowe, '99, who returned from a European trip last November, is teaching in the high school at Harvey, Ill.

A. T. Laegerstrom, '05, instructor at Gustavus Adolphus College, visited the University last Monday.

FULDA LECTURE A SUCCESS.

The lecture of Dr. Fulda, which was given in the chapel last Monday evening, was a success from every point of view. The crowd was large and appreciative and demonstrated the possibility of getting out an audience to a University lecture of the more solid sort.

GERMAN MUSEUM TO BE ESTABLISHED.

Professor Moore is now perfecting plans for the establishment of a German Museum at Minnesota.

Space has been allotted for such a purpose in the specifications of the New Main, and it is the intention to have much of the equipment of the museum ready by the time the building is completed.

Professor Moore will receive the hearty co-operation of the German Consul at St. Paul in his projects. It is proposed to send requests to various large publishing and educational firms of Germany, and in this way it is hoped that much valuable material may be collected.

It is also planned to ask many of the German Americans of the state to contribute to the fund and any articles which would be of value in teaching the history, progress, and life of the German people.

That these plans can be carried out is shown by the remarkable success of the Fulda lecture. Not only were all expenses paid, but considerable money was saved, and this may go toward the enlargement of the museum.

Such a feature of the university has been long desired by Prof. Moore, and he is enthusiastic to the highest degree for its establishment.

FACULTY ACTION.

The powers to be exercised in the regulation of athletics by the new athletic committee of the council have been made public. They are the result of recommendations made by the old athletic committee to the University Council which adopted said recommendations in full.

These were formulated by the committee to carry out the Big Nine recommendation previously adopted by the Council that the faculties of the various universities take necessary steps to bring athletics at their respective institutions under faculty supervision.

The rules as they now stand are as follows:—

"The committee on Athletics presents the following recommendations to the University Council:—

"(1) That the Committee on Athletics be increased to five members;

"(2) That two of the five members shall be elected by the committee to serve on the Board of Control of the Athletic Association;

"(3) That the committee shall elect a sub-committee of two members to be known as the Ticket committee. They shall have charge of all tickets and other sources of income and shall file with the Treasurer a complete ticket report for each game showing tickets issued, tickets sold, complimentary tickets and unsold tickets, together with a statement of the actual cash received. The chairman of this sub-committee shall be one of the two faculty members of the Board of Control;

"(4) That the committee shall elect a sub-committee of two members to be known as the Auditing Committee. They shall have general supervision of all expenditures and no athletic bills shall be paid unless approved by this committee. The chairman of this sub-committee shall be the second faculty member of the Board of Control.

"(5) That the Athletic Committee of five shall constitute the Eligibility committee, and shall decide upon all questions of students' eligibility to participate in athletic sports;

"(6) That all proposed expenditures after being recommended by the Board of Control shall be submitted for approval to the Athletic Committee, and no expenditures shall be incurred without such approval;

"(7) That the Athletic Committee shall have supervision of Northrop Field, the grandstand and seats thereon. They will satisfy themselves of the safety of all stands before allowing them to be used;

"(8) That the methods of administering in detail the business of the Athletic Association shall be subject to the approval of the Athletic Committee; that this committee is given entire control of University athletics subject to the constant revision and ratification of the University Council."

Dean Jones, when seen by a representative of the Minnesota Daily, maintained that the new rules would not cause any great deal of change in the relation between the athletic association and the faculty. Said he:

"For the past seven years, I have had authority from the Regents to veto any action of the Board of Control any time that I thought it right and proper to do so. But I have never found it necessary to use this power, and I don't anticipate that the new committee, of which I thank goodness, I am not a member, will ever have to use its powers. The vetoing of Dr. Williams' contract was done by the Council as a whole and not by the committee."

STUDENT REACTION.

The following opinions were expressed by prominent students in regard to the new rules governing the Board of Control:

"Mose" Strathern, former president of the Board and a student in the medical department, said:

"The faculty Council has no power to limit the action of the Athletic Board of Control in matters where the Board has received its authority to act from the Athletic Association."

Erick Schrader, another former member of the Board, said: "The new rules have taken from the Board of Control all its powers, and left it all its liabilities. The Council would have been acting with greater fairness to the students if they had attempted to abolish the Board entirely."

Charles P. Schouten of the Law department, who served as academic rep-representative for two years, was very outspoken in his condemnation. Said he: "It seems to me that this assumption of unlimited control of athletics by the faculty is unreasonable, unwarranted, and unnecessary. They evidently do not credit the student body with enough gray matter to manage their own affairs."

Earle Constantine has this to say:

"Dean Jones's interview, as given in yesterday's Daily, is the best argument against the rules adopted by the Faculty Council, which I have ever heard. He admits that they are not necessary. Why, then, make rules which will certainly tend to cause serious difficulties between the faculty and students."

President Gleason of the Athletic Board of Control is making arrangements for a giant mass-meeting to be held in chapel in the near future to determine what stand the students of Minnesota are going to take on the matter of faculty control of athletic and other student interests. A number of prominent men about college have signified their willingness to speak.

The question of "what is the ultimate aim of the faculty in its recent action relative to Athletics" was well answered when a student yesterday said, "to extend its own power quite unreservedly over, not merely athletics, but all student activities."

Why does the faculty at Minnesota feel that this extension of its power is necessary? Has a crisis been reached in student affairs that the students themselves are lacking in moral or intellectual ability to cope with? Are the activities at such a low ebb in our college that the faculty feel a pressing need of reform thru themselves? Could as satisfactory results have been obtained by trusting that legislation to the members the students have chosen for this purpose?

Good advice and help by a body so much respected as the faculty would have the most careful consideration with any university organization,—this cannot be denied—then why, instead of issuing ultimatums and sending forth binding laws which coming as they do so swiftly, and with so little heralding, cannot hope but to be received in the nature of a challenge, why could the faculty not have said—"This is not right and it should be changed,—we leave it to your broad-mindedness and common sense to recognize the wrong and make the change?"

The students do not feel that this was done, but why could it not have been done and then if existing evils were not altered, nor any attempt made to remedy them, then might the faculty have stepped in and honestly said, "You have failed, we must do it for you."

The power of the faculty is not definitely bounded, and they may enforce rules objectionable to the students, if they see fit, but after it happens "in the course of human events" that a victory or point as it may be regarded, is gained at too great cost to be of value.—Minnesota Daily.

MASS MEETING.

A mass meeting of all the students of the University has been called for Wednesday evening at 7:45 in the chapel.

The meeting is for the purpose of considering the recent stand taken by the faculty in regard to the management of student affairs.

The meeting has been called by John Gleason, president of the Athletic Board and is called as a meeting of the athletic association. As every student and faculty member belongs by merely signing the constitution, the meeting will be open to all and will be along the line of an ordinary football mass-meeting.

A list of speakers for the big meeting is now in course of preparation. It will include prominent men from every department in the university, several well known alumni, and also members of the faculty, who will be given a fair chance to state their side of the case.

Viewed from many aspects the meeting will be unique from a number of points of view.

It will be the first expression by the student body of any Big Nine college of their attitude toward recent faculty legislation. It will also be the first time in recent years that the Athletic Association has deemed it necessary to hold any meetings other than its regular annual meeting in the armory.

MAY DEBATE ILLINOIS.

Illinois may debate Minnesota next year. The secretary of the debating association has been asked to make arrangements for a debate next year.

No action will be taken on this proposition until Professor McDermott returns, which will probably be in April.

Minnesota at present belongs to the Central Debating League and has an annual debate with Iowa.

ECONOMICS CLUB LECTURE.

E. D. Solenberger, manager of the Minneapolis Associated Charities, lectured in chapel last Friday on "The Causes of Poverty." The lecture was one of a course of five held under the auspices of the economics club.

DEWEY.

Mr. A. M. Dewey, cousin to Admiral Dewey, and special agent of the U. S. Department of Commerce and Labor, spoke in chapel Thursday morning.

Mr. Dewey has been connected with the federal labor bureau as statistician and inspector for twenty-five years, and is one of the best informed men on industrial conditions in the country. During the past few months he has been investigating labor conditions in the twin cities.

"ECONOMIC FUNDAMENTALS."

The Hon. John Z. White of Chicago, addressed the students in chapel last week on "Economic Fundamentals." Mr. White is a man of charming personality, a magnetic speaker and with a fund of wit.

Miss Youmans of Nashville spoke in chapel Tuesday on Fiske University, the negro college.

Bishop W. F. McDowell, of Chicago, addressed the students in chapel last week on "Unity of Life."

Bishop McDowell was formerly president of the Colorado College, but at present is Bishop of this district of the Methodist Episcopal church. If satisfactory arrangements can be made, he will give a series of lectures here for a week this fall under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

SHEPARDSON GOES TO PURDUE

Professor Shepardson will deliver a lecture Monday, March 26, on "The Electric Lighting of Railway Trains," at Purdue University.

IS YOUR NAME WRITTEN THERE?

All girls belonging to the Woman's League are requested to put in Monica Keating's box, number 634 a slip bearing their name and that of the men they wish invited to the Sunlight Dance, to be held the first Saturday after Easter.

The list closes on March 26th, and if by this time the number of men invited does not correspond to the number of girls in the League, the necessary number will be invited by the Council.

REV. JOHN RYAN ADDRESSES THE CATHOLIC ASSOCIATION.

Rev. John A. Ryan addressed the University Catholic Association Sunday at 4 P. M. on the subject, "Money."

COMMENCEMENT AT FARM SCHOOL.

President Northrop addressed the seniors of the Farm School at their commencement exercises Wednesday.

President Northrop's remarks covered the progress of agriculture, ideas of the present day and hope for the future. There were 107 graduates this year.

START WOMAN'S BUILDING.

Ground breaking for the new Woman's building commenced last Monday. A large tool shed has been erected and in about six weeks the foundation will be commenced.

MUSIC AT THE SUMMER SCHOOL.

Doctor James has arranged with Miss Helen M. Trask, the Supervisor of Music of the Minneapolis Public Schools, to give a special afternoon course at the University Summer School to music teachers and supervisors. This will be of interest to teachers who may be assigned to this kind of work.

FOR DEFICIT.

The Debating Board is to give a series of three lectures in the near future. The speakers will be President Northrop, Miss Clark of Carleton College, whose subject will be Persian Art, and Professor Sanford.

LITERARY UNION.

On March 24, the Literary Union will hold its third meeting this year, and will give a mock trial.

BOWLING LEAGUE SCORES.

Team.	Percentage.
Zeta Psi	.836
Kappa Sigma	.666
Alpha Delta Phi	.500
Phi Psi	.333
Phi Delta Theta	.333

DEMAND FOR ENGINEERS TOO GREAT FOR SUPPLY

Tests on the immense turbine of the General Electric Co. were begun last Wednesday by the senior electrical engineers and the work will be continued. This week the juniors will be given the same opportunity.

More positions have already been offered to the members of this year's graduating class in electrical engineering than they are able to fill. Requests for over forty men have been made by firms from Massachusetts to Montana, and the present senior class contains only twenty-nine members.

FOR CLASS MEMORIAL.

The committee of the senior class who are to look into the question of leaving a suitable memorial have been selected. The members of this committee are Chas. Johnson, Lydia Valentyne and Isabel Dunn.

CHORAL CLUB.

A University choral club, which has for some time been in the minds of the musical leaders, will be definitely organized the first of this week.

Just what the size of the club will be is not known, but it will probably be composed of from forty to sixty members.

The selection of voices will, in all probability be made by one of the University music professors.

LECTURE ASSOCIATION.

Last week a large meeting was held for the consideration of the lecture course recently agitated. A. S. Dowdall was elected permanent chairman of the meeting, and a consideration of definite plans made.

A motion was adopted authorizing the chairman to appoint a committee of five to draw up a constitution. This committee was also empowered to investigate the methods of other lecture associations and to report on the same at the next meeting.

Dr. Wilde made several important suggestions advocating a liberal instead of a technical course of lectures and also a paid course.

It has been ascertained that a lecture course was successfully carried out at South Dakota, where four lectures were delivered at a cost of two dollars each member. It is the plan here to make the course consist of eight lectures, and to charge each member one dollar.

MEN'S TOURNAMENT COMES MARCH TWENTY-NINTH

Thursday evening, March 29 is the date set for the Men's basketball tournament. The four academic classes, the engineers and the faculty will enter teams.

Preliminaries have been arranged for next Tuesday night when four teams representing the academic classes will meet and play two games. They will decide by lot which two teams shall be pitted against each other at that time. The two teams which win in these preliminaries will contest in the tournament Thursday night. No admission will be charged for the contest Tuesday evening.

Thursday the two surviving academic teams, the faculty, and the engineers, will play for the championship. Two games will be played. The teams which are to play each other will be decided by lot before the tournament. The winners of these two contests will enter a final contest for the championship.

INDOOR MEET GREAT SUCCESS.

Indoor track work culminated in the meet, Saturday, Mar. 17. A fairly large crowd was present, but was not much in evidence until the relay races when it enthusiastically cheered the contestants.

In university events, the freshmen won more points than any other class.

No records were broken in any of the events, altho some of them were very exciting.

One of the surprises of the day was Central's victory in the preparatory-school relay race. Shattuck had been counted upon to win all preparatory school events, but in the relay, Stone, who ran first for Central, gained a lead for his team that no Shattuck man could overcome.

The relay races were the most exciting events of the day. In the fraternity relay race, the Alpha Deltas won first place, with Alpha Tau Omega a close second. The freshman won in the freshman-sophomore contest, and the track team in the football, baseball track relay.

MEDICS STRIKE.

Because they have to pay $3.00 for clinics at the St. Paul City and County Hospital, the junior medics have gone on a strike. They held a class meeting last week and resolved not to pay the fee.

Dean Ritchie appeared before the class and asked them to reconsider the action. They did so, and again passed the same resolution without a dissenting vote.

The medical faculty is much stirred up over the matter and the class will not be allowed to attend clinics until the hospital fee is paid.

REGENTS PROVIDE FOR WATER SUPPLY.

Colder drinking water is now assured. The executive committee of the regents ordered that the water pipes which have recently been in such close proximity to the boiler room should be relaid and covered.

Fire Chief Canterbury also appeared before the committee and urged the installation of a more adequate water supply for fire fighting. He spoke of insufficient supply when the Old Main burned, and advised that provision be made for a better equipment.

DIVIDE HONORS

Freshmen and sophomores divided the oratorical honors last Friday evening in the annual Peavey-Dunwoody contest between the classes.

By a vote of the judges, Harold Deering, sophomore, with an oration on "The real railroad problem," and Z. L. Potter, of the freshmen, with "Who Shall Solve the Negro Problem?" were tied for first place.

As Albert Evans, sophomore, won third place with his oration, "A Plea for the Southern White," the sophomores really gained one point ahead of the "freshies," but the closeness of the two leaders overshadows this and gives the freshmen almost equal credit with their older competitors.

The prize, which is a donation from W. H. Dunwoody and the heirs of F. H. Peavey, consists of $25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third. The first two will be united and the money divided between the leaders, each being given $20 as his share.

The university chapel was well filled with enthusiastic supporters of both classes and the oratorical ability of those who represented the classes was above the usual standard.

If you wish to secure a position to teach, write to James F. McCullough, Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

ENGINEERS GET NEW DESKS.

The engineering department this week received a consignment of sixty-five drawing desks containing three hundred and ninety lockers.

These fill a long felt want, as the department has been handicapped for years in this respect.

These desks will furnish a full equipment for the freshmen and sophomores in the mechanical building.

The desks were designed by the professors in the engineering department and are fitted up with many conveniences.

Photographs that have style and character—the only kind produced by Sweet Studios. They will last for many generations and will always be works of art. Sweet Studios, Syndicate Arcade Dramatic enthusiasts will soon have an opportunity of seeing a play which is to be put on by the Men's Press Club about May 15.

The plot of the play is being very closely guarded but from reliable authority it is to be a tragedy of the deepest kind, one of Shakespeare's is preferred by the majority of the club, and probably King Lear will be chosen.

It is the intention of the club to assume both male and female characters and carry out the whole plan among themselves.

NEW ADDITION FOR LIBRARY.

The law library is now receiving the constitutions of the different states. When this collection is completed, it will prove of great value to the classes in administrative law.

ON STEPHEN LANGTON.

John D. O'Brien of St. Paul gave a lecture to the students, Sunday, March 18, upon "Stephen Langton and his times.

This lecture was under the auspices of the University Catholic Association.

E. B. JOHNSON, '88, - - Editor.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

To the Members of the General Alumni Association of the University of Minnesota.

Greeting: This number of the Weekly brings to you some of the best University news it has ever published.

A few weeks ago the Board of Directors of the Association decided to make an earnest effort to secure, by subscriptions to cover two years, enough money to enable the Association to command the entire time of Mr. E. B. Johnson, '88, and to make the Alumni Weekly its own.
The response of the alumni appealed to thus far has been so hearty and encouraging that the agreement with Mr.
Johnson will be signed as soon as the Association is incorporated. This means that your Board of Directors has bound itself to raise $1,500.00 to $2,000.00 a year for at least two years. The outlook is so bright that the members of the Board are willing to take their chances with the possibility of being obliged to mortgage their hats and shoes.

This move is the most important the Board of Directors has taken or can take. Read what the letters and our new secretary say in regard to it. Think of all that the move means and bank on its great possibilities for good. Rejoice and put your shoulder to the wheel.

Remember that the immediate cause was Dr. Rees and that he received the hearty support and encouragement from every other member of the Board. It ought to cheer you because that fact shows your Board of Directors is composed of men (busy men in a busy city), who think about Alma Mater and are ready to dare and to do for the Association and the University whenever opportunity opens the door to possibilities.

Remember that Mr. Keyes, '96, has served you as secretary-treasurer ever since the Association was organized without receiving a cent for his time and labor.
I trust we shall be able to give substantial expression of our appreciation of his services and devotion at the next meeting of the Association.

Remember that our new secretary cuts loose from bright business prospects because of his greater love and hopes for Alma Mater. Receive him cordially, treat him generously and support him heartily.

"Minnesota, hail to thee,

Hail to thee, our college dear;
Thy light shall ever be
A beacon bright and clear;
Thy sons and daughters true
Will proclaim thee near and far;
They will guard thy fame
And adore thy name;
Thou shalt be their Northern Star."
Yours in service for Alma Mater,

—Henry F. Nachtrieb.

NEW PLANS AND PROSPECTS.

For a long time there have been many of the alumni who have felt that the alumni are not doing what the alumni might be doing and should be doing for the University. When Professor Nach-trieb, president of the General Alumni Association, reported to those present at the last meeting, what he saw and learned of the workings of the Alumni Association at the University of Michigan, the interest of many of the alumni was aroused and finally culminated in the two letters which follow:

Henry F. Nachtrieb, President General Alumni Association.

My Dear Professor Nachtrieb: The last year has shown that as an association we do not lack in interest, energy or even money, but that we do need some one who can give his whole time to harmonizing and focussing these efforts and making them effectual. Personally I feel the regents made a very big mistake when they did not a year ago adopt our plan for creating such an officer, a "financial secretary" of the University, to be a "field man" for all University interests. All the agitation for a change in location of the new main, the offer of money to be donated for this purpose, talk of a greater campus, etc., etc., would not have petered out to nothing if some one had been constantly on the ground to arouse and direct effort along practical lines.

Not only should the life membership fund grow by $5,000 a year for some years to come, but the Alumni Weekly should be developed and reach not only every alumnus, but become the medium of keeping the state and the whole northwest in close and correct touch with the University. Private gifts should be encouraged and surely when another Hoyland comes forward, I care not how difficult it may be to comply with the conditions, the money and the spirit which prompts the gift, must never be turned down. And lastly the alumni must be aroused to take such united and wholesome interest in the University that we shall never again have regents appointed for political favors, but largely selected from the alumni who can be trusted to act in a broad and generous spirit towards the University.

It is because of the present great need that I have solicited aid to be used as a guarantee fund wherewith to pay such an officer until the funds of the Association will be able to support him. I have met with sufficient encouragement to warrant my asking you to consider the plan and, if you think well of it, to call a meeting of the Board to further discuss it.

Yours truly,

—Soren P. Rees.

Duluth, Minn., March 9, 1906.

Henry F. Nachtrieb, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Sir: It is getting to be near the time of year when the boys up here are thinking of another banquet. After talking with several of the boys about it, so far we have come to about this conclusion:

That we must have some purpose to work to or work for, and since making a brief report to them of your observations concerning the working of the Michigan Alumni Association we are considering quite seriously the question of our ability in Minnesota to do something along the same line. Certainly it seems to us that there are students and alumni enough to support a movement of that kind and make it a success provided it is properly presented.

I have made to them suggestions which amount to about this: That we ask the president of the General Alumni Association to call his board together, and that they pass resolutions declaring it expedient and of the utmost necessity that steps be taken at once toward the adoption of a plan similar or identical to the one employed in Michigan. Also that they notify all subsidiary Alumni Associations of the purpose and ask immediate cooperation.

If you and your board think kindly of this move, then we of the northern Alumni Association can immediately take steps with propriety and make it a leading feature of our banquet.

If you think favorably please write me at once concerning the matter, as if it meets with your approval and the probable approval of the board, we will endeavor to enlist the interest of the Governor and if dates can be agreed upon, have him with us at our banquet, and if you could come and be with us also I think we could make a good start in the right direction.

Nothing definite as yet has been determined about the time of the banquet, but if matters can be arranged along the lines suggested, we will probably have a circular letter printed containing a brief outline of the results in Michigan, and what we wish to accomplish here. When, with the Governor as a star attraction, I think we could attain the end desired.

Write me at your earliest convenience, in order that we may have time to move properly.

Yours fraternally,

—F. C. Bowman, '79.

In accordance with the suggestion contained in Dr. Rees' letter, reinforced by the letter from Dr. Bowman, Pres. Nachtrieb called a meeting of the Board of Directors of the General Alumni Association. The discussion which followed the reading of the letters from Drs. Rees and Bowman, and the report of Dr. Rees concerning the success he had met in his tentative canvas for money to assure the carrying out of the plans suggested, convinced those present of the feasibility of the plan. The board felt that the securing of some one to devote his whole time to the work would result in great good to the University in many ways. It was also felt that the Minnesota Alumni Weekly would be indispensable in the carrying out of the plans proposed. Largely for this reason the choice of a man to fill the position fell upon the present editor of the Weekly, and it was by a unanimous vote that he was offered the position. The editor, though established in other lines of work, felt that here was an opportunity for him to do good service for the University and at the same time make the best use of the years of preparation which he had received as registrar of the University, and so accepted the offer.

THE PLAN.

The plan of work as outlined in Dr. Rees' letter, covers in a general way what the Board has in mind.

One of the chief lines of work to be taken up at once, is suggested by the following report of a committee of the Board of Directors to the University Press Committee. This committee has had in mind plans looking toward the establishment of a University Press Bureau and this report is the result of a conference between the Press Committee and the Board of Directors of the General Alumni Association.

To the University Press Committee:

In accordance with your request made at the conference held with the Board of Directors of the General Alumni Association Tuesday evening the 27th instant, the undersigned authorized committee presents this formal statement for your consideration in connection with the recommendations recently made to the University Council.

1. Mr. E. B. Johnson has been elected secretary of the General Alumni Association of the University of Minnesota with the understanding that his duties are to begin in April and that he is to devote his entire time to the work of the Association, which stands for all that is good for our University.

2. The Alumni Weekly is to be the organ of the General Alumni Association, and one of the first duties of the secretary will be that of improving the Weekly and making it reflect in creditable form the life and work of the University.

3. One of the principal features of the general plan of the Board of Directors is that of bringing the people of the state into close touch with the University life through the press by furnishing that press trustworthy and ample information on everything of general interest pertaining to the University.

4. It appears to the Board of Directors of the General Alumni Association that their plans completely cover the field indicated in Section III of your recommendations to the University Council, (being that part which recommends that a central agency be established for the collection and dissemination of important news items regarding University affairs), that they in no way interfere with the aims of the other sections and that it would be unwise at present to demand two men where one would be enough. The Board furthermore believes that it would be a decided gain all around to leave the work indicated in Section III of your recommendations to the secretary of the General Alumni Association and at least give the plans of the Board of Directors a fair trial for the next two years and, as far as possible, shape those plans in accordance with the very desirable ends aimed at by your recommendations.

Henry F. Nachtrieb,
Soren P. Rees,
Thomas B. Hartzel,
D. A. Gaumitz,

For the Board of Directors of the General Alumni Association of the University of Minnesota.

For the first year the secretary-treasurer will devote his time mainly to accomplish three things.

1. To establish the Weekly upon a basis where it shall be truly representative of University life and activities. Up to the present time the Weekly has been a side issue. The editorial work upon the same being done during odd moments snatched from a strenuous life. Even under these conditions the Weekly has accomplished not a little in unifying the alumni, but with a man to devote his time to this work it will be possible to make the Weekly more valuable to the alumni and to the University than it has been in the past. To this end an effort will be made to get at the University news that really means the most in the way of reflecting what is being done at the University. There will be less of the "hurrah" news which the daily papers find so useful in working up head lines and more that shall reflect the real spirit of the University, which is, despite sensational reports, sane and sound. Space will be devoted to student activities, sufficient to give the alumni a good idea of what is going on among the students. More space will be devoted to news concerning the alumni, personal items and everything that will be of interest to alumni.

2. In connection with the gathering of news for the Weekly the secretary will conduct a press bureau which will furnish the press of the state news items that shall reflect the real University life and activities and emphasize what the University has done, is doing, and can do for the state. As this feature has been emphasized elsewhere it is not necessary to go into further details here.

3. The secretary will devote his energies also to the securing of life memberships and where it is not possible to secure life memberships, to securing the payment of the small annual dues, which are now fixed at fifty cents a year.

The secretary asks the hearty cooperation of all alumni in aiding him to attain the standard he has set for his first year's work—viz.:

1000 Life Memberships.

2000 Weekly Subscribers.

This will not be difficult to accomplish if each alumnus will but feel a sense of his own responsibility to Alma Mater.

WHO ARE ALUMNI?

When the General Alumni Association was formed, it was wisely provided that all persons who had even been, in any way connected with the University, should be eligible for membership. It is a well-known fact that some of the warmest friends and most devoted adherents that the University has are numbered among those who have through some misfortune never been able to graduate. The alumni are urged to report the names and addresses of former students who still have a warm spot in their hearts for Alma Mater, so that the secretary may make a personal effort to let such persons know that they are considered alumni and that their encouragement and co-operation is needed. It would be entirely in place for alumni to make any personal effort possible to enlist the aid of such persons. Such help will be doubly acceptable to one who has so broad a field before him as has the secretary.

In this connection it might be stated that the secretary is to do what he can to encourage the organization of local associations. The value of such associations can hardly be overestimated.

THE MONEY.

The secretary will receive his compensation from several sources, but not one cent will come from the University in any form. The secretary being solely responsible to the alumni will work for the good of the University as the alumni may direct. A small portion of the salary will come as compensation for services in the office of the Examiner of the High School Board, another portion from the Weekly. Another from annual dues and the income from the invested funds from life memberships. The balance comes from pledges made by a few loyal alumni who have gone down into their own pockets for money necessary to establish and put on a firm footing this plan for larger and better things for the University.

It is to be emphasized that all money received from life memberships is kept intact and nothing more than the income from investments may ever be used for any purpose whatever.

WIDER PLANS.

While the main activities of the secretary will be directed for the present, along the lines suggested above, we must not lose sight of the fact that as time goes on the plans will grow so that they will reach out to embrace every line of University activity. The alumni are, or should be, vitally interested in everything that affects the University.

Remember also that while the secretary will be busy in carrying out the plans outlined, he has been made secretary for the services he can render the University and its alumni. Remember, also, that unless he receives the hearty co-operation of every alumnus his efforts will be far from as effective as they should be. This puts the matter squarely up to you—the success of the undertaking which promises so much for the future welfare of Alma Mater is in your hands. The secretary is your agent, but you have a work and a responsibility which no one else can assume.

WHEN?

The new secretary will take up his new duties just as soon as it is possible to get some one to take up his present work, which will be very soon, and will devote his whole time to his new duties.

MR. KEYES.

In our plans for the future, let us not forget the past. Mr. Charles F. Keyes, '96, Law, '99, has given his services as secretary treasurer to the Alumni Association, since its organization, without any other compensation than a sense of duty well performed. He has done this at no small sacrifice of time and energy and should be given full credit for what has been done. The suggestion contained in Professor Nachtrieb's letter is one that deserves to be remembered. We all owe Mr. Keyes a debt of gratitude for his faithful performance of a thankless task.

STUDENTS AND FACULTY.

Last week we had occasion to deplore the clash of interests which has arisen between faculty and students. In the past such clashes have been rare and never have they been of a nature so serious as the present has threatened to be. It would be most unfortunate if affairs should reach the stage they have at Wisconsin, where a body of students hung members of the faculty in effigy to express their contempt for faculty action.

The mass meeting which was held last Wednesday night to consider this matter was in the hands of the conservative element among the students and while feeling ran high and some bitter things were said, the resolutions which were adopted were moderate and conservative. They were adopted by a unanimous vote and represent the feeling of the students whose opinions are not to be lightly considered. The resolutions are given below:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting of the University of Minnesota Athletic Association that the recent action of the faculty, whereby the powers of the Association were largely abridged, should not have been taken without some previous consultation with the Association, and

That while the Association welcomes the advice and assistance of the University Council, it feels that, until the present constitution is revised, it should act according to the provisions of that constitution.

And be it further resolved, That we, members of the Athletic Association of the University of Minnesota, in mass meeting assembled, instruct the president of the Athletic Board of Control, to immediately appoint a committee, consisting of five members, to formulate such amendments to the present constitution, as will render the Board of Control more directly responsible to this organization, and as will provide for more publicity of accounts, and all general business.

And be it further resolved, That this committee shall report on these amendments at a regularly called meeting of the Athletic Association to be held not later than April 25, 1906.

And be it further resolved, That the Athletic Board of Control be instructed to communicate at once with the Athletic Associations of other universities for the purpose of taking steps to secure the organization of a Western Inter-Collegiate League for the general supervision and control of western athletics; and

That the said Athletic Board of Control be hereby instructed to take any steps which they shall deem necessary to successfully accomplish this result and to report their progress at a special meeting of the Athletic Association.

Be it further resolved, That we favor in general the action of the University Council in accepting the recommendations of the Big Nine Conference; but that we disapprove of the rules eliminating the training table, limiting the schedule to five games, and providing for increased faculty control; and that we disapprove any rule being made retroactive, and any revision of the football playing rules by the faculty representatives of the Big Nine.

MINNESOTA DAILY

The same question has come up in connection with the Daily and the students face the same problem of the faculty veto. Conservative students recognize the right of the faculty to exercise a veto power in all matters where the faculty may deem it necessary to exercise such powers; the students object to the giving of the veto power to two members of the faculty.

From interviews with some of the students most vitally interested in the matter, we feel certain that what the press committee desires to accomplish, could be better accomplished by sympathetic advice and friendly counsel than by the possession of veto power. Student human nature is very much like other human nature, willing to listen to and take advice which is not backed by an implied threat. When it is known that a man carries a club it is human nature to find out whether it is his intention to use that club. We believe, that, with the student body as conservative as it has shown itself to be, matters will adjust themselves without much friction. We sincerely hope so.

DAILY APPROVES.

We not only have reason to be grateful to, but to be proud of the alumni of the University of Minnesota. Their recent action, placing E. B. Johnson in a position to devote his attention entirely to the interests of Minnesota, at a time when the interests of the University need to be so faithfully and earnestly championed along more lines than one, comes as a harbinger of unprecedented prosperity for this institution in the future.

Loyalty to Alma Mater, even though passive is a very fine thing and speaks well for Minnesota's past, but active loyalty is a greater thing, and promises much for the future.

It remains for us who are not yet alumni, and may never be, to give a hearty co-operation to the new scheme.
—The Minnesota Daily.

MOSES MARSTON SCHOLARSHIP.

Mary A. Lucas has been awarded the Moses Marston scholarship prize by a vote of the faculty.

This is an annual prize of fifty dollars, awarded to the student who has made a "success" of English.

When Professor Moses Marston of the English department died, his students raised a fund of $1,000, the interest of which was to be used as a prize for the student who excelled in English.

OBJECT TO SITE OF SHEVLIN HALL.

The beginning of the excavation for the foundation of Alice Shevlin Hall has again raised the question of the advisability of placing the building back from the sidewalk leaving an open quadrangle.

Many prominent students and members of the faculty have strongly expressed themselves in favor of the plan provided that suitable arrangements could be made.

Dean Downey, while admitting the good points of the suggestion, questions its feasibility. "It is the intention of the University to erect a gymnasium in the rear of Alice Shevlin Hall at some future date. Such a plan would spoil the looks of the campus, since the hall would not be on line with the library and the Law building and could not be seen from any point of the campus except directly in front of it."

DRAMATIC CLUB DOINGS.

At a meeting of the Dramatic club Thursday noon, it was decided to put on another play, 'A Daughter of the South.' It is a well adaptable one with an unusually good cast, which includes about twelve people. It has never been put on in Minneapolis before.

NEW INSPECTOR OF GRADED SCHOOLS.

A. W. Rankin, who recently resigned the position of state inspector of graded schools to accept an assistant professorship at the University, has been succeeded by C. E. Challman of Montevideo.

Y. M. C. A. BANQUET

The Y. M. C. A. held an important business meeting Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. parlors. Treasurer Sinclair gave the financial report for the academic year showing that the association is in good financial standing. The general secretary made his report of the year's work. The nominating committee made the following report on nomination of officers for the ensuing year. President, Edward F. Swenson; vice president, Howard H. Hare; treasurer, Donald Babcock; assistant treasurer, Walter C. Robb; recording secretary, John Ray. Other nominations were called for, but as there were none, these nominees were unanimously elected.

Mr. Ralph Wheelock, formerly of the Tribune, presided as toastmaster at the banquet, which was held directly afterward. The following program of toasts was responded to:

"Get on your marks," E. F. Swenson; "The rule of three," Peter Hanson; "A square triangle," Professor A. E. Haynes; "A friend that sticketh," Rev. W. H. Jordan; "The brethren," E. W. Peck.

Mr. Hanson announced his intended departure from the University and took occasion to express his appreciation to the president, advisory board and the members for their attitude toward the association.

After "Hail Minnesota" ended what was conceded to be a most successful event in Y. M. C. A. annals.

PHI BETA KAPPA.

The following is a report of an address made last Monday evening by Professor Hutchinson, president of the local Phi Beta Kappa, welcoming new members:

"It becomes my duty, as it is most assuredly my pleasure, in behalf of the membership of the Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa to welcome you most heartily to our society. I congratulate the society on this addition to its ranks, I congratulate you that your work and deportment during the past years have been such as to deserve and win such recognition as this society is able to give. It may reasonably be asked, perhaps, what we have to offer, that memberships with us in Phi Beta Kappa should be judged a fit cause for congratulation. Much and little. From the simple utilitarian standpoint little or nothing. You are what you are, and that neither this nor any other society can in any degree augment or diminish. We do not so much honor you as recognize the honor which is already yours.

"Honor and fame from no condition rise
"Aet well thy part there all the honor lies."

The world will speedily find out what you are, and by that value you, and assign you your places, asking no further questions.

But from another standpoint the society has much to offer. It was Plato's idea that the liberal education of the youth would culminate in the possession of friends with fair souls with whom they might enjoy most intimate communion. This society welcomes you to the companionship of kindred spirits and offers you the inspiration to worthy living that such companionship is calculated to afford. Thomas Carlyle in a letter to Mr. Proctor once spoke, in his ironical way, of course, of the Phi Beta Kappa as that society which includes the chief thinkers of the new world. Of course this society makes no such claims for itself, nor is its most enthusiastic member unaware of the fact that brilliant promise often meets with sudden and complete eclipse; and that some of the greatest of America's sons and daughters have not enjoyed the training of the schools. Yet it is a worthy companionship into which you are introduced today, and the key which you are now authorized to wear becomes at once a mark of honor and a challenge. An honor as indicative of worthy tasks enthusiastically done, social duties graciously performed, high purposes steadfastly pursued to successful termination. And a challenge also. All the worthy deeds of those who for the past 100 years or more have worn that key in the varied activities of our young nation, in peace and in war, challenge you, as you take your place in the ranks, that you fulfil the promise of the past and justify the faith and hope with which the society so confidently receives you. For you must know that you have been chosen from among your classmates not merely because of the excellence of the record of the past four years, but because of the grounds there are for hope that you will accomplish greater things and worthier in the years to come.

How much the future may have in store for you, of what the world calls honor, it is not ours to foresee. You will assuredly reach a worthy goal if you continue to do as you have been doing under our eyes; faithfully, persistently, patiently, enthusiastically doing the duty of the hour.

"Knowest thou yesterday its aim and reason?

Workest thou well today for worthy things?

Calmly wait the morrow's hidden reason,
Thou needst not fear whatever hope it brings."

You have learned to cast an appreciative eye over all the field of intellectual endeavor, and nothing that pertains to man is foreign to you; you have learned in the infinite diversity to trace the indications of a unity; to peer behind the scenery for the real; to listen to all true voices that reveal, to love all good influences that inspire, to covet all beauty that glorifies. In the future your activities will be concentrated and confined. Yet you can never be again as though you had not enjoyed that wider vision—had not secured for yourselves that larger environment. How far any of you may have pursued the branch of study known as philosophy I do not know. You will of course understand that it is not in that sense the term is used in the motto which we trust will become, nay is already, more than a mere motto to each one of you. We would have you understand it as the poet philosopher of the Greeks, the genial Plato, understood it.

The love of wisdom, not the mere love of learning, nor yet of knowledge, however worthy an object of pursuit that may be. For after all in more realms than one

We have but faith we cannot know
For knowledge is of things we see,
And yet we think it comes from Thee
A beam in darkness, let it grow;
Let knowledge grow from more to more
But more of reverence in us dwell
That mind and soul according well
May make one music.—

According to Plato, philosophy is a natural harmony of word and deed of theory and practice. The philosopher is obedient to the heavenly vision. His nature is not satisfied until the soul becomes actually one with reality. Wisdom is to be regarded as a specific form of virtue; as that quality by which a man does well the work which pertains to him as a man. The virtue of the sculptor—as such—is to be a good sculptor; of the painter to be a good painter. So if life itself be regarded as the subject matter of a certain art, the wise man—the philosopher is the man who is the master of the art of living and who practices his art. To live as a man in the freedom of the spirit; in "the heavenlies," as Paul would term it—the imagination winged, the intellect keen, the reason calm, the heart fervent and pure, to live as Goethe counselled.

Im Ganzen, Guten, Wahren resolut zu leben.

That is what it is to live at all—that is what it is to have philosophy.

As the pilot of our lives. Such is our wish for you. May our motto be realized in the life of each one of you. And then shall we have for you the confidence so beautifully expressed by Stevenson for certain of his characters.

Whatever befall you it will not be dishonor, and whatever be wanting you will not prove wanting to yourselves.

If you wish to secure a position to teach, write to James F. McCullough, Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

P. P. Kennedy, '90, superintendent of schools at Fairmont, attended the superintendents' meeting at the University last Saturday. He called at the office of the Weekly as did Supt. W. J. Mosher, '96, of Redwood Falls, Supt. C. V. Pierce, '04, of Stephen, and Supt. M. H. Aygarn, '03, of Hallock.

A large number of the alumni were in looking for teachers and exchanging views upon educational problems. A most delightful and profitable time was reported.

PREXY VISITS SOUTH

President Northrop left Thursday night for the University of Alabama. Sometime ago the University extended an invitation to Pres. Northrop to attend the 75th anniversary of the college to be held May 30th, but Pres. Northrop being unable to go at that time, has decided to take their offer in the spirit it was given and go now.

From there he will go to Booker T. Washington's institution at Tuskegee. It will be the 25th anniversary of that university and the exercises will last three days.

A great many notable men will be present. Besides President Northrop, there will be presidents from many other institutions and also Secretary of War Taft.

President Northrop's daughter has been spending the winter at Atlanta, Ga., and the President intends to stop there for a week with her, coming home about April 25th. The entire trip will consume nearly three weeks.

ALUMNI PICNIC.

Talk of an alumni picnic, which was discussed somewhat last year, has been revived. It has practically been decided to hold this picnic sometime during Commencement week. The picnic will be held out of doors, probably on Northrop field if the weather is fair, and if stormy in the Armory. It has been suggested that the Minneapolis alumni might act as hosts for the occasion and provide eatables for those from out of the city who might find it possible to attend such a fete but who would not be in a position to provide their share for the evening's "feed." This is a suggestion made by President Nachtrieb and it will doubtless meet the favorable consideration of Minneapolis alumni. The plans, while at present somewhat hazy, contemplate a getting together along in the middle of the afternoon with lunch at six o'clock and the evening spent in meeting old friends and renewing the memories of college days.

Have you any suggestions to make? If so, make them soon.

We want to make this the most popular affair of the year for all alumni; an affair to which they will look forward with anticipation and look backward to with memories that shall warm the heart for many a day. Begin to plan for it now. Make no provision with an "if" in it. If it rains—the Armory is large and will hold several thousand. You will hear more about this later.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS.

You will remember the statement in the last issue of the Weekly setting the mark for the first year at 1000 life memberships.

This is not a high mark. With about 1300 subscribers to the Weekly which reaches through these 1300 a good many hundred more of the alumni, that number ought to be secured soon. But it cannot be done as expeditiously as possible unless each subscriber appoints himself, or herself, a committee of one to see that at least one life membership is secured.

We take it for granted that very alumnus, at least every alumnus who is a subscriber to the Weekly, is interested in the University and would be glad to help out to the extent proposed. We recognize the fact that it may not be convenient for everyone to take out such a membership at this time, for this reason we want to make the following propositions.

1) That every subscriber to the Weekly, and every other alumnus or former student who may chance upon this statement, and who can do so—send in $10 for a life membership at once.

2) If not in position to send in the amount at once write to the secretary and let him know when you think you will be able to take out such a membership.

Co-operation in this matter will not only be appreciated by those who must make a go of this project but it will be co-operation that will be of real value to the University.

"IT WILL WORK IF YOU WORK IT."

Many years ago we had occasion to go to a gentleman and outline a plan work, then new, to ask for his advice. After placing the whole plan before him, we asked: "Do you think the plan will work?" The reply came quick and was straight to the point—

"It will work if you work it."

The alumni have had many plans in the past and not a few of them have fallen through on account of the lack of someone with time to "work" them.

The alumni are determined now that good plans shall no longer remain simply plans and so have made arrangements for a man to give his whole time to "working" these plans. And that man proposes to "work" the plans. At the same time he realizes the vastness of the undertaking and would like to repeat the sentence which heads this paragraph, placing the emphasis where it will be most effective—

"It will work if you work it."

THE WEEKLY.

Next week we propose to take up this subject and to outline some of our plans for improving the Weekly.

THE SECRETARY.

The secretary has not yet been able to complete arrangements for giving up his present work but hopes to be able to do so this week.

As soon as the arrangements can be made he will be found in the office of the registrar. When you are near the University, come in and see him.

THE NEW MAIN.

Practically one year has passed since the legislature made an appropriation for the new main and up to date nothing has been done on the building beyond putting in the foundation, which was done last fall. It looks now as though the building would scarcely be finished in time for the opening of the school year of 1907-08. It certainly will not be ready before that time unless things move faster than they have up to the present.

ALICE SHEVLIN HALL.

Work on the foundation of the new woman's building is being pushed and it is hoped to have the building completed for the opening of the school year in September. While making the excavation for the basement, last week, an unlucky stroke of a workman's pickax caused the explosion of a steam pipe. Several workmen had narrow escapes from danger through flying debris and escaping steam.

FOOTBALL AT WISCONSIN.

Last week the Wisconsin faculty voted to suspend football for one year—The reasons which led to this action are given below, the statement being the official bulletin issued by the faculty.

The faculty of the University of Wisconsin decided to negotiate with the Universities of Chicago, Michigan and Minnesota with a view to the suspension for next year of intercollegiate football between the University of Wisconsin and the three institutions.

"If such suspensions cannot be accomplished, it was decided that no intercollegiate football be played by the University of Wisconsin next year.

"This action of the faculty was taken with a view of eliminating the evils due to the disproportionate emphasis upon athletics, and especially upon football, an element in university life; to free athletics from the corruption which has appeared in football.

"In view of the fact that the most pronounced excesses and the greatest temptations to professionalism in athletics in the University of Wisconsin has appeared in connection with the hotly-contested championship games, it was determined to observe the effect of such a partial suspension for one year.

"This plan will necessitate the abrogation of certain existing contracts with Minnesota and Michigan, but no doubt is entertained that these universities will be glad to co-operate with the University of Wisconsin in the experiment.

"The faculty also voted that all coaching football, baseball and track athletics shall be done only by members of the faculty engaged for the entire year."

It is said that the retention of the game was favored by both President Van Hise and Dean Birge.

MISSION STUDY.

There are nine classes with an enrollment of sixty-five men engaged in mission study at the University. This is the second largest enrollment of mission study class in any institution in the country today.

DAILY MUTUALIZED.

The Daily stockholders have made a clean sweep of old conditions and have decided to mutualize the publication, making it a strictly student affair. It was also voted to provide for faculty representation on the board. This closes what has been a long, and at times, a bitter contest.

SIGMA XI.

Last week announcement of the Sigma Xi election was made in chapel. The list included six instructors and twenty-four seniors.

"BED ROCK."

The older alumni will be interested in learning that the old Tupper house at 113 1/2 4th Street S. E., is being demolished to make room for a modern residence. The house was built nearly forty years ago and during the early '80s housed a students' eating club which was known as "Bedrock." To many an alumnus this one word will bring up a flood of recollections which will cause him to live over his college days. If one could read the thoughts of such men, we have no doubt that somewhere among them would be found memories of "the apple pies that Mary used to make."

In its day "Bedrock" was a political power and was feared by the luckless college politician who had incurred its disfavor.

ASTRONOMERS LOCATED.

Roscoe P. Sanford, '05, is now connected with the Lick observatory of California. He is the third or fourth Minnesota man to go to this world-famed observatory, which speaks well for the grade of instruction which is being furnished by Professor Leavenworth.

S. B. Soule, '95, is employed in the Naval observatory at Washington, D. C.

PROFESSOR McDERMOTT RETURNS.

Professor Eugene E. McDermott, who has been on leave of absence, has returned to the University looking hale and happy after his three months' sojourn in California. This has been his first real vacation in some seventeen years.

Professor McDermott is now coaching the Pillsbury orator, Lucile Way, and believes that she will win next month in the inter-state.

He is also entering upon the work of coaching the sophomore orators and debaters for their next year's intercollegiate work.

NEW EQUIPMENT.

The latest addition to the equipment of the college of engineering is a cement testing laboratory with an equipment worth several hundred dollars.

The college has received several valuable reports. One of these is the "Expert Testimony on the Chicago Drainage Canal." This is contained in eight volumes with over ten thousand pages of testimony by the foremost engineers of the United States. A very limited number of these sets were printed, and the University is considered fortunate in having secured one.

The report of the consulting engineers on the Panama Canal has also been received. This contains much valuable material.

NEW GOOD ROADS MACHINES.

Two machines for the good roads laboratory have arrived, one for testing road brick, and another for road foundations. Both are large powerful machines, which make the first beginning for the laboratory.

These are to be followed by four other machines of like nature, and apparatus for making chemical tests upon road material.

WOMAN'S MAGAZINE.

The Annual Woman's number of the Minnesota Magazine is to come out the first of May. The board has been at work for three weeks and from the promise of the work which has already been received expects to bring out a fine, representative magazine. As only a limited number of copies will be printed it is necessary for all subscriptions to be in the hands of the board by April 17. They may be sent to Box 1382, University of Minnesota. The price of the magazine is 15c.

PERSONALS.

Dow S. Smith, '88, superintendent of the Brooklyn street car system was in the city last week.

Nicholas Hanson, '03, who has recently been employed in re-cataloging the books in the public library at St. Louis, Mo., has been in the city during the past ten days. Mr. Hanson is a graduate of the Albany, N. Y., library school and is at the present time considering several positions in the library field.

Dr. H. L. Lyon, '00, of the botanical department, spoke before the Minnesota Academy of Natural Sciences, last Tuesday evening, upon Luther Burbank's recent book, "New creations in plant life." The talk was of the nature of a review.

Dr. F. W. Sardeson also made an address upon a subject made up of long words, with which geologists and palaeontologists delight to mystify the common mortals.

MARY SANFORD, COMPOSER.

A new sacred song has just been issued from the press of Joseph E. Frank of this city that is of more than passing interest. The poem, "Aspiration," written by Miss Mary Frances Sanford, '04, formerly of the University Y. W. C. A., has been set to music by Hamilton Hunt. The music is befitting the sentiment of the words, and the song will prove a welcome addition to the choir singer's repertory. It is dedicated to Scott Woodworth and written for the middle voice.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

The engagement of Miss Lulu Verharen of Spencer, Iowa, and Richard A. Lavell of this city has been announced. Miss Verharen was a student at the University for several years and Mr. Lavell was graduated with the class of 1904. He has been connected with the work of the Minneapolis public library during the past four years. Last fall he was made librarian of the Pillsbury library in East Minneapolis, one of the leading stations of the general library. The marriage will take place Tuesday, May 1, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Verharen, in Spencer.

E. L. ROGERS.

The Alumni Weekly:

Please send Weekly to Walker, Minn. My old address was 305 N. Y. Life Building, Minneapolis.

I have located at Walker for the practice of law. This is the county seat of Cass County and I have done very well since being here and shall like the place. It is very lonesome here at present both for Mrs. Rogers and myself. This place however is a very popular resort during the summer and we hope to see many Minnesota students and alumni here during the warm months. The lake has over 500 miles of shore and it affords excellent fishing, sailing, etc.

Edward L. Rogers, Law, '04.

LOSES AN EYE.

Argyle Buck, the old civil war veteran who has been so well known to students for the past thirteen years, has had his right eye removed. As the eye has been practically useless for six years, and the wound is healing rapidly, Mr. Buck displays even more optimism than ever and says that the sight of the remaining optic has been helped.

NORTHERN CAL. ALUMNI MEETING.

Editor Alumni Weekly:

Perhaps you may be able to make some "news" out of this: W. F. Chowen, '91, will be at the dinner. We found him too late to get him on the list.

Gabriel O'Reilly, '98, Superintendent of schools in Manila, is expected in San Francisco on the transport Sheridan next Tuesday in time to attend our annual reunion on Saturday evening, April 7, at the California Hotel, six o'clock sharp. Besides a few short speeches following the banquet the executive committee has decided to make the occasion of our annual meeting less formal than hitherto in order that we may become thereby better acquainted. Alumni and ex-students are invited whether active members or not, and wives and husbands of married alumni are expected.

George A. Clark, '91, is president of the association.

Yours sincerely,

Frank V. Cornish, '98.

March 28, 1906.

Secretary.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE.

With but few exceptions, the baseball schedule for the year has been completed. Most of the games of which twenty-six have already been arranged for will be played on Northrop field. The management announces that all games will start at four P. M.

Following is the schedule: April 21, Alumni; April 24, Carleton; April 27, Iowa; April 28, Iowa; April 30, Winnipeg; May 2, St. Olaf; May 3, Notre Dame; May 4, Notre Dame; May 7, Winnipeg; 10, Winnipeg; May 11, Wisconsin; May 12, Wisconsin; May 14, Winnipeg; May 15, Luther College; May 16, Macalester; May 22, Fargo Agricultural College; May 23, St. Olaf at St. Olaf; May 24, 25, 26, open; May 28, Wisconsin at Madison; May 29, open; May 31, Notre Dame at Notre Dame; May 30, Notre Dame at Notre Dame; June 1, Wabash at Crawfordsville; June 2, Illinois at Champaign; June 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, open; June 9, Illinois on Northrop field.

Negotiations are in progress with Chicago, Northwestern, Lawrence, Beloit, South Dakota and North Dakota for open dates. At Tuesday's meeting of the Athletic board, it was decided to offer a baseball season ticket at $1.50.

This offer is made only on condition that at least five hundred students purchase tickets. Manager Reed will circulate several subscription lists among the different classes and departments and every means will be taken to secure the necessary number of subscribers.

HONOR LEAGUE TO BANQUET.

The annual banquet of the Forensic Honor League will be held May 9th at the Nicollet Hotel. By that date the delegate from the local organization will have attended the convention to organize the intercollegiate society, and will be able to make a definite report to the members.

At a recent meeting of the local organization, Byron Timberlake, John Layne and O. A. Lende, were elected to membership. At the coming banquet it is hoped to reunite all the alumni who have ever represented Minnesota in intercollegiate debates or oratory.

JUNIOR MINERS TO GO WEST.

The junior class in the School of Mines, accompanied by several of their professors will start on their annual western trip about May 1.

The first stop will be at Denver, where they will spend a day visiting the mineral collection, which is said to be the finest in the world. From there, they go to Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek, for two days, inspecting the mines in that region.

The party will then go to Salt Lake City over the Denver and Rio Grande, one of the finest scenic roads in the United States. Here for about a week, they will visit the smelters in connection with their course in metallurgy.

The next two weeks will be spent in a mining region about a hundred miles south of Salt Lake City. Here the students will don overalls and work in the mines.

The party will disband at Newhouse, Utah, about June 1st, and most of the class will then go to Los Angeles. Some will spend the summer working in the mines returning in the fall for their senior year.

CHANCE FOR CASH.

Four hundred and ninety-five dollars. This is the sum which might be gathered in by a student of oratorical and debating ability during his four years at the University.

The calculation is made on the assumption that the exceptionally brilliant student should win first place in all forensic contests, both local and intercollegiate.

The first prize would be a set of Shakespeare's works valued at $10, offered to the members of the winning team in the freshman debating preliminaries. By winning the freshman-sophomore debate he may receive $25 more, and in the freshman-sophomore oratorical contest, he will be able to add to this another $25. The total winnings for his freshman year will be $60.

In the sophomore debating preliminaries, the prize is a set of Elliot's works, worth $10. In each of the freshman-sophomore contests he may again win $25, and in the inter-sophomore debate, another prize of $25. This gives a total of $85 for his sophomore year.

But in addition to these are the interclass contests in each of which the winner of first place receives $100. These are the Hamilton contest, held at Chicago, and the Northern oratorical contest in which seven colleges take part. For the preliminary to the Hamilton contest, no prize is offered, but in the Pillsbury Oratorical, which is really a preliminary for entrance to the Northern Oratorical contest, the first prize is $100. In this way the winner clears $300 in oratory.

Of the intercollegiate debates, the one with Iowa offers a prize, each of the winners getting $50. This completes the list of possible prizes and gives a grand total of $430.

DATE SET.

It is definitely settled that the soldiers monument will be dedicated on May 30. Mr. Kitson, the sculptor, will be at the University not later than May 24 to erect the completed figure.

The tablets on which are inscribed the names of those former students in the University of Minnesota who fought in the Spanish-American war, have been ordered for May 10th.

The program for the dedication has already been arranged. There will be addresses by President Northrop, Governor Johnson and former Governor Van Sant. The battery will also be present.

OLD FOLKS' CONCERT IN CHAPEL.

Instead of the usual spring carnival, the Woman's League, assisted by both the men's and women's glee clubs, will give an "Old Folk's" concert. Old time songs will be sung,—Ben Bolt and Annie Laurie and all the rest,—old time recitations will be given, and the costumes of 1850 will be worn by all the actors.

Not the armory this year, but chapel will be the scene of this concert, and some evening will be selected in the second week of May as the date.

SUMMER LIBRARY SCHOOL.

The Library Commission has decided to hold a Library school this summer in connection with the regular summer school. This course met with great success last year and it is owing to the large number of requests which have been received that the Commission decided to offer the course this year.

The work will be under the direction of Miss Clara Baldwin, '92, assisted by a number of lecturers and assistants.

FOUNDRY PRIZE RENEWED.

For two years the Briggs Foundry Prize the only prize offered to engineers, has not been awarded, owing to lack of interest on the part of engineers, eligible to competition. This year, however, interest seems to have revived and there is a chance that the prize will again be awarded.

This prize which is for $75, made in two awards, each accompanied by a gold medal, is offered annually by Mr. O. P. Briggs, commissioner of the National Foundrymen's Association. The competition is open to sophomores in the engineering department, and the award is made for the best essay relative to the subject of foundry practice.

THE LAWS OF 1904.

Minnesota Alumni Weekly,

At the last annual banquet of the 1904 law class, arrangements were made to assist the Weekly in keeping up the Alumni directory and we herewith enclose you a copy of the list of the members of our class and their locations.

The Minnesota Alumni Weekly

THIS issue of the Weekly is being sent to six hundred alumni who are not now subscribers. We very earnestly urge all such persons to give the special offer for new subscribers careful consideration. Keep in mind, also, the fact that the income, to be received from the Weekly, is to go toward carrying out the plans of the General Alumni Association for helping the University to larger and better things.

EDITORIAL NOTES

President Northrop arrived home Sat-day.

The class of 1901 will hold a reunion

THE WEEKLY.

When we promised, last week, to devote space in this issue of the Weekly to tell of our plans for the future of this publication, we fully expected to be able to give the necessary time to go into the matter thoroughly. Since this has not been possible, we shall have to content ourselves, for the present, with a statement of a few points which have been settled.

From now on the Weekly will resume it's old form, the same used in this issue. This seems to be more satisfactory to our subscribers.

It has been suggested that the Weekly might well be made a magazine. We feel very strongly that such a change would be most unfortunate. Last winter the Weekly could have done little or nothing as a monthly publication, while as a weekly, it was able to keep matters concerning the Board of Control fight, constantly before the alumni. While we hope that we shall never again have another such struggle on our hands, it is not improbable that there will be many times every year when a means of reaching the alumni each week will be found most desirable.

It has also been suggested, and it is a plan which the editor of the Weekly has long cherished, that every fourth number might be made a magazine number, somewhat after the plan of the Outlook, though, of course, on a modes basis. Such a plan seems not impossible of realization. The question of cost enters into the consideration of this plan, yet even that may not prove to be insuperable.

We have carefully examined numbers of the Michigan Alumnus, the Wisconsin Alumni Magazine and other monthly magazines, devoted to the alumni of sister institutions and we feel that the Weekly has possibilities greater than any monthly magazine could possibly have.

Alumni are anxious to know what other alumni are doing. The only way we can get hold of such notes is through alumni—send in notes concerning your friends and yourself—there are hundreds of friends who will read such notes eagerly; just as eagerly as you read notes concerning the doings of your friends.

If you have any ideas concerning the "U" and plans for its betterment, send in a statement of your ideas, no one has a monopoly of such ideas and yours may be the one that will solve some one of the serious problems that face the alumni in their planning for the good of the University.

It is easy enough to point out things that ought not to be so, but it is a far more serious and difficult problem to know what should be done to help right such conditions. Helpful suggestions will be welcomed by the board of directors, and you may be sure that any suggestion will receive careful consideration.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS,

SPECIAL OFFER

The Weekly is now the property of the General Alumni Association of the University. Upon its future growth and success, depends in no small degree the success of the plans of the General Alumni Association, which were brought into being for the purpose of being of service to the University. You can help in this matter by saying a good word for the Weekly to your friends who are not subscribers.

We have an offer to make to all who are not now subscribers to the Weekly. If you will send in, at once, $1.00 the price of a year's subscription, when paid in advance, we will place your name on the mailing list for the balance of the present year—FREE.

This is a special offer for new subscribers only and is made for the purpose of securing, as early as possible the 2000 subscribers which we have set as our mark for the next year.

The April number of the Minnesota Magazine contains the following editorial:—

"SELF-GOVERNMENT vs GOVERNMENT

We have heard much and read somewhat, lately, of a supposed opposition among the student body, to the restrictive measures adopted by the faculty during the past year. So far as we have been able to comprehend the situation, however, we have come to the conclusion that the opposition to faculty control comes almost exclusively from those whom it is proposed to restrict—the Minnesota Daily and the Athletic Board.

To those who point to the recent mass meeting as an index of student sentiment, we would say that a mass meeting never truly reflects the popular feeling; it has become customary at Minnesota to turn out en masse whenever a meeting is called under that name; this is instinctively done in obedience to the genius who affixed the label, just as cures are often effected by the mysterious letters on a doctor's prescription; our debating mass meetings have seen a crowded chapel, while the same evening our orators have faced the humiliation of empty seats.

So we repeat, well-attended mass meetings are no criteria of student sentiment. The recent resolutions do not reflect that sentiment; is it easier to shout "aye" than "nay," especially when there is no strong conviction on either side, and when a popular student, whose wings have been clipped, exhorts his admiring friends from the platform.

The Daily is not a true reflector of student feeling in this matter; it is merely trying to mould that feeling, or—to speak more properly—to create a feeling, for at present, the student body at Minnesota has no convictions and no united sentiment. So long as it has not, the Magazine will distrust the ability of the students to control their own affairs. That distrust has been confirmed by an observation of four years of mismanagement, corruption and selfishness in student activities. When repeating is tolerated at the polls, and even treated as a joke; when men are elected to positions of responsibility as a reward for political influence, or because "they have had no other college honors;" when the "frat-barb" line is the only issue in student elections; when personal popularity is the measure of a man's merit; when "yellowness" is the test of acceptable college journalism; when the surest way to win fame and favor is to malign the name of Alma Mater; when the easiest way to opulence is to be elected to the Gopher Board; so long as these conditions exist, the Magazine will favor a faculty check on student insanity."

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENT.

The entrance requirement for the college of science, literature and the arts, as it will be stated in the new bulletin which is now in the hands of the printer, shows several important changes.

The chief change will be in the line of cutting out nearly all of the specified required work.

The requirement hereafter, will be graduation for a four-year course of any Minnesota state high school, or other accredited schools in the state; or, a school of similar grade in any other state which is accredited to the University of that state; or the advanced English or Latin course of a Minnesota normal school.

In addition to a certificate, showing the fact of such graduation, it is required that the applicant must have completed one year each of elementary algebra and plane geometry and a four-year's course in English composition.

All students are also required to take the entrance examination in English. Questions will be sent out to the high schools of the state sometime in May, for this purpose. The usual examination will be given at the opening of the college year for those who fail to pass or fail to take the May examination.

WASHINGTON ALUMNI.

The following letter was received at the University last week. It is of interest on account of what is told of the plans of the Washington alumni and the way in which they look upon the new plans of the General Alumni Association.

Dear Mr. President:

The Washington Alumni are very desirous of meeting you on your way home from Atlanta. We were disappointed not to see you when the other University presidents were here and we very much hope that you and Miss Northrop can stop off here this time, at least for a few hours. The Executive Committee had voted in favor of another dinner this year even before learning that you were to be in the East, but we have delayed setting a date for it, hoping that some occasion might arise to make it especially appropriate. Now we shall want to celebrate Johnson's new appointment, perhaps, partly by sending in some life memberships. Please let us know what day or evening you can be here to give us tidings of the University in general and in particular.

Very sincerely yours,

Max West,

President, Washington Alumni.

Unfortunately this letter miscarried and the President could not be reached until too late for him to accept this invitation.

THE NEW MAIN.

See cut on pages 8 and 9.

The past week the contractors have been getting material together to begin work upon the new main. The building will face University avenue and will extend from 15th to 16th avenues a total length of 330 feet. It will contain one hundred and six rooms and will house departments as follows:—

In the basement there are provided museums for the departments housed in the building, study rooms, cloak and toilet rooms and store rooms.

On the first floor, passing down the right side of the hall, rooms will be found as follows—a mathematical study, 2 large recitation rooms, a seminar and 2 small recitation rooms for the same department; a faculty parlor comes next, then the Latin department is provided with rooms, including a small recitation room, a seminar room, 2 large recitation rooms and a study. Passing down the left side of the hall will be found the office of the Minnesota Daily, the post office, a large recitation room for the department of astronomy, connected with a study; next are two study rooms for the department of mathematics and another study for the department of Latin; the dean's office comes next, near the center of the building and nearly opposite the University avenue entrance; next beyond the dean's office will be found another Latin study, a Greek study and a seminar room, two large Greek recitation rooms and another Greek study.

On the second floor, will be found housed in the following order—Beginning at the east end, as before, passing down the right side of the hall, will be a study, followed by two large recitation rooms and seminar for the French department. The literary societies are provided with a room next, followed by a room for the department of Philology and another for the department of Scandinavian.

The German department is housed in the west end of the building. Next the department of Scaninavian comes a small recitation room, then a seminar room, then a very large double recitation room and study, while just across the hall is another study, two large recitation rooms, followed by three large study rooms for the same department. Passing on down the same side of the hall, going toward the east end will be found a seminar room and a study room for the department of Scandinavian, followed by rooms for the Minnesota

Magazine and Gopher; next comes the departments of philology, with a seminar room and study; next this study is the seminar room for the department of Spanish, followed by a study and large recitation room for the same department; next to this room is another large recitation room for the department of French, with study attached.

The third floor is occupied by the departments of pedagogy, rhetoric and philosophy. The pedagogy department occupies the east end of the building, facing University avenue and is provided with two studies, one very large, one medium and one small recitation room. The department of rhetoric occupies the remainder of this floor, facing University avenue and the whole of the west end of the building. It is provided with two small, two medium and two very large recitation rooms and three studies. The departments of philosophy and psychology occupy the remainder of this floor and face the campus side of the building. They are provided with two large recitation rooms, two studies, a seminar room, a laboratory and a research room.

Plans were drawn by the state architect, Mr. Clarence H. Johnson. The total cost of building and equipment will be $410,000.

The state appropriated $350,000, the balance being made up by insurance received from the old main. The new building will be three stories in height above the basement, special attention will be paid to the lighting and ventilation and when completed, it will be one of the finest college buildings to be found anywhere.

Altho the main building will be the principal building on the campus, the administration offices of the University will be retained in the library building and the new building will simply assume the place of the old Main in the campus arrangement.

ACCEPTED BY JULIA MARLOWE.

Something like a year ago, mention was made in the Weekly of a translation of Sudermann's St. John's Fire, by Grace E. Polk, '02. The translation was published by the H. W. Wilson Company and a copy chanced to fall into the hands of a friend of Julia Marlowe. She was very much pleased with the translation, recognizing the fact that the dramatic power of the original had been well conserved in the translation. She called Miss Marlowe's attention to the translator. Negotiations for permission to use this translation as an acting version, instead of the one now used by Miss Marlowe, were opened at once, and when in this city last week, Miss Marlowe secured, from Miss Polk, the right to use the translation.

Next year, Miss Marlowe is going to produce Shakespearian roles only, but the year following, will again include St. John's Fire in her repertory, at which time she will use Miss Polk's translation.

HISTORICAL REVIEWS.

The American Historical Review for April contains two reviews by Professor Frank M. Anderson, '94 of the department of history. The first is of "Le Pape et l'Empereur" by Henri Welschinger, the other is a review of the fourth volume of Poultney Bigelow's "History of the German Struggle for Liberty." Professor Anderson finds little to commend and much to condemn in this volume. This number also contains a short report of Professor Anderson's talk before the American Historical Association upon a first year's college course in history.

BURKHARDT TO SPEND
YEAR IN GERMANY

Oscar Burkhardt, of the German department, is planning a trip abroad for the coming year. He will leave here late in June and spend the summer traveling through Germany.

Next winter, he will spend in study, dividing his time between Berlin and Munich.

DOWNEY, MEMORIAL DAY ORATOR.

Dean John F. Downey has been selected as Memorial Day orator at the exercises which will be held at the new auditorium.

MANN IN MIRAMAR.

Wm. S. Mann, '99, writes from Miramar, Costa Rica, C. A., calling for the Weekly to keep him in touch with the University. He is metallurgist and cyanide manager for the Montezuma Mines. He is to be addressed as shown above, via New Orleans.

FOR CLERK OF SUPREME COURT

Walter T. Lemon, Law '99, of St. Paul, is a candidate for clerk of the supreme court of Minnesota. He has the backing of the Ramsey county republican organization and promises to make things interesting for anyone else looking in the same direction.

MINNESOTA ARTIST

WINS HONORS.

Gustav von Schlegell, formerly a student at the University has been signally honored by receiving the unanimous vote of the jury of the annual salon in Paris to hang two of his canvases at the annual exhibition which opens in the Grand Palais, May 1. Mr. Von Schlegell is the son of Mrs. Marie von Schlegell of this city. He is a graduate of the South high school, and took a course of two years study at the University of Minnesota, following his graduation from high school. His early training in art was received at the Minneapolis School of Fine Arts under Robert Koehler, and for the last five years he has studied under famous masters in France.

Inasmuch as artists are allowed to hang one picture, and that only after a most scrutinizing examination by a jury of acknowledged masters, the fact that two pictures of Mr. von Schlegell, one a life-size nude, and the other a still life study, are to be hung, means the acknowledgement of unusual merit.

Mr. von Schlegell has been traveling extensively in Germany and Austria, but his studio is in Paris, where he does all his work, making a specialty of portrait painting. He is expected to return to American next winter.

"LITTLE JOHNNIE" FLYNN.

The hero of many a gridiron battle has at last fallen a victim to the little blind god, Cupid. He was married last Wednesday to Mrs. Eleanor Beale, of New York City, after a courtship extending over a period of seven days. Even his closest friends were taken completely by surprise. The bride was visiting Butte, Mont., and met Mr. Flynn, and after a few days of friendly meetings, Mrs. Beale left for Seattle, it was supposed. The following evening, Mr. Flynn left for Helena. The next day telegrams were received by Butte friends announcing the marriage.

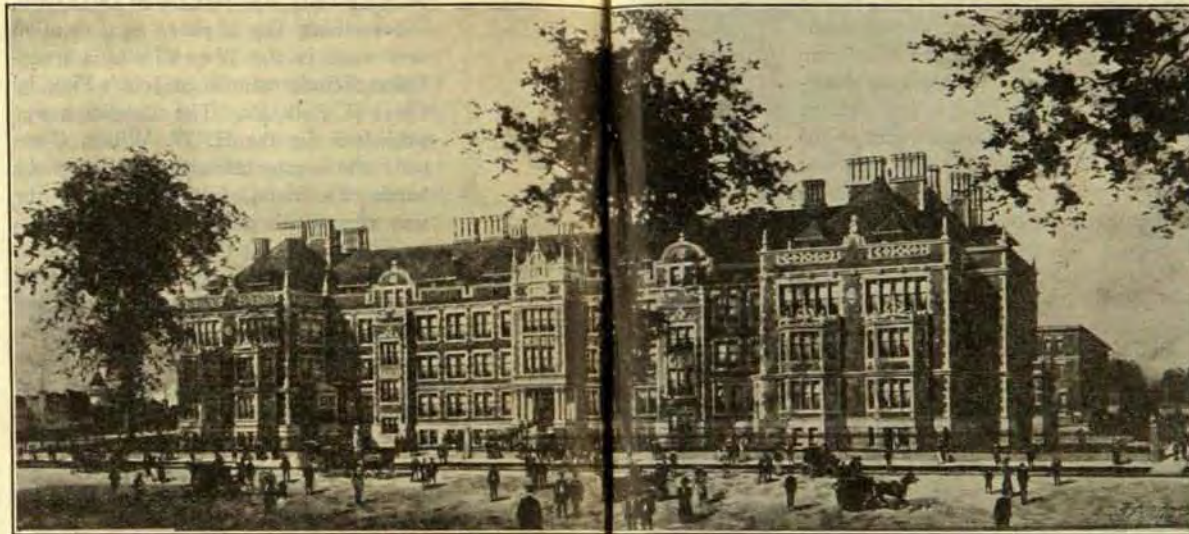

In commenting upon the marriage, the daily papers say that, the bride is a wealthy widow, and one of the recognized members of New York's smart set. She is an exceptionally beautiful woman and is possessed of decidedly charming personality.

Mr. Flynn has resided in Butte about three years, going there with a field class of eleven from the University. He is employed by the Butte & Boston Mining company as engineer and geologist.

Alice M. Child, '01, who has been teaching at Adrian, Mich, expects to lay off for a year's study. She will probably spend the year at Columbia.

FROM PORTLAND.

Albert M. Webster, '91, Med. '04, is

THE NEW MAIN—The Weekly is indebted to the Minneapolis Journal for the photograph from which this halftone was made located at Portland, Ore. His address is 548 Umatilla avenue. In a recent letter to the editor, he says, "The Weekly evidently went through a sick spell not very long ago." He sent a check for his subscription which proved to be a most excellent tonic.

Everything is going well with Dr. Webster and he has just built a new home. He says that he frequently meets Dr. Robbins, Med. '04, and Dr. J. C. E. King, '85, who are both practicing medicine in Portland. "U of M men are not numerous here, but if they ever get their eyes opened to what Portland has both now and for the future they will turn in this direction in increasing numbers. Local pride is boastful, I know, but we who are here have no doubt about Portland. It doesn't need the help of boomers."

STUDENTS' MEMORIAL FUND.

It may be of interest to alumni to know from what sources the fund of above $5,000 came.

Members of the board of regents

Julia Blekre, Zumbrota; principal subjects, English and Latin.

Mary Tillotson, Halsted; subjects, history and civics.

T. Olson, Hutchinson, subject, Latin.
Hazel Ward will teach at Benson.

SENIOR LAWS.

In order to bring outside ideas of law into college, several prominent lawyers of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been retained by Dean Pattee to give lectures to the senior class.

Jared How of St. Paul is lecturing to the day seniors on landlord and tenant. Mr. How is a nephew of the late Greenleaf Clark, who was for so many years a regent of the University.

H. V. Mercer, Law, '94, of Minneapolis is making addresses to the day seniors on equity practice in federal courts, and S. R. O'Brien is just closing a series of lectures on practice in the criminal courts.

Hon. C. W. Bunn is soon to begin a course of lectures on the supreme court of the United States and practice before that court.

Dan Pattee will soon begin to lecture to the seniors on legal ethics, which will about close their work.

GRADUATE CLUB MEETING.

There will be a meeting of the Graduate club next Saturday night, April 21st, 1906, in the Law Building. The Law Student members of the club will entertain. There will be three or four fifteen minute speeches by the Law members on topics of general interest.

McManigal will talk on "The Lawyer's Tools." Mr. B. Robinson will talk on "The Night Law School." Mr. Geo. P. Homnes will illustrate "Wit and Humor of the Law." Mr. P. Loevinger will describe "The Lawyer."

After the speeches refreshments will be served on the Library tables, "a la loi et equite."

gave $1500, this includes $1,000 from the Pillsbury estate; Friends not connected with the University, $1100; Students, $1,000; State appropriation and regents appropriation, $800; alumni, $750; and faculty, $300; interest $250.

SENIORS SETTLED.

A statement of members of the senior class who have secured positions and the subjects they will teach are as follows:—

Luella Huelster will teach at Luverne; subjects, Latin and German.

Gertrude Browne, Brown's Valley; subjects, science and mathematics.

Jessie Abbot, Mabel; subject, Latin.

Nellie Elliot, Madelia; assistant principal; subjects, history and American government.

Alice Currer, Lake Crystal, subject English.

Anna Whitney, Montgomery; subject, history.

Jarvis Patridge, Wadena; subject, science.

MINNESOTA QUILTS DEBATING LEAGUE

Minnesota has withdrawn from the Central Debating League, for financial reasons, and that organization has been dissolved.

In its place Michigan, Chicago and Northwestern have formed a triangular league, and Minnesota is now setting about to form a new debating league to embrace the universities of Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska and Minnesota.

Minnesota has continually run behind in her finances under the old league, and the change will be welcomed by those interested in debating. It also promises to arouse a new interest in debate and oratory which has been noticeably lacking at Minnesota during the last few years.

THE FARMERS' CLUBS

The Farmers' Club of Minnesota has just issued its first yearbook and annual report, a little volume which will serve as a text for a great deal of amateur experimental work on Minnesota Farms this summer. The Farmers' club is an organization having its center at St. Anthony Park, in the state school of agriculture, and taking in as members any former students at the school who wish to co-operate in the work. Its object to promote the interests of agriculture in the state by experiments by holding county meetings, and interchanging information of practical value. Annual meetings are held in connection with the meetings of the state agricultural society.

The year book has 117 pages, filled with reports, papers on agricultural topics, and directions for experiments. The members of the club are organizing ing farmers. The school is for farmers, generally in the work, and the work has been recognized by the legislature with an annual appropriation of $1,000 to defray its expenses.

The report of President A. D. Wilson calls attention to the fact that students after taking a course at the school are under obligations to help their neighboring farmers. The school is for farmers, supported in part by farmers, and in the spirit of co-operation every farmer should be glad to help his neighbors. In the county meetings the students do not set themselves up as teachers, but take hold and arrange for the meetings, at which every one may have something to say, and some expert is generally present to give an instructive lecture.

The report speaks of the county corn and seed growing contests which have been fostered by the club, and the state contest for which $3,500 has been contributed by the millers and grain dealers of Minneapolis. Papers are included in the report, prepared by experts, including one by Professor W. M. Hayes, assistant secretary of Agriculture, on "Choice of Schools," in which he calls attention to the advantages of an agricultural school, and the opportunity presented to take advantage of its equipment and expert services without payment of tuition.

Professor William Robertson, has a paper on "Rural School Consolidation" in which he pleads for agricultural instruction in the consolidated schools. Articles on co-operative creameries, farm buildings, seed and plant breeding and co-operative telephone systems, are included and K. O. Finseth explains a scheme for co-operative laundries to be run in connection with the co-operative creameries. Co-operative fire insurance for farmers is also advocated by Professor J. M. Drew.

Directions are given for a series of thirty-three experiments and each county club is allowed $15 to be spent in such work. The experiments are designed to show the merits of different farm methods, seed selection, stock feeding and the revenue from different crops.

SIXTH SESSION AT SEASIDE STATION.

The Botany Department has issued the annual announcement of the Minnesota Seaside Station which will have its sixth session this summer.

The seaside station is a naturalists' laboratory camp situated at the entrance of the Straits of Fuca, Port Renfrew, British Columbia, operated in connection with the botanical department of the University.

There are three station buildings situated close to the sea where the party camp out and do laboratory work in the four large laboratory and lecture rooms available. For material the naturalists go directly to the sea-shore and tide-pools. There are magnificent opportunities for research work and a great deal of original investigation has been done at the station.

A party will be organized to leave Minneapolis about July 3, going either to Seattle or Vancouver and thence by steamer to Victoria. This party will have its own tourist car. The season ends on August 18.

This year, some of the professors will start earlier than the regular party, as they are planning to cross the island on foot.

The party is not made up entirely of the University contingent. A number of high school teachers and many students who are interested in the natural sci-

Aside from the salutatory of Miss Inez King and the valedictory of Mr. Harley Murphy, the parts taken by the students were illustrative of some of the practical phases of the instruction given at the school.

Forrest Sargent illustrated the workings of the Babcock milk tester and showed how by its means, the farmer may determine to a certainty which cows are and which are not paying for their board.

Carlos R. Billings showed how different methods of grafting were performed and told of the benefits that might be derived from work in this line.

"Soil Robbery," treated by Floyd C. Hathaway, was a discussion of the best methods of conserving soil fertility and how to avoid the mistake of the farmers of the east who on their "worn out soils" are obliged to use commercial fertilizers.

Miss Claudena Schrepel gave an illustrated talk on "The shirt waist," showing how measurements should be taken, the cloth cut and the finished garment made.

The crowning feature of the program was of course, the address by President Northrop. He made an earnest plea for civic righteousness, and for the simple life. The following are a few random quotations from his address.

"I fear that the home training of our boys is not what it should be, and that the straining after a luxurious or showy life on the part of parents sets a bad example and makes them feel that the great object of life is to get money. How much better for us all to be satisfied with a simple life. How much better to try to make as much as we can of ourselves intellectually and spiritually rather than to get as much as we can of material wealth. And how much better for our children to see us contented with comfort and improving in character, rather than striving by honest and dishonest means to become more wealthy than our neighbors. Let us all resume our common sense and try to live for what makes life worth living."

"My hope for the future of our country rests in no small degree upon the farmer of the land, and I hope that no questions of mere party success or of sectional interests will ever be permitted to so divide the farmers into opposing factors that they cannot present a solid front against all the schemes of dishonesty and injustice by which the people as a whole shall be robbed for the benefit of the few, and against all forms of corruption in national, state or local governments by which the moral health of the body politic may be threatened."

"Welcome the new education for the farmer—welcome the new farmer—but thrice welcome the great army of farmers in every state of the Union who are content to lead the simple life of industry, health, comfort and honesty, and who march under the banner which has been so nobly unfurled by our president—"A square deal for everyone."

MINING SOCIETY BANQUET.

The Mining Society held its annual banquet Thursday evening at the Nicolle hotel. The following toasts were responded to:

Toastmaster, Chas Steele.

Selection, Miners Quartet, "We meet again tonight, boys."

Toast to the seniors, "The Concentrates," S. L. Gillan.

Response for seniors, W. H. Wheeler.

On the inside at Butte, C. S. Conner.

Toast, "Our Alma Matter," J. P. Harrington.

The Way they do it on the Mesabi, G. W. Wallace.

Side Lights on the Situation, "Bob" Fletcher.

The Mining Engineer, His Cause and Cure, F. T. Hawes.

First Impressions, S. G. Swartz.

The Social Side of Mining, W. A. Rose.

"Seeing Things," class prophecy, H. C. Rawson.

Informal remarks, B. R. Neustadt, C.

Morgan, L. L. Clement, W. F. Moenke, and P. S. Kurtzman.

TRACK WORK.

In spite of the unfavorable weather of the last few days, the track men have been getting out regularly, there being from thirty to forty candidates out every afternoon.

NEW RULES WILL NOT SPOIL GAME.

The football playing rules which have been revised and codified are now practically in the final form in which they will appear for the season of 1906.

A number of very radical changes have been introduced in the technical play and the rules bearing on roughness, unfair and foul play, brutality and unsportmanlike conduct of all kinds, entirely revised. Football will always remain a rough and violent game. It is right that it should remain so, else all interest would soon be lost for it. But it has been the purpose of the committee to remove the possibility of all vicious features as nearly as possible. With this in view stringent rules have been incorporated into the code and several penalties for their infraction provided.

The general style of game will remain the same as it has always been. In point of interest to the general public, the game will undoubtedly prove more attractive than ever. This will be because of the more open game, more kicking, the forward pass in the open field, less mass play into the line, the greater frequency with which the ball the best teams in the country, while declares all the members of the kicking side "on side" as soon as the kicked ball strikes the ground. Dangerous plays, formerly considered too risky to attempt will not be tried, as there will no longer be the premium on holding the ball that there was under the old rules and more brilliancy will result.

The light and fast teams will now have an opportunity to score occasionally on the best teams in the country, while formerly they had not the slightest chance. Speedy men and good dodgers of the Eckersall type will be at a premium. One such man on a team will give it an inestimable advantage, while a weak team with such a man on it, will be a constant menace to the strongest.

I am firmly convinced that the new rules will produce a game which the general public will take more interest in than the old, although personally I am not in favor of the 10 yard rule in three downs. Whatever falling off in attendance and interest in football there is in the west next fall can be ascribed entirely to faculty regulation and restriction in cutting down the number of games, abolishing training table, eliminating early practice, limiting a player to three years and the like; all of which tend to lower the standard of excellence of football in comparison to what it has been and hence to cause the public to find it less proficient and less interesting on that account. I am inclined to think, however, that football games will continue to be as well attended as they have been, though from now on, eastern football will no doubt be on a higher plane of excellency than that of the institutions of the big nine.

The rules being as they are, all college men who wish to see football preserved as a college sport, should give them loyal support.

CARNEGIE FOUNDATION

nine University of Minnesota professors, now actively engaged in work at the university, would be entitled to the benefit of the fund should they discontinue their college work. The announcement that pensions would only be given to professors who had been thirty years in active service barred all but six of the university faculty, but the action of the trustees in removing the thirty-year limit qualifies three more, and Minnesota now has a list of nine teachers who may at any time retire from active service and receive the benefits of the Carnegie endowment.

Under the system announced for the dispensation of the fund the following members of the Minnesota faculty are eligible: President Cyrus Northrop, Dr. W. W. Folwell, Professor Maria Sanford, Professor Jabez Brooks, Professor John G. Moore, Dean Henry Eddy, Professor Arthur Haynes, Professor John Hutchinson, Professor John S. Clark.

In administering the Carnegie millions the board of trustees has created two classes of professors entitled to the benefit of the fund. The first-class includes those who are 65 years of age, who have seen not less than fifteen years of active service and who are actively engaged for pay of $1,600 or less. Not a member of the Minnesota faculty is eligible under this ruling.

The second-class includes those who have served twenty-five years, regardless of age, and it is under this division that the nine Minnesota instructors are eligible. The retiring allowance under this division is as follows: for active pay of $1,000 or less, $800; for active pay greater than $1,600, allowance shall equal $800, increased by $40 for each $100 of active pay in excess of $1,600. No retiring allowance shall exceed $3,000.

Under these provisions the nine Minnesota professors would be entitled to the following amounts should they retire from active service: President Northrop, $3,000; Dr. Folwell, $1,320; Professor Sanford, $880; Professor Brooks, $800; Professor Moore, $1,100; Dean Eddy, $1,360; Professor Haynes, $1,120; Professor Hutchinson, $1,040; Professor Clark, $880.

FORENSIC LEAGUE SOCIETY AND MOTTO.

Delegates to the inter-collegiate forensic league have formed an organization under the name of the Delta Sigma Rho society, the motto of which is "Oratory, the key to power." This will not be a secret organization, but formed to encourage effective public speaking. It is an honor society, membership being limited to intercollegiate debaters and orators.

There are local chapters now in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Chicago, Illinois, Northwestern and Michigan universities. These will be associated in the new league and new chapters will be admitted. The central governing board will be made up of alumni of these institutions. The next meeting will be held at Madison in May, 1907.

DELTA SIGMA RHO.

To Minnesota belongs the honor of originating the idea of this new honorary society, whose membership is made up of those who have represented their institution in an intercollegiate forensic contest. The society is not a secret society, but a strictly honorary society. Professor McDermott, Minnesota's representative at the meeting which organized the society upon an intercollegiate basis, has been elected secretary.

DEBATING LEAGUE DISSOLVED.

As noted in the last issue of the Weekly, Minnesota has withdrawn from the debating league. Michigan, Northwestern and Chicago have formed a triangular league. The proposition is now for Minnesota to form a triangular league with Iowa and Wisconsin or a five cornered league, including in addition to the institutions named above, Illinois and Nebraska. This latter plan is the one which seems to be favored by those most interested. The plan would call for each institution to raise two teams, one to take each side of the question selected. This plan would furnish both teams the finest kind of preparation for the debate. Each team being in it to win would be constantly showing up the fallacies of the opposing team. The debate would be held at all of the institutions the same night, each institution being represented by a team at home, championing one side of the question and another team at a sister institution upholding the opposite side of the question. While this plan would leave the question of the championship unsettled, this of itself is considered one of the strong points in favor of the system. It would place the emphasis where it belongs, upon doing the best work possible in debate, regardless of a championship, more or less chimerical at best.

SCHOOL OF MINES SOCIETY BULLETIN.

The School of Mines Society has just issued bulletin number five. This is an annual publication of the society and is issued for the purpose of keeping graduates, former students, and all others interested, acquainted with what is doing at the School of Mines.

The bulletin contains a statement of the social meetings of the society, list of lectures delivered before the society during the year and statements upon the annual trip made by the junior class, which this year is to go to Utah. The metallurgical part of the work will be taken at Salt Lake City and the mining part in the Tintic district. A side trip will be made to Cripple Creek, Colo. The society has ninety active members and is in a flourishing condition. In the alphabetical list of graduates, each name is followed by a brief professional history of the graduate, a feature which causes these bulletins to be highly prized by graduates of that school.

DEBATING LEAGUE FINAL.

Friday night in chapel will occur the final high school debate of the state league. This debate will be of intense interest since it is to be between the central high school team of this city and the Humboldt team, both of which have worked their way to the top by winning several victories over other competing teams. The league is really a University creation since it owes its existence to Professor McDermott who organized it and who has directed its course up to the present. The league has not only been a good thing for the schools of the state, arousing among them an interest in debate, but it has resulted in the furnishing to University men better prepared to take up work in those lines.

MINNESOTA REPRESENTED.

Professor Wilde and Doctor Hughes attended the joint meetings of the Western Philosophical Association and the North Central Branch of the Psychological Association, held at Madison April 13th and 14th. During their stay all members were entertained by the University of Wisconsin, being lodged in the new Y. M. C. A. building. Doctor Hughes presented a paper on the Self and the Selves which was very favorably received and called out considerable discussion.

CALIFORNIA NEWS.

Stanford University, Cal.
April 10, 1906.

Dear Mr. Johnson:—

I send some notes of the recent meeting of the California Association of Minnesota Alumni which may be of interest to the readers of the Weekly. Had the last issue of the Weekly reached us before the meeting, it would have furnished a basis for interesting and helpful discussion. Personally I am much interested in the plan as outlined and hope to see it put thru.

Cordially yours,

G. A. Clark ('91).

Mr. Clark is secretary of Leland Stanford Junior University. This letter and the following account of the recent meeting of the Northern California Alumni, came just before news of the appalling disaster, in which our sister University suffered so severely, was received. We are certain that we but voice the sentiment of Minnesota alumni everywhere, when we extend to those who have suffered so severely our warmest sympathy.

On Saturday evening, April 7th, the Minnesota Alumni Association for Northern California, held their annual reunion and banquet at the California Hotel in San Francisco. The attendance numbered seventeen: Elbert E. Bushnell, '85, and wife; Walter A. Chowen and George A. Clark, '91; George T. Plowman, '92; Burchard P. Sheperd, '95; Pliny E. Holt, '96; Burt L. Newkirk, '97; Frank V. Cornish, '98; Wall M. Billings, '98, and wife; William C. Fitch, '00; Vesta M. Cornish, '02; Sturla Einarson, '05; Samuel P. and Josephine H. Cornish, ex-'06. The evening was very pleasantly spent in an exchange of experiences and reminiscences of University days interspersed with college songs and the University yell. The attendance was not as large as was hoped for, but made up in enthusiasm what was lacking in numbers. Letters of regret were received from many alumni who were unable to be present. Among these were Chas. T. Conger, '90, principal of the high school at Santa Rosa; Catherine Comfort, '90, teacher in Mills College, Oakland; Helen A. Fifield, '85; Florence M. Sylvester, '00; Eugene C. Mills and Carl B. Wingate, '97 and '96 respectively. A comparison of notes among those present disclosed other alumni that had not been reached by the notices and who were not on the lists. An effort will be made to interest these in the association, and a greatly increased attendance is looked for another year. Officers of the association for the coming year were chosen as follows: President, Mr. Clark; vice president, Mr. Newkirk; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Frank V. Cornish. The third Saturday in January was fixed upon as the date of future re-unions. Alumni contemplating a visit to California in the winter are urged to keep this date in mind in making their arrangements. It will be a great pleasure to the California members to welcome them.

PRESIDENT NORTHPROP'S TRIP.

Last Friday morning chapel was filled with students who had turned out to hear President Northrop tell of his recent trip. Leaving Minneapolis in March, when winter was still ruling he was soon in a land where the fruit trees were in bloom. He spent two delightful days at Tuskegee and spoke to the students of the state university on Tuesday morning. He said that he enjoyed the talk and he judged from appearances that the students were comfortable when he had finished.

He next went to Montgomery, the capital of the Confederacy, and spent the night there, going on the next morning to Tuskegee. Tuskegee is a town of about two thousand inhabitants. The institute, at whose head is the famous Booker T. Washington, is located at a little distance from the center of the town. As you enter the grounds the first building on the left hand is the Administration building, followed by the Carnegie library and the buildings for agriculture and the mechanic arts; on the opposite side will be found the Collis P. Huntington building and the building of mechanic arts for women. Farther down the hill is the large church where the exercises were held. There are something like forty buildings on the grounds.

There were one hundred delegates present from New England, who came in a special train and who lived in the train during their stay, while President Northrop was the sole delegate from the north and west. Though not on the program, President Northrop was called upon to make a speech. After a few humorous remarks, he gave them a three minute sermon and received the credit for making an address which was really made by someone else.

Mr. Carnegie then spoke and in view of the fact that he had given the institution not a small amount of money, he was allowed to talk of what he wanted to. President Northrop told of the magnificent choir which furnished music of an unusual and inspiring character. He also told of the 2400 people, facing the rostrum, among whom there were probably not fifty white people, of their earnest, hopeful and intelligent faces, a prophecy of a day of better things for the south.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was the reports made by former students of the school who were engaged in work along similar lines. These reports were most hopeful and encouraging for the future of the race. One man told of his efforts to grow cotton in Africa and said that this had actually been done. President Northrop said that the cotton growers of the U. S. had no need to fear such competition, since the natives were learning to wear clothes and the demand for cotton clothes would probably exceed the production of this staple.

Mr. Washington presided with a quiet dignity and made no attempt to be witty or eloquent, but he showed himself master of the situation and a past-master in wisdom and cunning. Toward the close of the convention he introduced a young woman, a graduate of Tuskegee, who made the most eloquent speech made at the meeting. She spoke upon womanhood—womanhood among the negroes, womanhood back of the home and civilization of the new south. President Northrop said it was one of the most wonderful speeches he had ever heard and expressed it as his opinion that there were not three other women in the country today who could make a speech to equal that one.

At Tuskegee the men and women are taught to become skilled artisans—its mission is to make those who receive its training self supporting by the higher grades of skilled labor, and the institution is doing what it really attempts to do.

Mr. Washington told of his years of labor for the school and said that he had never been refused a request by anyone able to grant his request and that he had never received an insult from black or white. From what was said by another speaker it was brought out that it was a case of not receiving, not necessarily of none being offered. As another great man once said:—

"No gentleman would insult me and none but a gentleman could insult me."

During the stay of the delegates, great care was used to avoid any possible misunderstanding between whites and blacks on account of social meetings on a basis of equality.

After the close of the convention, President Northrop went to Atlanta, where he met his daughter, Elizabeth, and where he spent a most delightful week. He spoke to the students of Atlanta University and had the great pleasure of meeting Joel Chandler Harris, the creator of "Uncle Remus." Mr. Harris was described as a shy, quiet, modest man, most delightful to meet and visit when once the ice is broken.

The day following his visit to Mr. Harris, President Northrop had the privilege of hearing a negro student of the University of Atlanta recite the "Uncle Remus" story in which is told the tale of the fox who put "Brer Rabbit" to watch his pea-patch. The story was told in negro dialect as it can best be told effectively and a most delightful half-hour was enjoyed.

In closing, President Northrop told how the spirit of friendliness of southerners towards northerners is growing; that more and more are we realizing, both north and south that we are one nation. He told of hearing "America" sung with as much heartiness as he had ever heard put into the song in the north. In closing he spoke of the San Francisco horror as one of the sorrows of the nation which is to bind us into closer ties of kinship through our common sorrow.

Altogether it was a most delightful half-hour and while wholly informal and conversational was altogether enjoyable and was livened by many humorous touches for which "Our Prexy" is so justly famous.

SINGLE TAX SPEECH.

Ex-congressman Baker, of New York, spoke to the students in chapel last Saturday. Mr. Baker will be recognized as the "anti-pass" and "anti-war" congressman. He was so introduced by President Northrop. He said that he was not going to say anything about either of these matters but that he wanted to speak for the few minutes allotted to him upon a subject still more vital to every citizen of this and every other country—that of taxation. He said—God had supplied us with everything that we need and he has laid down a divine law by which our bodies are nourished in a natural manner and the elements necessary for the growth of the same are appropriated in a natural manner.

Has it never occurred to you that there is a natural solution of the tax problem. There is but one source of supply from which taxes may be drawn in a natural and equitable manner and that is based upon land values. Land is the only thing which depends upon the people as a whole for its value. He then illustrated this fact by citing specific instances, showing that where the centers of population are greatest the land values are highest. From this he argued, though limit of time allotted to him necessarily made large gaps in logical sequence, that the single tax theory would prevent the accumulation of vast fortunes by the few at the expense of the many. That this plan would put a premium upon individual effort, whereas now the tax system punishes such effort by placing the tax upon the result of individual effort instead of upon that which is the creation of the people as a whole. He then pointed out very briefly the fact that the vast fortunes of the present day are the result of special concessions of that which should belong to the people as a whole.

Mr. Baker spoke earnestly and impressed those who heard him with a sense of his absolute belief in the efficacy of his message, and his honest and fearless advocacy of the cause of the single tax won for that cause the respectful consideration of the thoughtful.

PERSONALS.

Edward K. Ellefson, Law '04, has moved from Ivanhoe, Minn., to Williston, N. D., where he is now enjoying a prosperous law practice.

Fred A. Alexander, Law '04, who is a member of the law firm of Littleton & Alexander, of Owatonna, Minn., was in the twin cities several days last week.

Dennis P. Sullivan, Law '04, is now located in St. Paul, where he holds a responsible position with the Bradstreet Mercantile Agency.

Donald B. McAlpine, Law '04, is now located at Grand Marais, Cook County, Minn., where he has served in the capacity of County Attorney since his election in November, 1904.

Dennis Bowe, Law '05, of Waseca, Minn., is now associated with a prominent law firm of Ashland, Wis., and left April the 9th for that city, where he will make his future home.

Miss Julia G. McDonough, '02, who has taught in the high school at Tracy, Minn., being in charge of the normal department of that school, has just been re-elected with an advance in salary. Miss McDonough has not fully decided to accept the position, however, as she is considering an opening west.

Miss Ethel McMillan '04, will teach English at New Prague next year.

Miss Edith Putnam '04, will teach Latin and English at Alden.

C. Edward Magnusson, Eng. '96, is associate professor of electrical engineering of the University of Washington, Seattle, Washington.

C. W. Brooke, ex. '04, located at Aviston, Pa., was married April 16 to Miss Jessie L. White.

Olaf Hovda, '04, who has been teaching in the high school at Fairmont, Minn., visited the University last Saturday. Mr. Hovda has been re-elected to his present position but he has by no means decided to accept this election, though conditions in the school are very pleasant and congenial.

Miss Myrtle Holmes, '05, who is teaching in the high school at Blue Earth, visited the University last Saturday.

Richard D. Collins, '04, who is engaged in the milling business at Windom, Minn., visited the "U" last Saturday.

E. H. Nicholas, '02 who was superintendent of schools at Worthington last year is now teaching physics in the East high school and pursuing night law. His city address is 417, 17th Ave., south east.

Columbia City, Friday, April 6—The home of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Guthrie at this place was brightened with the coming of an infant daughter this morning. Miss Guthrie has already been given the name of Gwendolyn Lorraine.

H. Leslie Wildey, ex —, has sold his cigar store on 14th avenue and has gone to the Indian Territory to engage in banking business. Mr. Wildey has hosts of acquaintances and friends who will wish him well in his new venture. He left for his new field of work last week.

Frank C. Esterly, ex '96, Geo. K. Belden, '92, Law '97, Thomas F. Wallace, '93, Law '95, and John Hoppin have associated themselves under the name of Esterly-Hoppin Co., and are engaged in a general insurance business with offices in the Minnesota Loan and Trust building of this city. This firm succeeds the Frank C. Esterly Co.

GEOGRAPHY PAPERS.

The Weekly has recently received from J. Paul Goode, '89, assistant professor of geography of the University of Chicago, reprints of several very interesting articles upon geographical subjects, including a paper upon "Plant action in the formation of caves and cliffs, in co-laboration with Otis W. Caldwell. The article is illustrated with half tones of photographs showing the results of such action and is a valuable contribution to the literature upon the subject. Commercial geography for secondary schools, is treated in another paper. This is a topic which is fast becoming recognized as a most important claimant for recognition in the school curriculum. The paper contains an outline of an elementary course which Professor Goode divides into two main branches—1, Commerce and, 2, Commodities, and also many valuable hints upon proper methods of treating these topics and sources of material for a thorough study of the topics outlined.

A third paper deals with a "New Method of representing the earth's surface." The problem met here is the fact that it is quite impossible to represent upon a plane any considerable portion of the earth's surface, without introducing a train of errors of distortion, the difficulties rising in proportion as an attempt is made to represent larger and larger portions of the surface at one time. Professor Goode points out the various methods that have been used to overcome the difficulties of distortion including the Mercator, or cylindrical, method, the Mollweide or elliptical, having for its minor axis the length of a meridian and for its major axis the length of the equator, and the Vand der Grinten projection, in which a happy medium between the Mollweide and Mercator projection is used. In this projection the entire earth's surface is represented in a circle and reduces to a minimum the angular distortion of Mollweide and the proportional rate of distortion of areas and distances so prominent in the Mercator projection. A recent modification of this method has been devised by its originator in which the central meridian instead of being equal in length to the equator is only half as long, giving a map like the figure 8, which increases the accuracy of representation for the half of the earth's surface occupying the middle of the map.

Dr. Goode has also invented and applied for a patent for a sun-board. This is an entirely new device for the study of the sun as the source of heat in climate.

The instrument is small, resting upon a window sill and so simple that a child of the seventh grade may install it and take quantitative readings. The use of this instrument makes it possible for students to make direct quantitative observations on the sun and gives the student an opportunity for laboratory work to demonstrate geographical and astronomical facts which have hitherto been only read about by the average student of these sciences.

MEDICAL PAPER.

The Weekly has received from Dr. W. A. Bessesen, '02, a copy of a paper reprinted from the journal of the American Medical Association, upon, "Variations in the Ratio of Diameters of the Normal Chest at Different Ages." This paper was originally read before the section of pathology and physiology of the American Medical Association, at its fifty-sixth annual session. The paper gives in concise form a large number of records upon which may be based deductions concerning the changes in proportions of the chest, in its development from the fetal state to the adult form. The statistics, which are mainly in the form of tables, show the measurement upon 502 subjects to illustrate the normal chest and 54 tubercular cases. The paper gives an analysis of the statistics gathered and summary of conclusions based thereon. This independent study of the subject corroborates, in the main, the results of the investigations of Dr. Woods Hutchinson made along the same line.

ANNA DOROTHEA DAHL, '00.

The following letter brings sad news to Miss Dahl's many friends.

Minnesota Alumni Weekly,
The University of Minnesota,
Minneapolis,

Editor:—

Since The Weekly has mentioned nothing concerning the death of a classmate, I thought it my duty to inform you of the death of Miss Anna Dorothea Dahl, March 1, 1906. She graduated with the class of 1900, and taught at Hopkins, and also at the Jackson school, in this city.

In the spring of 1904, Miss Dahl was compelled to give up her school work and spent the following summer in the pineries near Walker, Minn. In the fall of the same year, she went to Cuba and remained there until the early summer of 1905, when she returned to this city and remained at the home of her brother, Attorney John F. Dahl, '92, until her death.

During her long illness, her brave and sunny disposition never failed her, and a wide circle of friends and class mates mourn her loss.

Sincerely,
Marie A. Johnson, '00.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

The Woman's League held a reception last Saturday afternoon. This function was unique in that it was the first one to which men have been invited. The reception lasted from three until six o'clock, and dancing was the entertainment provided.

Father Byrne addressed the University Catholic association yesterday afternoon upon "The Bible."

The Freshman-Sophomore feud has broken out again in a mild form. The Freshmen attempted to hold a dance one evening last week. The Sophomores, while not able to prevent the meeting, caused the Freshmen annoyance by turning out the gas and locking the Freshmen in.

The fraternities have formed an interfraternity baseball league and are busy trying to discover who shall wear the champions' laurel wreath.

Social interest at the University is centered in the military ball to take place in the Armory tonight. Arrangements have been fully completed and one of the most gorgeous events of the entire season is confidently promised by those in charge.

The personnel of the baseball team has been settled and the series of games will begin this week.

On Saturday evening, April 21st, the Girls' Annual Basketball banquet will be held at Donaldson's Tea Room.

At a meeting of the Athletic board recently complete control of tennis at the University was taken over by the board at the request of the officers of the old tennis association.

Coach Anderson of the baseball team was accidentally hit by a baseball bat and badly cut under the right eye during practice on Northrop Field one evening last week. The wound, which is not serious, required five stitches, but the coach was able to remain on the field and direct the work of the squad.

J. T. Fanning, one of the most prominent hydraulic engineers of the Northwest, spoke on "Skilled Observations," in the Electrical lecture room last Thursday.

Last week the electrical engineers tested the electrical instruments for the large turbine at Taylors Falls.

PRESIDENT NORTHROP TO LECTURE ON MAY 4.

Friday evening, May 4th, President Northrop will give a lecture on behalf of the debating association at the University. The association is very much in debt, and it is hoped that by charging a small fee this debt may be reduced or wiped out entirely. This lecture is not to be a discussion of debate, but a discourse on Macbeth.

LECTURE FOR ENGINEERS.

"Land Surveying and the Common Law," is the subject of interest to engineers, which will be discussed from surveyors' and attorneys' standpoints tonight at 7:45, in the court house, under the auspices of the Engineers' club of Minneapolis.

MOUNTED ON FITTING DAY.

The anniversary of the battle of Lexington was appropriately observed on the campus last Thursday, when the cannon, presented to the University by the United States, was mounted in front of the Armory.

Through the efforts of Senator Nelson and Ex-Lieutenant Governor Rice, the cannon was presented as a memorial of the men of the University who died in the Spanish American war.

The cannon mount, which is made of handsome, light-tinged rock, is the gift of the Kettle River Quarries Co.

The foundation was put in last fall. Rock from the Old Main was used for this purpose.

GRADUATE CLUB MEETING.

There was a meeting of the graduate club last Saturday night in the law building. The law student members of the club entertained. There were three or four fifteen-minute speeches on topics of general interest.

McManigal talked on "The lawyer's tools." Mr. B. Robinson upon "The night law school," Mr. Geo. P. Homnes illustrated "Wit and humor of the law." Mr. P. Loevinger described "The lawyer."

Refreshments were served on the library tables, "a la loi et equite."

PLANS MADE FOR MAIN EQUIPMENT.

The appropriations made to the various departments up to the present time for the equipment of seminars in the new Main building are as follows:

Greek, $2,500.

Latin, $2,500.

German, $2,500.

Scandinavian, including Norwegian, Swedish, Icelandic and Danish, $2,000.

French, $1,500.

Spanish, $500.

Mathematics, $1,500.

Astronomy, $1,000.

Pedagogy, $1,000.

Rhetoric, $100.

Oratory, $100.

Most of the valuable collections of books possessed by these departments were destroyed in the old Main fire, and this is in a way intended to make up for the loss.

The $2,000 of the Scandinavian department will be used for the purchase of books in Scandinavian countries where Professor Carlson goes next summer chiefly for this purpose.

The German department will purchase from fifteen to eighteen hundred books with its appropriation, but will simply order them from Germany.

NORTHERN ORATORICAL CONTEST AT OBERLIN.

The Northern Oratorical Contest will take place on May 4th at Oberlin.

Professor McDermott, who has been training Miss Way, the winner of the Pillsbury, for this contest, is much pleased with her work and has hopes that she may carry off the honors.

The other universities may think it queer that Minnesota sends a girl, as her representative, but Michigan, at least can say nothing for her representative is a real live Japanese from the "Land of the Rising Sun," who will speak on "The Mission of Japan."

The names of those who will take part in this contest and their orations are:

Edward M. McMahon of Wisconsin, "The message of the Lincoln-Douglas debates;" Frank M. Reed of Northwestern, "War and public opinion;" Howard R. Driggs of Chicago, "The Inner light of Americanism;" Fred Cunningham, of Iowa, "Alexander Hamilton and the new industrialism;" and Aubrey W. Goodenough of Oberlin on, "Ruskin's message to our age." Miss Lucile Way's oration is "The passing of the home."

WILL VISIT Y. W. C. A.

Miss Julia Wynne, a graduate of Occidental College, California, and traveling secretary for the Student Volunteer Movement, will visit the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. from April 28th to 30th. Her object is to meet the Student Volunteers and arouse interest in mission study.

On Saturday afternoon she will meet with the girls socially, and Saturday night there will be a Nashville meeting. Sunday afternoon there will be an open meeting in chapel for Miss Wynne.

FOSTER ATHLETICS.

Next year the Y. W. C. A. will institute a series of cross-country tramps on Saturday afternoons during the fall months.

This is a scheme of the committee to become acquainted with the new Freshman girls in a more intimate manner than by formal calling. On successive Saturdays parties of twenty will take trips to the various lakes around the city. Fudge will be taken as refreshment, and every effort will be made to make the new girls have a jolly time. These tramps will be kept up until every Freshman girl has had her turn. The upper classmen will conduct the expeditions.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB.

As a climax to months of faithful practice, the Girls' Glee club will give a concert on the evening of May 4th, in the First Baptist church.

The presentation will be an unusually serious attempt for a college club, as Mr. Scott has planned to make it not only interesting but also of real musical merit.

The chief feature of the program is a cantata composed by Mrs. H. A. Beach. In addition there will be several numbers by the club and others by Mrs. Scott, Miss Grace Golden and Miss Clara Williams, all well-known to college students.

As this is the first public concert which Mr. Scott has held, it will be of interest to over-town musical circles as well as a University affair.

On May 5th the Girls' and the Men's clubs go to Stillwater, where they are billed for a joint concert that evening.

TRACK MEN AT WORK.

Track work is proceeding very satisfactorily in preparation for the dual meets with Iowa and Nebraska and the intercollegiate meet at Chicago on June 2d.

The work of the men individually has proven very encouraging. Both Dr. Williams and Captain Greaves feel confident that the team will make the best showing in years.

The Chi Chapter of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority gave its twenty-sixth annual banquet at Donaldson's Tea Rooms on Friday evening. Fifty-two guests including the alumnae were present. The three long tables were decorated in pink, with tulips in tall crystal vases. Responses to the program of toasts were made by Miss Marjorie Bullard, "To the Alumnae"; Mrs. Cornelia Officer Brown, "When We Are Thirty-one"; Miss Alice Hurd Wilcox, "Relative Values"; Miss Elsie Tileston, "Freshmen"; Miss Edith Moore, "Is It Worth While?" Misses Cleora Wheeler, Harriet Armstrong, Mrs. Ellen Janney Brown, "Convention"; "Hand in Hand we Stand Together," Miss Avery Trask.

"M'S" AWARDED

Seven men were awarded basketball "M's" at the meeting of the Athletic board on Tuesday. Captain McRae, G. W. Brown, Steve Clark, Martin Larson, Louis Larson, O. S. Ely, and George Uzzell were the recipients.

The '06 team, by winning an undisputed Western championship has achieved an unusual triumph, in consequence of which the "M" men will probably be rewarded with some honorary token, the nature of which will be decided upon at the next meeting of the board.

If you wish to secure a position to teach, write to James F. McCullough, Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

CONCERT IS ENJOYED.

The twilight concert by the Glee and Mandolin club in chapel Friday was a success.

The mandolin club numbers were played with a catchy swing when the music demanded it, while "The String of Pearls," was played so that it showed an ability for all styles of music.

The Glee club with "Dutch" Kreitter as a soloist sang their three numbers with good taste and their encores were short and fitting.

Mr. Milner, in his "Border Ballad," showed a sweet and easily adaptable voice. His number with the mandolin club was unusually good.

Fritz Kreitter fulfilled to every extent the expectations of his audience.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW of the Campus including the "Old Main." A Printed Souvenir Book Containing Fine Half-tone Reproductions of Photos of All University of Minnesota Buildings.

A short time before the "Old Main" was burned we had a bird's eye view of the campus made from a tower about eighty feet high and at an expense of about $65. We now have about two hundred 5x19 photographs from this negative mounted on very heavy beveled board so that there is no need of framing.

We also have a souvenir book containing an illustrated history of the University and thirty-two pages of half tone views of University buildings and portraits of regents and deans and history of the University.

Both sent, express paid, carefully wrapped, safe delivery guaranteed.
