PROFESSOR PAIGE'S SPEECH AT CHICAGO.

Professor James Paige made a speech at the recent purity banquet at Chicago that struck a new, and higher note in regard to the relations between colleges in the conference. He said, in effect, that if the single scholarship qualification should be enforced at all colleges as strictly as it is enforced at Minnesota, there would be no need of any further rules to regulate professionalism and the other evils that have grown up around the game.

The present rules have been framed, one by one, at various times, by various individuals, and under varying conditions, to meet individual outgrowths of evil, whenever they have become so flagrant as to be unbearable. Professor Paige's voice is the first, so far as we know, that has ever been raised by a member of the intercollegiate conference, in favor of substituting a single broad general principle for the endless confusion of rules that has resulted from years of legislation. In the past the "Thou shalt" method has been completely lost sight of in the "Thou shalt not" attempts to remedy football evils. We sincerely hope that Professor Paige's stand in this matter may bear fruit in the near future. There can be no question that a clear and comprehensive principle of right conduct is far more effective for reform than any number of merely repressive rules, be they never so wise.

The Weekly has advocated this change for years. We hope that the alumni, whenever it is possible for them to make their influence felt, will stand for the same thing. No man is going to enter the University to play football if he is obliged to maintain a respectable grade of scholarship during the football season as well as at other times.

LOWERING OUR COLORS.

Another evil that has grown up about the game of football, at which Professor Paige took a knock, is the fact that men receive their training in football at the University and afterward use that knowledge for gain by playing with professional teams, and not only that, but they play with teams that run counter to the better feelings of the great majority of the people, by playing on Sundays.

Only last Sunday, in this city, several prominent ex-University stars, were reported as taking part in a professional game of football. Such reports lower the regard of all true men and women for the training that such men and women receive at the University.

Football, as Professor Paige aptly said, is the "king of sports" and it is the king of sports because the colleges of the country give it recognition and foster it on account of its noble qualities and its educational value. But if the men who win name and fame as stars on the University teams are to trade upon that fair fame for the sake of dollars to be earned in Sunday professional games, and thus trail the college colors in the mire, colleges will not continue to give it recognition and it will lose, in large degree, its present standing with the general public.

We appeal to the men who have worn the maroon and gold and who have been honored in a peculiar way by their college mates, not to degrade the colors by playing professional Sunday ball, if not for your own sake, then for the sake of the fair name and fame of the University of Minnesota.

The alumni everywhere should make their displeasure emphatically felt by those who take part in such games. It is not a light matter, no matter what your religious views may be, the fair name of the University should not be made thus to suffer.

HAVE COLD FEET.

We are told by the business manager that some of the alumni and others who ordered tickets for the Wisconsin game have asked to be relieved from taking the same. "Cold feet" seems to be the only explanation. Stand by the team, so long as the men on the team do their best. Whatever explanation may be given for their defeat at Chicago, it was not because the men quit, for they did not.

Don't be quitters.

PRETTY STRONG CRITICISM.

There has been some pretty strong and severe criticism of the coach as a result of the game with Chicago, Eckersall being particularly emphatic in his statement of the case. Few people realize how great a task the coach had on hand this year to build up a strong team from a bunch of green material. Whether or not he has succeeded as well as he might, one thing is certain that the Minnesota players played to the limit to the final call of time. It was heart breaking during the last minutes of play, but there was not a quitter in the bunch.

One old graduate who attended the game said that he never saw our boys play when he felt prouder of their spirit and staying qualities. In the face of an awful defeat they got up after every struggle and went into the next scrimmage with dogged determination to prevent any larger score.

WHY IS 29 to 0.

A real thoro defeat may often prove a great benefit. A rooter who can not stand decisive defeat and who does not come right back for more, has not in him the elements of a true sport. No one can succeed anywhere who has not lots of "return" in him.

Many explanations will be given regarding the above mentioned game; old versus new, green men against veterans, etc. It is probable that no one factor controlled the result. In any case many will demand changes generally with no definite alternative, while a few will suggest remedies.

In this connection some conditions obtaining here should be remembered. It is quite apparent to anyone who has watched games, that, like styles, they undergo changes. It appears that football is following the general rule, and will, no doubt, become more and more a combination of outdoor basketball and football.

Another factor is that the University of Minnesota, like all the younger schools, and especially like all the western colleges, loses many of its really star players. Most of us know men living in Minnesota, some of them born here, who contribute to send Minnesota high school graduates to their old alma mater, in order that the young men may have the same advantage as their benefactors, and also—to play football.

This is, if one may judge from the reports of individual performances in eastern games, also a great benefit to the alma mater. A good many of the alumni use only their influence to accomplish the same thing. Many students, of course, go east for other reasons.

Minnesota is still too young to have large alumni associations in other states, so that we could not offset our loss if we would. This state of affairs is, fortunately, disappearing with the years.

Meanwhile we must make the most of the material that we have. If stars cannot be found, who because of inclination have given the necessary time to become experts in sports while in the high schools, it devolves upon us to develop them after they come to the University.

It is well known that it generally takes more than a few weeks each fall for even a most promising candidate to become adept at dodging, and passing and catching a ball while at full speed, etc. Yet the new game demands these faculties more and more each year. No matter how good a coach may be, it is manifestly impossible for him to contrive successful forward passes and the like, in connection with line plays, if no ends or back field men can be found who know where the ball is going when they try to pass it a few yards. It takes a year or two of constant practice to learn how.

It would seem that arrangements might be made whereby basketball could be introduced as elective gymnasium work in the freshman year instead of the regular class work. Doubtless many students would prefer such exercise, especially if they received the regular credits. If such a course proved too popular it might be limited to the freshman and other football squads.

Perhaps a slightly modified game might be introduced, using a football instead of the regular style ball, and the rules modified to increase the opportunity for long running passes, "dribbling" foot work, and basket shooting. In the spring, selected teams could play "basket ball" on the field.

It would be very surprising if a number of the squad so trained were not found in the fall to be prepared to take care of both the old and new styles of football. Men with this training would be given the preference for many positions on the team. Many arguments might be cited for the above innovation in the gymnasium work besides those affecting the effectiveness of our football team.

This work should, of course, be conducted under the auspices of a competent coach, employed by the gymnasium department. Since no sport is good sport which is not clean, the writer may be pardoned for quoting from the excellent article on "College Athletics" which recently appeared in the Sunday Journal:

"No preacher and no dean can do what a football coach can do in maintaining among students, a clean, brave, sensitively honorable life. The reason is simple: he works in a field that young men—good or bad—instinctively love, and his results are seen and felt by thousands. If he teaches his players (forbidden by rule to use the fist) the art of using the end of the fore arm with the hand turned back, he degrades not only them, but the whole university and such other universities as are affected by his prestige; if he teaches his players to play hard and fearlessly, never inflicting a wanton injury, never slugging on the sly, never insulting an opponent to make him slug, never playing anything but a 'white' game from start to finish, he lifts up the sportsmanship of his college, and, in some measure, of his country. Clean sportsmanship, as anybody knows, means honorable manhood. The opportunity to put clean sportsmanship into the youth of America is an opportunity which no man is too good for. In one sense, athletic sport is recognized too much, in another far too little. Rightly viewed, the work of the director of college athletics today may be a higher calling than the minister's, because, fortunately or unfortunately, the spirit of our people has put into his hands a larger power for evil and for good. What we need is larger men to use this larger power."

The above is not offered as a criticism of our present football management. It is intended as a suggestion to those who have influence, in order to supply our present management regularly with suitable material.

It is very certain that if a large number of "old grads" will agree on some conservative line of improvement and push just a little, the results will be realized within a year.

A first-class university should always have a first-class team. Let's get together.

F. W. SPRINGER.

POEM BY OSCAR FIRKINS.

The following poem appeared in the October magazine number of the Independent and is used by permission of the publishers of the paper.

TWO THINGS I KNOW.

Two things I know more tender

Than spring in Arctic clime,
Than bluebells in November,
Than berries in the rime;
Than laugh of babe in cloister,
Than font in desert soil:

The joy of those who suffer,
And the rest of those who toil.

Two things I know more sacred

Than blossoms sprung from graves,
Than stains of gold or purple
In depths of glooming naves,
Than shrines in marts of traffic,
Than hymns in battle broil:

The joy of those who suffer,
The rest of those who toil.

Comment upon such an exquisite bit of poetry is hardly necessary. It is its own highest praise and glory. Mr. Firkins has written some of the finest poems produced by any University graduate. He does not write much and he never writes for publication unless he has both message and melody to lift the soul and gives one a glimpse of something really worth while and far out of the ordinary.

As one professor remarked, "This poem ranks with the choicest bits from Lowell, Whittier or Longfellow," while another professor said, "Mr. Firkins writes poetry equal to the very best being produced by others than the recognized great masters of the art."

KLAEBER ON OLD ENGLISH SUBJECTS.

Dr. Klaeber, professor of comparative and English philology, writes a great deal for German publications devoted to old English philology. In four recent numbers of Englische Studien he has had two short articles upon textual criticism of Old English texts, including one upon the poem Finnsburg, one upon Beowulf, and two reviews of recent publications in the same field, one upon Stossberg's "Die Sprache des altenglischen martyrologiums" and another upon a new text of Beowulf by Moritz Heyne. In a recent number of Beiblatt zur Anglia he has a note upon a recent translation of Beowulf into modern English prose by Huische. In Archiv für das Studium der Neueren Sprachen und Literaturen he has notes upon a new edition of Andreas, by Krapp.

These writings are, of course, of an extremely technical nature, and of little interest to the average reader, but the fact that the University has on its faculty a man who is recognized as the authority upon such topics is extremely gratifying to all loyal Minnesotans.

MINNESOTA PLANT STUDIES II.

The department of botany has just issued the second number of the series of Minnesota Plant Studies. This number is devoted to the trees and shrubs of Minnesota and is the joint product of Drs. Clements and Rosendahl and Professor Butters. This publication will be sent free to any citizen of Minnesota requesting a copy of the same. Any high school, academy or college in the state will be furnished ten copies free. Address Professor Frederic E. Clements, care of the University.

The next number in the series will be devoted to mushrooms and toadstools.

WISCONSIN'S MAGNIFICENT BEQUEST.

We have purposely refrained from saying anything about the bequest of the late Senator Vilas to his alma mater, the University of Wisconsin, until we had definite information concerning the terms of the bequest. The Wisconsin Alumni Magazine in its latest number contains a full statement of its provisions.

The estate left by Senator Vilas amounts now to between two and three millions of dollars. The entire net income of the estate is to go to his widow during her lifetime. After her death, $30,000 a year is to be paid to their daughter, Mrs. Hanks, during her life-time. In addition to the amount inherited from her husband, Senator Vilas' son, Mrs. Henry Vilas is to receive from $100 to $300 a month during her life time, according to her needs. $10,000 a year is settled upon his son-in-law, Mr. Hanks, should he survive his wife. Upon the death of both parents, his grand children are to receive $50,000 outright.

Upon the death of his widow the estate shall be appraised and after bequests previously mentioned have been provided for, shall be turned over to the University, under the following conditions:

The legislature is to be asked to accept the bequest upon the terms specified in the will, otherwise the estate is to be divided into three equal shares, one-third each to go to his grandchildren, another to his four nieces and one nephew and another to the city of Madison to be used for the erection of a place of recreation for the use of the laboring people of that city.

If the legislature accepts the bequest, four trustees are to be appointed by the Governor and the University regents. It is held that these trustees should all be graduates of the University and one should be a member of the supreme court of the state.

One-half of the income from the estate shall be used by the University, the other half being added to the principal until it reaches the sum of $20,000,000. Then one-fourth shall be added to the principal until the total reaches $30,000,000, accumulation of capital shall then cease, unless the legislature shall otherwise decree.

In the use of the income it is provided that the university shall establish ten professorships for research work, at salaries not less than $5,000 nor more than $10,000 each, with a pension upon retirement of $2,500 a year after fifteen or more years of service.

After the professorships have been provided for the regents shall provide for fifty undergraduate scholarships at from $300 to $400 a year. In assigning one-fifth of these scholarships, those of negro blood shall be preferred.

After the endowment fund has reached a certain specified sum, there shall be erected a meeting place or theatre to be called the Vilas Theatre, in honor of his son, the late Henry Vilas, the cost of the same to be from $250,000 to $500,000.

The regents shall have full authority to decide upon the disposition to be made of the income after these provisions have been carried out that more professorships, both for instruction and advancement of knowledge, be established and that more scholarships also be provided.

The bequest is a most beneficent one, and while it may be a century before the University of Wisconsin comes into its full heritage it will soon begin to reap advantages from its provisions and will eventually enjoy an endowment that will assure a continuation of its present policies which have placed it in the forefront of American universities.

We congratulate our sister institution and we hope that the day may come when Minnesota may receive like consideration from some of its own children. We believe that the example of Senator Vilas will inspire other gifts of like nature, not only to Wisconsin, but to other state universities as well.

WEDDINGS.

Charles D. Poore, Chem. '05, and Mary L. Grav, were recently married. Mr. Poore is assistant professor of chemistry in the State University of Iowa.

Dr. E. W. Alger, Med. '02, and Isabel H. Sims, both of this city, were married October 28th. Dr. and Mrs. Alger will be at home to friends at 1227 University Ave. S. E., after a short wedding trip.

The picture is from a later photograph and includes Folwell Hall.

ABSOLUTELY FREE

An unmounted photogravure copyrighted bird's-eye-view of the University Campus, from actual photograph—size of the picture seven by twenty-two inches. To every old subscriber who takes a new subscription for the Weekly for the balance of the present year, at $1.00, we will send one of these pictures and also one to the new subscriber. These pictures retail at 25 cents (by mail). To those who will add ten cents apiece for each picture we will send hand colored photogravure pictures in the place of the ones offered above.

Wm. A. Peck, Agr. and Adele Thompson, domestic science, were married about the middle of October. They will be at home after Jan. 1, in Washington, D. C., where Mr. Peck is employed in the bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture.

DEATHS.

Robert C. Stewart, Law '01, died October 14th, at Los Angeles, Calif. Mr. Stewart was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and completed his law work at the University of Minnesota. He settled in Santa Barbara, Calif., and took up work as a court reporter. About a year ago he moved to Los Angeles and became associated with the law firm of Taylor & Forgy. He was thirty years old and had a most promising future before him.

Irving W. Matthews, Eng. '84, died October 16th, at Waterville, Wash., of pneumonia. He had been ailing for some time and had made arrangements to spend the winter in California, when he contracted a hard cold which resulted in pneumonia and death. He was prominent in the affairs of his home city and had built up a substantial business. He is survived by his wife, one son and three daughters.

It was only two weeks before his death that Mr. Matthews wrote to the secretary asking for an up-to-date list of the graduates of the class of 1884, of which he was the president, intending to get after the members and arrange for their twenty-fifth annual reunion celebration.

SEATTLE ALUMNI MEETING.

President Northrop has agreed to visit Seattle on the 19th of the present month and meet the alumni of that city who are to be called together by President Schwager for the occasion.

Later—He will visit Spokane on the 21st.

SOME OF THE WINNERS.

Among the alumni who won out in the recent election are the following:

For alderman, in the city of Minneapolis—Edward W. Hawley, Charles D. Gould, Arthur W. Selover; Wendell Hertig is already a member of the council. This gives a group of four strong alumni in the city council. Messrs. Thomas H. Salmon and George S. Grimes lost out by narrow margins.

On the county ticket, George R. Smith was unopposed for re-election as judge of probate. Al J. Smith, on the republican ticket won over Fred Ayers on the democratic ticket. Walter Hobart, who made a strong bid for the county surveyorship, lost his fight. Dr. Gilbert Seashore, on James A. Carley, Law '94, 3d dist.

Albert Pfaender, '97, 19th dist.

N. J. Holmberg, School of Agriculture, 22d dist.

With the exception of Messrs. Pfaender and Allen, these men have all had previous experience in the legislature.

WISCONSIN 5—MINNESOTA 0.

So reads the record of the score of the game, but the plat tells another tale of the seventy minutes of fighting on Northrop Field last Saturday afternoon. Except for about ten minutes of the game, along toward the middle of the first half, it was Minnesota's game. At the very opening of the game Minnesota got the ball on her own forty-yard line and carried it to within two feet of Wisconsin's goal, by some of the finest work ever done by a Minnesota team. Here fatal weakness was shown, however, for the necessary five yards could not be made in three downs. Here Minnesota lost the game. The plat shows what followed. The ball passed from side to side, neither side being able to make consistent gains, but on the whole the exchange of punts favoring Wisconsin.

Wisconsin got the ball on her own 50-yard line on a punt—this was run back twenty yards; one yard came on a line play; nineteen more on a forward pass; three on a line play and then by a foxy forward pass the touchdown was made. One of the Wisconsin men was sent to the extreme edge of the field, and was entirely overlooked by the Minnesota men, both teams being near the center of the field, a long, true pass gave the ball to a Wisconsin man the republican ticket, was opposed by Dr. Phelan, on the democratic, and won by the usual republican majority. William E. Bates, for court commissioner, had no opponent.

In the city legislative districts—Hugh N. Allen won in the 39th, on the face of the returns, by twenty votes, Calderwood, the prohibitionist, being but twenty votes behind. Charles L. Sawyer was re-elected in the 41st. Carl L. Wallace, who was in the legislature four years ago, goes back again this year by the banner vote of legislative candidates from the city districts.

On the city ticket, "Bill" Leary, the old football man, won the election over Anthony Grotte who was on the side which did not have the votes this election. Edward C. Gale was elected to the library board by a large majority. Henry Deutsch, for the short term on the library board, had no opponent.

Over in St. Paul, Richard D. O'Brien, democrat, was re-elected county attorney, being one of the few democrats to survive the republican landslide. Dr. Arthur W. Miller was re-elected coroner. Louis Nash, democrat, polled a strong vote and won the election as county commissioner for another term.

For the legislature, from St. Paul districts, J. A. A. Burnquist, Law '05, won in the first ward. John F. Selb and Oscar Christensen, both ex-law students, won their election on the republican ticket.

with no man to oppose his progress across the line. The touchdown came in the corner of the field and could not be converted into a goal.

For the rest of the half it was fierce playing on both sides, Wisconsin trying in vain to convert two fair catches in the center of the field into goals, but Keckie Moll was not equal to the task. The end of the half found the ball in Wisconsin territory, Minnesota having gained on several exchange of punts.

During all of the second half Wisconsin was on the defensive. Minnesota would tear off ground and then lose to Wisconsin and Wisconsin would immediately kick back to Minnesota. The only times during the second half when Wisconsin looked at all dangerous was when Minnesota would fail to get punts and the ball would roll dangerously near Minnesota's goal line. The plat of the playing shows that Minnesota had it all over Wisconsin and repeatedly threatened to score on her.

Anyone who will follow the plat of the playing through carefully must be convinced of the superiority of Minnesota's work all through this half and through at least half of the first half.

Four fumbles alone would account for the lack of a touchdown. Four times a Minnesota man misjudged the ball, or getting it fumbled it. It is to be said that even after fumbling the ball or letting it go over his head and roll dangerously near Minnesota's goal, Minnesota would recover the ball and frequently made long returns, but those same returns made without the previous loss of ground would have made the difference between a score and none at all.

Minnesota's superiority is clearly shown in the figures of the game as well as by the plat. While Wisconsin could make but 76 yards during the whole game on rushes from snap, back plays, Minnesota gained 282 yards from the same plays. Minnesota punted 15 times and averaged 37 yards, while Wisconsin punted 23 times and averaged 38.2 yards, only 1.2 yards more than Minnesota.

Wisconsin succeeded in making a first down but twice during the whole game, once in each half, and both of these downs came on forward passes. Wisconsin never once made first down on anything that remotely resembled old foot ball. They knew the new game far better than Minnesota but they did not show any knowledge of how to gain on so-called straight football. On the other hand, Minnesota made 17 first downs during the game, at various times carrying the ball without losing it for 65, 20, 35, 22, 65, 30 and 40 yards. The only time Wisconsin made consistent gains was for forty yards when the touchdown came as a result of two line bucks which netted four yards and two forward passes which together netted thirty-six yards.

Minnesota tried ten forward passes, three were successful, netting 25-yard total; four fell into the hands of Wisconsin and three resulted in penalties. Wisconsin tried seven forward passes, four were good for a total of fifty-one yards; two fell into Minnesota's hands and one resulted in a penalty.

Minnesota suffered heavily on penalties, losing 115 yards this way. Wisconsin also suffered to the extent of 80 yards this way. Wisconsin's gains, with the exception above noted, were all made on mistakes by Minnesota's green men, and their lack of "football sense" which can be gained only through experience and which they are gaining fast.

All loyal Minnesotans have cause to feel proud of their representatives on the team. They have come up from a green bunch of material and have met a strong team of veterans on an equal footing and have come out of the struggle with glory if not victory.

We take off our hats to the men on the Minnesota team and we predict that if they work for the next two weeks and make as much progress as they have during the same time up to date, they will run away with the Indians two weeks hence.

The men are not on to the new game to any great extent, but they are strong on the old game and have learned to play to make distance on so-called straight football, and can, on occasion, pull off good gains on the forward pass and the on-side kick. With this season's work, in which they have become thoroughly grounded in the fundamentals of the game, we venture to predict an invincible team for another season and even a brilliant close to a season which has been marked by few victories.

Such a defeat is no disgrace.

Mistakes were made but not the mistakes of quitting or of failure to play anything but good clean football to the limit of their knowledge and ability.

We shall say nothing of the individual players, for every man deserves nothing but words of praise, and to single out individuals for special mention would be unfair to team mates.

Look over the list of players; they are all men worthy to represent the University on the football field and did so represent it last Saturday.

THE PURITY BANQUET.

Last year's purity banquet was a frost and this year's affair was even more so. The quality and quantity of food offered and its manner of serving was such as to discourage all but the most enthusiastic rooters. The way of handling the whole affair was poor.

The purity banquet can be handled so as to make it one of the most enjoyable affair of the college year, and it ought to be so handled. It is certainly possible to manage it in a business-like manner and to have the serving done promptly.

Last year over fifty alumni turned out; this year only three turned out and only two of these attended last year and it is safe to say that none of the three will be out another year unless they can be assured of some-

THE DIRECTORY COMING.

The directory number of the Weekly will take the place of two regular numbers, those of the 23d and 30th of the present month. This number will be mailed to all subscribers sometime between the two dates mentioned. This is to be the best directory ever issued and if for any reason you do not get your copy, notify the Weekly at once.

Anyone desiring a second copy can secure the same only by the payment of $1. There will be no free copies to be secured to replace any that may be lost, unless notice is given IMMEDIATELY after the 30th of the present month that none has been received.

"DUTCH TREAT" LUNCHEON AT DONALDSON'S.

The second luncheon will be held at Donaldson's next Friday at 12:30. Fifty-five alumni attended last time and they voted unanimously to hold another on the date specified. Turn out and meet your old friends and hear Bert Page tell of the present football situation at Minnesota. Phone your friends to meet you there. It will be worth while.

THE PRESENT FOOTBALL SITUATION.

The voice of the "knocker" has been heard in the land for some time past. Much of it indiscriminate knocking. Let us take the advice which Judge Jaggard gave last year, "Let us not croak, but cheer." When the season is over we can discuss matters in the light of fuller knowledge than we can today. The Carlisle game may upset all the present "dope."

There is one man among the alumni, who, perhaps better than any other, is in position to size up the present situation, and that man is Bert Page, one of the greatest football captains Minnesota has produced. He was captain of the wonderful 1900 team, which has been pronounced by competent critics, "One of the most effective football machines ever produced in this country."

Mr. Page has kept in touch with football all the years since graduation. He has had a hand in shaping every team since that day, for he has been of that small body of alumni who give their time freely to help along the work of the coach. He has been a member of the athletic board of control for many years, and is now chairman of the alumni athletic committee. There is not a better informed man, or a man who has higher ideals as to what constitutes good clean football, than he.

He has agreed to attend the second "Dutch Treat" Luncheon, at Donaldson's next Friday noon, and tell the alumni, from first hand knowledge, what the real football situation is today. He knows, and others who want to know cannot do better than to turn out and hear him.

Remember the time and place—Friday, November 20th, 12:30 p. m. at Donaldson's tea rooms.

PREPARING FOR CARLISLE.

The football squad is putting in hard work preparing for the Carlisle game and while nothing is being said by them they are making such progress that it is certain that they will meet Carlisle on an equal footing. The men have been seasoned by twice meeting veteran teams and when they face Carlisle next Saturday they will give good account of themselves.

Last year, against a team of professionals representing Carlisle, Minnesota men played them to a standstill and it was only by the greatest luck in the world that Carlisle was not administered a crushing defeat.

Carlisle has a team, that despite their defeat by Harvard, represents the leaders in the east, and by defeating them we can look back on the season with considerable sense of satisfaction. We have a hunch that we shall be able to do this, and are willing to risk our reputation as a prophet upon the result.

BIG DEBATE NEAR.

Friday night, December 11th, in the University chapel, a Minnesota team will uphold the affirmative of the question, "Resolved, that American cities should adopt a commission form of government." The Iowa team will argue that they should not. The same evening another Minnesota team will argue the negative of the same question at Champaign, Ill., against an Illinois team.

The team that will meet Iowa is composed of Messrs. Max Lowenthal, John F. Sinclair, and Zenas Potter; the team that will meet Illinois will be made up of Messrs. Charles Carlson, Norman A. Houck and John McKinnon.

These men have made faithful preparation for the event under the direct lead of Professor Rarig and will do the institution credit and we hope will win their debates.

DR. MONTELIUS AT THE UNIVERSITY.

During the past week the University has been honored by the presence of Dr. Montelius, curator of the Swedish national museum and one of the foremost men of the world of letters. On Tuesday afternoon he delighted a large audience assembled in chapel, with his intensely interesting lecture upon the history of the cross, showing a large number of lantern slides to illustrate the evolution of both the Greek and Roman crosses.

Thursday afternoon, the faculty gave a reception in his honor and the same evening he lectured to a crowded house in the University Armory upon the relations of Sweden and the British Isles from the earliest times down through the middle ages, showing how closely these two peoples were related and how frequent their interchange of communication.

We should like to give a digest of both lectures but space makes that impossible.

Dr. Montelius was secured for the University by the new Honorary society Lambda Alpha Psi. This society has also secured partial promise of a visit from a distinguished Frenchman later in the year. While at the University Dr. Montelius was made an honorary member of the newly-organized Scandinavian club.

PROFESSOR BURKHARD WINS FAME.

Professor Burkhard, of the German department, won much notoriety last week by "calling" the members of his class who stayed away through half the hour to listen to the English suffragettes who spoke in chapel. Privately he has been receiving the congratulations of his colleagues who felt much as he did but who did not have the nerve to express themselves in the same way.

UNIVERSITY MEN BEFORE THE SIX O'CLOCK CLUB.

Dean George F. James and Fred B. Chute, Law '95, who is a member of the Minneapolis board of education, both spoke before the Six O'clock Club a week ago tonight, taking the general topic school administration. Both men made strong talks and contrary to the general policy of the club it was agreed that it was worth while to give the paper of Dr. James publicity. The general policy of the club is to not make public their discussions.

DR. ALICE MOTT'S REAL STATEMENT.

Dr. Alice Mott, '99, principal of the University model school, recently made an address in which she made use of certain words which were taken up, misquoted and which have caused no little newspaper discussion. In last Wednesday's Journal, Dr. Mott comes back at her friends and critics, in the following letter:

Now is it my turn?

With all due apologies to the lady teachers who have rallied to my support, I am forced to admit that I did not say, before the meeting of Minneapolis Collegiate Alumnae that women teachers are better than men teachers for boys of high school age. This was not an educational meeting.

My paper did not contain the words "high school;" neither did it contain the word "boys." It did not contain the word "feminine," which up to that time, I had never seen used as a verb.

Owing to a certain native politeness which I closely guard, I instituted no comparisons whatever between men and women teachers.

My exact words were as follows:

"There seems to be a movement on foot, at present, to oust educated women from their natural profession of teaching; the proposition has been seriously made to replace by men, women teachers in American schools of all grades.

"Then, since our time is short, let us make haste to do our part in the civilizing and influencing of American youth, before our opportunity is gone forever. Since we have been accused of feminizing, let us hurry and feminize. Let us especially take upon ourselves the inculcating and the emphasizing of certain moral qualities and ideals which seem to us more important than cooking or grammar or arithmetic or manual training, or music, or even football; let us 'crowd' the subjects of honor, industry, courage, self-control, punctuality, temperance, cleanliness, courtesy and kindness; let us teach our charges to serve the public without always looking for a money return."

These words constituted the only reference to education in my address.

If the gentlemen principals of the Minneapolis public schools really regard the above-named qualities as exclusively feminine, then they have certainly lost any educational case they could possibly hold briefs for.

But they are too generous and modest. In the name of all the women teachers of America I thank them for the soft impeachment, and hand it back with a bow.

I believe that these are human qualities, as valuable to boys as to girls—to men as to women. I think that they are becoming increasingly human as civilization advances. And I believe that the rate of their increase was greatly accelerated by the entrance into human society of a certain womanly (not womanish) type of man, about 1,900 years ago.

ALICE J. MOTT.

Minneapolis, Nov. 9.

MINNESOTA TEACHERS RESOLVE.

The following resolutions were adopted at a recent meeting of the Southern Minnesota Educational association:

"Resolved, That the teachers in assembly at the twenty-second meeting of the Southern Minnesota Educational association held in Mankato on the 5th, 6th and 7th days of November, 1908, unanimously adopt the following petition to the regents of the state university and to the members of the Minnesota legislature:

"Whereas, the primary means to a more efficient system of public instruction lies in the constant improvement of the teaching force, and whereas, this calls for the best possible theoretical and practical training of prospective teachers, the regents of the University of Minnesota are hereby petitioned by us to supplement the training of high school teachers at the University by the establishment of a well-housed and well-equipped school for observation and practice teaching, and we pledge that this request, made by the regents of the university, will be supported by us individually and through the usual committees when it is presented to the next session of the legislature."

"This association numbers at its present meeting 900 members, representing 400 schools and a school population of approximately 23,000."

The same resolutions were adopted at a previous meeting of the Western Minnesota Educational association meeting held at Granite Falls three weeks ago.

NEW BOOKS.

Mention was recently made of several new books by alumni. Since then fuller information has been received concerning several of the books.

The Unfolding Life.

The book by Mrs. Antoinette Abernethy Lamoreaux, '90, The Unfolding Life, is one of the latest and it is said to be one of the best books on child study. It was written to meet the needs of both parents and Sunday school workers and discusses in non-technical language the great facts which child study and psychology have revealed, showing their bearing upon the work in the home and the Sunday school. While it does not neglect the physical and intellectual sides of the developing child, it lays special stress upon a sane and effective training of the religious nature of the unfolding life.

This book has met with the highest commendation from the highest authorities on Sunday school work. Mrs. Lamoreaux has devoted a great deal of time to work along this line and the book which she has produced meets a real need.

The Inheritance Tax.

The book by Max West, '90, The Inheritance Tax, originally appeared as a study in Vol. IV, No. 2, of the Studies in History, Economics and Public Law, edited by the Faculty of Columbia University, fourteen years ago. The present edition is completely revised and greatly enlarged. The Inheritance Tax has grown greatly in importance in these years and when it seemed wise to issue a revised and up to date edition, Dr. West, undertook to look up the most important of the recent statutes, both domestic and foreign, to make the book of the greatest possible value.

The result has been the production of the most complete and authoritative work in existence upon the subject. The book has received the warmest praise from the general press and from economic journals as well. The Journal of Political Economy says of the book—"Dr. West's monograph supplies, in a most convenient form a careful survey of the past and existing legislation on the subject of inheritance taxes, both in this and other countries, together with an admirable critical review of the interesting legal and financial problems that have been raised by this form of taxation. . . . His treatment will be found thorough, interesting and scholarly."

The other book by Dr. West has been merely announced and is not yet out.

Private Corporations.

Arthur L. Helliwell, '05, a practicing lawyer of this city, last summer completed a supplement to Clark and Marshall's great work upon Private Corporations, the greatest work extant upon the subject. The volume fills 1200 pages and covers the entire subject of the law of corporations. The work treats of every decision of the state and federal courts between January 1st, 1901 and April 1st, 1907. A table of cases has been supplied, thus removing the only criticism that was ever offered to the original work. Forms and precedents have been added so as to give a comprehensive guide to the busy lawyer in preparing corporation cases. It makes all of the latest law upon this vast and important field instantly available. Mr. Helliwell had made himself a recognized authority upon the topic before he was asked to prepare this supplement, and his work has demonstrated the wisdom of the publishers in choosing him to carry through such an important undertaking.

The Speaking Voice.

This new book by Katherine Jewell Everts, '94, came from the press late last month. Almost two years ago, Harpers began, through their Bazar, a crusade in the interest of pure speech. Henry James initiated the movement with four articles upon "The speech of American women." John D. Barry followed with four papers on "How to acquire clear speech." Miss Everts was asked to write four articles upon "The speaking voice." These articles were published in four consecutive issues of the Bazar, beginning with December 1907. These four papers form the first two sections of the book which has just been issued by Harpers. The third section is devoted to analysis of the various literary forms, beginning with the essay and fable, passing through lyric poetry to didactic poetry, through the short story to the epic, and through the monologue to the play. The book is designed to meet the need for some simple and fundamental exercise for the training of the speaking voice, and is a deliberate effort to simplify and condense the principles which are fundamental to all recognized systems of voice training. Miss Everts has had large experience along this line and has made herself master of the art of public reading, and speaks from knowledge gained from her own first hand experience.

History of Minnesota.

Dr. William Watts Folwell has just issued, through Houghton, Mifflin & Company, a history of Minnesota, which forms one of their American Commonwealth series. The book fills 382 pages and is written in Dr. Folwell's clear and direct style. Dr. Folwell has gone to original sources for his material and has written a book which all subsequent historians of Minnesota must take into account. The author has known, at first hand, of many of the events of the stirring periods of which he writes and has had access to the private papers of other men who made the history of Minnesota. The collections of the state historical society have furnished him data for his facts and every statement can be backed by the documents if necessary.

Dr. Folwell has had this history in mind for many years and he completed some time ago a much larger and fuller history of the state, which the publishers reported was too complete for their purposes, but which will doubtless be published later. The book will form a welcome addition to the library of every man interested in the history of Minnesota.

Abbott on Corporations.

Howard Abbott, '85, lecturer in the college of law, has just issued a new work entitled as above. This work is practically a summary of his more extended works on the subject and is produced in this form to meet the needs of law students for an elementary text upon the subject.

PROFESSOR FLETCHER, LECTURER.

Professor Henry J. Fletcher, of the college of law, is giving a series of five lectures to the Minneapolis chapter of the American National Bankers' Association. The lectures treat of the laws of banking and are reported to be exceedingly interesting.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT'S REQUEST.

The heads of the various departments under agriculture have consulted together and will ask the Board of Regents to request appropriations from the next legislature, amounting to a total of $550,000. This will include, $50,000 for new dormitory for women; $35,000 to remodel the dairy barns and hall; enlargement of drill hall and gymnasium, $100,000; special building for the mechanical department which is now over crowded by the school of forestry, $265,000; minor repairs that will bring the total up to the figure specified, $550,000.

NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS GRANTED TO THE DENTS.

The dental building has undergone some very much needed improvements in the past few days. A large electric light has been placed before every chair thus enabling the students to pursue their work without interruption on account of early darkness. A large vulcanizer and also a new Taggart's Inlay machine are being installed.

MINNESOTA MEN IN THE NATIONAL EYE.

Rumor is persistent in giving Hon. Frank B. Kellogg, a lecturer in the University law college, a place in the cabinet of President-elect Taft. It is practically assured that Frederick W. Carpenter, Law '97, will succeed Mr. Loeb as private secretary to the new president. Mr. Taft says that he is "the best private secretary that any man ever had," and he ought to know for Carpenter has been with him for nine years and has twice made the circuit of the globe in his company. For many years Mr. Carpenter has enjoyed the reputation of being one of the most efficient men in like service in the national capital and the promotion which is almost sure to come to him will be on the basis of sheer merit. The office is generally held to be on a par with several of the cabinet positions.
