President Coffman Rejects Chicago Offer

Support of General Alumni Association named as one of factors in his decision to remain at Minnesota

THE news which found circulation throughout the state in the press on April 26 to the effect that President Lotus D. Coffman was considering an offer from another leading University aroused the concern of alumni and students and brought hundreds of inquiries regarding the authenticity of the report. It was learned that the matter had come before the Board of Regents at their meeting on Friday and that the other institution had offered President Coffman a substantial increase in salary.

On Monday, the following statement was issued by the president: "It is true that I have had an attractive offer to accept a position in another university. It is also true that the matter was discussed informally at an executive session of the Board of Regents last Saturday. Since this has become known to the public through the press it seems entirely appropriate for me to make a statement with regard to the matter.

"I expect to remain at Minnesota. I have reached this decision for a number of reasons quite independently of financial considerations. The Regents are in full accord and sympathy with the educational principles that have guided the administration during the last 10 years. The faculty, composed of men and women of the highest motives and professional ideals, have steadfastly and loyally supported the education programs of the present administration, and the General Alumni association and the public generally have given cordial support to the work of the University in recent years. Further, it has been made clear to me by members of the faculty and the Board of Regents that my work at Minnesota is not yet finished.

"The University of Minnesota is one of the truly great universities of the world. She has grown and developed until scholars now come to her from every part of the world. I count myself fortunate in having been permitted to play a small part in bringing this distinction to the University. That the University will continue to grow and expand in influence and that the idealism of the people of the state will cluster about her more and more in years to come, I verily believe. My affection for her and my faith in her future are unwavering; already she has a thousand things about her that deserve the highest praise and but few to criticize."

It developed that the offer came from the University of Chicago which during the past year has taken four prominent men from Minnesota. The invitation carried a professorship and the direction of a new department which would require the combined administrative ability and educational experience possessed by President Coffman. The salary would be above the $18,000 he receives as president of the University of Minnesota.

The four Minnesota men who have resigned during the past year to accept positions with higher salaries and greater opportunities for study and research at the University of Chicago are Dr. Edwin H. Sutherland, Dr. L. V. Koos, Dr. Fred L. Adair and Dr. F. W. Schlutz. Other prominent men who will leave Minnesota this year are Dr. Piti-rim Sorokin who will go to Harvard, Professor Earl Hudelson who will go to the University of West Virginia, and Dr. Royal N. Chapman who has accepted a post with the University of Hawaii.

And simultaneous with President Coffman's rejection of the Chicago offer came the announcement of the resignation of Dr. Oscar E. Harder, professor of mines and metallurgy, who will become assistant director of the Bartelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, at a salary of $8,000 a year. This is nearly twice as much as he is receiving at Minnesota.

In Dr. Harder the University will lose a specialist in the study of metallic substances who has been devoting his services to the school for the last 11 years. Coming to Minnesota in 1919 as an associate professor, Dr. Harder was advanced to a full professorship in 1923 and has received recognition as one of the leading experts in his field in the United States.

The University of Minnesota has a faculty which enjoys the respect and admiration of the other leading institutions of the country if the demand for Minnesota talent is any criterion. With the increasing competition for teaching and administrative talent among the larger institutions and with the financial advantage held by the endowed schools, it would seem that Minnesota faces a serious situation.

The University now holds a place in the front rank of American educational institutions. Scholars from all parts of the world come to the campus to study. Minnesota also leads in enrollment.

It is fourth in size among all American universities in the number of strictly college students, and third in size in persons attending if all branches be counted. Columbia is largest, California second, and Minnesota third in total gross enrollment, the figures being, on November 1, 1929, 33,367, 25,274 and 21,027 respectively. If college students only be counted California is first with 17,242, Columbia second with 14,952, Illinois third with 12,413 and Minnesota fourth with 10,657.

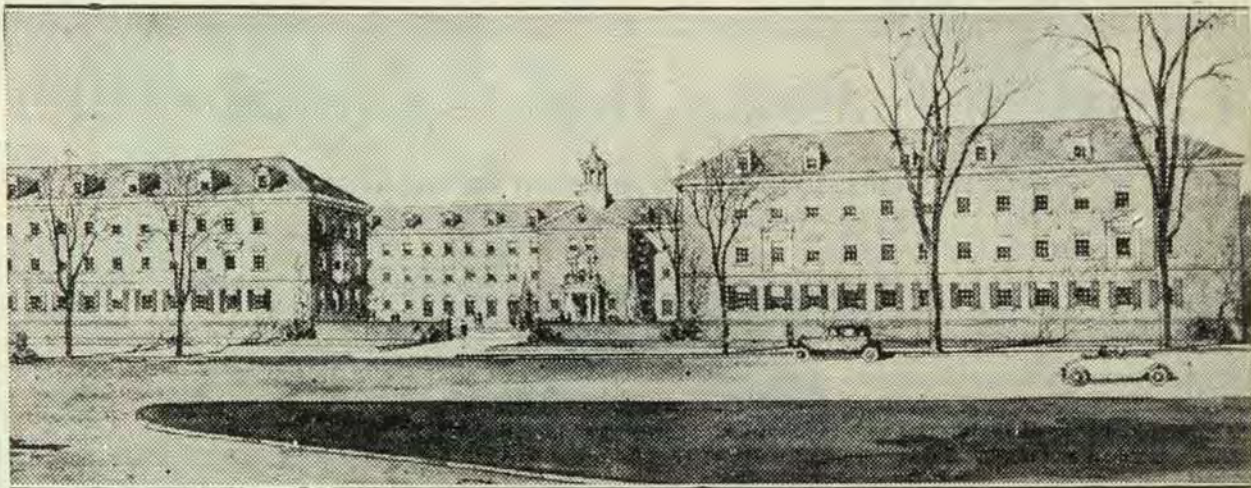

The difference between Illinois and Minnesota is accounted for by the great number enrolled in the Illinois School of Commerce, which has 1,990 students, compared with 355 in Minnesota's School of Business Administration. Ohio State, which has 10,557 college students and is of approximately the same size as Minnesota, also has a large number in commerce, the figure given being 1,982.

All the statistics are taken from a report by Dean Raymond Walters of Swarthmore College, which he prepares each year for publication in "School and Society."

The figures are exclusive of extension division students, of whom Dean Walters credits Minnesota with 7,796 in the year ending last Nov. 1.

Comparison by five year periods shows that Minnesota's grand total, again excluding extension students, was 8,236 on Nov. 1, 1919, and 13,313 on Nov. 1, 1924, compared with 21,027 on November 1, 1929.

ARCHITECT'S PLANS FOR PROPOSED MINNESOTA DORMITORY

MEN'S dormitories at Minnesota may soon be a reality, according to action taken by the members of the Board of Regents at their meeting last week. It was announced that the funds now on hand permit the construction of the first unit of the buildings. The funds have accumulated from athletic receipts and from other current revenue.

Under preliminary plans this unit will be the first of a series of four which will form a quadrangle and will have a total housing capacity of 1,000. The first unit will accommodate 250.

The dormitory will be built on a site now owned by the University on the River road between Union and Harvard streets.

For two years the University has been attempting to develop this dormitory project, but a suit, said to have been a friendly test case, was started, questioning the right of the University to borrow money against future revenue.

This case does not, however, affect the right of the University to build dormitories with money already on hand.

To guard against any possibility of the recurrence of a law tangle, the regents instructed Dean Everett Fraser of the Law school to study the legal aspects of the project and to report at the next meeting of the board. If this report is favorable, construction plans will go forward immediately.

Dr. Harris Dies

DR. J. ARTHUR HARRIS, head of the Botany Department at the University since 1924, died at the Midway Hospital, St. Paul, April 24. Dr. Harris, who held a prominent place among the botanists and statisticians of the United States, underwent an operation for appendicitis early in the week and complications set in. He failed to rally after a second operation Thursday.

Born in Plantsville, Ohio, September 29, 1879, Dr. Harris was the son of Jordan Thomas and Ida Ellen Harris. In 1901 he graduated from the University of Kansas and a year later received his master's degree at the same institution. At Washington University in St. Louis he received the degree of doctor of philosophy.

He remained at Washington University for some time teaching and serving as librarian of the Missouri botanical garden. Called in 1907 to the station of experimental evolution of the Carnegie Institute at Cold Springs Harbor in New York, he remained there until 1924. He left there to head the botany department at the University of Minnesota.

Included in the number of learned societies of which he was a member are: American Society of Naturalists, Botanical club of America, Torrey Botanical club, Ecological Society of America, American Statisticians' association, Society of Experimental Biology and Medicine, American Meteorological society and Sigma Xi.

Dr. Harris was a frequent contributor to scientific publications and was the author of a work entitled, "Biometric Study of Basal Metabolism in Man." The Weldon medal and memorial prize from the University of Oxford was awarded him in 1921.

Studies Stuttering

Bryng Bryngelson, assistant professor of speech, will be on leave of absence next year to study at the Iowa State university. He will work with Dr. Lee Travis, director of speech pathology at Iowa, doing research for the correction of stuttering. In Mr. Bryngelson's absence, Dr. Lou Kennedy of the University of Wisconsin will have charge of the speech clinic here.

Sixty Year Review

THE first chapter of an autobiographical sketch written for the Weekly by one of Minnesota's oldest and most revered graduates and faculty members, Mrs. Mathilda Jane Wilkin '77, will appear in the May 10 issue of this publication.

For nearly 60 years, Mrs. Wilkin has watched the growth and development of the University of Minnesota. From the time of her graduation until 1911, she was a member of the faculty and she has always maintained an interest in the affairs of the institution.

Regents Accept Gifts

Financial matters occupied the members of the Board of Regents in the second half of their meeting last Friday and Saturday.

A proposal to increase the fees in five of the colleges, Engineering, Chemistry, Business, Liberal Arts and Education, was laid over until the next meeting. The increases proposed are $5 for both residents and non-resident students.

Gifts totaling nearly $7,000 were accepted. One for $1,156, is to be called the Frederick J. Wulling trust fund. It provides that Dean Wulling or his direct successors in the College of Pharmacy shall spend the income to buy books, especially rare and unusual ones, dealing with pharmacy.

For the second year, Mrs. John Dwan gave $1,000 for the Helen Dwan prizes. Over $2,000 was received to carry on research work on the diseases of fur-bearing animals.

Clifford N. Carlson received the Law Alumni association scholarship of $75 for the year 1929-30. Charles Rosenblum was awarded the Dupont fellowship in chemistry for 1930-31. The scholarship carries a stipend of $750.

Grant W. Smith was elected as Shevlin fellow in chemistry for the same period with a $500 stipend. Johannes K. Moen received a teaching fellowship in Medicine and $800.

Six-year Law Course Adopted

Curriculum will be reorganized to include Subjects of Cultural Nature

AFTER March 1, 1931, the Law School of the University of Minnesota will be one of the leading schools of the country requiring the completion of a six-year course for a bachelor of laws degree. The six year plan recommended by Dean Everett Fraser was adopted by the Board of Regents at its meeting last week and the new requirement will go into effect on the date mentioned above. The curriculum will be reorganized to include cultural subjects considered of definite value to the complete development of the lawyer. The Minnesota Law School will be the pioneer in the development of such a curriculum.

In his statement to the Board of Regents regarding the changes in the requirements, Dean Fraser said in part: "The faculty of the Law School recommends: First, that six years of University work be required for the degree of Bachelor of Laws of all students entering the Law School after March 1, 1931, the work to be apportioned to liberal arts and law as the faculty of the Law School may prescribe; Second, that the degree of Bachelor of Science in Law be conferred upon students who complete two years of work in liberal arts and two years in law, under such regulations as the faculty of the Law School may prescribe.

"At present five years of work are required for the LL.B. degree, two years of college work and three years in the Law School. For the last three years sixty to seventy-five percent of the freshmen law students are taking six or seven years of university work—three or four years of liberal arts and three years in the Law School. Consequently the proposed change will increase the total period of study of only about thirty percent of the students. But it is expected that a considerably larger number will devote more time to law and less to liberal arts studies.

"No increase has been made in the requirements of the Law School since 1910, when two years of college work were first required. Mr. Justice Butler, in his address at the dedication of the new Law Building, said: 'At the rate of progress that has been made, it would seem that a Bachelor's degree in arts, science, or literature may reasonably be required within a few years. The fact that so many now have more in the way of preparatory education than is exacted shows a conservative leadership, and that the institution is being conducted with due regard to existing conditions.' We have hesitated to increase our requirements while the requirements for admission to the Bar were so much lower than those of the University.

"The state supreme court has made an order requiring two years of college work of all students beginning the study of law after March 1, 1931. Prior to 1925 candidates were admitted to the Bar with less than a high school education and with only three years of night law school study. Now that two years of college work and three years of study in the day law school or four years in a night law school are required, Minnesota has as high requirements as any state, and only three or four other states have so high a standard.

Dean Everett Fraser

"The university law schools have always led in advancing standards. The leading university schools required college work for many years before the Bar and the state authorities became interested. College work was not required for admission to the Bar of any state until 1922, although Harvard has required a degree for admission to its Law School since 1896, and other law schools have required college work for many years.

"The universities are now advancing requirements still higher. California, Stanford, Harvard, Northwestern, Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh now require a degree for admission to their law schools. At least thirteen others including the state universities of Michigan, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, require three years, and the list is rapidly growing.

"It is our present purpose to continue to admit students with two years of college work, and to require of them four years of law school work. At present the University offers a combined course of six years, three years in liberal arts, and three in law. It is our intention that this combined course should be continued for the present at least, so that students may elect the one course or the other. In due course, seven years of work will doubtless be required, but whether that will be apportioned to four years of college work and three of law, three years of college work and four of law, or two years of college work and five of law, should be decided in the light of our proposed experiment.

"We wish to try out with a body of students the experiment of a four year law course. It is our intention to give in that course little, if any, more of the type of work now being taken by the students in the three year course. We wish to devote the additional time to subjects which are not strictly vocational, but which are cultural for lawyers and important from the public point of view."

Chicago WEEK BY WEEK

By PAUL B. NELSON, '26E

ADDRESSES: Alumni activities have been receiving publicity in the local papers, a small amount to be sure, but very effective. Following the publication of an item concerning the alumni directory in the Daily News the other evening, several "new" alumni have been found. They are:

L. F. Jackson, Law '07, with the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, at 120 South La Salle St. Alumnus Jackson formerly lived in New York City.

C. Justin Miller, '14, '17, who writes on the stationary of the Hotel Dasher, 1632 Belmont Avenue.

Miss Elizabeth McCabe, Ex'30, of Lockport, Ill.

Browning Nichols, M. E., '10, with the American Manganese Steel Co. at their main office in Chicago Heights, Ill. Nichols writes, "have lived in the South where Minnesota alumni are a curiosity. It will seem good to get in touch with other Minnesotans again."

Directory: Mr. Hobson, the power behind the new alumni directory, tells us that the volume will appear soon after May 15.

If this is the first time you've heard of this new directory, send in your name, year, college, complete home and business address, and telephone numbers to us at 180 North Michigan Blvd. And we'll see that you are listed! But hurry. The deadline is almost here.

Every alumnus will receive a free copy of this directory.

Player: Carl Cass, '27, formerly with the Goodman, has been with the experimental theatre of the University of Wisconsin this winter. Several alumni report that his "Othello" is quite impressive.

To Speak at Conference

President Lotus D. Coffman was the principal speaker at the inaugural ceremony of Dr. Herman G. James, as president of the University of South Dakota. The installation took place on May 3.

"Higher Education and Adult Education" will be the subject of President L. D. Coffman's address to the American association for Adult Education, at the fifth annual conference to be held in Chicago at Edgewater Beach hotel, May 12 to 15. Dr. John E. Anderson, of the University child welfare division, will speak on "Parental Education."

Reference Libraries Described

A mimeographed book on newspaper reference libraries has been written by Robert W. Desmond, instructor in the department of journalism at the University, in what is believed to be the first attempt ever made to give a comprehensive history and analysis of the problems of the reference library as used by the newspapers.

Spring Sports

SPRING sports at Minnesota in late years have assumed proportions far beyond the greatest expectations of the student of a few years ago. Although football and basketball can hardly be placed in the same category with track and baseball as concerns a seasonal sport, yet every spring we find scores of young men competing in practice games in these divisions of university athletics.

At the beginning of the spring training grind some 125 gridiron aspirants answered the call of Minnesota's new football mentor, H. O. Crisler. This was conceded to be a record turnout and Crisler announced his satisfaction at the amount of interest and talent that was shown.

Minnesota's baseball team this year is said to be one of the best that has ever taken the diamond at this institution. "Dutch" Bergman realizes that the only way young ball players develop is through playing the game constantly. Many college teams are not regarded very highly and the reason for their loose play is lack of competition. Twelve or fifteen games are played in the spring and many of the players do not take up a glove again until the following season.

Bergman, realizing this, arranged a schedule of practice games that called for a tilt almost daily with the commercial house teams of the Twin Cities. Returning from a successful southern training trip the team immediately took up the schedule of daily games with semi-pro teams. The results have been very satisfactory and Bergman believes that he has put forth the best team that he has coached since coming to Minnesota.

Sherman Finger's track men are rapidly rounding into shape and already have shown their worth. The four mile relay team, composed of Ted Rasmussen, Bruce Strain, Wilson Wied and Art Weiseger took fourth place at the Kansas relays. The Drake relays will furnish the Minnesotans with plenty of competition and the results of that meet will give us a tip on the calibre of the Gophers.

Within the confines of the field house, Minnesota's 1931 basketball team practiced for three solid weeks. Dave McMillan is fortunate in having all of his 1930 quintet intact for the coming season, and bolstered with several promising freshmen the team is almost certain to make a formidable showing next winter.

Alumna Receives Award

Margrethe D. Brandt, St. Paul, graduate of the University of Minnesota in 1924 with the bachelor of arts cum laude degree, has been awarded a $1,500 Carnegie fellowship in literary science for 1930-31. The purpose of the fellowship is to enable the student who shows promise of contributing to the advancement of the library profession to pursue a year's study and research.

Dr. Richard Burton

MORE than 200 Minnesota alumni in New York City attended the annual meeting of the organization on April 7. The speakers were Dr. Richard Burton and Dean Guy Stanton Ford. Miss Inga Hill, former student at the University, delighted the group with her singing.

Arts Group To Meet

Many graduates will return to the campus to attend the annual convention of the Western Arts association which will be held from May 6 to 9. Plans are being made to accommodate and entertain the more than 1,000 persons who are expected to attend the sessions. Members of the University art department are in charge of the arrangements.

The association is composed of teachers of art, home economics, vocational education, manual training and printing and commercial artists and will bring many recognized leaders in these fields to Minneapolis for the event.

Dean M. E. Haggerty of the College of Education and S. Chatwood Burton, associate professor of architecture, are local men who will address sessions. Conventions of the association every year draw leaders in art from all over the country, although mid-western artists are mainly represented in the organization.

Reunion dinners, alumni meetings and luncheons will head the list of social affairs planned for the four-day conference. General sessions will be held in Northrop auditorium, while sectional meetings will convene in the Minneapolis Institute of Art and various downtown hotels.

The meeting of the society at the University this year will be the first in 20 years. The Western Arts association convened here last in 1910. Last year's meeting was held in Cleveland, Ohio.

Campus Sorority Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary

Chi chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at the University of Minnesota celebrated its fiftieth year of existence on this campus, on Monday, April 21, at the Minikahda Club in Minneapolis.

Two of the eight original founders of Chi chapter, Mrs. George M. Gillette and Mrs. George H. Partridge, both grandmothers of potential Kappa "sisters," were the guests of honor, and re-lived for their sorority sisters the days of the Greek letter society's inauguration on the campus at Minneapolis.

With Mrs. Gillette, who was then Miss Augusta Perkins, and Mrs. Partridge, who was Miss Adelaide Wyman, the other founders included Mrs. Robert Jamison (Adeline Camp) of California, formerly of Minneapolis; Mrs. Frank C. Snyder (Lillian Wilbur) of Minneapolis, who is at present on a visit out of the city; Mrs. Gilman Smith (Addie Tibb) of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. S. H. Knight (Ella Goodrich) of Minneapolis; the late Mrs. Edward A. Gowran (Grace Curtis) of Minneapolis, and the late Mrs. Charles M. Webster (Addie Pillsbury) of Minneapolis.

The sorority was founded April 21, 1880, and in 1883, three years later, the membership had increased to 16, all of whom were members of prominent families. These members were:

Miss Helen Mars (now Mrs. John Cobb of Oxford, Eng.), Miss Mary Goodrich (Mrs. Timothy Byrnes), Miss Adeline Camp (Mrs. Robert Jamison), Miss Augusta Perkins (Mrs. George M. Gillette), Miss Lillian Wilbur (Mrs. Frank C. Snyder), Miss Alice Hurd (Mrs. Asa Wilcox), and Miss Frances Wilcox (Mrs. Frederick L. Washburn); second row, Miss Emma Hendrickson (Mrs. C. C. Lyford), Miss Addie Pillsbury (the late Mrs. C. M. Webster), Miss Addie Tidd (Mrs. Gilman Smith), and Miss Ella Goodrich (Mrs. S. H. Knight); bottom row, Miss Anna Marston (Mrs. Douglas Ayers), Miss Sara McNair, Miss Josephine Marrs (Mrs. Preston King), Miss Mary Powell (Mrs. W. F. Webster), and Miss Mary Folwell, daughter of the late President Emeritus William Watts Folwell and Mrs. Folwell.

In 1908, the season of the high pompadour hair arrangement and of the puff-sleeve, twenty-five years later, the membership had increased to include 23 members. Practically all of these have married and reside in Minneapolis. They are:

Miss Marjory Roberts (Mrs. C. C. Champine), Miss Helen Billau, Miss Stella Lyford (Mrs. Frank Randall), Miss Lila Swain (Mrs. Paul Bains), Miss Ella Clapp (Mrs. Roy Adams), Miss Elizabeth Shepardson (Mrs. Alex Goodfellow), Miss Alice Trimble (Mrs. James de Veau), Miss Josephine Dayton (Mrs. Frederick Blair); second row, Miss Alice Tillotson (Mrs. Hadwen Barney), Miss Mercy Bowen (Mrs. Luther Thompson), Miss Elizabeth Bruchholz (Mrs. Stanley R. Avery), Miss Alice

Your Presence, Sir, is Requested

A brief message from Alumni Secretary E. B. Pierce '04

Alumni Day this June promises to be one of the most attractive functions of its kind. The University in changing the date of Commencement, setting it ahead a week, has made it possible for the undergraduates to get the inspiration of the graduation exercises. This will also give the alumni returning on that day the opportunity to see the institution in operation with all the students still here.

Furthermore, if present plans carry, the commencement exercises will be held for the first time in the evening, probably at eight o'clock, in the stadium. This will necessitate having the alumni dinner from 5:30 to 7:30 so as to give attendants an opportunity to get over to the graduation exercises on time. Those old grads who like a short alumni program will be gratified this spring, without fail, for any toastmaster who goes beyond the 7:30 mark will see his audience walking out. The beautiful stage setting in the stadium, made still more beautiful by flood lighting, ought to present a very attractive picture.

This year the quinquennial classes are those whose numerals end in 0 or 5; that is '75, '80, '85, '90, '95, '00, '05, '10, '15, '20, and '25. Chairmen and committees of these groups are now at work arranging for special reunions. Representatives of other classes are invited and urged to be present, only those groups are not making special reunion efforts. Mr. H. O. Crisler, new athletic director and football coach, will be the special guest of honor at the dinner. As usual, a silver cup will be offered to the person traveling the longest distance to attend this gathering, one to the class having the largest numerical attendance, and one to the class having the largest proportional attendance.

Some of the classes are arranging for reunion luncheons at the Minnesota Union or Shevlin Hall and a number of returning alumni will want to make a tour of the grounds, noting the changes that have taken place in recent years and visiting some of the buildings.

Make note now of the essential items: Alumni Day, Monday, June 9. Alumni Dinner, 5:30, Minnesota Union. Graduation exercises, 8:00 p. m., Stadium.

Notify the Alumni office, 119 Administration Building, that you are planning to come to the dinner.

Anderson (Mrs. Francis Moss), Miss Marjory Edwards (Mrs. Frank Blake), Miss Florence Hardwick, Miss Charlotte Shepardson (Mrs. Lester Warford); third row, Miss Louise Hill (Mrs. Kenyon Keith), Miss Elizabeth Ware (Mrs. Henry Bruchholz), Miss Betty Bullard (Mrs. E. W. Kahlsaat), Miss Margaret Trimble, Miss Margaret Johnston, Miss Helen Painter, Miss Louise Strong (Mrs. Ward Cosgrove), and Miss Clare Ferguson (Mrs. R. F. Bergstresser).

Since 1908 the Chi chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma has continued to expand as the sorority has also grown nationally. It now comprises 63 chapters installed at colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada. Ninety-nine alumnae chapters now have a total membership of approximately 17,500. The local active chapter at Minnesota now has a membership of 44 persons, decidedly an increase from a membership of eight. The sorority's active chapter membership at Minnesota, which includes many daughters of former Minnesotans, claims the following co-eds:

Misses Marea Erf, Katherine Jacobson, Anne Lyon, Helen Rhome, Barbara Olson, Virginia Griffith, Moana Odell, Martha Jane Quigg, Esther Burton, Jean Cameron, Eleanor Broughton, Dorothy Anne Erhart, Joyce Kennedy, Betty Gay Baxter, Ruth Olive Bradshaw, Catherine Colwell, Alice Donahue, Mildred Feltus, Elizabeth Lynch, Jane Maxfield, Jean Parks, Katherine Struble, Mary Spooner, Susan Mary Schuman and Elburn Rochford, all of Minneapolis; Elizabeth McMillan, Eleanor McMillan, Isabella Harmon, Alice Klein and Maybelle Partridge, all of St. Paul; Margaret Rice and Madeline Rice of St. Cloud; Jane Arey of Excelsior, Georgiana Keith of Eau Claire, Wis.; Catherine Campbell of Cloquet; Marie Norton of Stillwater, Mary Louise Coventry of Duluth, Eileen Fowler of Fargo, N. D., Elizabeth Hyde of Pipestone, Louise Gerdes of Burlington, Iowa, Eleanor Irons and Marion Muir of Winona and Volborg Ravn of Wisconsin.

Editorial Comment

THE effort of Herbert O. "Fritz" Crisler to find a more satisfactory method of football ticket allotment will be appreciated by thousands of alumni and stadium subscribers. It is to be hoped that the special committee of eight which will include two alumni will make a serious study of the matter and will work out a plan satisfactory to the fans and the ticket officials.

The method of football ticket distribution developed here at Minnesota has been studied and adopted by the athletic departments of several of the leading universities of the country. The blocks of seats generally regarded as the best have been taken largely by the purchasers of season books. Complaints have come from alumni who are unable to attend all the games and desire seats for one or two of the major contests.

It would be folly to eliminate season tickets. One Big Ten university tried that plan last year and the results were disastrous. And it must be admitted that those fans who are willing to buy season books have some priority rights in the distribution of seats. It has been suggested that a block of good seats be reserved for alumni and stadium subscribers who wish to buy tickets for individual contests. This suggestion seems to have possibilities but it also has its drawbacks and it is evident that there would have to be a limit to the length of time the seat could be held. And there surely would have to be a low limit to the number of tickets allowed each purchaser.

Undoubtedly, Dr. L. J. Cooke, ticket manager, and his assistant, Leslie Schroeder '29L, will be glad to cooperate with the committee in the search for a solution of the complicated problem. They have made a study of the situation and their counsel should be of great value.

The decision of President Coffman to remain at Minnesota in the face of a flattering offer from the University of Chicago will be hailed with joy by thousands of alumni who have watched the growth and development of their University during the past decade. Research has been encouraged, scholars have been attracted to the institution, the enrollment has steadily increased, projects of vital interest and importance to the educational world have been instituted, high educational standards have been emphasized, and Minnesota has been listed in the front rank of American universities.

The task of administering the affairs of a large university has become a tremendous one and the turnover in this field of endeavor reached alarming proportions during the past year. The successful university president must be educator, statesman and executive.

The life of Ski-U-Mah, campus humor publication, has been threatened. During the past year the publication, which was established nine years ago, ran afoul of student and faculty sentiment. In some issues of the magazine, wit, humor and clever writing gave way to rather cheap sensationalism which defeated its own purpose. It would seem that there is a place on the campus for a humor magazine although student interest in such a publication seems to be on the wane.

Minnesota is represented by a baseball team this year which has a chance at a conference championship. The unusually pleasant weather of the pre-season training period allowed the men to get in shape before the beginning of the conference race. The value of such a training period was demonstrated last week when Coach Bergman's players twice defeated the strong Indiana nine. The baseball weather has made possible a number of practice games with various Twin City teams. On Tuesday after returning from Indiana, the Gophers defeated Carleton, 9 to 1.

June 9 will be a big day on the campus. It will be a full day for some 1,500 seniors and for the hundreds of alumni who return to the campus for the annual meeting and reunion. The visit to the campus and the re-touching of old friendships will be highly interesting and pleasant experience to alumni. And the presence of the graduates of former years and their evident interest in the University will have a valuable influence on the graduates of 1930.

The Week on the Campus

Gliding is the newest sport to reach the campus. Twenty enthusiasts have formed a club and have purchased a new glider for experiment purposes. The club is the glider section of the Minnesota Aeronautical Engineers. The organization claims the distinction of owning the first commercially manufactured glider in the state.

The wings of the craft are 35 feet long and five feet wide. Members of the club declare that the sport is safe and that accidents are rare. The trial flights will be made at the Fridley airport. The American record for sustained flight is approximately nine hours and all enthusiasts have a new record as their goal.

Probably every generation of students at the University has witnessed the introduction of a new and unique sport. The popularity of tobogganing and sleighing has been on the decline in recent years and croquet has disappeared. Alumni will recall various sports that no longer have a big following on the campus while other athletic activities once owning the allegiance of only a few student enthusiasts have now become strong intercollegiate sports.

Who knows but what gliding may become an intramural activity within the next few years? Girls as well as boys may become expert at operating a glider as witness the exploits of Mrs. Charles Lindbergh and other feminine aviation enthusiasts.

Eleven photographs of the eclipse of the sun were secured yesterday by Professor C. C. Crump, head of the astronomy department. Clouds, which threatened to mask the whole eclipse, broke up long enough to allow observers to see the progress of the moon across the sun.

Students on the campus who viewed the eclipse through the telescope in the University observatory were John Allen, Christine Westgate, Ralph Clark, Sanford Dee, Arnold Rosenstein and Kenneth Johnson, who were assisting Dr. Crump in photographing the eclipse.

And now the Board of Regents is going to make college life more enjoyable for Freshman and Sophomore men. At their meeting last week, the members of the body agreed that tailored olive drab uniforms should be substituted for the khaki suits. Snappy uniforms will make the army a pleasure for many students.

Roll collars and tailored shirts are to be a part of the new regulation dress. The uniforms will be ordered from the war department immediately and are expected to be in use next fall.

The morale of the basic corps will be improved by the move, it is hoped. More pride in the uniforms, better appearance and a better spirit among the students taking military instruction is the aim of the regents and the military department.

The uniforms will cost approximately $25 each, and 2,700 will be ordered. The expenditure will be made by the University and will be repaid over a period of years by the federal government. No increase will be made in the deposit fee now charged freshmen and sophomores.

The journalism class in community newspaper is preparing a set of four exhibits for the annual Editors' short course to take place May 8-10 at University farm.

A survey of 400 newspapers in Minnesota is being made to get examples for the exhibit which will include these educational topics: rural correspondence, agricultural news, advertising layout and small town bank advertising.

The May issue of The Minnesota Press, the magazine of the Minnesota Editorial association, is to be edited by the class in community newspaper.

Sam S. Haislet, field manager for the association and editor of the magazine, is cooperating with the department of journalism in carrying out the projects.

New headquarters for the University band are rapidly being completed in the basement of the Auditorium, and band members are hoping to occupy them by the middle of May, Bruce Canfield, president of the band has announced.

After a year's preparation, the band will soon be provided with a practice room with walls acoustically treated, combined with a broadcasting room, office space for Michael Jalma and his student band officers and a complete library room to take care of the band's rapidly increasing collection.

Ann Connoy, junior in the School of Business Administration, yesterday was elected president of the University Business Women's club for the coming year to succeed Elizabeth Ann Davy.

Other officers chosen include Johanna Collins and Beatrice Ahlin, senior representatives, and Ellen A. Brown and Jean Muffin, junior board members.

Two additional board members will be named by the president next fall. In addition to electing officers at their meetings yesterday, the group made plans to provide a fund which would be used in aiding some girl through the University. The club has just completed redecorating a room for business women in the Business building.

Completing the series of religious talks at convocation hours, Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof of Chicago will speak May 8 at the first convocation hour in over a month.

Dr. Freehof is rabbi of the Kehilath Anshe-Mayriv synagogue in Chicago. He will speak on "The Basis of Religious Liberalism—a Study of Group Psychology."

This talk will complete the series arranged to present representatives of the three predominant faiths in the world.

The Field House

By CARL JACOBI, '32

THE huge building with the curved roof that sprawls over the full block opposite the stadium does not offer housing facilities for wandering dirigibles although from outward appearances it does resemble a hangar. It is in reality the Minnesota Field House, new home for the University's athletics.

From the street one is impressed with its size. Inside the hugeness of it dwarfs the spectator as much as does a skyscraper. At each end are two colossal skylight windows, majestic as those of an old cathedral, and along the walls are double tiers of seats, almost 9000 of them. But if a larger crowd is expected, 18,000 people can be accommodated with the aid of temporary chairs.

At night great floodlights pour down their brilliance upon the basketball players or tennis players as the case may be. For the former, the center of the arena is reserved; for the latter there are excellent clay-courts. And when a year is over those lights run up an expense of $900.

With nine million cubic feet of space in the building, heating is not an easy problem. The method is indirect forced air; that is, air blown over hot coils by fans. It costs $8,000 annually to keep out the Minnesota cold.

Almost every athletic event can be accommodated in the building. When it was under construction one heard talk around the campus that inside football would be inaugurated. True, no punter could boot the pig-skin as high as the arched steel girders above, but there are other matters to consider. The tennis courts would have to be torn up, and this would be an expensive waste.

But under consideration is a plan for erecting an addition, probably on University Avenue side, to house a modern swimming pool. There is a great need for this at the present time.

During the past few months some notable events have been held in the field house. On March 26th and 27th, the State Basket Ball Tournament was played. On April 8th the Richards-Brain Tennis Match attracted wide attention among lovers of the net. Later on April 15 came the Minnesota Relays.

The Indoor Conference Track Meet, which formerly has been held at Northwestern was run off at Minnesota this year because of the new field house. According to the athletic department it was a great success.

Besides this, eleven basketball games were played in the building by Minnesota with other members of the Big Ten.

But the field house does not lie idle when no events are on schedule. Almost every hour of the day, some scholastic athletes meet there. At certain times tennis instruction is given.

It would not be abiding by custom to write an article on a building and not state the number of bricks used in the construction. There are 1,200,000 in the Field House.

COMMITTEE WILL STUDY FOOTBALL TICKET SITUATION

The problem of football ticket allotment has won the consideration of Herbert O. "Fritz" Crisler, new Gopher athletic director and football coach. He feels that a plan more satisfactory to alumni and to subscribers to the Memorial Stadium fund can be developed and a special committee will be appointed soon to investigate the matter.

The committee will include two alumni to be named by Dr. William F. Braasch of Rochester, president of the General Alumni Association; two stadium subscribers other than alumni to be named by President Coffman; two faculty members, and two students.

Mr. Crisler's plan of action has been approved by President Coffman and has been sanctioned by the senate committee on intercollegiate athletics. At the present time, purchasers of season tickets to the games receive preference in the allotment of seats and are given seats in the south stands. Students and faculty members buying season books are seated in the north stands.

"Football ticket allotment is a complicated problem and we cannot hope to satisfy every fan who desires tickets on or near the fifty-yard line, but we do want a plan which will be fair to all alumni and stadium subscribers," declared Mr. Crisler in outlining his plan of procedure to the editor of the WEEKLY.

Since coming to Minnesota, he has heard many complaints regarding the situation and the present allotment methods. He feels that the committee of eight representing the various groups concerned should reach some agreement on the matter which will be satisfactory to the officials and to the purchasers of football tickets.

The study of the situation will be welcomed by all alumni who have had trouble in securing seats for individual games during the season. Thousands of alumni plan to attend only one or two games and do not buy season tickets.

Gopher Nine Wins Two Conference Games

The Gopher baseball team got away to a flying start in the conference race by taking two games from the strong Indiana team. The games were played at Bloomington. The Minnesotans won the first game 5 to 4 with Carlblom on the mound and Mattson allowed only seven scattered hits in the second game and the score was 8 to 2. The Gophers took advantage of Hoosier errors to score the eight runs from as many hits. LeRoy Timm worked behind the bat in both contests for the Gophers and knocked the ball out of the lot for a home run in the third inning of the second game.

The hitting of the Minnesota pitchers was a feature of the series. Both Mattson and Carlblom collected two hits in four times at bat. In the first game, Carlblom struck out four men. Eight batters were retired to the bench by Mattson.

The two victories put Minnesota at the top in the conference standings. The first home game will be played on Northrop Field on May 16 with Purdue as the opponent. The Gophers were scheduled to meet Wisconsin at Madison on Saturday May 3.

Senior Activities Are Planned

Cap and Gown Day Program will be held in Northrop Memorial Auditorium

CAP and Gown Day, Thursday, May 15, as usual will usher in the commencement activities of the June graduates. This year, however, the parade of the robed seniors will take a different course about the campus from customary. Senior men and women, wearing their gowns for the first time, will assemble on the parade grounds, cross to the Armory, and then go directly to the new Cyrus Northrop Memorial Auditorium where there will be songs and addresses by President Coffman and Winston Molander, all-senior president.

Several unusual features will be added to the exercises this year. Last year it was decided that a week of senior activities was too long, and the class of 1929 shortened this traditional week to three days. This June the graduating class will follow this program. The use of the Cyrus Northrop Memorial Auditorium is an entirely new event also, and the omission of an outside speaker at the graduation exercises will make the program somewhat more brief.

A rehearsal for the commencement exercises will be held in the morning of Friday, June 6. On the same day the traditional tree planting will take place, and in the evening President Coffman will hold a reception for seniors at his home.

The next evening, Saturday, June 7, the Union board of governors will be hosts at an all-senior party. This may turn into a picnic, but nothing definite has yet been decided.

Sunday the Baccalaureate services will be held in the Memorial Auditorium at 11 a. m. President Coffman will be the only speaker at these services.

Then on Monday, June 9, the final graduation exercises will be carried out in the University Stadium. This year the senior class is attempting to make more room for the conferring of honors than in previous years by having fewer speeches. President Coffman is to be the principal speaker in all commencement exercises.

Some fitting memorial will be left by the class as usual, but what this is to be has not yet been decided.

The main feature of the exercises this year is that the class of 1930 will be the first June graduating class to use the new Memorial Auditorium. The class which graduated at the end of the winter quarter held their exercises in the new Building, but the June class feels that the use of the Auditorium is a privilege which adds great attraction to graduation week.

Announcement of committees for senior week was made early in April by the president, Winston Molander. Hal Kelley heads the executive committee. Assisting him are Ellwood Johnson, Richard Laska, Mildred Syverson, Cecil Kirk, Elizabeth McMillan, Jane Scott, Carl Anderson, and John Jansen.

Chairmen of the other committees are as follows: senior days, Theodore Fritsche; commencement announcements, Robert Dunn; cap and gown day, Edward Martini; senior reception, Esther Martin; athletics, Lloyd Westin; ivy planting, George Smith; commencement day, L. Frederick Martin; finance, Erling Berg; office, Roy Randell; all-senior pictures, Nicholas Julian; tree planting, Frank J. Belina; invitations, Doris Roby; senior memorial, Elinor Thompson; baccalaureate, John Madden; senior traditions, Elbert Hartwick; publicity, Harrison Salisbury; class of 1930 alumni, Kathryn Doyle; senior smoker, Werner Gullander, and senior picnic, I. J. Fleckenstein.

The juniors of the School of Mines and Metallurgy gave their annual banquet for the seniors of the school at the Ritz Hotel on April 25. The students in charge of the affair were as follows: general arrangements, W. Togo Ericson, chairman, James Hill and George Harper; entertainment, Fred Johnson, chairman, Howard Schipper and Nicholas Kurzeck; finance, Gilbert Willson, chairman, Tullis Carter, Arthur Nelson and Karl Hehl; blue print committee, Walter Harvey, chairman, Irving Sommermeyer, Norman Helland and Heinrich Rathman.

Many Alumni To Visit Europe This Summer

Louisa Amundson, '23, is the S. T. C. A. (Student Third Cabin Association) representative, who has been organizing tours of Europe for several summers past. This year she is located in Chicago, Illinois, and has appointed Priscilla Boyd, '32, as the active organizer on the University of Minnesota campus. Judging from the list of names of those who intend to "cross the waters" this summer, Priscilla has lost no time in getting people to join the very interesting and inexpensive tours with the S. T. C. A. conduct each summer.

On June 14, sailing aboard the S. S. New Amsterdam, we find Marjorie Baumgardner, '27Ed, Ellen Edmonds, '27Ed, Helen de Lury, '30, and Alta Jones, '26; '27G. On board the S. S. Rotterdam, which is to sail June 28, Priscilla (in person), Charlotte Larson, '30, Margaret Pinger, '31, Della Winkelman, Virginia Barnard, '32, Juliet Hazard, '30, and Catherine Campbell, '31Ed, will all be present, fortified and ready to tackle the whole of Europe with their new clothes and traveling attire.

The day after the fourth of July celebration, Marabeth Hobbs and Gladys Riker will sail on the new S. S. Volendam. Vivian and Bernice Cady will sail on July 12, to visit Spain and the Southern European countries. They are to travel aboard the S. S. New Amsterdam.

Mr. ('28) and Mrs. E. C. Wilson (Harriet Ellis, '28Ed) are to indulge in a belated honeymoon. Surely this was a thing worth waiting for. They are to sail on July 26, aboard the S. S. Rotterdam, and from thence will travel hither and yon on the European continent. Of course, no one told us that this was to be a honeymoon, but they were married last August, and so we just guessed that that is what it is to be. Who knows whether or not we are right?

Helen G. Canoyer, '25B, an assistant in the School of Business, Melba Hurd, '27, an instructor in the department of speech, Jessie Arrick and Dorothy Magnus, '25Ed, are to sail on the S. S. Stantendam, June 21. They are to be on a general tour and will spend the entire summer abroad.

As "Andy" says, "Oh, me!" What a trip! Let's all go!

▼ A life spent in household toil may not be entirely wasted, but it certainly can not be sweet.

We are quite sure that good times and the pleasures of life make life sweeter. The next time you do any household task by hand which could be performed by electricity . . . ask yourself, "Is it worth it when electricity will do it for me for a cent or two?"

Electricity, by doing so many of your household tasks, makes life not only sweeter . . . but through the time saved . . . longer.

Fifty Years of Transportation

Alumnus Summarizes Phenomenal Development in Transport Field During the Past Half Century

By Roy V. Wright '98E

WHILE steam vessels were experimented with in this country as early as 1787, it was not until 1807 that Fulton's Clermont made its trial trip on the Hudson River. The first steam voyage across the Atlantic was made in 1819, but almost 20 years elapsed before steam operation across the ocean was regularly established. The first steam ferry-boat is said to have been used between New York and Brooklyn in 1814. Canal building began in this country late in the 18th century, but little real progress was made until several decades had passed. Railroad building started in a small way about a hundred years ago. The first passenger street car line, of a rather crude sort, was opened for operation in 1833.

The year 1880—when the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was organized—marks approximately the half way point in the life of these particular types of transportation in the United States. At that time there was only one transcontinental railway, although the eastern section of the country was fairly well covered with a network of railway lines. The electric street railway did not exist; indeed, the first street railway to be equipped entirely with electric cars, and successfully and continuously operated, was not built until 1887. Automobiles came much later, and airplanes only recently. Transportation facilities of all types, however, have grown by leaps and bounds since 1880, and more particularly since the beginning of the era of mass production, which is so directly dependent on ample and efficient transport.

According to "Lloyd's Register of Shipping," the world shipping tonnage in 1880 was composed of 4,834 iron steamers, 5,070,265 gross tons; 1,644 iron sailing vessels, 1,473,320 gross tons; and 10,291 wooden sailing ships, 3,276,686 gross tons—a grand total of 9,820,271 gross tons. The latest figures compiled by the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce of the United States (100 gross tons and over) as of June 30, 1929, included 29,612 steam vessels and motorships, 66,407,393 gross tons; and 2,870 sailing vessels, 1,666,919 gross tons—a grand total of 68,074,312 gross tons. The world shipping tonnage in 1929 was therefore very nearly seven times that of 1880, although the world's population probably increased less than 40 per cent in that period.

Satisfactory comparative data as to the growth of inland waterborne com-

Mr. Wright will come from New York to be the principal speaker at the Engineering alumni-faculty dinner which will be held for the first time this year as a feature of the Engineers' Day program on May 16. The dinner will be held in the Minnesota Union at six o'clock and the cost per plate will be one dollar. President Coffman and Dean Leland are also scheduled as speakers. An invitation to the dinner is extended to all Engineering alumni and their wives. W. T. Ryan '05E, is chairman of the alumni-faculty dinner committee.

Mr. Wright is managing editor of "Railway Age," and editor of "Railway Mechanical Engineer" and has been a close student of the problems of transportation. Before joining the staff of the Simmons-Boardman Publishing Company in 1904 he served as mechanical engineer for two railroads. The article on this page appeared in an engineering publication.

merce of the United States for the past 50 years are not available. It is interesting to note, however, that the records of the Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, indicate that the tons carried on rivers, canals and connecting channels in 1928 were 227 millions as compared to 125 million in 1920; while 126 million tons of domestic traffic were handled at the ports on the Great Lakes in 1928, as compared to 99 million in 1920.

In 1880 the railroads of this country handled 37 billion ton-miles of freight traffic, or about 740 ton-miles per inhabitant; in 1929 they produced 492 billion ton-miles, or 4,100 ton-miles per inhabitant—5½ times as much per person.

The horse-drawn street cars of the early days, partially superseded by cable cars in the 70's and 80's, gave way to the electric cars which were introduced in the late 80's. At the beginning of 1930 there were more than 42,500 miles of street and interurban railway track in operation in this country, not to mention a great number of commercially operated motor buses.

There is now about one automobile to every five people in the United States. The four passenger cars of 1895 had increased to more than 23 million in 1929, and the 410 motor trucks of 1904 to 3,370,000 in 1929.

The commercial use of the airplane for carrying mail, merchandise, and passengers has justified itself and is being extended steadily.

The foreign trade of the United States (both imports and exports) was six times greater in 1929 than in 1880.

These improvements have had a most profound effect on the social, economic, and political life of our people. The half-century before the organization of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers measured progress from almost primitive conditions of living in this country—especially away from the seacoast and navigable rivers—to relatively high standards of living, the national wealth increasing from $207 per capita in 1830 to $869 in 1880. In 1922, the latest date for which figures are now available, it had grown to $2,918 per capita.

The effect of these changes upon our social and economic life almost staggers the imagination. The products of every part of the nation, and of other nations as well, are easily and readily available to all other habitable sections of this country. Fresh fruits and vegetables from the South and the Far West are to be found on the tables of our northern cities during the entire winter. Cheap and ample transportation, and time- and labor-saving machinery and devices in the factory, the office, and the home make it possible for constantly increasing numbers of our people to find time and means to broaden their contacts and horizons. The farmer and his family are no longer isolated from the town and city. We have been welded as a people into one great family. True, this has brought with it problems of various sorts, some of them of no mean proportions, but are they not, after all, small and insignificant compared with the benefits which have been secured? And are not those who are responsible for bringing these new forces into being, with their resulting complications, capable of analyzing and assisting to overcome these difficulties?

The editor of "Poor's Manual of Railroads of the United States" for 1881, in reviewing the railway conditions of 1880, the year in which our Society was organized, made this statement: "There was never a railroad built in the United States where the people along its line did not make ten dollars out of it where its owners made one. In the first place, they get their products transported for one dollar, where before the railroad was opened they paid $20. A corresponding saving is made on whatever they have to purchase. They get their products moved by rail as far in one hour as they used to move them by horses in 24 hours. Their farms, which previous to the railroad were worth $3 or $4 an acre, come suddenly to be worth $20."

The author of the above statement did not, of course, foresee the still greater returns which were to come from the improved transportation facilities, upon which the present industrial age has been built, with the resulting increases in national wealth, and making possible an average standard of living far beyond anything that had been imagined in the earlier days.

Improvements which have been made in rail service alone in the last seven years have revolutionized practices of purchasing and stocking materials, with huge benefits to the manufacturers and merchandisers—and that without reference to the contributions made by the use of the automobiles, which, supplementing other forms of transport, has given a quick and reliable service to every nook and corner of the habitable portions of the country. The airplane, too, has helped to annihilate distance to an astonishing degree.

The engineer must continue with vigor and persistence his efforts toward improving the efficiency and economical operation of all forms of transport, for this will tend still further to expand and enrich the life of our people—not the wealthy or more fortunate ones only, but every individual citizen. That progress in this direction is assured is indicated in no uncertain way by the contribution in this Transportation Section of the Fifty-Year Progress Reports.

Just as quick and reliable freight service has revolutionized practices in manufacturing and merchandising, so may scientific study of the problems concerned with congested population centers suggest measures for bringing relief through decentralization processes which may be made possible, at least to a certain degree, by the better use and adaptation of transport facilities in conjunction with other measures.

The engineer has been a large factor in making possible modern methods of transport and of maintaining and operating them. His influence must also be exerted in bringing about that coordination of the different types of transport facilities which will best serve the public needs—his services are needed here just as surely as they were in the studies of the elimination of waste in industry. Fortunately progress has already been started in these directions, as is evidenced in the use and coordination by the railroads with their other services, of motor transport, or the air-rail services that are now available for long-distance passenger travel.

These experiments must be supplemented by searching scientific analysis to determine how each type of transport can best be used in combination with the others. The situation must also be handled in a statesmanlike manner, for the problem promises to be one of the most complicated and difficult of those in the transportation field which must be adjusted in the years just ahead of us, involving as it does engineering ability and direction as well as political and governmental relationships.

These are merely suggestive of some of the typical broader problems in which transportation is concerned, which, while not lying strictly or entirely within the field of engineering, will yet require the interest and services of transport engineers and experts if an early and correct solution is to be assured. Do not such problems challenge our engineers and the engineering societies to a larger interest and greater achievements in matters of public service?

Artists Visit Campus

The department of Art Education participated during the past week in entertaining the annual convention of the Western Arts Association which met in Minneapolis May 6-9. They were hosts at a tea and art exhibit in the art department in the Old Physics building on Thursday afternoon, May 8, when Herr Hoffman, noted artist and teacher of Munich, Germany, lectured to the association through the courtesy of the University of Minnesota. Herr Hoffman was brought to this country by the University of California to instruct in their summer session this year.

Robert S. Hilpert, assistant professor in art education, directed the work on exhibits of art work done by students all over the United States.

The department was also represented by a student of art, Helen Norby, senior in education, who did interpretive dancing for the art section of the association on Tuesday afternoon, May 6 at the Curtis Hotel. At the same time Professor S. Chatwood Burton of the department of architecture spoke on "Stagecraft under Limitations".

Professor Donald G. Paterson of psychology addressed the vocational education section meeting at the Curtis Hotel on Tuesday afternoon, speaking on "Mechanical Ability Tests," and Dr. E. M. Haggerty, dean of education, spoke on "Education and the New World" at the general session Tuesday evening at the Leamington Hotel.

The Western Arts Association was formed in 1922 by a consolidation of the Western Drawing and Western Manual Training associations.

Chicago WEEK BY WEEK

By PAUL B. NELSON, '26E

BANQUET: Exactly 1,113 postcards were mailed. Exactly 54 persons made reservations. And (we're ashamed to admit) exactly 32 alumni showed up last Tuesday evening, April 29th, at the Union League Club for the annual alumni banquet of Minnesota alumni living in Chicago and suburbs.

But if we could have described on our postcards the evening these 32 enjoyed, the banquet room should have been packed.

The principal speaker of the evening was Dean E. E. Nicholson who immediately turned the affair into a classroom session—the sort we used to leave reluctantly—and explained the how, what and why of university affairs.

"And now are there any questions?" good Dean Nick asked. There were. Enough to keep him talking an extra hour and a half.

The small gathering was quite representative. Several had not attended an alumni affair for years, they said.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Train Yeaton, B. S. '95, of 7615 Sheridan Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Clovis M. Converse, E. E. '09, of 7918 Champlain Ave.

Loretta L. Hermann, Ed'23, and Minerva L. Hermann, Ed'29, both of 525 Arlington Place.

Godfrey J. ("Doc") Eyer; Ludwig C. Monson, Bus. '25; George Swain Ex; J. A. McCree Ex'12.

As usual, the engineers were very much in evidence. They were: Barton Juell, C. E. '26; M. M. Ludolph, E'26; O. T. Boquet, E'23; Fred W. Little, E'27; Donald Dixon, E'27; Floyd C. Appleman, '23; Ernest J. Teberg, E'26; and G. F. Huseby, '24.

Seen recently: H. W. Lostrom, EE'26, with the Northern Pacific of St. Paul, here on a two-day visit. Lostrom, looking quite prosperous, tells us that the proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads is holding up numerous proposed advancements of their personnel.

Johnny Stark, E'28, former basketball star and Clarence Neil, E'27, here in Chicago permanently after several months' training with Westinghouse at Pittsburgh. Stark is now in elevator engineering at the Westinghouse works on North Avenue. Neil is a sales engineer in the marine and surface transportation division at Westinghouse's downtown office in the Civic Opera Building, 20 North Wacker Drive.

My Sixty Years In Minnesota

TO the readers of the ALUMNI WEEKLY, Greeting! Having been asked to write a sketch of my life, especially that part of it—thirty-eight years—in which I was connected with the State University, I gladly consented, since I regarded it as a privilege and an honor.

As I look back over the past years, some appear in the hazy light of a dream; hence, dear friends, you will be charitable, I trust, if the "Memorabilia" of my four score-and-four years do not contain the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

On a cold, blustering day, January 27, 1846, at Harrington, Maine, I was ushered into the humble home of Denison G., and Martha Wakefield Campbell, the youngest of four children. My parents were of Scotch-English descent; they were devoted Christians and showed in their lives the praiseworthy traits of character, found in the New England Puritans. When I was a year old my father died, leaving mother with four small children to rear and educate. Nobly did she fulfill her mission. Her children, Mrs. A. W. Shoppe (later Mrs. Lawrence), the wife of a Civil War veteran, Lewis W. Campbell, also a Civil War veteran, and A. R. Campbell, all well-known in Minneapolis, bore testimony in their lives to her wisdom and faithfulness.

My father on his deathbed dedicated me to the service of God. This may be a reason, at least in part, for my early attention to the more serious side of life, my devotion to Church and Sunday School.

Our home life was simple and well regulated; each member of the family had his daily task; a parental warning in the shape of an alder withe, lying in plain sight on the mantel-piece, was a mute reminder of the rules of the household to a would-be idler or truant.

It was a long dusty road that little feet had to travel to reach our Baptist meeting house—an irreverent traveller once called it the Lord's barn—but we never thought on a Sunday morning of staying at home. We children, seated sedately in Grandfather's corner pew, listened, sometimes I fear, drowsily, to the preacher, as he proclaimed the Gospel from his perch-like pulpit high up on the wall. How much of the sermon was understood and later practiced, I cannot say; but the church-going habit was formed, and none of us ever regretted this early training or turned aside from the paths upon which our mother had guided our footsteps.

We attended the District School in the little red? (unpainted) school house, for usually three months in summer, and in winter. Going to school was my delight; nothing but illness was allowed to interfere with that pastime. To be sure, it was a real punishment, when, for some mischievous act, I was obliged to sit on the "boys' side" beside some overgrown boy and see the other girls

Reminiscences of Mrs. Matilda Campbell Wilkin '77, known to thousands of graduates at "Frau" Wilkin who for 38 years was intimately connected with the University of Minnesota as student and teacher.

giggle at my shy, half-penitent looks. A greater trial, however, was to speak a "piece" before the school. I suffered for days in advance, facing that ordeal. One day, the teacher (my sister) made me stand in front, the whole forenoon, because I could not (or would not) recite the little poem beginning

*"How pleasant is Saturday night
When I've tried all the week to be good."*

And then on our way home she asked me if I were tired. Would you not have been tempted, as I was, to throw a book at her head?

While living at home, I was the playmate of my two brothers; I shared with them the tetter, ball game and fence-walking, in fact was a regular romp. From one sport, however, I was prohibited, trout fishing. "You talk too much," they said, "and the fish won't bite."

Thus my early childhood passed. When I was eleven, I went to live with an aunt in East Machias; there I had better school privileges. One term in a school paper was this prophecy from the pen of our Teacher:

*The next is Matilda all alone,
Who studies in an upper tone;
But studies with her own good will,
She's bound some higher place to fill.*

Trifling as it may seem, those two last lines were an inspiration to me from that time forth. O Teachers, let us not forget the influence upon the young of a helpful word, spoken in due season!

After two years I entered Washington Academy, of which J. C. Caldwell, later a Brigadier-General in the Civil War, was Principal. It was a happy day for me when I could tread academic halls; for now I could write to mother and former school mates that I was studying Latin.

At sixteen I taught my first school—salary, two dollars a week and board. A country district and a wild, half-civilized throng of youngsters who had driven off one teacher and threatened to kill the next one who came. At the end of the first week, a weary, homesick school ma'am walked several miles to her home, there to meet a fond mother, proud of her younger daughter, a fledgling teacher. During the following five years I taught school in summer and attended Washington Academy in winter, the goal "some higher place to fill" ever before me. In 1867 with the assistance of my big-hearted brother, Lewis, I was enabled to attend the State Normal School at Salem, Massachusetts. With a scant wardrobe and limited pin-money, but with a glad heart and resolute purpose I came to another stepping-stone on the upward climb. By working part time for my board, and with aid from the Students' Loan Fund I remained two years and was graduated with honors on January 21, 1869. My hymn was sung at graduation.

In April 1870, just sixty years ago last month, Mother, Brother Arthur, and I followed the pioneers of our family to the "wild and woolly west." As a graduate of a Massachusetts Normal School near Boston, naturally I kneeed it all, but found out my mistake when given an examination by the school board of St. Anthony Falls of which Rev. Mr. Chase, brother-in-law of Dr. Folwell, and J. B. Gilfillan, later University Regent, were the members of the committee on duty.

However, through their favor, or a fortunate rising on my part to meet an emergency, I passed, and thereafter taught three years in the eighth grade, in a building that stood on the present site of the East Side high school. Burning with that unquenchable desire to fill that "higher place," I resigned my position and entered the University of Minnesota in the fall of 1873 as a special student to study languages, and I chose the "literary course." An account of the faculty, campus and buildings of that time is given so well in Forty years at the University of Minnesota that I need not repeat it here. We studied and recited in the west wing of Old Main. We were mightily set up with pride, when this building was enlarged and decorated with a cupola. Among the members of the faculty, to all of whom I bow with deep reverence and respect, Professors Versal Walker and Gabriel Campbell were the two whose instruction I was permitted to enjoy; two scholars, two teachers than whom none ever better influenced the lives of our University students. Dr. Folwell was our reverend and beloved "prexy," our friend, counsellor and guide.

Four classes had preceded us. How we admired those learned graduates, of whom Julius E. Miner, Helen Ely Williamson '75, and Professor J. C. Hutchinson, Dr. Will Leonard, and Martha Butler Childs, and Charles E. Thayer '76, still survive, loved and respected by all. The class of '76, placed a bronze memorial tablet on a knoll oak and we followed their example. Illustrious names are found on the records of '78 and '79, and of classes on down to the present. But we may be pardoned, if we still hold the opinion that '77 is the Class of the University. Once while discussing the propriety of engaging the Fort Snelling band for our Junior Exhibition one of our number remarked that we were the poorest class financially that ever was, or ever would be, in this University. I am inclined to think he was right. However, though poor in purse, obliged to work our way through college for the most part, we claim credit as a class for loyalty, industry and perseverance, and as alumni for having translated into practice with measurable success, our class motto: "en zen alla en zen"—Not merely to live but to live well.

The class of '77 gave a creditable Junior Exhibition and originated the custom of "Class Day," the exercises held on June 5, two days preceding our Commencement. In our class of sixteen we had two clergymen, Graham E. Campbell, missionary to Africa who later met a tragic death at Ingleside Seminary in Virginia of which he was the honored president, and Charles W. Savidge, the "marrying parson" who has 6,180 couples to his credit; and three members of the Bar, John W. Perkins, E. B. Pribble and Judge Stephen Mahoney who in addition to his civic duties, for eighteen years bore the burdens of a University Regent; one editor and publisher, A. M. Welles, well known in the state by pulpit and press and who was chosen from the thousands of alumni to deliver the address at the laying of the cornerstone of our Memorial Stadium; four successful business men, Fred and Frank Eustis, E. A. Currie and Albert Hendrickson; one student "par excellence," John Charles Kassube, whose premature death was greatly lamented; three teachers, Joel N. Childs, so noble in character, so efficient in teaching, who a few years ago was called to leave at a moment's notice, his chosen work and hear the Master's "well-done," Viola Fuller Miner, our talented historian and author of books on Home Development, and Matilda Campbell Wilkin, forty years of whose life were devoted to the pleasant task of instructing the young; one architect, Walter Stone Pardee, the genial Christian gentleman, and one cherished daughter of a Rector's home, Lottie A. Rollit, who, too a flower for earth, was early transplanted into the gardens of heaven.

Our class illustrates the blessedness of non-realized youthful ideals, as students Savidge and Mahoney vowed celibacy, when more mature, they lost sight of the stars guiding to that goal, and fell from their lofty plane; they both married—we forgive them.

When we graduated we followed the custom of having each member take part in the exercises—a good custom say parents and friends but long since in desuetude. The Salutatory "Education—Who needs it?" was given by E. A. Currie. By election of the class, I had the Valedictory—the subject: Dreams. Others gave essays or orations.

The graduates of the early days were favored by another good custom, viz: that of attending the President's Reception, an annual social event when they could meet socially the whole faculty.

As a class we have been loyal to our Alma Mater and to one another. We regard with love and esteem our noble presidents, more especially W. W. Fowell, under whom we were students; and we love and honor George E. Vincent and Lotus D. Coffman who still inspire us by their exemplary lives and service.

The roll of '77 is reduced to five names: Stephen Mahoney, Fred Eustis, Charles W. Savidge, A. M. Welles, and Matilda Campbell Wilkin. We hold our reunion this year, May 14, at the Nicolet Hotel. Our "Record Book" has been deposited in the archives of the University Library.

Alumni Contribute To University Museum

WHEREVER the ideal of education is upheld there must be a museum of natural history. The University of Minnesota was only following tradition when it set up its cases of stuffed birds and animals in dim corridors for children to explore on Saturday afternoons and students to ponder over.

Through the efforts of a group of taxidermists and artists and the donations of many contributors a museum has gradually been built up in the halls of the Zoology building on the campus which, though small, rivals larger exhibits in artistry and interest.

The majority of the bird groups are on the ground floor. Cases line the hall on either side in which small groups of representative North American birds are arranged. There are also several cases of ducks with colored photographs used as back grounds for the groups. Mr. and Mrs. Jenness Richardson are the main contributors to the bird groups and Mr. W. J. Breckenridge arranged the ducks.

In side rooms on the same floor are large cases with groups of sheep and caribou and smaller cases with squirrels and birds arranged in their natural settings, complete even to the flora and geology. These are very well done, especially the sheep.

There are aquariums of fish and turtles in one of the side halls, where every-day bass and sunfish peer from the cloudy water into the dim hall, their bodies shining like the most exquisite deep-sea fish, and turtles, ranging in size from very small to very large, sleep peacefully on colored stones or crawl slowly to the tiny raft to rest.

Later the spectator will be willing to climb the steps to the exhibits on the third floor above. Here are several large cases with elaborate groups of black bear, beaver, deer, and birds.

The bear group, planned and designed by James Ford Bell, '01, was constructed by Mr. and Mrs. Jenness Richardson and is beautifully worked out. One watches with interest as the large bear catches a fish for a hungry looking cub while the mother bear guards two other cubs, rolling in play on the grass. There are rocks and trees, and plants that seem to really grow in the soil which covers the bottom of the case. This same realism is utilized in the beaver group, which is equally well constructed, and in the cases of birds, some nest-building, some perched on twigs and branches, and some even in flight. The backgrounds for the large cases were painted by Charles Abel Corwin.

If one examines all the exhibits he will come upon two or three queer looking creatures which on closer inspection are found to be tiny images of prehistoric animals, modeled with infinite care. They are also placed in appropriate settings where strange shaped palm trees grow.

There is in one corner a case of sea plants, nebulous things with delicate fibers, sea fans, and coral, and starfish, and Venus' flower-baskets. At another end there are several cases of large birds with their nests, and one case shows a side view of the intricate tunneling which some types of birds construct for their homes.

A great deal of work, effort, and money has been necessary to make the museum a place of interest and instruction. Dr. Thomas S. Roberts is the director of the Museum of Natural History, and Mr. William Kilgore Jr. is the curator. Many of the larger exhibits have been made possible by the donations of men and women interested in the work which is being carried on. Perhaps the greatest contributor is Mr. James Ford Bell, but a large group of people whose generosity has helped produce these exhibits have had their names commemorated by tablets near the cases. One who is interested can find there several well known names.

Daily Honored

The Minnesota Daily was given all-American rating in the college and high school newspaper contest sponsored by the National Scholastic Press association. The association also holds contests for college and high school annuals and magazines and every state in the Union is represented in the various contests.

The headquarters of this nation-wide organization is located at the University of Minnesota and Fred L. Kildow, an instructor in the Department of Journalism is director of the association. The college and high school newspapers entered in the contest were judged by Mr. Kildow and Bruce McCoy, acting head of the Department of Journalism.

Medical School Ninth In Enrollment

The Medical school of the University of Minnesota ranks ninth among the medical schools of the United States in the number of students enrolled, according to 1929 figures furnished by the American Medical association.

The medical school at the University of Michigan heads the list with 664 students. This is the only school with an enrollment of more than 600.

The Jefferson medical school of Philadelphia is second with 585 students. Third place is claimed by St. Louis University school of medicine with an enrollment of 536. Then comes the Harvard medical school with 515 students, the college of medicine of the University of Illinois, 509; the Northwestern University medical school, 502.

Tufts College medical school is seventh, its enrollment being 493.

The University of Pennsylvania school of medicine with 489 students, the University of Minnesota with 484, and the University of Iowa with 483 are in eighth, ninth and tenth places respectively.

A Visitor Describes Memorial Auditorium

ON entering the doors of the Northrop Memorial auditorium, one finds himself in a large two story foyer. Marble floors containing green inlay re-echo 'neath the feet as we wander and gaze at the display of architecture. Then, as we stroll on through the doors, we enter the passageway which runs around the auditorium, and across the front of the building between the foyer and the main auditorium.

Brown and white tile leads the way to the steps ascending to the balcony, and then turns sharply, and at an easy decline, leads to the stage door and the back stairs. The white stone steps zig-zag up to an overhanging balcony and thence on up to the second floor.

We then open the door and walk into the assembly room. Here, soft rugs deaden the sound of our footsteps. Red, plush covered seats are seen on all sides, the seating capacity, including the balcony being about 4,860 people. On both sides, near the front, we find figured niches containing statues, and in the front center, we find the stage. The stage is 72 feet wide just behind the footlights, and about 48 feet deep. As was shown in the state singing meet, the stage, when crowded will hold 800 people. Below the stage and orchestra pit, carpenters are busy making a sound proof chamber wherein an orchestra or band can practice during a performance. The room is padded with a sound deadener called Celotex.

The basement contains parking space for 139 automobiles, and between the basement and the first floor, there is a large room in which are the heating and air changing plants. The heating apparatus consists of a group of large radiators which are heated by the central heating plant. Cold air is drawn down from the fifth floor, and is driven, by enormous fans, between the radiators and into the auditorium. There are five of these machines, all of which are controlled by a thermostat on the main floor. With all the units in operation, the building can be heated in approximately thirty minutes. If the weather is inclement, or the air too cold, the air is drawn back from the building, washed, and used again.

If necessary, the giant exhaust fans, of which there are five, could empty the air of the auditorium in about four and one half minutes. Under present conditions, the air is changed every ten minutes. The basement has four units of its own, one in each corner, although these units are of a smaller type.

According to Mr. Bjorge, the caretaker, when everything is lighted, 45,000 watts of electricity are used every minute. Much of this is used by the huge center light in the dome of the auditorium which consumes 17,000 watts per minute.

Plan Contest

The annual livestock judging contest of students of agriculture in Minnesota high schools will be held this year at University farm May 15, 16 and 17. The event is sponsored by the University department of agriculture, which will furnish the animals and equipment and act as host to the contestants, and by the instructors of agriculture in Minnesota's various high schools.

Editorial Comment

THE Engineering Alumni-Faculty dinner to be held next Friday as a new feature of the traditional "Engineers' Day" program is an event which should become an annual affair.

Hundreds of alumni who will be able to attend the dinners from year to year should derive real benefit and pleasure from the contacts with fellow members of their own profession. Faculty members and alumni who have messages of vital interest to all members of the profession may be engaged as speakers. The principal speaker at the dinner on Friday evening will be Roy V. Wright '98E, managing editor of Railway Age, and editor of Railway Mechanical Engineer.

It is to be hoped that a large number of Engineers will be present at the gathering in the Minnesota Union and that while assembled the group will take action to make the affair an annual one. If the yearly meetings are to be successful and of interest to the greatest number of former students there must be an active Engineering alumni organization. The elected officers of the group must be willing to assume a certain amount of responsibility and to stimulate action when action is needed.

AND not only the Engineers but every college on the campus should have an active alumni organization. Regular meetings of the various professional groups similar to the gathering and program sponsored by the Medical School Alumni Association at Homecoming last fall should be annual affairs. At these affairs, Minnesotans with like interests and aims would find pleasure in the renewal of friendships and in the widening of their acquaintanceship in their own field of endeavor.

Why not plan meetings of such a nature for the 1930 Homecoming? That event is still far in the offing and alumni have not yet begun to fret about their lack of fifty-yard line reservations but it is not too early to ponder the suggestion. There will be the criticism, of course, that the Homecoming program is already too crowded and that those who trek back to the campus have previous and more important matters on their schedules.

But have they? Outside of a victory over Michigan, what gives Homecomers a greater pleasure than a gossip-fest with former college friends? And where would teachers have a better chance to meet teachers, or lawyers a better chance to meet lawyers, than at gatherings sponsored by the alumni organizations of their respective colleges?

There should be a luncheon with a chairman noted for his wit, and a principal speaker noted for his knowledge and famous for his brevity. Possibly Mint Anderson can spare some rooms in the Minnesota Union for the gatherings. Such meetings should become features of the general Homecoming program and should make the visit to the campus more worthwhile. They should not conflict, of course, with the regular Homecoming dinner.

LAST Saturday was set aside as "Minnesota Day" at the University of Wisconsin. Gopher baseball, track and tennis squads competed at Madison during the afternoon. Minnesotans appreciate the spirit shown by the Wisconsin officials and students in planning such a feature. For more than thirty years the athletic teams of the two institutions have been rivals and the competition has been keen at all times. The baseball game Saturday decided whether Wisconsin or Minnesota should be the leader in the conference race. Such gestures of good will between neighbors and rivals strengthen the cause of intercollegiate athletics.

Art Work of Graduate Attracts Comment

By Donna Overby '32

MISS JOSEPHINE LUTZ, class of 1920, instructor in art education at the university, has been distinguishing herself in the field of art recently.

At present she is completing a series of three murals for the walls of the University High School. These panels, which are four feet high and twenty-seven feet long, with the exception of one which is thirty-five feet long, depict the ideals of school life in a new way. The figures of boys and girls of student age are painted at their tasks in two of the murals and a third portrays the student from childhood to maturity, bringing in the influences of the home and the university itself in his school life.

The thirty-five foot panel, which was completed and hung last fall, represents different studies, art, history, literature, science, and shop work. The second panel, which is nearing completion, but which remains in the studio in the attic of the new Library, represents music, athletics, and drama. The third, growing into life on the large canvas, shows the student's life as he approaches the responsibility of later life. It is of a less definite and more idealistic character.

It is especially interesting after seeing Miss Lutz at work. Her studio is an unfinished room at the top of the new Library, a large place, scarcely to be called a room, scattered with dusty books, packing boxes, and boards, with a plaster covered sand floor and a high raftered ceiling. It is hardly an inspiring place in which to work, but it affords the artist plenty of room for the huge canvases and good light from the many windows. Miss Lutz works rapidly with a large, stiff, artist's brush, dabbing colors with skilful care. Figures come to life slowly, taking on the features and forms of healthy youth. Several students have posed as models for these figures, among them Tom Sherman, Betty Armstrong, Gertrude Lawton, and Helen Williams.

Mr. Charles Boardman, principal of the University High school, worked out the plans for the murals with Miss Lutz with the idea of decoration for the school building which is nearer the students and more in sympathy with their daily lives and interests. Miss Lutz works from charcoal and watercolor sketches in which she originally planned the form of the paintings.

Miss Lutz is a very popular member of the art education faculty. She has been studying art for some years, beginning at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, and later attending the University of Minnesota. After her graduation, she studied under Cameron Booth of the Minneapolis School of Art. This summer, after she finishes her work on the murals in June, she is planning a trip to Europe where she will study.

The Week on the Campus

ENGINEERS will not discard their slide rules and surveying instruments this year to become fair damsels and Beau Brummels of the stage, because members of the Arabs, the engineering dramatic club, have decided that no theatrical production will be staged until next year.

This action was taken because most members of the club are seniors and will finish school in May. As a result there will not be enough time to prepare for the production.

One Arabs' play, a tradition at Minnesota, has been given each year for the last two years. Originally the club planned one production every two years, and members of the organization point out that by omitting a show this year they will be getting back on the former basis.

A tentative list of men considered deserving of the title, "Builders of the Name, University of Minnesota" was drawn up Wednesday at a meeting of the committee appointed by President L. D. Coffman for the purpose.

The list, according to Andrew Boss, head of the committee, will not be made public, as the committee has not completed its work and the final selection will be left to the president and the Board of Regents.

The principles on which the committee is to work were discussed at the meeting. Selections will be limited to those who have been in the direct service of the University.

The list of nominees, Dr. Boss pointed out, will necessarily be small. Those chosen will be inscribed in a plaque to be placed in the foyer of Northrop auditorium.

Agricultural Extension Work

University Specialists Develop Modern Methods and Cooperate With Farm Groups

By F. W. PECK '12Ag

THE Minnesota cooperative agricultural extension work represents the combined efforts of four agencies concerned in extension education of farmers, farm women and rural boys and girls. These agencies, in order of their financial contribution are: the U. S. Department of Agriculture, contributing 35% of the total budget; the counties through county appropriations, 29%; the state, 28%; and the county farm bureaus, 8%.

This service is the sales organization of the Department of Agriculture of the University and of the successful practices and ideas of experienced farmers and home makers in every part of the country. The service consists of bringing to the people living on farms the best methods, ideas and incentives for agricultural improvement that have been found successful for the advancement of the farm business, and valuable in making farm homes and rural communities more desirable places in which to live.

The Central office force consists of nineteen subject matter specialists in such lines as dairying, hogs, beef cattle and sheep, poultry, livestock diseases, plant diseases, farm management, farm forestry, field crops, marketing, clothing, nutrition, and home management. State and district supervisors of club work, county agents and home agent work are maintained in order to provide proper methods and regulatory measures for properly supervising this educational service.

The local field representative employed to bring to all the people the best information available for increasing the effectiveness of farm operations, is known as the county agricultural agent. The agent employed to develop superior types of homemaking and to bring to farm women those ideas and ideals that contribute to a more satisfactory farm life is known as the county home demonstration agent.

Together these two agents form a strong team for the organizing and supervision of the 4-H clubs and their farm and home projects. Thus a balanced extension program of farm, home, and junior projects is the result of the two-agent combination. Until such time as the local people in more counties find it possible and advisable to employ two agents for a full time balanced program, the one agricultural agent must carry as complete a program as possible by promoting home projects through state specialists and local leaders, and by developing 4-H club work through assistance of volunteer leaders and a part time club agent.

COUNTY AGENT WORK

The record of achievement as pictured by the annual reports of the agricultural agents becomes more impressive each year. The significance of these results does not lie wholly nor particularly in the quantitative measure of accomplishments but rather in the rate of progress made, the quality of leadership developed and in the relative amount of new ground broken for further contacts in this service.

The total number of separate extension contacts made during the year as reported by the agents was slightly under one and a half millions, approximately the same as in 1928.

In the analysis of the various types of activities that contribute towards the total number of contacts, there are specific statistical results that are very impressive. For example, the volunteer leadership that has played such an important part in the development of the extension program, increases year by year. In 1929 there were over 6,158 adult voluntary leaders assisting the agents in the counties in developing specific projects in the county program. There were also approximately 1,637 junior volunteer leaders assisting in the 4-H club program. In the local community units, made up of farmers' clubs and township groups, organized for specific types of extension work, there were over 23,116 men enrolled and approximately 24,077 women.

There were 157,020 office calls and 107,461 telephone calls coming into the offices of the 62 county agents during the year. This is an increase of approximately ten percent over that of 1928, and a tremendous increase in the number for these services five years ago. The number of farm visits is one of the measures of farm contacts, as well as the number of home visits by the home demonstration agents. In the county agent work there was a total of 39,548 during the year, indicating a close and valuable contact with farmers at their places of business. All together, a study of the report of the county agent leader indicates another fine record of achievement, measuring up to the standards set at a little higher rate each year by the county workers. While some doubt might be felt as to the completeness of the statistical measurements of results in any one year, they are sufficient to impress one with the fundamental importance of the service being rendered by this type of rural education.

The record of achievement in the principal projects: namely, clothing, nutrition, home management and home poultry, has increased over 1928 because of the assistance given by the increased number of home demonstration agents and the demand of more county agents for this work.

At one time it was a questionable point as to how many of the agents desired this type of activity as a part of their extension program. Today the only question is how many counties can be adequately served, and how long the counties can wait for the service in which they are vitally interested.

William A. Riley, professor and head of the department of zoology, was granted a sabbatical furlough for next year.

Gopher Athletes Have Busy Week

MINNESOTA DAY at the University of Wisconsin on Saturday, May 3, turned out to be a big day for Badger athletes. The Gopher baseball and track teams met defeat while the Minnesota tennis team turned back their Badger foes.

The baseball teams fighting for first place in the conference standings fought for eleven innings before the Badgers were able to take the lead and the game. In the sixth inning, the Gophers took advantage of Wisconsin errors and scored four runs from two safe hits. One of the hits was a homer from the bat of Earl Loose.

In their half of the sixth the Badgers tallied one run and from that point their pitching ace, Maury Farber, held the hard hitting Gophers at bay. In the eighth the Badger batters connected with Carlblom's slants and amassed three runs to make the count four all. The Minnesota hurler had pitched steady ball until the eighth and he had kept the Wisconsin hits well scattered.

Farber scored the winning run in the eleventh when Matthusen singled to enable him to dash home. Summerfield who pitched the first six innings for the Badgers and Farber allowed only four hits during the afternoon while the Minnesota hurlers were nicked for 11 hits.

Wisconsin is well in the lead in the conference race and Minnesota is not at all out of the running. The two teams will meet on Northrop Field on May 20 and that contest promises to be a thriller.

In the meantime the Gophers will attempt to boost their average at the expense of Purdue. Two games between the teams will be played on Northrop Field on May 16 and 17. Victories over the Boilermakers would put the Gophers very much in the running and would make the second Minnesota-Wisconsin contest an important game.

This week end the strong Luther College team of Decorah, Iowa, was scheduled to invade the University baseball precincts. The Iowans have a strong pitching staff and the team is better than average throughout.

Hass Wins Sprints

The Minnesota track and field athletes fared not so well in their meet with the Badger tracksters at Madison. The Gophers were able to take only four of the 15 first places in competition with the champions of the indoor season.

Johnny Hass, Minnesota sprinter, and Sammy Behr of Wisconsin tied for high honors after both athletes won three events. The Minnesota flash placed first in the 100 yard and 220 yard dashes and in the 220 yard low hurdles. Behr won the discus, shot put and tied for first place in the high jump.

Hubert Tierney, Gopher jumper, placed first in the broad jump and set a new mark in that event for a Minnesota athlete with a leap of 23 feet 3 1/2 inches. The old mark of 22 feet 11 inches has stood since 1912 according to tentative reports. Bruce Strain of Minnesota placed third in the mile run and Art Wieseger pressed Gold a worthy of Wisconsin to take second in the half mile.

Other Minnesotans to place were Clarence Munn in the shot put, La Roque in both the high and low hurdles, Nowotny in the quarter mile, and Constans in the javelin throw.

Tennis Men Win

In the tennis matches with Wisconsin the four ranking Gopher players won their matches in both singles and doubles and the final score was 6 to 3 in favor of Coach Phil Brain's men.

In the singles Henry Yudzy defeated Silverman, 6-1, 6-0; Ray Morgan defeated Siegel, 6-4, 6-3; Paul Wolff defeated Meikeljohn, 6-1, 6-3; and Frank Heleniak defeated Gottlieb, 6-2, 6-2. Badger singles winners were Goodfit who beat Dough Johnson, 6-3, 6-4, and Bill Erler who downed Floyd Scherer, 2-6, 6-3, 6-0.

In the doubles Yudzy and Morgan won from Silverman and Meikeljohn, 6-1, 6-3 and Heleniak and Wolff beat Siegel and Gottlieb, 6-1, 6-4. The Badgers, Goodfit and Erler, won from Scherer and Hanson, 6-3, 6-2.

Playing in the Rain

There have been regular football practice sessions during the past two weeks regardless of the rain. On two or three afternoons scrimmage was continued during the showers and the Gopher backs indicated that they know how to advance the ball in the mud as well as on dry land.

A large crowd of spectators watched the scrimmage on one rainy afternoon from the vantage of cars parked along the side of Northrop Field near the College of Engineering. The light Gopher backs dodged, waded, slipped and dived through the mud and water for sensational gains. Several of the men were given the opportunity to carry the ball and they displayed drive both through the line and around the ends considering the condition of the field.

Several veterans including Kirk and Appman are out of spring practice on account of injuries and others must take things easy if their chronic ailments are to be conquered before next fall. As a result, the names of several new men appear in the tentative line-ups of the scrimmage teams. Among the men who have seen considerable service in the ball toting capacity are Leksell, Somers, Hass, Manders, and Riebeth. When the fall practice opens several other veteran backs including Kirk, Timm, Brownell, and Burdick will be ready for action.

Coach Crisler has his worries about the line and numerous men are being tried out at the various positions. Line-men of experience and weight are rare in the Gopher camp.

Professor C. H. Rogers, '16P; '18, professor of pharmaceutical chemistry at the University of Minnesota, has recently written a book, Inorganic Pharmaceutical Chemistry, which has been used for the first time as a text book this spring. This is the first book to treat this subject in a compact manner. It is the only book written on pharmaceutical chemistry in several years, and is also the only book on the subject written with any degree of continuity. Other books written on this phase of chemistry have been more or less disorganized and just a gathering in one place of facts concerning it. This new book is being published by Lea and Febiger of Philadelphia. Congratulations are surely due Professor Rogers!

To render this service in a way that fits the needs of the American people, the operation of the System is conducted by 24 different companies, each adapted to the area it serves.

These Associated Companies have the benefit of study and analysis by the staff of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, leading to progressive improvements in service. Each of the Bell Companies takes advantage of the research findings of the Bell Laboratories, commanding scientific talent unsurpassed in any industry.

The quality and precision manufacture of the telephone equipment and apparatus used by the entire System are assured by the specialized production methods of the Western Electric Company, which manufactures for the Bell System.

Today the Bell System is building ahead of the requirements of the public—to the end that the people of this nation may have the greater telephone facilities which they will need tomorrow.

My Sixty Years in Minnesota

IN September 1877, through the helpful influence of Dr. Folwell, I was engaged as an instructor at this University. Madam Smith was our Preceptress (really Dean of Women). Owing to the limited number of teachers, I was called upon to teach a variety of subjects. English Literature, German, History, Latin, French, and Old English (Anglo-Saxon). My recitation room was 41, second floor, Old Main Building, in which, at inopportune times, sizzling steam would penetrate the auricular nerves of teacher and students, and odors, daily repeated, coming up from the restaurant in the basement would so appeal to the gustatory sense, that "J'ai faim" and "Mallzeit" were more apparent than readiness in translation. Some of my readers will recall these experiences.

When the Old Main was destroyed by fire in 1904, I suffered the loss of many books and valuable papers; among the latter were records of Dr. Northrop's witty sayings, more especially his repartees at "Chapel Exercises," after some distinguished speaker, possessing "superiority complex," had displayed his professional oratory. Think of the loss to posterity!

THE TEACHER'S INFLUENCE

AFTER a few years, the subjects assigned to me were German under Professor J. G. Moore and Old English under Dr. George E. MacLean, two courteous, successful department heads, for whom I still retain sincere affection and esteem. "Old English," comparative philology on a small scale, did not appeal to many students; I did not blame them for calling it "dry". What could the teacher do? Nothing, but keep them digging at dry roots, believing that this was a good foundation for English Literature later on. Theodore Soares, D.D., ('91) of Chicago University (recently resigned from the University of Chicago, after twenty-five years of service, to become professor of ethics at the California Institute of Technology and to be minister of the Union Liberal Church in Pasadena) of whom we are justly proud, told me, not long since, that this brief study of languages in our class led him to change to the "Classical Course," and thence, later, to the ministry. So, compensations do come to the sometimes well-nigh-discouraged teacher!

In these earlier years, we had marks for sins of "omission and commission"; absence, non-attendance at Chapel, et cetera, my Puritan conscience caused me to mark according to rules; as a result I soon found that my victims were subjects of a more rigid regime than delinquents in other classes. Thereafter I began to relax and mix "Charite bien ordonnee" with law. I was also very conscientious in regard to examination papers. Believing that an instructor himself should read the papers, and thus become better acquainted himself with the mental attitude of each student, I would never allow a substitute to read them. It was at times real drudgery to do it; but it paid; and I do not regret having done the work.

AT ATLANTIC SHIPWRECK

IN the summer of 1880, I was sent as a delegate from Minnesota to the "Centenary of Sunday Schools" in London. I joined a Tourist party, and took passage on the "Anchoria" of the Anchor Line. About twenty-four hours out from New York, we collided with the "Queen," an English steamer bound for New York. The Captain, believing the "Anchoria" was about to sink, ordered the passengers transferred to the "Queen." I shall never forget the thrill that seized me at the Captain's order: "Man the life-boats! Women to the Hurricane Deck!" My diary records: "The scene on board, baffled description." All felt that death was imminent. My hitherto professed faith in God was put to a test. Could I now, in close view of the yawning ocean waves, still trust Him? Yes, I could, and did. Several passengers were injured, but no lives were lost; and the "Anchoria" kept afloat by energetic work at the pumps came into New York harbor, twelve hours after our arrival there.

The superstitious seamen said that we, the ministers and other delegates to the Sunday School Convention, were the "Jonahs" that caused the disaster.

An incident here well illustrates the unconscious influence of a person's life: the night after the collision, as we on board the "Queen" were about to retire, a lady, evidently timid and nervous, asked me in a beseeching tone to share her stateroom. "Why do you ask me, a stranger?" I inquired. "Because you are a Christian," she replied. "How do you know that?" "As I passed your stateroom last night, I saw you reading your Bible." By the way, that Bible was lost in the wreck; and in London I was given a "Centennial" Bible which I prize very highly.

After two days in New York, having received an encouraging telegram from Brother to "go on, if I felt like it," I started again, with the likeminded passengers, aboard the "Etruria." Some refused to tempt old Neptune again, and returned home. By giving up an anticipated visit in Scotland, and taking the night train, the "Flying Dutchman" to London, we arrived in time to attend very interesting exercises of the "Centenary," one of which was the unveiling of the memorial statue of Robert Raikes, founder of Sunday Schools, by the Right Honorable Earl of Shaftesbury.

MARRIED IN 1882

ON June 21, 1882, occurred my marriage to Geo. F. Wilkin of Warsaw, New York. Governor Pillsbury and wife, Regent Chute and wife, and nearly all the faculty were present at the wedding; their gift was a beautiful French marble clock. My husband was a graduate of Rochester (New York) University and Theological Seminary. He took his degree, doctor of philosophy, at the University of Minnesota. He was a Baptist clergyman; he gave much time to literary work. Two of his books, The Prophesying of Women, and Control in Evolution, are in the University library. He died in 1924.

"Organized religious work in the University started with the Institution, and has kept pace with its development. In 1869-70, the 'Student's Christian Association' was organized, in 1887, the Y. M. C. A., and in 1891, the Y. W. C. A. They have acted as a unifying force in the institution, and their influence in the future is destined to be a mighty factor in the students' environment." (From the Students' Handbook, 1892-1893.)

An enjoyable social event was the annual opening reception to students and professors, tendered jointly by these two societies. Other meetings and classes for Bible study were held regularly.

I was a charter member of the Y. W. C. A., and on the Board of Directors for ten years. The "Campus Quartette," composed of Messrs. Borncamp, Huntington, Hannum and Powell, all of '93, also had an uplifting influence in our college life.

STUDY IN EUROPE

In 1885, the kind-hearted Regents granted me a Sabbatical year (no salary; we were not up-to-date) for study in Europe. The time was spent chiefly in London and Germany, as I wished to take a course leading to a master's degree, I matriculated in the University College of London, and took a course in Old English under Professor Henry Morley, that well-known educator. My happiness was commensurate with that experienced in the above mentioned district school; and here was happiness unalloyed, no punishment for mischief, such as sitting on the boys' side, or standing in the corner. The subjects, begun under Professor Morley, were continued with a Professor at the University of Gottingen in Hanover. At this time, women were not allowed to attend the regular classes of the University, but we poor feminines could be granted the privilege of public lectures. In 1887, I was promoted to assistant professor. The summer of 1899 I spent in Germany, engaged in studying Old English and German. Some of this vacation work was to translate a part of Beda's Beowulf into German, then into modern English. The following year I received my master's degree, "Master of Literature."

Jointly with Professor K. C. Babcock, I edited an Old English Grammar, which was used as a text-book in our classes in English. It was one of a series of English classics published by Dr. George E. MacLean, head of the department. Later, I compiled a text-book, English-German Idioms, for my classes in German.

About this time, we had here at the University a flourishing "Philological Association," of which Professors MacLean, Klaeber, and MacDermott were the chief promoters. I do not recall any suicidal attempt; I think it died a natural death.

NAMED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

When in 1892 a charter for Phi Beta Kappa was granted to the University

All Minnesotans Remember the Knoll of Minnesota, Stephen Mahoney, '77, and myself received the honor of the "key." I am a member also of Lambda Alpha Psi, honorary society, and of Delta Gamma sorority.

In a book, Representative Women of New England, published in 1904 by the New England Historical Publishing Company, my name appears as "Educator," of which I am justly proud.

The following clipping is taken from an account of a Charter Day meet, at which members of the University staff who had served more than thirty years were duly honored.

"The occasion was of double significance for Dr. Folwell, for in addition to the marking of his 55 years of intimate acquaintanceship with the institution, it was his 91st birthday.

"Dr. John G. Moore, professor emeritus of German, stands next to Dr. Folwell in point of service. He joined the faculty in 1873. Next are J. C. Hutchinson, professor emeritus of Greek, and Mrs. Mathilda J. Wilkin, professor emerita of German, who first officially trod the campus in 1876 and 1877, respectively."

Having served my day and generation at the University to the best of my ability for thirty-four years, I retired June 1911, and received, most gratefully, a Carnegie retiring allowance. Through President George E. Vincent was sent the following acceptance:

"In accepting your resignation the Regents desire me to express to you their appreciation of your long and faithful service, and to thank you heartily for the spirit of cooperation and devotion which you have shown through the past thirty-four years."

ACTIVE IN RETIREMENT

My life at the University, although at times somewhat strenuous, was on the whole remarkably pleasant. The memory of those days with the congenial faculty and kind, loyal students will ever afford an added beauty to the sunset glow.

Since my retirement, I have given myself to religious and philanthropic activities. For sixty years I have been a member of the University Baptist Church. I taught the university class in that Sunday School for fifteen years. There are many in the ranks of our alumni who have since brought honor to their Alma Mater, who, at some time, sat on a Sunday morning with me in this class while we studied the Word of God and held discussions on moral and religious themes.

Later, I became the teacher of an adult women's class and taught until September 1929. In my honor it was named, "The Wilkin Bible Class."

I am a member of the Minnesota Alumnae Club, a life member of the Alumni Association, and a life member (by election) of the Faculty Woman's Club. I am active also in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and in the Women's Cooperative Alliance, of which I am one of the Board of Managers, and honorary president. I hold also a life membership in the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

I might close this somewhat desultory sketch of my long life at this point, and modesty bids me to do this, but appreciation and gratitude prompt me to add a few testimonials out of the many that I have received.

(To be concluded in the next issue.)

Negotiates with Colombian Government

SINCE last October, Earl Constantine '96 has been in Colombia, South America, as a representative of Ulen and Company, a firm which is completing important construction work on the Magdalena River. He joined the executive staff of the firm in September and shortly afterward set out for South America to negotiate with the Colombian government in the interest of the company.

On September 25, just before sailing, the marriage of Mr. Constantine and Mrs. Lenn Allen Smith of Los Angeles took place in New Rochelle, N. Y. They were eleven days on the sea and made interesting stops at Kingston, Jamaica, Colon, Panama, and Cartagena, Colombia.

They spent three weeks at Barranquilla where Mr. Constantine familiarized himself with the progress and condition of the construction work being done on the river at that port. He declares that the city is bound to become an important port when the entrance of the river is made safe for sea-going vessels. For several months Mr. and Mrs. Constantine have been in Bogota, the capital of Colombia.

"To reach Bogota from Barranquilla," says Mr. Constantine, "you go up (south) the Magdalena River for about 700 miles to Girardot, and then you take a four-hour train ride to Bogota. Girardot is about 4000 feet above sea level and at the end of the train ride you find yourself 8,500 feet above sea level.

"The usual mode of travel from Barranquilla to Girardot is by river boat and it requires from 10 to 12 days, depending on the volume of water in the river at the time. We made the trip in one day to Bogota by flying on one of the famous Scadta (German) planes to Cambau, not far from Girardot, and then motoring over the Andes.

"Bogota is a city of about 200,000 and is the capital of Colombia. This gives it the advantage of a diplomatic corps and assures it a considerable and cosmopolitan foreign colony. It snuggles at the foot of a beautiful range of mountains and enjoys delightful climate. It is a city presenting a curious mixture of the ancient and the modern, which to the stranger lends its attraction."

Speaking of the changes in the athletic department Mr. Constantine said: "Crisler and Wieman give every appearance of being alert, clean-cut young men with plenty of energy and with the ability to inject and maintain a high spirit in the team and the squad. This last is not the least necessary element in producing a winning team."

Professor Wagner Dies

FREDERICK C. WAGNER, associate professor of marketing administration, died at the University hospital from arteriosclerosis Monday, May 5. He had been ill three weeks, and had been in the hospital for about a week and a half.

Professor Wagner was graduated from the University of South Dakota. He did graduate work in the University of Chicago, and had been working towards his Ph.D. degree.

He had held a position on the faculty of the School of Business Administration for about three years, coming from the University of South Dakota where he had been a faculty member for three years.

Former Grid Captain Visits Campus

A VISITOR on the Campus last week was John G. Flynn '03M, now manager of the Shattuck-Denn Mining Company of Bisbee, Arizona. He is better known to Minnesota football fans as "Johnnie" Flynn who played guard on the Gopher teams of 1900-01-02. While on the campus he recalled several of the famous plays of former years.

It was Thanksgiving day in 1902 when the Gophers were swamped by Michigan by a score of 23 to 6 that Flynn captured a fumbled punt and made a long run for the Gophers' only touchdown of the game. It was the last game of Flynn's college career and he was credited with playing one of his best games that day. Minnesota had been rated a favorite to win from Michigan in that game.

Another game recalled by Flynn was the struggle with Chicago on Northrop field in 1900 which resulted in a 6 to 6 tie.

"From the beginning throughout the whole game the Gophers had the advantage," relates Flynn. "Minnesota scored its touchdown as a result of some terrific line plunging. It was near the end of the game with Chicago having possession of the ball in its own territory. In an attempt to advance the ball the player carrying the ball had been tackled but the ball had not been declared dead. The ball carried tossed the pigskin back over his head to Jim Henry, the Maroon halfback who ran 85 yards for a touchdown. The goal was kicked and the score tied."

Mr. Flynn has retained his interest in sports of all kinds and is a director of the Bisbee baseball club of the Arizona State league. He was captain of the 1902 Minnesota eleven.

Plans New Magazine

WORD comes to this office that Leland F. Leland '23, former editor of the ALUMNI WEEKLY, now with the George Banta Publishing Company, Menasha, Wisconsin, is about to assume the editorship of another publication to be announced soon. Mr. Leland is on the editorial staff of Banta's Greek Exchange, and is editor of the Take of Tau Kappa Epsilon, one of the outstanding fraternity magazines of the country.

Mr. Leland is president of the College Fraternity Editors' Association.

New School of Nursing Head Named

APPOINTMENT of Katherine J. Densford as head of the School of Nursing to succeed Marion L. Vannier, resigned, and the naming of Professor Edward H. Sirich of the department of romance languages as acting dean of the senior college of the College of Science, Literature and the Arts, to serve next year in the absence of Dean J. M. Thomas were announced yesterday by the Board of Regents.

Miss Densford is a graduate of Miami University and the Cincinnati School of Nursing and Health. She has been the public health nurse of Hamilton county, Ohio, and later supervisor of nurses at the Cincinnati tuberculosis sanitarium. For the last five years she has been director of nurses at the Cook county hospital in Chicago.

Three physicians were appointed in the Students' Health Service, Dr. Dalmion V. Boardman, Dr. Ralph V. Ellis and Dr. Robert G. Hinckley. Resignations were received from Dr. John H. Daniels and Dr. Esten Hendricks, both physicians in the department.

Mothers Visit Campus

THE campus was host to some 2,000 mothers of students on Saturday, May 10. The mothers visited the campus during the morning and were guests at a special presentation of "Comin' Thru the Rye," a three act comedy, in the afternoon. A feature of the Mothers' Day program was the banquet served in the Armory in the evening. A program of student talent was arranged for the entertainment of the mothers at the banquet.

President Coffman officially greeted the mothers at a gathering in Northrop Memorial auditorium at 5 o'clock and the visitors had an opportunity to meet faculty members.

Wins 1890 Award

THE class of 1890 Scholarship award of $250 will go to Doris Peterson '31, this year, it was announced at the meeting of the Board of Regents last week. Karl Goldner will receive the Lehn and Fink gold medal in pharmacy for 1929-30.

George M. Haslerud was named to receive the Albert Howard scholarship of $100 for 1930-31. Linwood B. Brightbill and Milton L. Hoglund won the faculty prize in architecture.

Mr. ('29L) and Mrs. John J. Fermoye, Jr. of Minneapolis, have a young son, Berrigan John, born sometime this year. Sorry we don't know the date, but the fact is the most interesting part anyway!

Sports News of the Week

Track Team Wins

The Gopher track team, downtrodden for the past two years in conference circles, came to the front last Saturday in Memorial Stadium to decisively defeat the Northwestern athletes in a dual meet. The score was 79 to 56. Minnesota took an early lead and maintained a safe margin throughout the afternoon.

The long awaited battle in the sprints between Johnny Hass of Minnesota and Zack Ford of Northwestern failed to materialize when the Purple flash suffered an injured muscle in the first ten yards of the 100 yard dash and was compelled to leave the track. Hass was the high point man of the meet with victories in the 100 and 220 dashes and the 220 yard low hurdles and a third in the broad jump.

Rut Walter, Northwestern's national 440 yard champion, scored a total of 14 points with his first in the 440 and second places in the 100, 220 and the 220 yard low hurdles. Hass nosed him out by a yard in a thrilling 220 yard dash. Clarence Munn scored 11 points for Minnesota.

Warne of Northwestern took the pole vault but did not attempt to go higher than 12 feet 6 inches because of the condition of the runway. It had rained only a few hours before the meet and showers threatened during the contests.

High Jump—Won by Mendelbaum, Northwestern, Warne, Northwestern, and Olson, Minnesota, tied for second and third. Height, five feet eight inches.

Discus Throw—Won by Munn, Minnesota; Clausen, Minnesota, second; Pritchard, Northwestern, third. Distance 121 feet 3 1/2 inches.

440-yard Dash—Won by Walter, Northwestern, McAuliffe, Northwestern; second, Nowotny, Minnesota, third. Time :50.7.

Broad Jump—Won by Tierney, Minnesota; Pass, Minnesota, second; Hass, Minnesota, third. Distance 22 feet four inches.

1 Mile Run—Won by Wolf, Northwestern; Strain, Minnesota, second; Rapp, Northwestern, third. Time 4:59.6.

220-yard Dash—Won by Hass, Minnesota; Walter, Northwestern, second; Pierard, Minnesota, third. Time :21.9.

120-yard High Hurdles—Won by LaRoque, Minnesota; Dixon, Northwestern, second; Gustafson, Minnesota, third. Time :16.5.

Hammer Throw—Won by Holle, Minnesota; Riley, Northwestern, second; Pritchard, Northwestern, third. Distance 107 feet seven inches.

Unlucky Eighth

The Minnesota baseball team was well on the way to a victory over the strong Luther College nine of Decorah, Iowa, last Friday until the eighth inning when five solid singles in a row gave the Iowans as many runs and the game. Ralph Carlblom kept the Luther blows well scattered until the fatal eighth and at the time of the barrage of blows the Gophers were leading 2 to 1.

Luther scored first in the third inning when two hits gave the Iowans one run. In the seventh the Gophers scored two runs to take the lead.

With three hits and a sacrifice in the seventh frame, the Gophers took a one-run lead which was short-lived. Langenberg singled to left and advanced on Loose's sacrifice bunt. Rigg was safe at first on an error. Singles by Timm and Carlblom scored both runners. The Gophers received their last score in the next frame, when Evans drove out a three-base hit and scored on Langenberg's fly to center.

Lead Big Ten Race

The Minnesota team is out in the lead in the conference race as a result of victories in dual meets with Northwestern and Chicago. In the Northwestern matches the Gophers won the singles 4 to 2 and took two of the three doubles matches. The feature of the contests was the comeback of Russ Berghern in his singles match with Wolff. After the Gopher had him in the hole he staged a thrilling rally and finally won the match.

The Gophers moved on to Chicago and defeated the strong Maroon team, five matches to four.

The deciding match was in the final doubles in which Shearer and Hanson of Minnesota defeated Staggs and James Sheldon, Chicago, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.

Golfers Defeat Iowa

The Minnesota Golf team scored victories over Drake University and the University of Iowa during the past week-end. Two players, Ink of Minnesota and Roddy of Iowa broke the amateur course record at Iowa City in the matches. Each man shot a 72 to win their matches.

In the doubles matches, Roddy and McCardell of Iowa tied Fowler and Walker, while Nicholson and Ink teamed together to defeat Agnew-Stuart, two and one, giving the Gophers a 3 1/2 to 2 1/2 lead at noon.

In the afternoon matches play was exceedingly close, only one stroke giving Walker his 2 1/2 to 1/2 victory over McCardell and Agnew of Iowa gaining a similar decision of Nicholson of Minnesota.

Alumnus Active in Indiana Campaign

A LEADER in the campaign for a new constitution for the state of Indiana is Professor Hugh E. Willis '01L, of the faculty of the Law School of the University of Indiana. Professor Willis' opinions on the subject were given in a special article which appeared in the Indianapolis Star of May 11. Indiana will vote on a constitutional convention in the fall.

Following are excerpts from the article written by Howard C. Smith which will be of interest to the citizens of any state:

"Fixing of the rules of procedure by statute instead of by court order, in Prof. Willis' opinion, enables lawyers to make a trial a game of wits by taking advantage of errors in the record and even by introducing errors into it.

"One general court of justice is advocated by the law professor, to consist of three branches—a Supreme court, district courts and county or probate courts. He suggests appointment of judges of all the courts for life by the Governor with the consent of the Legislature or the state Senate alone.

"Creation of a judicial council is urged. This council, as outlined, would make nominations for judgeship appointments to be made by the Governor, would formulate rules of judicial procedure and would control all matters of court administration.

"Rewriting of the entire bill of rights contained in Art. 1 of the constitution is recommended by Prof. Willis. He contends that the jury should be the judge only of the facts and not of the law, that the state should have the right to comment on the defendant's refusal to testify for himself and that the Legislature should have the power to provide for a jury of less than twelve, for less than a unanimous verdict and for a waiver of the right of jury trial.

"Prof. Willis would abolish the township and make the county the chief local administrative unit of government, with the county commissioners as a local legislative body and with one head of the executive side having power to appoint all other county officers except the auditor, to be named by the commissioners.

"Need of a scientific and modern tax program is stressed. He suggests the abolishment of the iniquitous personal property tax, institution of a highly graduated inheritance tax or income tax and the adoption of excise taxes as the chief reliance."

Attend Convention

Frederick J. Wulling, dean of the College of Pharmacy, and Professors E. B. Fischer and C. H. Rogers were the University delegates to the U. S. Pharmacopoeial convention at Washington, D. C., May 12 to 15.

Nine other pharmacy organizations and educational conferences were held there during the week.

SITE SELECTED FOR NEW DENTISTRY BUILDING

THE new Dentistry building will be erected in the University Hospital quadrangle opposite the Health Service wing on the corner of Delaware and Union Streets. The selection of the site was made at the meeting of the Board of Regents last week. The corner of Union and Delaware is at the bottom of the picture above while the Students' Health Service is in the wing at the right.

The Dentistry building will be L shape. The street running toward the Health Service wing in the picture will be moved northward closer to Millard Hall to make room for the Dentistry building. There will be a space between the new building and the hospital wing at the left. Plans for the new unit are being made and it will probably be at least six months before construction is started.

After a discussion of the site for the nurses' home at the Regents' meeting, it was indicated that the building would be located in the space south of the Washington avenue tennis courts and facing the River drive.

No formal action was taken on the matter, but it is expected that this location will be adopted formally at a later meeting of the board.

A site located near the University hospital was considered, but the cost of this property was considerably higher than the River drive position.

It was decided that if the home were built on the River road, a tunnel could be constructed between the two buildings for less money than the additional cost of the other site nearer the hospital.

Chicago WEEK BY WEEK

By PAUL B. NELSON, '26E

SPEAKEASY: To those in the hinterlands and other districts more righteous than this city of 1,102 alumni, this piece may raise the ire, even the disgust of many readers. But the facts are true; we vouch for every statement. Intelligent alumni will easily recognize here another shadow in the sometimes very dark Chicago picture of life and let it go at that.

So you think it's hard to get a drink in Chicago? Then walk with us up the boulevard. Here we are at the Wrigley building. One of the first streets to the left; down to the main level, an old brown brick front, up the front stairs, show our card or mumble something about a friend of so and so's (he know's him, of course) and we're staring a dry Martini in the face. Price, 75 cents each.

You don't like Martini? Well, how about some Muscatel? Okay...and we'll walk over to the A...on north Clark street. The real stuff. Price 50 cents a glass. Or, a whiskey and soda? Sure. Real, Indian Hill, bottled in Canada. $1.00. No card is necessary.

Perhaps you would like to tittle to music. Then northward to Rush street. A card is needed here. Food, very expensive. Real Canadian bourbon. $15.00 a pint if you take it with you. Highballs, $2.00 each.

Down in the loop there are many places where a good alumnus might break the amendment. Of course, the hundreds of needled beer joints. But there are the real speakeasies, too. We were told of one place, not far from our office: International Groceries, or some such name, is on the door. Up a flight, across some empty storerooms, a barred window, a click of the lock and an honest-to-goodness bar with gas-pipe foot-rail, a red-faced bartender, and free lunch! What do you think about that?

One of the biggest distributors of wet goods in the loop used a sample room as office and was known to fellow occupants of the building as an enterprising shoe distributor. (Insert your own pun using the word "klek").

Another place is presided over by a red-faced Irishman by the name of Mort. And as an alumnus remarks, what an appropriate name for a bootlegger.

About the cops, you say? An alumna friend of mine tells of walking in a northside speakeasy the other evening for an aperitif and being followed by two policemen.

And we'll swear to this—a real cop, drinking from a quart bottle, under the street light on a northside corner, about one in the morning, outside N...., the most expensive place hereabouts.

All of which reminds us of that line from "Strictly Dishonorable." The sweet young lady, marooned in the New York speakeasy, asks the Irish cop:

"Why...I thought that policemen never, never drank..."

Cop (mournfully): "Well, it seems just like never..."

* * *

Thinking alumni often wonder why all this? The reasons, often heard expressed, are these:

1. A revolt at endless restrictions, so unnecessary to self-respecting Americans. Tough cops, W. C. T. U., Phillip Yarrow and his narrowminded campaigns, etc. etc. are attendant provoking factors.

Contrary to the article in a recent issue of Forum, Americans abroad do not drink to an appreciable extent. We've known over 3,000, personally, who didn't. So you see, it is a matter of restriction, nothing else. When you can get all you want, you do not give a d... for it.

2. The desire for excitement, for relief of the boredom of a large city. Does one need artificial stimulation when there are green trees, soft summer skies, lowing herds, in yonder field etc., etc.? No! Life itself is full. It's different when there are eight high pressure hours every day packed with noise, telephones, dead-lines, catching one swinging door after the next, hippity skip across the street between red and green lights, and all the time a big, invisible hand raised in front saying, "YOU CAN'T!!"

3. The Continual bombasting of The Chicago Tribune, the world's wettest newspaper.

Yes, Mort...deux Martini...and make it snappy!"

Editorial Comment

THE twelve hundred members of the class of 1930 are welcomed to the alumni ranks. In June these Minnesotans will complete one type of obligation to their University and will accept with their diplomas new responsibilities to the institution.

The members of the class of 1930 or of any other class can best fulfill these responsibilities through affiliation with the alumni association. Here is an organization which was founded nearly a half century ago in the interests of both the alumni and the University. During the intervening years its growth in influence and numbers has kept pace with the growth of the University. It has loyal members in every state in the Union and on every continent of the world.

These men and women who now hold important positions in every walk of life are proud that they are Minnesotans and they have not lost sight of the fact that they owe something to the institution which prepared them for greater opportunities in life. This is not an obligation which calls for an expenditure of money nor even of time. From the individual graduate it calls for something greater and more valuable to the University—his or her respect and a continuous interest in the affairs and the welfare of the institution.

This continuous interest in the affairs of the institution is most important. Through the interest displayed the individual graduate is adding to the strength and prestige of the University. What would you think of a college or university which had no alumni organization of any kind?

Undoubtedly, the greater part of the class of 1930, the first class to hold Commencement exercises in Cyrus Northrop Memorial auditorium, will accept membership in the General Alumni Association.

Through the ALUMI WEEKLY which goes to all members of the association they will not only keep in touch with the University but they will receive information regarding classmates, friends, and other Minnesotans in all parts of the world.

WITH the annual alumni meeting and reunion only three weeks away, the members of the various class committees are busy making plans for their class luncheons and the alumni dinner. The program for the alumni dinner which will be held in the Minnesota Union preceding the Commencement exercises in Memorial Stadium on the evening of June 9 is being arranged by the 1905 class committee. Reservations for the dinner continue to come. If you are planning to attend the dinner you should make your reservation as early as possible at the alumni office.

The class of 1902 is always active at the annual reunions and this year is to be no exception. The members of the 1902 reunion committee are as follows: George R. Martin, chairman; Caroline Crosby, secretary; Frank E. Reed, Charles J. Brand, Ruth F. Cole, Hans H. Dalaker, Dr. Frederick U. Davis, Elmer L. Dills, Walter F. Dreis, Jay I. Durand, Dr. Frederick S. Erb, Frank C. Esterly, Pauline Field, Lawrence J. Fish, Adelaide Robbins Gillette, Arnold L. Guesmer, Helen Harrington, Carl A. Herrick, William B. McPherson, Elias Rachie, George E. Silloway, Augusta Starr, Robert W. Wetmore and Arthur B. Whitney.

THE Journalism Department will feel the loss of Bruce R. McCoy who will join the University of Wisconsin faculty on August 1. During the past year, Mr. McCoy has been the acting head of the department here. He is a practical newspaper man and has been active in fostering a closer relationship between the department and the weekly newspapers of the state. In his new position he will also serve as director of the Wisconsin press association. Mr. McCoy was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1922.

THE success of the Gopher athletes in recent weeks has stimulated interest in spring sports on the campus. The baseball team got away to a good start in the conference race and last Saturday the track team surprised nearly everybody by decisively defeating the Northwestern track and field men. The tennis team is leading the field in the conference and the golfers have shown strength.

The Week on the Campus

THE Engineers and the Seniors held the stage on the campus during the past week. The senior men are now becoming more adept at the handling of their canes and do not carry the sticks as if they were so much excess baggage while the senior women are marked by their black and white tams. The Engineers have been sporting their big green buttons as an indication of the important fact that Engineers' Day was close at hand.

On Friday the boys who go armed with slide rules and who recently have been completing their annual spring survey of the campus were scheduled to crown one of their number as St. Pat, their patron saint, and to celebrate the event in various and diverse ways. Rumors that the arch-enemies of the Engineers, the Foresters and the Miners, were planning to have some fun of their own at the expense of the mathematicians, were current on the campus.

The Alumni Faculty dinner was planned for Friday evening as a feature of Engineers' Day. Roy V. Wright, '98, of New York City was to be the principal speaker while Dean O. M. LeLand and President Lotus D. Coffman were also scheduled to speak.

Sorority sales teams will no longer compete in drives and campaigns conducted on the campus, according to a ruling of the Pan-Hellenic council last week. The women on the campus may take part in sales campaigns but not as members of sorority teams. In the past, trophies and prizes have been offered the winning sorority teams and the competition between the various organizations has at times been keen. In taking the step the Pan-Hellenic council is in line with the trend at other Big Ten Universities. The inter-sorority competition has met with disfavor at several schools.

One of the prominent visitors on the campus during the past week was M. Andre Geraud, editor of L'Echo de Paris. He discussed international affairs before a group in the auditorium of the new Physics building. An interested listener was Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, former secretary of state, who was present as the guest of President Lotus D. Coffman.

The convocation speaker last week was Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof, of the Kehilath Anshe Mayriv Temple of Chicago. He urged tolerance in religious views.

Alumni and students are promised bigger and better cheering at athletic contests and other spectacles where noise is necessary for the success of things by Albert Schuster, '32, newly elected rooter king. He was named to handle the post of chief megaphone handler by the all-University council following the resignation of Bud Marquardt, '31. For two years the new rooter king has been appearing before stadium crowds and he has definite plans for more rousing cheering next fall.

The Ski-U-Mah, campus humor magazine, will continue for at least another year. The proposed campus referendum to determine student attitude in the publication was cancelled by the all-University council.

The traditional Cap and Gown Day program was scheduled for May 16. The winners of scholarships and prizes were to be announced by President Coffman. Following the parade the seniors were to gather in the Northrop Memorial auditorium where the class would be presented by Winston Molander, all-senior president.

Minnesota and Harvard won front page attention at nearly the same time with student pajama parades. According to newspaper accounts, the Harvard men were more belligerent and less respectful to police than the few Minnesotans who chose to stroll at midnight attired a la Miami Beach. No damage was done on University Avenue and spectators have agreed that the parade didn't amount to much.

The Junior Ag Ball sponsored by the juniors in the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics was held at the LaFayette Club on May 16. It was the first time that such an event had been held off the campus. It took the place of the annual dinner party given by the class. Raymond Powers was in charge of general arrangements.

Editors representing 150 weekly newspapers in the state gathered at University Farm, Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the Fourteenth Annual Editors' short course. Practical problems of interest to editors and publishers of weekly newspapers were discussed and several prominent speakers appeared on the three-day program. An exhibit showing different phases of newspaper work was arranged by students in the Department of Journalism.

Announcement of key awards to four members of the Union board of governors was made at the weekly luncheon of the board.

Those awarded keys were I. J. Fleckenstein, School of Business Administration; W. P. Manning, Medical school; W. P. Gullander, College of Education and E. G. Olson, College of Dentistry.

The keys are awarded each year to all members of the board who have fulfilled the requirements of attendance and committee work.

Fifteen students were initiated into the Punchinello club, dramatic organization on University Farm.

The students initiated were Grace Andrews, Louise Bronn, Margaret Doyle, Viola Diessner, Margaret Gleeson, William Grady, John Hanna, Katherine Lewis, Mary Lou McIlvaine, Charlotte Moliter, Douglas Pendergast, Morris Poe, Robert Tait, Ruth Walker and Fred Ward.

News From The Alumni Front

WITH the primaries less than a month away, the candidates for the various state and national offices are busy with their campaigns. Alumni are candidates for several posts. Seeking the Republican nomination for governor are four alumni, Ray P. Chase '03, J. A. A. Burnquist '05L, N. J. Holmberg, a graduate of the School of Agriculture in 1902, and Albert Lagerstedt '07.

In the race for lieutenant-governor are two prominent alumni, Reuben G. Thoreen '10L, of Stillwater, and John H. Hougen '23L, of Crookston.

Mr. Thoreen, former attorney of Washington County, and noted for his public service, will be the principal speaker on the Memorial Day program being planned by the G. A. R. post at Faribault.

ROY V. WRIGHT '98E, contributed the chapter, Transportation, to the volume "Toward Civilization" edited by Charles A. Beard and published by Longmans, Green and Company. Mr. Wright came from New York to be the principal speaker at the Engineering Alumni-Faculty banquet held on Friday, May 16, as a feature of the Engineers' Day program.

In his chapter, Mr. Wright says: "The material prosperity and advancement of a nation are quite as dependent upon its transportation facilities—their extent and the efficiency with which they are operated—as they are upon the efficiency and volume of production in general. Transportation and communication facilities, combined, are measuring sticks by which we can determine with some degree of accuracy the stage of civilization to which a nation has advanced."

THERE are several Minnesota alumni in India who may be affected by the strife between Mahatma Gandhi and his followers and the British government. At Indore with the Berhampore Technical School is Gunaker Dewaji '26E, who recently announced his marriage.

Mrs. Ervin Pederson (Wilma Eustis '18) and her husband are working under the Presbyterian Board of Missions, and are stationed in an Industrial School at Saharanpur. Margaret Wallace '17, is on the staff of Isabella Thoburn College in Lucknow.

Mrs. Pederson discussed their work in a recent letter to her friend, Amy B. Hoag '21. She said in part:

"We were very happy in the work that we were in last winter. We were in the Moga Training School for Village Teachers, a very famous institution in educational circles. However, the mission felt that this Industrial School had greater need for our services. This school has been full of problems for many years, and now we are supposed to find a solution for these problems. This particular school is ninety years old, was originally an orphanage in which trades were taught to the orphan boys."

We recently received a list of the Minnesota men who are members of the Collegiate Club of Chicago. They are James B. Angell, Frank C. Appleman, '24E, Gerhard L. Busian, William C. Clark, Elwood A. Emery, '87, Godfrey J. Eyler, William R. Fieldhouse, '16G, G. E. Huseby, '24E, Orlando Ingvaldstad, David MacLean, Douglas N. McBride, John K. Moorhead, Frederick W. Mueller, '25, Robert W. Muir, '09; '01L, T. Earl O'Brien, '25E, Delmar A. Olson, Gerhard L. Oscarson, '22E, Albert E. Peterson, '19E, Edward R. Peterson, '20, Edward G. Robbins, Harold M. Stanford, '98, Thomas H. Strate, '01E, William H. Tomhave, '07Ag, and Richard M. Walrath.

Dr. Franklin R. Wright, '90D; '94 Md, of Minneapolis, delivered a talk at the Hibbing, Minnesota Medical Society recently on venereal diseases.

Dr. Vaman R. Kokatnur, '14G; '16G, a Hindu, a graduate of the Minnesota College of Pharmacy had an article on "Leprosy and its Cure, Ancient and Modern" in the April issue of the American Druggist. He relates in this article, how modern science has synthesized a more effective substitute than natural Chaulmoogric acid, a drug known and used nearly 2,500 years ago by the ancient Hindus as a treatment for leprosy, but which has come to our attention only recently. "All our modern knowledge may be traced to earlier beginnings," he says. In sketching the history of leprosy from a reference in ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs to the report that the crusaders brought it to Europe from Asia, Dr. Kokatnur notes that it has been referred to in the Talmud, Koran and the Bible.

Reed, '25E; '27G, is working with him as assistant professor of electrical engineering. Mrs. Swenson (Vernie E. Larson, '17), is having unusual success in dramatic work. On April 10, she read Edna Vincent Millay's three act play, "The King's Henchman," the only grand opera written in America, which has survived the test of critics, for a program which was sponsored by the Copper Country branch of the American Association of University Women. The entertainment was given in an effort to assist the national association in its Million Dollar Fellowship drive. According to a clipping from a Calumet, Michigan newspaper, "Mrs. Swenson's unusual dramatic ability has already won for her many loyal and appreciative ad-

He says, "The new offices and facilities for doing business in true General Motors Style are ideal."

Mr. Wallace, as you know, is the operator of station W6AM, ex-9ZT, at Long Beach, California, and he constantly was in touch with the recently completed Byrd Expedition. He writes, "Since the Byrd Expedition has returned from the South Pole, the radio contacts which we used to have by short wave early each Sunday morning have ceased. The Count and Countess Verulam were Hovde's hosts during a brief sojourn at their London home. They are charming people, he writes, and laugh at their titles and think them archaic. After his visit with the Varulams, Hovde went to Bigbury on the Sea, Devon, as the guest of C. A. L. Richards of Brasenose, the college in which Hovde is enrolled.

Opening Remarks

PROBABLY this issue of the ALUMNI WEEKLY contains the names and addresses of more alumni than any previous number. Here you will find information regarding each of the nearly 2,500 men and women who have received degrees from the Medical School. Unknown to you there may be a Minnesota Medical graduate in the next block, regardless of the distant city in which you may live. Certainly, every reader of the WEEKLY will find information about one or more college friends in the complete directory of the Graduates of the Medical School.

If you appreciate this directory or have any comment to make we should be glad to have a message from you. The purpose of the WEEKLY is to keep you in touch with your University and your college friends. When you send a word or two about yourself or your family to the editor you are sending more than 6,000 letters with but a single stamp. You may not realize it but every WEEKLY reader is interested in the fact that you have completed an interesting journey, have won a promotion, have been transferred from Schenectady to Pittsburgh, or have won a golf tournament. And your friends will be thrilled. And that is not an exaggeration. Right here in Minnesota there are scores of alumni who find time each week to read every item in the WEEKLY who could not name all the Republican candidates for governor in the coming primaries.

Incidentally, we are anxiously awaiting word from the first alumnus or alumna to make a hole-in-one this season.

THE cut on the cover of this number was used through the courtesy of the 1930 Gopher which came off the press last week. The 572 page volume is the first Gopher to be published by a Senior class. Julian Aurelius '30, and his staff, have produced an interesting and beautiful book. There is an illustration on every page and the pictures of the five presidents in colors will be treasured by all Minnesotans.

It appears possible at the present time that the class of 1930 will be able to claim more Life Memberships in the General Alumni Association than any previous class. Until this spring the class of 1922 held the lead in that respect. During the coming year every one of the 1,400 members of the spring class will receive the WEEKLY and there has been a definite trend toward Life Memberships.

The Medical Alumni Association

For half a century this group has been actively interested in the Welfare of the Entire University

THE Alumni Association of the Medical School of the University of Minnesota had its beginning back in 1886. All Gaul was divided in three parts and the history of the Medical alumni organization which today is probably the most active graduate group representing any college on the campus may be divided into three periods.

The first period included the years from 1886 to 1895 when the organization was known as the Alumni Association of the Minnesota College Hospital. The college at that time was located on Washington Avenue near Seven Corners. The second period dated from 1895 to 1913 when the name of the group was the Alumni Association of the College of Medicine and Surgery of the University of Minnesota. From 1914 until the present the organization has functioned under the name of the Alumni Association of the Medical School of the University of Minnesota.

On February 26, 1886, the members of the class of 1886 and alumni of the Minnesota College Hospital met in the lecture room to organize an alumni association. Dr. S. W. Minshall was elected chairman of the meeting and Dr. J. A. Goldsbury served as secretary. The minutes of that first meeting state that Drs. Friedlander, Dillon and Dixon were named on the committee to draft a constitution and by-laws.

FIRST OFFICERS ELECTED

At a banquet in the West Hotel in the evening of the same day the officers of the new organization were elected. The members of the faculty of the college were voted into membership and Professor F. A. Dunsmoor was named president of the association. Dr. C. F. Alen was elected vice president; the secretary's duties were placed in the hands of Dr. J. A. Goldsbury.

The charter members of the organization were evidently conscientious in the payment of their dues for at the annual meeting on March 11, 1887 a surplus in the treasury was reported. At this meeting the following officers were elected: Dr. C. H. Hunter, president; Dr. J. W. Donnell, vice president, and Dr. J. A. Goldsbury was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

On March 16, 1888, Dr. A. W. Abbott was elected president of the association. Dr. J. J. Bradley was named vice president and Dr. W. B. Pineo, secretary-treasurer. It was reported that 67

HERE are three announcements of interest to all alumni of the Medical School. A special luncheon for Minnesota graduates will be held during the convention of the American Medical Association at Detroit, Michigan, June 23 to 27.

A luncheon for Minnesota Medical alumni will be held on July 15 in Duluth at the time of the meeting of the State Medical Society.

members, including the "Dentals" had paid their dues for 1887. Among the paid-up members were four women.

At a meeting in the Medical Building on the University campus on June 4, 1895, the Alumni Association of the College of Medicine and Surgery of the University of Minnesota was formed. The following alumni were present: Drs. C. J. Ringell, Frank Ringell, H. Cotton, J. Binder, J. Lind, A. Hirshfield, H. S. Nelson, W. Glenn and C. A. Erdman. The committee on constitution and by-laws included Drs. Lind, Cotton, Erdman, Leavitt and Glenn.

Dr. C. J. Ringell '91, was elected first president of the newly formed organization. The other officers were as follows: Dr. Knox Bacon '94, vice president; Dr. George Head '95, vice president; Dr. C. A. Erdman '93, secretary and treasurer; Dr. J. J. McKinnon '93, orator; Dr. Augusta A. True '94, poet; Dr. Martha S. Cutts '91, historian and Dr. John Rogers '91, marshal.

ANNUAL MEETINGS HELD

The object of the organization according to section 2 of the constitution "is to extend the usefulness of our Alma Mater, promote a feeling of mutual and fraternal interest among its graduates, to fittingly notice any losses by death, and to do all in our power to develop the department of medicine and surgery at the University of Minnesota."

At the second annual meeting on June 3, 1896, the following officers were elected: Dr. Charles L. Greene, president;

Drs. A. B. Stewart of Owatonna, and J. C. Boehm, vice presidents, and Dr. C. A. Erdman was re-elected secretary.

Fifty-two members were present at the third annual meeting which was held in the Metropolitan Hotel, St. Paul in June, 1897. Dr. Frank C. Todd was elected president, Drs. Fred Leavitt and Warren A. Dennis, vice presidents, and Dr. Erdman, secretary. The annual banquet was held the same evening.

The fourth annual meeting was held at the Nicollet Hotel in Minneapolis and Dr. John T. Rogers was named president, Drs. Harry Cotton and J. Binder, vice presidents, and for the fourth time, Dr. Erdman was elected secretary of the association. Among the resolutions adopted at this meeting was the following:

HONOR DR. MILLARD

"A year ago last February the College of Medicine and Surgery of the University of Minnesota suffered the loss by death of its dean, Dr. Perry H. Millard. Dr. Millard had been at the head of the present medical department from the time of its organization and it is in a great measure to his steadfast devotion and untiring industry that our school holds its present high rank among the medical schools of the country.

"To Dr. Millard's efforts, probably more than those of any other man, is due the excellent law controlling the practice of medicine in the state of Minnesota, now on the statute books. Largely as the result of its operation the profession in the state has come to be regarded as among the foremost in the union.

"Dr. Millard was one of the organizers and most active workers of the American Association of Medical Colleges, through the workings of which the standards of medical education in this country has been so raised, that it compares favorably with that of the much older schools abroad. His aim and energies were ever directed towards the elevation of his profession and the results of his work are destined to endure in every field of medical activity, local as well as national."

SELECT ADVISORY GROUP

At the sixth annual meeting of the association in 1900, at which Dr. R. E. Cutts presided, it was decided that the Medical Alumni Association while retaining its own identity should be recognized as a part of the general alumni organization of the University. An advisory committee of the Medical alumni organization was appointed to confer with the Executive Committee of the faculty on all matters of vital interest to the College of Medicine.

Former University Dispensary on Seven Corners

The first committee included the following members: Dr. Charles L. Greene '90, Dr. Charles E. Dutton '89, Dr. George E. Senkler '92, Dr. John C. Boehm '93, Dr. Rollin E. Cutts '93, Dr. T. E. A. V. Appleby '94, Dr. Sherman S. Hesselgrave '94, Dr. George D. Head '95, Dr. L. B. Wilson '96, Dr. J. S. Gilfillan '97, Dr. Fred J. Patton '99, and Dr. Earl Hare '00, with Dr. Fred Leavitt and Dr. W. A. Dennis as ex-officio members.

According to the minutes of Dr. Henry Cotton, the following officers were elected at the meeting in 1900: Dr. Fred Leavitt '94, president; Drs. J. C. Boehm '93, and A. M. Johnson '96, vice presidents, and Dr. W. A. Dennis, secretary and treasurer. At this meeting the Medical alumni received the greetings of the alumni of the Law Department.

Dr. L. B. Wilson was elected president in 1901 and was re-elected in 1902. At the ninth annual meeting held in 1903 at which 62 members were present, Dr. Walter R. Ramsey was elected president. It was suggested that the annual alumni meeting be held at the same time as the meeting of the State Medical Society in order to increase the attendance. The Medical Alumni voted that the MINNESOTA ALUMNI WEEKLY be named the official organ of the Medical organization.

GENERAL COMMITTEE NAMED

Dr. A. E. Benjamin was elected president of the Medical Alumni Association in 1904. Seventy Medical alumni located in all parts of the state were named on the General Committee. Following are excerpts from the letter which was sent to all members of the General Committee: "It will be your duty to look after the interests of the Medical Department in your section of the state. By personal influence and sound argument, you should persuade your political representative to the state legislature to foster the interests of the institution that is bringing much honor to the state.

"We will expect you to do all in your power for your Alma Mater, and report your progress and achievements in that direction, at our annual meeting in June."

At the eleventh annual banquet in 1905 a resolution deploring the low faculty salary scale at the University was adopted. Higher salaries throughout the entire institution were urged. Dr. Warren Dennis was named president of the association for the ensuing year. The advisory committee presented several suggestions for the re-organization of the Medical faculty.

URGE HOSPITAL NEED

In 1906 letters were sent to all Medical alumni in the state urging the need of a clinical hospital at the University. The request from Dr. Elliott for a charity hospital for the medical school was being held up pending the legislature's decision on the matter of appropriating funds for the equipment and maintenance of the hospital. The alumni were urged to use their influence in behalf of the project. Dr. George D. Head was elected president in 1906.

In February 1907 the advisory committee sent a lengthy letter to all members of the state legislature outlining the necessity of a University hospital. At the annual meeting in June, 1907, Dr. H. P. Ritchie was elected president. Dr. Judd Goodrich was named president of the association in 1908, and Dr. C. A. Erdman was elected to the position in 1909. Dr. J. T. Christison was named to the post in 1910 and Dr. R. E. Hare in 1911.

ASSOCIATION PRESIDENTS

The presidents of the Alumni Association of the Medical School in the succeeding years were as follows: 1912, Dr. E. S. Judd; 1913, Dr. James J. Gilfillan; 1914, Dr. E. L. Tuohy; 1915, Dr. John E. Hynes; 1916, Dr. C. D. Freeman; 1917, Dr. Charles L. Greene; 1918, Dr. C. W. Bray; 1919, Dr. Herbert W. Jones; 1920, Dr. Robert Earl; 1921, Dr. B. S. Adams; 1922, Dr. E. L. Gardner; 1923, Dr. Paul Cook; 1924, Dr. O. N. Meland; 1925, Dr. J. Warren Bell.

Dr. Oswald Wyatt of Minneapolis served out the unexpired term of Dr. Bell who moved from the state and continued to serve through election and reelection until November 1929. At the meeting of the association held at the time of Homecoming last fall, Dr. N. O. Pearce of Minneapolis was elected president.

The other officers of the association this year are as follows: Dr. Ralph Creighton '24, secretary; Dr. Donald Daniel '20, treasurer, and Drs. H. P. Ritchie '96, and C. J. Ehrenberg '20, vice presidents. The executive committee includes Drs. William F. Braasch, J. Frank Corbett, E. A. Loomis, H. Binger, J. B. Carey, Joseph Hultrass, D. P. Head and E. L. Tuohy.

A Medical Alumni homecoming was held at the time of the general Homecoming last fall and a professional program was held on the Medical campus. More than 150 alumni attended the event which is to become an annual affair. The principal speaker on the 1929 program was Dr. Otto Folin '92, eminent biochemist, now a member of the Harvard Medical School faculty.

St. Louis Alumni Unit Plans Meeting

MINNESOTA alumni in St. Louis, Mo. will meet on June 8 at the home of Paul E. Kretzman, '13, on the Concordia Seminary campus. Plans have been made for a highly entertaining program including the showing of lantern slides of scenes on the Minnesota campus. Mr. Kretzman was in Minneapolis last week and he will be prepared to tell the group of the more recent changes on the campus including the development of the Mall.

At least fifty Minnesotans are expected at the meeting. Noah Johnson is president of the unit.

While on the campus, Mr. Kretzman secured information regarding athletic buildings and equipment. A new athletic plant is being planned for the Concordia Seminary campus. Mr. Kretzman gave up publication work seven years ago to accept a position on the Concordia faculty.

Munn, Hass Score

MINNESOTA scored only four points in the thirtieth annual Big Ten track and field meet held at Evanston, Ill., but that was four points better than the Gophers were able to do in the Conference Indoor meet held in the Field House here early this spring. Clarence Munn, who has been showing rapid development in the shot put, won third place in the event, and Johnny Hass placed fourth in the 100 yard dash.

The fact that both men are Sophomores is pleasing to Coach Sherman Finger. Other sophomore runners, Wilson Wied, in the distances, Joe Nowotny in the quarter and Fred LaRogue in the hurdles have shown promise. The work of several Frosh tracksters adds color to the prospects for 1931. Scheiffley has bettered the all-time Minnesota record in the high sticks with the time of 14.9. He also makes good time in all the dashes. One of Coach Crisler's end prospects, Dilner, has a mark of 135 feet with the discus and he also pushes the shot a fair distance. Hackle has cleared the bar above six feet in the high jump, Lillyblad does the 100 in 10 flat, Currell trots the two miles under 10 minutes, and Anderson makes a nice mark with the shot.

Three Gopher tracksters, Weiseger, Strain and Tierney, who have placed consistently during the past two years are closing their collegiate track careers this spring.

Touchdown

TWO thousand Gopher football fans braved typical fall weather to watch the final practice game of the spring season in Memorial Stadium. They saw passes that shot like bullets from the right hand of Pete Somers and they saw one of these passes sail into the arms of the opposing fullback, Jack Manders who displayed speed as well as weight in his 55 yard dash across the goal line to score the only points of the afternoon.

The two squads fought on fairly even terms. The backs performed creditably considering the fact that their opponents were acquainted with their plays. Riebeth, Somers, and Manders stood out. There was weight in the line but it was evident that Coach Wieman and his line assistants must do considerable instructing next fall before the first tough game with the Vanderbilt Commodores. Only four line lettermen were included in the line-up. They were Anderson and Hoefler, ends; Riehsen, guard and Gross, tackle. The forward wall will be strengthened next fall through the return of other veterans. Dilner, a freshman end, thrilled the fans with his punting. His kicks go high and travel far.

Several veterans including Broekmeyer, Timm, Teeter, and Munn are taking part in other spring sports and have not been out for football practice. Elmer Appman is nursing a bruised leg and other gridlers were advised by Coach Crisler to set their scholastic house in order during the spring quarter.

Gopher Nine Drops Wisconsin Game

MINNESOTA'S chances for a conference baseball title were blasted when Purdue took the second of a two-game series on Northrop Field last week. In the first game Minnesota had a big fourth inning to collect ten runs. In the second contest the Minnesotans were unable to bunch their hits while the Boilermakers garnered enough clean hits to win.

Three days later the conference leaders, the Badgers, came to Northrop Field to win their eighth conference contest. The Badgers scored 10 runs in their half of the fourth. The Gophers came back valiantly to score a total of nine runs in three innings but the lead was too great to overcome. The boys did, however, drive Farber, the Wisconsin pitching ace, from the mound with a barrage of clean blows.

Errors helped to drive Carlblom from the mound in the fourth and the hurling duties were assumed by Gregg Andrews. His offerings proved to the liking of the opponents and Coach Bergman sent Walfrid Mattson, a sophomore, into the breach in the fifth and he held the conference leaders hitless for the remainder of the game. George Langenberg boosted his batting average at the expense of the crack Badger hurlers with four hits in as many times officially at bat.

Minnesota is now fourth in the conference standings with three wins and as many defeats. The three leaders in order are Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. Northwestern was to come to Minneapolis for two games this week-end and victories in these contests would put the Gophers up near the leaders.

May Win Title

THERE is a possibility that Minnesota's tennis squad which is now in a three way tie for the Big Ten title with Michigan and Illinois may be awarded the title because they have played more matches than either of the other two schools. Action will be taken on the matter by the Big Ten conference officials and word will be received within a few days concerning their ultimatum.

The squad should be doubly strong next year with only two veterans leaving the fold and with five men who have won letters returning. Seven men filled the requirements for awards this year. Hank Yutzy, Frank Heleniak, Ray Morgan, Paul Wolff, Bob Hanson, Doug Johnston, and Floyd Scherer are the men that have won the required number of matches to be awarded the letter.

Editorial Comment

IN this issue of the WEEKLY you will find the most complete directory ever published of the graduates of the Medical School of the University. It is doubtful if the graduates of any other school on the campus have been as active in the interests of their Alma Mater as have been the Medical graduates through their organization, the Alumni Association of the Medical School.

Their main interest, of course, has been the development of the Medical School, but a review of the history of their organization during the past forty-five years indicates an active and unselfish interest on the part of the group in the welfare of the entire institution. The organization works as a part of the General Alumni Association and the ALUMNI WEEKLY is its official organ.

A large number of Medical alumni receive the WEEKLY at the present time and it is hoped that within the next two years ninety per cent of the entire group will be regular subscribers. This will enable the publication to serve effectively as a medium for announcements and editorial material of definite interest to the graduates of the Medical School.

THE term bigger and better has been worked so hard in recent years in this bigger and better land of ours that it has lost its edge. Since the biggest and best stock market collapse last fall, the need of a new expression to replace that familiar refrain has been evident.

There has been a tendency among the alumni groups of institutions to make frequent use of the term in discussing the future of their Alma Maters. Let us have a bigger and better Siwash, has been the cry, and the request has nearly always carried a note of sincerity. Alumni and Alumnae are interested in the growth and development of their schools in spite of the fact that this interest may appear dormant to the casual observer—and to the campaigner for funds. However, the vision of brick and mortar, bigger buildings and impressive stadia, has too often accompanied the use of the term bigger and better. Not that these buildings and stadia aren't necessary and to be desired, for they are; but in thinking of the development of a school, the graduate should think not only in terms of physical assets.

Long ago, the University of Minnesota qualified for admittance to the bigger and better division. Now it is time to think in terms of a finer Minnesota. Finer in spirit, in aims, in intellectual ideals.

EARLY returns indicate that the class of 1922 may be replaced by the class of 1930 as the group claiming the greatest number of Life Memberships in the General Alumni Association. This year's graduates have shown a definite interest in the alumni association and they realize the value to themselves and to their Alma Mater of the Life Membership which in itself is a pledge of continued interest in the development and the affairs of the institution.

Members of other classes who maintain their connection with the alumni association through the annual payment of dues should study the advantages of the Life Membership. It is by far the most economical plan for the alumnus or alumna and the most satisfactory. Membership in the alumni association is permanent, you are eligible to serve as an officer of the organization and the WEEKLY comes steadily without the annual requests for dues.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY student journalists have taken a part in the debunking campaign which was initiated a couple of weeks ago when one of America's outstanding executives, in an interview at Kansas City, said for publication what he actually thought and not merely what would sound nice in print. Everyone is acquainted, of course, with the prank of the Cornell students who asked several prominent men, including Vice President Curtis, to issue statements lauding the "life and work" of Hugo N. Frye, a fictitious character, suggested to have been a leading light in his day in central New York Republican circles.

When the prominent executive, mentioned above, visited Kansas City recently a veteran newspaper reporter was sent to gain an interview. The customary stereotyped statements were issued. The reporter disregarded the material and suggested that the noted man really express his "mind" on various vital topics. He did. And the story was worth reading.

1200 Seniors March in Cap and Gown Ceremony

ON Thursday, May 15, the University of Minnesota honored its 1200 graduating seniors in the traditional Cap and Gown day ceremonies which began with a campus parade and was concluded with the announcement of scholastic awards for the year by Chancellor Lotus Delta Coffman.

The parade of what the Chancellor termed "Minnesota's greatest senior class" was led by Winston Molander of Bemidji, all senior president, and Miss Eleanor Thompson, president of Cap and Gown, women's senior society.

Marching two by two, accompanied by the University band playing the "Rouser" and other Minnesota tunes, the black robed seniors made their way across the Knoll and into the Cyrus Northrop Memorial auditorium. This was the first spring graduation ceremony to be held in the new amphitheatre, the Army having been the scene of activities in the past.

More than half of the orchestra seats of the auditorium were reserved for the honored students and at the start of the program the huge building was jammed to the ceiling.

Mr. Molander then presented the class to the University, declaring that "it was with a sense of joy and yet a sense of regret" that he did so.

Chancellor Coffman responded first by extending his congratulations to "without doubt, the greatest senior class that Minnesota has yet produced." His topic concerned the spirit of learning and immortalization. He then charged the seniors with "undying allegiance to the University."

The Chancellor then read the scholastic awards for the year. Forty-six students were elected to Phi Beta Kappa, achieving the greatest honor that a scholar may receive for excellence in academic work.

Annual Alumni Day Program Announced

PRESIDENT LOTUS D. COFFMAN and Athletic Director

Crisler plan to be present at the annual Alumni Reunion Dinner in the Minnesota Union at 5:30 o'clock, Monday, June 9. It is expected that more than 600 alumni will attend the dinner and program. Committees of the five year classes have been dispatching invitations to the members of their respective classes and Minnesotans now living in many distant parts of the country have signified their intentions of coming back to the campus for the annual event. The class of 1904, the quarter century group, is in charge of the general arrangements. It was announced this week that Howard Laramy, '24,

Wins Carnegie Fellowship

"I want to send my best wishes for a successful Alumni Day," writes Margaret D. Brandt, '24, now a fellow in the Graduate Library School at the University of Chicago. "I am sorry that I cannot take part in the stimulating occasion. Our school does not close until June 11. This is my second year here, and the longer I stay, the more enthusiastic I become. I warmly urge those in the library profession who are interested in doing research in some phase of librarianship to consider this School."

Miss Brandt has been awarded a Carnegie Fellowship which will enable her to continue her work towards a doctorate at Chicago. She keeps in touch with Minnesota and Minnesotans through the WEEKLY

Chicago WEEK BY WEEK

By PAUL B. NELSON, '26E

"ESCAPE." Conversation at a recent Monday noon alumni luncheon centered about Bud Bohnen '23Ex, now playing the part of the convict in Galsworthy's "Escape" at the Goodman Memorial theatre. Bud has received more than usual notice in the press. Most of these blurbs mentioned that "during his undergraduate years, he was rooter king at the University of Minnesota."

We were up to see him in his dressing room not so long ago. He tells us that several alumni drop in to see him after the show every season. And doubtless, there are numerous alumni in nearly every audience.

For the loyal Chicagoan, this fact is discouraging. "Escape" ran for a year in London, 147 performances in New York, and here it must be produced in the intimate, intellectual sort of a theatre, so unappreciative are local audiences of a play that is really worth while.

New Addresses: Through the mail have come these five new addresses:

Helen Ingeborg Larson Stevens (Mrs. C. C.), Ed'18, of 1016 South Third avenue, Maywood, Ill. Mrs. Stevens is a member of the department of English at the University of Chicago.

Julia Bartholet-Huston, B. A. '15, of 3152 Belle Plaine Ave.

Walter M. Bruslat, 6929 Greenview Ave., Bernard M. Vaughan, 5514 Blackstone Ave., and William W. McCallum, 1414 Pratt Blvd.

News: Conversations, encounters in the Allerton dining rooms, and news notes in certain periodicals reveal the following news about Minnesota alumni in Chicago and suburbs the past week:

Marvin C. Rogers, Ch. E. '26, comes through this city every month on business for the Whiting-Swenson Co., for whom he is a chemical engineer. Marvin received his master's and doctor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Michigan after three years' study. His headquarters are 303 South State Street, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Marvin tells us that Arne A. Jakkula C. E. '26, is an instructor in the structural engineering department at the University of Michigan, that he is married, and has one child.

According to Marvin, a young chemical engineer gets a "break" about the first job. At Michigan, there are more jobs than graduates and accordingly the average starting salary for the good chemical engineer averages as high as $175 per month. Minnesota freshmen engineers who got "B" or "A" in chemistry this spring, please notice.

The name of Max A. Freitag '27L, a lawyer with offices in the loop district, has just been added to our records. His residence is 7929 Marquette Avenue.

Leon A. Peik, 'Ex, is in the Chicago office of the Greyhound lines.

Muriel Kingsley '26Ed, has just returned from Detroit where she attended the National Y. W. C. A. convention. Miss Kingsley is with the industrial department of the Y. W. C. A., engaged in health education work.

Ruth O'Brien '18Ed, is research technician at the Lying-In hospital of the University of Chicago. She is the daughter of the former State Senator Hames O'Brien.

A new north side resident is Esther Keller '29, formerly of St. Paul, now with the Pullman Company.

Harold Hayes C. E. '21, has a unique job interesting engineers and engineering associations and companies in the Allerton House. A part of his promotional work includes the Engineering Club-room at the Allerton wherein are all technical and engineering magazines, drafting equipment, etc. etc. for the convenience of local Knights of St. Pat. Numerous engineers make the Allerton their home.

Little did we realize until the other day that a Minnesota alumnus is our landlord. Or renting agent, as they are more properly called. The Lake-Michigan building, in which we are writing this moment, is under the management of the Harold Eagan Co., a high mogul in which is Harry J. Beeman, '21E. These agents also manage the Lyon and Healy Building. Beeman's home address is 337 North Meand road avenue.

S. R. Hamilton, Ex'28; '25E, is with Railway Signaling, a Simmons-Boardman publication, whose Chicago offices are at 105 West Adams street, Suite 1000. Hamilton lives at 707 North Cuyler Avenue, Oak Park, Ill.

When speaking of this publishing concern, it is interesting to note that Royden V. Wright, C. E. '98, who visited the campus last week, is editor of Railway Age, perhaps the largest in this group of industrial magazines. Wright, by the way, got his start in technical journalism, as editor of the Minnesota Engineer, predecessor of The Minnesota Techno-Log.

Winifred Hughes '24, is engaged to be married, we understand. Winifred is fashion copy writer for a large loop department store. (The indefiniteness of "large loop department store" is not an effort to avoid publicity but merely because we cannot remember which one she is with.)

At breakfast the other Sunday morning, we chanced to see Hugo Hanft, E'25, in Chicago between trains. Hugo will be married on August 16 to a young lady from Pittsburgh, we believe. Note that "we believe." Hugo has been traveling continually since last January; he is with the A. C. Nielsen Co.

Lee Deighton, '26Ed, and Ted Purinton, spent most of a recent Saturday night mapping out the itinerary for their European trip this summer. They will sail in June and return the first part of August.

Speaking of European trips, we have just written a handbook giving considerable of the what, why, and wherefore of traveling abroad. All alumni desiring a FREE copy may obtain same upon request. No strings attached. Write "us" at 180 North Michigan.

Annual Alumni Dinner

HAVE you made reservations for the Annual Alumni Dinner to be held on June 9, Commencement Day, in the Minnesota Union?

From many readers will come the counter-query: "Why should I attend an alumni reunion or a class gathering?"

That, of course, is a question you must answer yourself. If you have not the slightest interest in your University or have no desire to visit college scenes or to renew old acquaintances, then alumni reunions will not mean much to you.

The barrier of distance will keep hundreds of Minnesotans from the annual reunion who would like to be present at the 1930 event. Reservations for the various class luncheons and the general dinner have been received from alumni in several states, however. Carl A. Rahn, '20, will come from Billings, Montana; Mrs. Charles E. Williamson (Bernice Durkee '20) plans to make the trip from her home in Rice, Washington, and Jessie W. Boyce '05, plans to motor from Wayne, Nebraska. Another '20 graduate, Dr. Byron L. Robinson of Little Rock, Arkansas, announces that he will be present on June 9. Devils Lake, North Dakota, will be represented by G. F. Drew '00.

LIQUOR AND NARCOTIC CURE

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS OF SUCCESSFUL SERVICE

A record of thirty-seven years of successful treatment of those addicted to alcohol and drugs. A large proportion of our patients being sent to us by physicians.

Both drug and alcohol addicts need a care and treatment such as we are best prepared to give. We practice no deception and make no false promises. We work along the line recognized as both scientific and ethical, and produce results that no one can question.

AN OPEN LETTER

To All Alumni and Friends of the University of Minnesota

It is highly important to all citizens of the state of Minnesota that the man elected State Auditor be a friend of the University. It is essential to the best interests of education that he be in sympathy with the aims, needs, and purposes of the state's highest educational unit.

Study the records of the men who are candidates for that office in the coming primaries and you will find that Stafford King is the man who really has the interests of the institution at heart. Here is an alumnus who through sheer ability has fought his way to a place among the state's leaders. He has experience, strength of purpose, high ideals, intelligence, and a loyalty to his college, state and nation that must win the admiration of every Minnesotan.

He has seen service in two military campaigns. He has been interested in the problems of the sick and disabled veterans and during the years since the war has been a leader in the fight for adequate hospitalization. He was state commander of the American Legion in 1928 and has served as national vice-commander of the veterans' organization.

His record—and not merely his campaign remarks and literature—show that he is a staunch conservationist. He believes in the use, conservation and restoration of state owned natural resources to the end that the orderly expansion and development of the University be not curtailed through loss of income therefrom.

He served on the Mexican Border and re-entered the service in 1917. He was commissioned.

After his discharge in 1919 he returned to Minnesota and entered the state forestry department. In his spare time he attended the St. Paul College of Law to complete his legal education.

ture with four basins on the sides of the pillar. At the top there is an inscription which tells you that this was "presented to the University of Minnesota by Caleb D. Dorr, an old settler of 1847." How long the fountain has been standing there no one seems to know.

Evidence of the fact that the University honors its great men before they die is shown by the large bronze tablet on the first floor of Folwell Hall near the University avenue entrance. It is in memory of William Watts Folwell, first president of the University and bears a carved medallion of Folwell. On the plaque is a portion of his inaugural speech in 1869, a dedication of Folwell Hall to the man who served from 1869 to 1884 as its president, and finally an inscription which the General Alumni Association placed there when it hung the memorial plaque.

Leaving the building and crossing the Knoll, several trees are discovered bearing plaques which were placed there by classes of the University whose members have long since graduated. One tree, so large that its spreading branches are held together by chains, was planted in 1881 by the class of 1882, and the tablet bears the names of those who took part in the ceremony. Two other trees, standing within a few yards of each other were planted by the classes of 1876 and 1877. On that of the class of 1876 the tablet was placed at the reunion of the class in 1906. We wonder how many members of these classes would be able to attend a reunion today. The class that followed them, that of 1878, left as a memorial a large rock standing near the two trees which bear the other memorials.

Then we reach the Pillsbury monument and sit on the large white stone bench and read the inscription at the foot of the statue of "John Sargent Pillsbury, Regent 1863-1901, a wise counsellor, a generous benefactor, untiring in his devotion to the welfare and advancement of the University erected in 1900 by the alumni." In the spring the lilac bushes are in bloom about the bench and always it is shaded by the huge trees of the Knoll. It is easily one of the most beautiful spots on the campus.

Another memorial, standing across from the Armory, is a large statue of a soldier of the Spanish-American war and was "erected in honor of the students of the University who served their country in the war with Spain, 1898-9."

All of these are old landmarks, passed by unheeded by most of the students but remembered lovingly by those who in the past years have stopped to look at them and think of the people who put them there.

Each year the graduating class leaves some memorial to the University. Last year the class of 1929 placed a bulletin board just inside the gate on University avenue, passed by the throngs going to and from lunch. The class of 1930 is leaving as its memorial a portrait of President Coffman painted by August Kayser. This they hope to hang in the new Auditorium with the portraits of the other presidents which will be collected from their various places about the campus.

OF the thousands of students who have spent four years on the older part of the University campus, who have studied in Folwell Hall, promenaded on the Knoll, or spent their spare moments in the Minnesota Union, we wonder how many have ever stopped to read the inscriptions on the memorial plaques that decorate the trees on the Knoll or the walls of the buildings. Thousands have passed the fountain that stands on the corner across from the Union and those same thousands and many more have rested on the stone bench across from the Old Library. Thousands of parading freshmen have passed near the statue that faces the Armory.

There is the war memorial on the landing of the steps leading to the second floor of the Union. A long case covers the entire wall which is dedicated to those who left their studies at the University to serve in the World War. There are four lists of names of those who served and one list of those who died in service. The case is beautifully decorated and makes a fitting memorial to that period in the history of the University when its halls were suddenly left half empty by the wave of patriotism that swept over the country. Some of those students returned later to their studies but many others did not.

Across from the Union is a fountain from which no water has ever run except the rain water that keeps its white stone clean. It is a tall pillar-like struc-

President Northrop's Closing Remarks To the Class of 1905

"You all know very well that your success heretofore can be accurately measured by the earnestness with which you have labored to deserve success—and I assure you that you will find the conditions of success in the outer world very nearly the same as you have found them in the University.

"But henceforth you will not be under tutors and governors and your personal responsibility will be largely increased. Very much will depend upon your purpose.

"If you mean to do the best work you possibly can in your chosen employment, to make the most of yourself that you can, and always stand firmly in life and influence for the things that are best, your success cannot fail to be at least respectable. It will of course depend somewhat upon your ability—but not one of you is so lacking in ability that with high purpose and a true life you cannot achieve an honorable success.

"If, on the contrary, you are going into the world to get for yourself all you can and to render in return as little service as possible, your ultimate failure is assured.

"The state has a right to expect the best services from its educated sons and daughters—and it should be grieved to know that any one of you purposes to give to the world anything less than the best he is capable of in life and influence.

"You will remember, I am sure, the days you have spent in the University and I hope the memory will always be pleasant. We shall remember you. We shall rejoice in your success and sympathize with you in your disappointments. The University is your cherishing mother. Do not fear to go to her at any time with your wants and wishes. She will always do what she can to promote the happiness and prosperity of her children."

COMMENCEMENTS OF OTHER YEARS

1905 COMMENCEMENT: "Commencement week began with the class play which was given in the Metropolitan Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening. The play was entitled The Pledgling and might be characterized as a typical college drama. It was fully up to the standard of the plays of former years, and in some respects was rather unique in its features. The Masque of the Old Main which came in as a feature of the play was exceedingly striking. The spirits of the various departments which formerly inhabited Old Main were seen in the spectacular event to good advantage. The particular feature was one of real merit and set the high water mark for such features for future years.

"Friday night before Commencement the juniors and seniors traded 'cut plug' and smoked the pipe of peace on the campus.

"Sunday was an ideal day for the real opening of Commencement week with baccalaureate service and a sermon by President Northrop. The armory was crowded to its capacity.

"Monday it rained all day and spoiled the plans of the seniors for their class day. The plans included the launching of the boat labelled 'The Troubles of '05' which was to be set adrift on the Mississippi, and the planting of the Ivy, which had to be postponed to another day.

"Wednesday was alumni day and was pretty generally observed by the alumni associations of the different colleges and the election of officers for the coming year.

"Decoration Day was a quiet day about the University. The students under the leadership of Professor Haynes provided for the decoration of the graves of the soldiers of '98 who gave their lives as a sacrifice for their country. Each grave was decorated with a silk American flag and by a pennant bearing the word Minnesota in the University colors."

In 1905 532 students received their degrees.

1910 COMMENCEMENT: "Commencement morning started in with threatening weather and a drizzling rain. Shortly before ten o'clock the rain ceased and the procession which it had been thought would have to be given up, was formed near the Library building and proceeded to the Armory. Every seat in the Armory was filled and many hundreds stood up during the exercises which lasted nearly three hours. The graduating class numbered 592. The exercises were impressive and President Northrop's address was all that was expected of it, which is saying much."

1915 COMMENCEMENT: "Commencement week from the standpoint of the weather was not an entire success. With the exception of Alumni Day which was ideal, the week was cold and rainy. Thursday was Commencement Day. The address was given by President A. Ross Hill of the University of Missouri and degrees were conferred by President Vincent upon 692 individuals, 457 men and 235 women."

In 1915, Alumni Day was held on June 9. There was a baseball game between faculty and alumni, luncheons at noon, a mock polo game and the annual dinner.

1920 COMMENCEMENT: "President-Elect Lotus D. Coffman delivered the Commencement address. There were 888 in the graduating class, the largest class up to that time. President Burton presided. At the annual alumni dinner, Rev. Howard Y. Williams '10, was toastmaster.

COMMENCEMENTS

Here are brief reports of the Commencements of the five-year classes since 1900 taken from the files of the Alumni Weekly. The Weekly was started in 1900 by E. B. Johnson '88. The building pictured on the left above is well known to all former students of the University. Built in 1886 as the School of Mechanic Arts, it now houses the School of Business Administration. On the right is Old Main which was destroyed by fire in 1904.

Winston Molander '30
All-Senior president of the 1930 Class

A TRADITION of several years standing was broken last week by two senior men's honor societies, Grey Friar and Iron Wedge, when the members of the organizations agreed to make public their memberships for the coming year. The decision was reached following a dinner given for the members by President Coffman. The purpose of the dinner was to bring about a more harmonious relationship between the two groups.

Heretofore the memberships of the organizations have been kept secret during the year. It was suggested that the two groups combine their efforts on various campus projects.

The members of the Grey Friars for 1930-31 were announced as follows: Axel Anderson, Harry Atwood, Robert Bruce, Robert Carney, Merrill Cragun, Harold Eberhardt, Donald Erskine, Edwin Haislet, Harland Harmer, Harold Holden, Frank Laska, George Minder, Floyd Nelson, Ralph Nelson, Eugene Rogers, Vernon Smith, Walter Smith, Oscar Swenson, Wesley Taylor and Charles Winding.

The Iron Wedge 1930-31 membership: Ercell Addington, Clifton Benson, Aurland Hage, Kenneth Ingwalson, Harold Kulp, Earl Loose, Donald McLaughlin, A. Sherman Maxon, John M. Palmer, Raymond Powers, Kentner Wilson and Lawrence Youngblood.

Malcolm MacLean, formerly of the University English department who has taught at the University of Wisconsin during the last year, is to conduct a course in literature on the campus this summer. Mr. MacLean left Minnesota last fall to join the staff of the extension division of the Badger state institution.

JOHN ERSKINE, novelist, musician and professor of English at Columbia, and Ruth Bryan Owen, United States congresswoman from Florida, will feature University convocations next year.

Negotiations are being conducted at present to bring Tony Sarg and his marionettes and Gilbert K. Chesterton, English man of letters, to the campus, and the complete schedule for the coming season probably will be ready before the close of school. In addition, a number of other prominent speakers already have been booked.

Sylvanus Morley of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, eminent anthropologist who addressed students here last fall, will return to the campus for a convocation speech next year. Henry Bellows, president of the Northwestern Broadcasting corporation, also is scheduled to speak at a convocation sometime during the fall quarter.

Tentative arrangements have been made to include Padraic Colun, noted Irish poet, in the convocation schedule for next spring.

PLANS for the presentation of an all-University musical comedy, featuring campus dramatic, musical and social organizations as one of the major attractions of the 1930 Homecoming celebration November 1, were announced last week by Dan Feidt, Homecoming chairman.

The cooperation of virtually every group on the campus will be enlisted in the staging of what is expected to be the largest undertaking of its kind ever attempted at the University, as well as something to compare favorably with those of other schools throughout the country, according to Bob Carney, who will be student manager of the show.

MINNESOTA students are already looking forward to the beginning of a new school year. The new year's activities were opened when Harold Eberhardt, recently appointed Freshman week chairman, announced that 147 members of 15 committees had been named to assist him in conducting the week of Freshman introduction which will be held from September 24 to 28.

Mr. Eberhardt and his committee are rapidly formulating plans for the orientation of the more than 3000 students who are expected to enroll in the University next fall.

One of the first steps to be taken by the committees will be the selection of a motto for the fourth annual Freshman week. The motto used last fall was "Help Us to Help You." A student contest may be held to determine a suitable 1930 slogan.

tee of the American Pharmaceutical association. Fifteen educators in pharmacy make up the committee, which will revise the fifth edition of the national formulary.

The Minnesota chapter of Gamma Sigma Delta, the honor society of agriculture which corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa in academic circles and Sigma Xi in scientific circles, yesterday announced the initiation of 18 new members at University farm.

The list of initiates included the following: from the faculty, Frederick B. Hutt, Clarence E. Mickel and August L. Strand; graduate students, Roy O. Bridgford, Clarence W. Doxtator, Zachary L. Galloway, Delia E. Johnson, Edward M. Johnson, Thorwaldur Johnson, Walter J. Roth, Thomas L. Smith and Alan E. Treloar; seniors, Erwin G. Alfonsus, Theodore Fenske, Teno E. Maki, Elmer S. Miller, Clarence E. Steinbauer, and Ralph W. Wayne.

Eleanor Barthelemy, a junior in the College of Science, Literature and the Arts, was elected as editor-in-chief of The Minnesota Quarterly Tuesday morning at an executive meeting of the board of faculty advisers of the publication.

Miss Barthelemy was appointed to the editorial board of the magazine last June and has served during the year as poetry editor.

Three members of the present board are being graduated this June: George M. Haslerud, editor-in-chief; Tegnel C. Grondahl, associate editor; and Mary Christine Turpie, editorial staff. The remaining members are: Audrey E. Johnson, art editor, a junior in the College of Education; and Carl Jacobi and James R. F. Eckman, both sophomores in the College of Science, Literature, and the Arts.

Editorial Comment

Because of the amount of space devoted to pictures in this issue, the editorial comment will be brief. This is the final weekly number of the present school year and the reports of the Commencement and Alumni Day activities will come to you on July 1. In that and following numbers an entire page will be devoted to editorial comment, as heretofore.

We hope that all readers will find time to send us accounts of summer tours in this country and abroad for publication in the fall numbers of the WEEKLY.

The primary elections will have taken place before the next number of the WEEKLY goes to press. Many alumni are now in the heat of their campaigns for the nominations to various posts. One of the most active campaigners is Stafford King '14Ex, who is a candidate for state auditor. He has always shown an interest in the University and alumni affairs.

Melkeor U. S. Kjolraug, a Harvard graduate, and former instructor in the Law School here at the University is a candidate for congress in the fifth district.

Summer School Features Planned

THE summer session at the University this year, points towards being the best and the most interesting of those held in recent years, according to H. C. Richardson, who is in charge of the summer courses.

Beside the regular schedule of classes, the University always arranges for a series of special features covering certain fields. It is these special features that make the summer session especially interesting this year.

Among these features will be a special series of lectures and demonstrations by artists of international prominence dealing with various phases of interest in the field of fine arts, a conference on Governmental Relationships—Areas of Administration, a symposium in Medicine, and a conference on problems of legal administration.

Several men of international prominence will take part in these conferences.

In the field of fine arts the services of Edward McCartan, a New York sculptor, John Norton, a Chicago painter, and Ernest DeWald, a lecturer from Princeton University, have been obtained. Both Mr. McCartan and Mr. Norton will give demonstrations. These lectures and demonstrations will be open to the public unless too many seats are taken up, in which case only those holding cards will be admitted.

The visiting lecturers in the Governmental Relationships conferences include: Professor Raymond Moley of Columbia University Law School, Dr. John Bauer, Director of the Public Utility Bureau, New York City, Professor Edward W. Morehouse of Northwestern University, Robert Moses, former Secretary of the State of New York, who will give an address on "Control Over Public Administration," Walter S. Leland, Department of Economics, University of Chicago, Harold Henderson, Secretary of the Legislative Committee on School Finances, Wisconsin, Harry H. Moore, Director of Committee on Cost of Medical Care, Washington, D. C., Dr. Allen J. McLaughlin, Assistant Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service, Chicago, Dr. John A. Ferrill, Director of International Board of Health of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York City, and Dr. William F. Snow, General Director of the American Social Hygiene Association, New York City. These lectures will also be open to the public.

The Conferences on Problems of Legal Administration will be held at Duluth in connection with the State Bar Association meeting there. The principal speakers will be Professor Walter Dodd of Yale, Professor Sunderland of Michigan, and Judge Sanborn.

Dr. Poul Rehberg of the University of Copenhagen will be one of the lecturers at the Symposium in Medicine. Other noted lecturers are: Professor F. Volhard, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Dr. A. J. Carlson, University of Chicago, Dr. G. Carl Huber, University of Michigan, Dr. E. K. Marshall, Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore, Dr. A. N. Richards, University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Warfield T. Longcope, Johns Hopkins Hospital, and Dr. L. Leiter, University of Chicago.

The dates for the conferences are: Fine Arts, June 23 to July 18, Governmental Relationships, July 15 to July 18, Problems of Legal Administration, July 8 and 9, and Symposium in Medicine July 7 to July 25.

Chicago WEEK BY WEEK

By PAUL B. NELSON, '26E

LONDON LETTER: Stanley Bull, Arch. E'27, one-time business manager of The Minnesota Techno-Log, president of the Board of Publications, and a former Chicago resident, writes us from London, where he has lived for the past six months. Excerpts from his letter will be of general interest:

"We went down on the Mall last night and watched the line-up of cars with their gorgeously bedecked and caprisoned occupants that were waiting to attend the second "court" of the season. The people in court costume were forced to be in their cars, lined up along the curb on the Mall, at 6 o'clock. The first one in the line didn't get into the palace till almost nine.

"All this time the hoi-polloi of London were surging up and down the Mall, looking at the curiosities in their cages as though they were at a circus. I actually saw some shoddy, flat faced Cockneys with their noses pressed against the side window of a shiny Daimler in order to get a better look at its illustrious passengers. Their noses, already at a good angle, only went higher for the moment. The crowd was very orderly, only the police on duty were too few to be able to restrain the mob from coming right up to each car."

Alumnus Bull is a foreign sales engineer for the Insulite Co. He was married last August to Margaret Williams, a graduate of the University of Missouri. He may be addressed in care of the Guaranty Trust Co., 4 Place de la Concorde, Paris.

Pioneer: Chicago has its pioneers, though the style has changed since the days when the first buckskinned trappers trekked into the flat little clearing that became first Wabun, then Fort Dearborn, then Chicago. Flintlocks have given way to weapons of shrewd wit and its allies of determination and executive skill. And the men who win out in this new environment are those who would have won out over the old.

There are scores of these new pioneers. Let us consider one—Bror G. Dahlberg, '01, president of The Celotex Co. and executive head of the Dahlberg Sugar Cane Industries. This account from Tower Town Topics is written by Celeste O'Hara:

"Mr. Dahlberg is one of the few business leaders who envisioned the growth of Tower Town. Six years ago, before upper Michigan Avenue was lined with the great steel and stone structures that point high into the sky, Mr. Dahlberg had the offices of The Celotex Company moved from a loop building to what most people then thought was an outpost in the wilderness—645 North Michigan Avenue.

"With only the glistening white spire of the Wrigley building to salute the passers-by, north Michigan avenue was certainly an outpost of business in those long-ago days of 1924, and it seemed as though the skeptical business men were right when they talked about "the wilderness".

"Mr. Dahlberg, however, like the pioneers of olden days, firmly established his headquarters in a stronghold; and then, with the acumen of the modern pioneer, he set about to bring business out to him. The attractive little 'Celotex Cottage', of graceful Spanish design, was built next to the company's offices, and soon not only the residents of the North Side had seen 'The Cottage with a Mansion Air,' but so had the residents of the south and west sides, and it was not long before out-of-town visitors were making the trip out to 'the wilderness' to view the new model house.

"Soon, however, the white spire of the Wrigley building became only one in a cluster of high, pointed towers, and upper Michigan Avenue was no longer a 'wilderness.' Tall forts of commerce and industry had walled a new city—Tower Town—within a city. Guarding near the north end of Tower Town, the thirty-seven story Palmolive building now dominates the new city; and into this giant new outpost, Mr. Dahlberg brought the Celotex company last May.

"And then he pioneered some more. Who ever heard of furnishing a ten room apartment in an office building to house and entertain your out-of-town guests? Mr. Dahlberg had the idea and to Martin Charles Huggett, the architect and decorator was entrusted the task of planning the decoration and furnishing, for Mr. Dahlberg himself never saw the apartment until it was completely furnished, and even the linen was monogrammed. The Japanese butler keeps everything in readiness for guests who may drop into town.

"The apartment is modern in decoration, all except the bar or tap room which looks like some old tavern of an English inn.

"But that isn't all. His many business interests constantly call Mr. Dahlberg from Chicago to New York and Florida, and with his offices and business apartment as well as residence apartment at 999 Lake Shore Drive located here in Tower Town, he is able to save hours on his frequent trips. For possibly you've heard the whir of his twelve passenger amphibian plane as it comes down on Oak Street beach as early as six some mornings."

News: Esther Keller, SLA'29, is writing publicity for the Heating and Plumbing Industries Bureau, located in the Pure Oil building. Nat Finney, '27, is also with this bureau as editor of their monthly sales bulletin.

Ralph W. Liddle, E'21, will combine business and pleasure this summer for he will attend a convention of the National Electric Light Ass'n. in California and take an extended travel vacation on the West coast. He will be gone for five weeks. Mrs. Liddle, who has been visiting in California, will return with him. Alumnus Liddle is editor of The Edison Roundtable.

Casa de Alex: The other day at lunch,

James Bohan, told us of a keen place to dine and dance up on the near north side. We went the other evening, had a great time, and promised Alex we would tell all of our alumni friends. Their table d'hote dinner is grand, the orchestra one of the best in the district, and the price—well, we'll let you look for yourself and be surprised.

The place is small and intimate. No liquor is sold. Take the recommendation of at least two alumni—go to Casa de Alex next time. You'll like it!

New Machine Puts Alibis to Rout

By DONNA OVERY

FROM now on students at the University who are suspected of telling lies can be submitted to the same treatment as criminals when they are forced to confess their crimes. Not that the faculty intends to use third degree methods on students. They are far more scientific than that. The latest invention of science used by the police in detecting criminals, a psychogalvanometer, has been introduced into the University. The everyday name for the psychogalvanometer is the lie detecting machine.

One of these machines was recently purchased by the Board of Regents for the use of the psychology department in their classes and in research. By an electrical apparatus connecting the hands of the subject with the machine, hidden emotions are detected and recorded by a dial or needle on the machine. These emotions are thought to be detected by the reaction of certain glands to stimulation. Since a lie arouses an emotional reaction in the subject the machine records this too. This is the use usually made of the machine, although truthful persons can also be detected by use of the key words which trace clues.

Howard P. Longstaff demonstrated the machine to a class of 200 students on Friday, May 16. A number guessing contest was used. The subject thought of a number, and Mr. Longstaff tried to guess it. When he guessed correctly the meter recorded great emotion, but the several times that the subject announced that Mr. Longstaff was correct when he was not, the machine recorded the lie and the subject was forced to admit her guilt. A free association test was also used to record the subject's emotion to the first word thought of when a stimulus word was given.

After this demonstration the machine was to be available for police investigations.

The psychogalvanometer was developed by Professor S. R. Hathaway of the Ohio University, who will join the faculty of Minnesota next fall.

Another machine, built on the campus at a cost of $2,500, was completed a short time ago. This is a photographic recording machine which makes a complete movie record of the eye movements in reading.

Miles A. Tinker, assistant professor of psychology, suggested the building of such a machine when he joined the staff in 1927, and supervised the making of one by R. O. Douphin, university technician. Mr. Tinker studied reading faults while at Stanford University and published the results of his investigations in journals of psychology.

A person does not read while the eye is moving, but only in the pauses which the eye makes. About five pauses to a line is the average number. The machine, by means of two small mirrors, throws a beam of light into the subject's eyes which moves with the eye and flickers at the rate of fifty times a second. These movements are enlarged five times by an enlarging camera and recorded on standard size motion picture film as a series of small black dots. In this way it is revealed where the subject makes his reading mistakes, where he pauses too long, and where he returns to re-read passages.

Only two other machines of the kind exist in the country, one at Stanford University and one at Chicago. According to Mr. Tinker this machine is an improvement over the other two.

Wins Oratorical Contest

Guita Bearman, '30, of Minneapolis won first place in the annual contest of the Northern Oratorical league held at Northwestern University. Miss Bearman's victory marks the second year in succession that Minnesota has carried off top honors in the contest, Theodore Gordon of Minnesota taking first place at the University of Michigan last year.

Miss Bearman had previously won first place in the Pillsbury oratorical contest on the campus. She is also a member of the women's varsity debating team.

Minnesota also took a first place in the contest in 1924 with Llewellyn Pfankuchen as its representative.

Rudolph C. Gebhart, '30M, of Boyceville, Wisconsin, a senior in the University of Minnesota School of Mines, has been awarded the Slingerland Graduate scholarship in geology at the University of Arizona College of Mines.

President Coffman and President Williamson of the Burlington Route at the dedication of the newest Blackhawk, crack Chicago-Twin City train. Special cars on the train were named in honor of the first and second presidents of the University, William Watts Folwell and Cyrus Northrop.

Let your building authorities know the type of architecture you admire. Send for an illustrated brochure picturing beautiful college buildings.

THERE is no substitute for natural stone! Architects realize this. In college and university, the tradition is age-long. Modern business now is following suit. Witness the beautiful modern towers of our metropolitan centers.

Indiana Limestone is by all odds the stone most widely used in this country. It is a limestone of finer quality than that of which the great cathedrals of Europe are built. Nature has provided an unlimited supply in southern Indiana whence it can be shipped economically to any part of this country or Canada.

The difference in cost between genuine Indiana Limestone and other materials is small. Yet sometimes college building authorities are tempted to permit a substitute.

See that your new buildings are to have the enduring beauty which Indiana Limestone alone can give. Local stones rarely duplicate its attractiveness. To show you what a difference Indiana Limestone makes, we have prepared an illustrated brochure picturing modern collegiate buildings of this fine-grained, light-colored natural stone. Write for a copy. Address Dept. 1608C, Service Bureau, Bedford, Indiana.

*Public Address System
brings speaker right to you* —

The speaker rises—and the Western Electric installation in the huge room transforms him into a score of speakers! No matter how far away from him you sit, his every word comes to you as distinctly as though he stood right beside your chair.

Committees arranging banquets or conventions find that meetings are more interesting and effective when held in hotels where the Public Address System widens the hearing circle.

This equipment is a miniature interior broadcasting station, transmitting speech, music and entertainment within a building—to as many rooms as desired. Patrons of hotels thus equipped find an added attraction in getting music "on tap" in their rooms via loud speaker.

In up-to-date schools, hospitals, railroad stations and amusement parks, too, you will find the Public Address System adding to convenience and enjoyment. Made by your telephone makers, it assures the faithful tone and dependable service for which Western Electric sound transmitting apparatus has been known for over half a century.
