Endorsed, as amended, by Committee on Committees, April 27, 1971.

2. RESOLUTION ON A MORATORIUM AGAINST THE WAR IN INDOCHINA

(Procedural note: Since this resolution has been signed and submitted by 12 Twin Cities Campus Assemblymen, which satisfied the provision necessary for calling a special meeting to consider the issue, the matter is therefore before the Assembly without the need for a motion for immediate consideration as is usually required for items of new business.)

The war in Vietnam is being escalated. President Nixon's refusal to withdraw despite the defeat of the invasion of Laos means that only a massive show of concern by the American people can end this war.

The National Student Association, the Association of Student Governments, and the Student Mobilization Committee have called for a national moratorium against the war in Indochina and for the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Southeast Asia. This moratorium would commemorate the Kent and Jackson State students who were killed last May.

The Morris Campus of the University of Minnesota is already planning to participate in this moratorium. The Minnesota Student Association Forum, on April 14, endorsed the April 24 March on Washington and the spring antiwar offensive, and called for massive participation in the May 5 Moratorium. Therefore:

The Twin Cities Assembly endorses this moratorium and declares May 5 a Day of Reflection to allow interested students and faculty to devote themselves to study, discussion, and action concerning the war, as was done by the University last spring.

Students and faculty members should be able to miss or call off classes with no penalty, in order to participate in the moratorium.

Classes which do meet should democratically decide whether to discuss the war and related questions, or not.

The Assembly authorizes a committee to organize moratorium activities, including discussion meetings, rallies, and demonstrations.

3. SUBSTITUTE RESOLUTION OF THE TWIN CITIES
ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE

The University Schedule Committee and the Twin Cities Administrative Committee have approved and recommend to the Assembly that the 1970-71 Calendar be amended to include a University Convocation on May 5, 1971 between the hours of 11:15 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. to memorialize the students who died at Kent State University and at Jackson State University last spring; and to consider the many concerns surrounding the war in Vietnam.

Under this resolution classes would be excused for the IV and V class hours and all procedures normally followed for a convocation would apply.

Further, the resolution requires that the chairman of the Assembly (President Moos) appoint an ad hoc committee to develop the program for the convocation.

RESOLUTION

Whereas the University Schedule Committee and the Twin Cities Administrative Committee have approved and recommended to the Twin Cities Campus Assembly that an official University Convocation be held on May 5, during the IV and V class hours for the purpose of memorializing the students who died at Kent State and Jackson State Universities last spring; and to consider the many concerns surrounding the war in Vietnam; and

Whereas the Twin Cities Campus Assembly believes that such a convocation would be a worthwhile educational activity fully consistent with the mission of the University; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the official Calendar of the University is amended to incorporate a Convocation on May 5, for the purposes stated in this resolution during the time prescribed; and be it further

Resolved, That the chairman of the Twin Cities Campus Assembly appoint an ad hoc task force to plan and appropriately advertise the program(s) to be conducted during the period designated as the official University Convocation.

Amendment to the Substitute Resolution

Be it further resolved, That the entire day of May 5 be designated as a day of reflection in spring 1971, with the same provisions in force for that day that were applied on the day so designated during the spring quarter of 1970.

Not approved

Meeting recessed owing to lack of a quorum; meeting to be resumed on Monday, May 3, 1971 at 3:30 p.m.

• • • •

May 3, 1971

The recessed meeting of the Twin Cities Campus Assembly was convened on Monday, May 3, 1971, at 3:30 p.m. in 45 Nicholson Hall. Signing or checking the roll as present were 52 voting members of the faculty, 15 elected members of the student body, 2 members of the Administrative Committee, and 10 nonmembers. Vice Chairman Eli Rosenfield presided.

The following items were considered and action was taken as indicated.

The Vice Chairman reviewed the proceedings of the meeting of April 29, 1971.

Vice President Donald K. Smith moved that action on the two items presented during the meeting of April 29 pertaining to the war in Southeast Asia should be postponed indefinitely. The motion carried.

The following resolution was then presented for action:

Whereas the Twin Cities Assembly recognizes that many students and faculty members are planning to devote Wednesday, May 5 to study and discussion of the war in Vietnam, and to memorialize the students who died at Kent State University and Jackson State University last spring.

Whereas the Statement on Academic Freedom and Responsibility adopted by the Senate recognizes that "each individual faculty member must have reasonable latitude to cancel a scheduled class or other scheduled activity for reasons including . . . the desire to express individual conscience or conviction"; now, therefore be it

Resolved, That, in accordance with the Senate Statement on Academic Freedom and Responsibility, no faculty member who cancels a scheduled class or other scheduled activity, or student who fails to attend such a class, or engage in such activity, on May 5, in order to express his conscience or conviction, shall be subject to any sanction; and be it further

Resolved, That, in accordance with the Senate Statement on Academic Freedom and Responsibility, a faculty member who cancels such a scheduled class or scheduled activity on May 5 shall "arrange for substitute or make-up instruction in a manner most convenient for all of his students"; and be it further

Resolved, That the students who fail to attend such a scheduled class or engage in such scheduled activity on May 5 be given an opportunity by the instructor to make up the work missed at the most convenient time for them.

Approved

The Twin Cities Campus Assembly adjourned.

Assembly is scheduled for Thursday, October 28, 1971

ABSTRACT OF DISCUSSION

April 29, 1971

Minutes of February 4 meeting

Minutes of the last meeting were approved.

Nominating Committee

A nominating committee chaired by May Brodbeck, professor of philosophy, presented a slate of four names, from which two would be selected by written ballot to fill 1971-72 vacancies on the Committee on Committees. George Donohue and Betty Robinett were elected.

Election of the Vice Chairman

Maynard Reynolds, director of special education, was nominated by Eleanor Fenton, assistant to the dean of general extension, who cited his previous experience in the Senate and in serving on numerous committees. There being no other nominations from the floor, Mr. Reynolds was elected.

Intercollegiate Athletics Committee

Approved schedules for tennis, freshman baseball, and freshman football were presented for information.

Campus Committee on Housing

Rick Macpherson, MSA president, introduced a proposal which had been approved by the Student Affairs Committee to establish a new committee, Campus Committee on Housing, and he noted that it would deal with student and faculty problems in housing. Wallace Russell, professor of psychology and chairman of the Committee on Committees, said his committee had endorsed the proposal in principle after making a few amendments. The motion to adopt it was approved.

Moratorium Resolution

Peter Hames, student assemblyman, introduced a resolution endorsing the national moratorium against the war in Indochina and the commemoration of the college students killed last year at Kent State and Jackson State. May 5 would be designated a Day of Reflection to permit involvement of students and faculty in study, discussion, and action concerning the war under conditions similar to those followed a year ago. His motion for approval was seconded.

Donald Smith, vice president for administration, presented a substitute resolution designating fourth and fifth hours on May 5 as a University Convocation for this observance, and calling for a committee to plan appropriate activities. The resolution came from the University Schedule and Administrative Committees and involved, as did the previous resolution, an amendment to the official University calendar. Mr. Smith indicated that it would be appropriate for events to be planned which would not be a part of the Convocation and for which classes would not be excused.

Paula Giese, assistant professor of humanities, said that the substitute resolution was not incompatible with the original, and she recalled that there had been no action following last year's resolution. She indicated there were some activities being planned which could not be accommodated in 2 hours. Mr. Smith maintained that his was an alternative, and the effect would be to amend the calendar. Burnham Terrell, professor of philosophy, denied that the student resolution altered the calendar, but rather designated a day which would be governed by the same rules as the similar event last year. Mary Garrett, student, reported that ASTRA supported the student resolution, and declared that there would be no freedom of choice under the substitute resolution. Another student argued that the student proposal would provide for greater participation. At this point, the parliamentarian ruled that the Smith resolution was a substitute motion for the Hames motion.

This was followed by student comments—one asserting that both proposals were weak, and another questioning the wisdom of a small group of students and faculty modifying the calendar and suggesting that students have the right to participate in events on the day of the national moratorium, without altering the University calendar. Another student comment was that the resolution doesn't coerce students to take part but does provide a guarantee against punitive action in cases where students do participate.

Mr. Smith said that the original proposal did represent an amendment to the calendar because a Day of Reflection would be an official event, and Mr. Terrell then proposed an amendment to the substitute motion to the effect that May 5 would be designated as a Day of Reflection with the same implementing provisions in force for that day that were applicable to participation in activities on the day so designated in 1970. The Terrell amendment was approved. A vote was then taken to substitute the Smith resolution, as amended, for the original motion, and this passed. There followed considerable confusion resulting from this vote, the parliamentarian ruling that a further vote was required of the Assembly to approve the resolution. He indicated that the vote to substitute had to be followed by a vote to approve (or disapprove) that substitute, as amended. Following a review by Mrs. Giese of last year's resolution and related documents issued at that time, Mr. Terrell emphasized that his amendment concerned only the implementing provisions for the Day of Reflection which were applicable to participation in the activities of that day—those administrative implementations designed to protect students from sanctions and providing for make-up work.

The question of whether a quorum existed was raised, and it was determined that it did not. Grover Maxwell, professor of philosophy, challenged the parliamentarian on the previous ruling that a further vote was needed on the substitute resolution. A move for adjournment was followed by another to meet again on Monday, May 3, at 3:30, which was approved.

ABSTRACT OF DISCUSSION

May 3, 1971

Eli Rosenfield, vice chairman of the Assembly, presided over the reconvened meeting in the absence of President Moos. He reviewed briefly the situation when the meeting was adjourned last week and read the Smith resolution, incorporating the Terrell amendment. Mr. Smith moved to postpone indefinitely action on the proposal, since the situation was such that its provisions couldn't be adhered to in the one day remaining before May 5.

Carl Auerbach, professor of law, introduced a resolution providing for cancellation of classes for reason of conscience or conviction, providing participating faculty members and students freedom from sanctions, and stipulating that faculty members should arrange for substitute of make-up instruction. The Smith motion was then approved, followed by a motion to approve the Auerbach resolution. In response to a concern expressed by Grover Maxwell, professor of philosophy, that students be assured that they would have an opportunity to make up work, Mr. Auerbach included such a clause. The resolution was then approved.

Landis Boyd, professor of agricultural engineering and chairman of the Schedule Committee, asked about participation of civil service employees, and Mr. Smith indicated that an appropriate memorandum would be issued by his office outlining rules.

One student suggested language which would encourage participation in the events of the day and another a resolution condemning those who were absent from the Assembly meeting but no action was taken. The meeting was adjourned.

ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOCIAL SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES IN ST. PAUL

Background:

In May 1970, SCEP and SCRAP appointed a Task Force to prepare a proposal for the development of the social sciences and humanities on the St. Paul campus in the 1970's. The members of the Task Force were George W. Bohrstedt, Chairman, K. Bales, H. Berman, D. Dahl, W. Gardner, H. Heneman, R. Hobbie, R. Holloway, P. Hopman, R. Levy, A. Linck, F. Lukermann, T. Marmor, F. Miller, R. Nichols, P. Rosenblatt, W. Russell, C. Schwartz, and R. Sonkowsky. The Report of the Task Force was submitted to our Committees in June 1971.

The charge to the Task Force grew out of consideration of the "St. Paul Prospectus", a document prepared in 1970 by the Vice President for Administration, calling for the development of a substantial social science faculty in St. Paul in the coming decade, with emphasis on problem-oriented instruction and research. The Prospectus also envisages development of new undergraduate curricula in the next decade which would be better adapted to the occupational and personal aspirations of students who may not be well served by present programs. Accordingly, the Task Force was asked to study the mission of a strong social science faculty in St. Paul and the structural or administrative arrangements for its development, and to examine the relationship between the development of the social sciences and humanities in St. Paul and the support of new interdisciplinary patterns of undergraduate instruction.

The University was struggling with a severe space shortage in Minneapolis, resulting from an unanticipated radical growth in demand for the social sciences and humanities, when the St. Paul Prospectus presented the challenge of developing problem-oriented, interdisciplinary programs of teaching and research. The recommendations of the Task Force at once meet that challenge and transform the vexing problem of space limitation in Minneapolis into an invigorating opportunity to develop new patterns of undergraduate liberal arts education which will interact with new patterns of graduate level instruction and research.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

A joint SCEP-SCRAP subcommittee has prepared a set of recommendations for implementing the proposals of the Task Force. Most in need of prompt implementation are the Report's recommendations for (1) the transfer and initial registration, to begin in the fall of 1972, of an appreciable number of lower division students (2500 by 1980) from CLA Minneapolis to a new home base in CLA St. Paul; the relocation of a sufficient number of introductory and distribution requirement courses to accommodate these students and 500 St. Paul students who presently take courses in Minneapolis; (2) the creation of a new unit within CLA to coordinate, stimulate, and foster cross-disciplinary and interdisciplinary activity at all levels of instruction; and (3) the establishment of Graduate Centers for Interdisciplinary Studies which would provide foci of graduate level research interest and capability for this new unit. We see these proposals as inseparable, if utilization of available space in St. Paul is to be made expeditiously and in the most fruitfully innovative manner. To this end, the subcommittee has submitted the following four recommendations to its parent committees.

Recommendation I: The Establishment within CLA of a School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies

The new unit would be budgetarily and administratively responsible for conducting articulated lower-division CLA distribution sequences to be offered in St. Paul, for developing new interdisciplinary upper-division and graduate programs, and for the instructional activities of some, though not all, of the Graduate Centers for Advanced Interdisciplinary Studies proposed in Recommendation II below. More than merely an administrative mechanism for organizing in one place a group of separate courses, the new unit within CLA would develop new kinds of integrated, problem-oriented teaching programs in St. Paul.

Current surveys indicate that classroom space is available in St. Paul. To make office space available for participating faculty and supporting services, funds for remodeling existing structures or building a new one may need to be requested from the 1973 legislature.

Recommendation II: The Establishment of a Set of Graduate Centers for Advanced Interdisciplinary Studies.

These Centers would be concerned with problem-oriented multi-disciplinary research and would involve faculty from all parts of the University. These faculty would participate in all levels of instruction and particularly in the development of interdisciplinary programs. These could begin modestly in both expense and scale utilizing existing staff and resources. One of the earliest efforts of the Centers would probably be to identify rather specific areas for investigation and decide upon their relative importance. As this process develops, appropriate graduate programs will emerge. Since Center members would have teaching responsibilities, they would stimulate and support the development of cross-disciplinary instruction at all levels. If the recommendation to establish these Centers is adopted, SCEP and SCRAP will act on the Task Force's proposal that it appoint an All-University Committee to study the scope and quality of existing multi-disciplinary problem-oriented research and establish a set of priority areas for potential Centers.

The remaining two recommendations strengthen the ties between the St. Paul programs and the larger social community.

Recommendation III: A major Continuing Education Center should be constructed on the St. Paul campus.

A new major Continuing Education Center on the St. Paul campus is consonant with the outreach flavor already existing there. Moreover, the development of the Graduate Centers for Advanced Interdisciplinary Studies (Recommendation II) would increase the importance of the Continuing Education Center. If the Graduate Centers for Advanced Interdisciplinary Studies are to be viable research and curricular units, they must be able to interface easily with the community, the state, and the larger society. At least some of this interfacing could be accomplished in the new Center for Continuing Education. This unit would provide opportunities for persons outside the University to participate in the study of problems which engage the Centers for Advanced Interdisciplinary Studies. The Center for Continuing Education would also serve the several St. Paul and Minneapolis units involved with applied research.

Recommendation IV: The Departments of Music and Music Education should be moved to St. Paul.

These departments have requested this move because of space problems in Minneapolis. Many of the programs of the Department of Music fit with the outreach activities historically associated with many St. Paul Programs. The Departments of Music and Music Education are involved in community and state-wide service. They have always had an extensive and complex relationship with the metropolitan civic, cultural, and educational institutions. The move would eventually add about 1200 students to the St. Paul campus. Music majors could fulfill distribution requirements for degree programs from the new lower-division offerings proposed for St. Paul. The Music Departments and the Continuing Education Center could share auditorium space, and funding for the two units should be considered together and requested in 1973.

The Task Force examined the possibility of relocating in St. Paul the School of Public Affairs and the School of Business Administration. After due consideration, it concluded that it would not be feasible for these units to move at this time. However, successful implementation of the above Recommendations would create conditions more favorable to the relocation of these units and the question should be re-examined after the new social science and humanities programs have been operative for two years, that is, in the spring of 1974. The Senate Committee on Resources and Planning, through its continuous planning process, will re-examine the various campus and unit plans in the light of 1971 legislative actions and St. Paul campus developments.

The above four Recommendations have been approved by the Senate Committee on Educational Policy, are under consideration by the Senate Committee on Resources and Planning, and it is anticipated that they will be presented for action to the December, 1971 meeting of the Senate.

VII. REPORT OF THE UNIVERSITY SENATE COMMITTEE ON RESOURCES AND PLANNING

Reported for Information

SUBJECT: THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE
SOCIAL SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES IN ST. PAUL

At its meeting of Monday, October 25, 1971, the Senate Committee on Resources and Planning approved the following recommendations for University Senate action:

- I. College of Liberal Arts offerings in the lower division on the St. Paul Campus should be expanded.

In Fall Quarter of 1972, the transfer of an appreciable number of lower division students (2500 by 1980) from CLA Minneapolis to CLA St. Paul should begin. A sufficient number of introductory and distribution requirement courses should be offered to accommodate these students and 500 St. Paul students who presently take courses in Minneapolis. The responsibility for developing appropriate programs of study and an administrative organization rests in a major way with the College of Liberal Arts. Since these matters will strongly influence the future character of the St. Paul Campus, however, they require all-University consideration.

This recommendation is consistent with planning principles adopted earlier by the Senate Committee on Resources and Planning.

Commentary on the Proposal for the School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies and the Graduate Centers for Interdisciplinary Studies

While there may be other patterns than the ones proposed, it is clear that the School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies, and the Graduate Centers for Interdisciplinary Studies are responsive to the parts of the charge originally given the Bohmstedt Task Force: i.e., . . . "(2) examine the relationships between the development of the social sciences and humanities in St. Paul and the support of new patterns of undergraduate instruction; and (3) to consider how these developments could be viewed as an opportunity to cultivate interdisciplinary relationships in St. Paul which would result in programs of undergraduate instruction appropriate to the needs of professional students."

The broad outlines of the proposed School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies and the Graduate Centers for Interdisciplinary Studies are consistent with the first planning principle given in Toward 1985 and Beyond, i.e.,

- "1. To help insure the survival of present and future generations with an improvement in the quality of life, the University System has the obligation to develop problem-oriented inquiry and teaching programs that address critical social problems such as population, pollution, poverty, and prejudice.

The principle acknowledges again, as the University has done numerous times in its history with different phrasings, the obligation to contribute to the welfare of the society and the state. The implication that the University should initiate and stimulate the development of needed programs through new organizational structures which may need to be created to facilitate program development as suggested by the Behavioral and Social Sciences (BASS) Committee report. This principle calls for more direct, deliberate steps by the University to contribute to society through programs that focus on critical problems and work toward their solution."

The proposals for a School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies and Graduate Centers for Interdisciplinary Studies are in the nature of educational experiments and, as with all experiments, they must be carefully observed and evaluated. The proposals are better prepared than others which have been considered since the decision was first made to expand the educational enterprise on the St. Paul Campus. The Senate Committee on Resources and Planning observes the proposals to be consistent with the planning principle given above.

II. To the extent that additional funds from outside the College of Liberal Arts are required, the committee recommends that such resource needs be considered, along with others, as a candidate for all-University (new and ongoing programs) support.

III. A major Continuing Education Center should be constructed on the St. Paul Campus.

Through the work of the Agricultural Extension Service, the University has a long history of service and interaction with a large and important part of its state-wide community. Present concern with the environment involves the College of Biological Sciences in important ways, and the locus of a major portion of this college is on the St. Paul Campus. The characteristic of looking outward to the community is thus a salient feature of St. Paul Campus activities and programs.

There is also the likelihood that higher education in the future will tend to be continuous, and distributed over time, as contrasted with the more or less discrete concentrated pattern of the present. This possibility further supports the need for a facility which promotes interactions between the University and the community it serves.

IV. The Departments of Music and Music Education should be moved to St. Paul.

The Departments of Music and Music Education have strong ties to the metropolitan community and throughout the state. These ties are extensive, complex, and run across civic, cultural, and educational boundaries. The location of these units in St. Paul would be entirely consistent with the emerging pattern of St. Paul Campus development. The Bohrnstedt report believes it a planning error not to have included music in the new Performing Arts Building on the West Bank. The separation of the performing arts does diminish the possibility of interactions. But this same separation enriches the cultural life of the campus and community where each of the performing arts makes its home. The Senate Committee on Resources and Planning endorses this recommendation.

The following motion was introduced subsequent to the presentation of items VI and VII of the docket:

The Twin Cities Campus Assembly directs the following Senate committees—SCEP, SCRAP, and Social Policy—to consider the issues implicit in the SCEP—SCRAP recommendations of October 28, 1971. These issues concern the following support services facilities for the St. Paul Campus: library, housing (on and off campus), food and lounge space. These issues are to be considered before the SCEP and SCRAP recommendations are submitted for action to the Senate.

THE NEXT REGULAR MEETING OF THE
TWIN CITIES CAMPUS ASSEMBLY IS SCHEDULED FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1972.

Appendix

ABSTRACT OF DISCUSSION

President Moos called the meeting to order at 3:30 p.m. in Green Hall Auditorium on the St. Paul Campus.

Minutes of April 29, 1971

Minutes of the Spring quarter Assembly meeting were approved.

Officers

Ralph Miller, Jeanne Lupton, and Donald Beatty were approved as parliamentarian, abstractor, and clerk, respectively. Four marshals were reported later in the meeting.

Nominating Committee for Steering Committee

Membership on a committee to nominate candidates to fill next year's faculty vacancies on the Steering Committee was approved.

Assembly and Campus Committees

Memberships on Assembly and Campus Committees for 1971-72 were approved, including the addition of Siegfried Grosser to replace Harold Chase for one year on the Educational Policy Committee.

Student Affairs Committee

Tom Bosshardt, student and chairman of the committee, presented a recommendation for which he moved approval, for the establishment of a Campus Committee on the University Health Service, which would report to the Assembly through his committee. The committee would serve as liaison between Health Service administration and students, staff and faculty; moreover, the Health Service administration had approved the plan. Wallace Russell, professor of psychology and chairman of the Committee on Committees, pointed out that his committee was charged with responsibility for reviewing the proposed duties and responsibilities of each new committee, although the Assembly could act without that review. Views expressed included an observation that policies should be determined by the Health Service itself and a report from Dennis Miller, student, that in his work as student ombudsman he had discovered a need for a group which could make the Health Service more receptive to student needs. The move to amend the Bosshardt motion to refer it to the Committee on Committees for review of the number of members and scope of the mandate was seconded. An observation by John Wertz, professor of physical chemistry, that that committee had trouble enough making its spring deadline without adding to its responsibilities was answered by the chairman who explained that the student body was unable to get its nominations to the committee in time. A number of students spoke against the amendment, maintaining that the charge was specific and that further review would be time-consuming. With that, the amendment failed, and the original motion was approved.

Joint Report: Educational Policy and Resources and Planning Committees

May Brodbeck, professor of philosophy and chairman of the Educational Policy committee, and Warren Ibele, associate dean of the graduate school and chairman of Resources and Planning Committee, reported on four recommendations prepared by a joint SCEP-SCRAP subcommittee on the development of the social sciences and the humanities in St. Paul. The recommendations would implement the proposals of the task force chaired by George Bohrnstedt which was appointed in May 1970 to study the possibility of a strengthened social science faculty in St. Paul, and to examine the relationship between the development of the social sciences and humanities there and the support of new interdisciplinary patterns of undergraduate instruction. The recommendations were presented for information only and will be on the agenda of the next Senate meeting. They called for the establishment within CLA of a School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies, the establishment of a set of Graduate Centers for Advanced Interdisciplinary Studies, a Continuing Education Center in St. Paul, and a move of Music and Music Education to St. Paul. Miss Brodbeck reported that the CLA All-College Council had given approval to the School of Cross-Disciplinary Studies for St. Paul. She emphasized that space problems could be alleviated by development of that campus, and the needs of St. Paul students in these fields could be met. The degree would be the traditional one. Mr. Ibele reported the recommendation of the Resources and Planning Committee that the transfer of lower division students from Minneapolis to St. Paul, as well as St. Paul to Minneapolis, commence during fall quarter, 1972. He added that the 4 recommendations were consistent with the principles set forth in his committee's recent report, "Toward 1985 and Beyond." Concern was expressed that support facilities needs such as library, housing, and student center (including food service) were not being considered. Peter Hames, student, moved that SCEP, SCRAP and the Social Policy Committee review the question of the effects on the Library and other student support services and present a report at the next Senate meeting. Hugh Peacock, director, office of physical planning and design, emphasized that his office was dealing with such support facilities needs in developing plans for St. Paul. Mr. Ibele emphasized that SCEP and SCRAP would be heavily involved in reviewing budgetary requests and that it would be impossible to comply by December. Mr. Hames said that in that case it would have to be delayed. Hyman Berman, professor of history and director of the social science program, explained that the Bohrnstedt task force had explored the support services requirements and had made it a requirement of the move. At this point the Hames motion was approved.

Business and Rules Committee

Eleanor Fenton, assistant to the dean of General Extension and acting chairman of the committee, presented for information the announcement that the committee would be reviewing the operational rules of the Assembly. She also announced the day's bus schedule between the Minneapolis and St. Paul campuses.

Intercollegiate Athletics Committee

Athletic schedules and a statistical summary by type of sport were presented for information.

National Student Strike resolution

A request by Carol Freeman of the Student Mobilization Committee for a hearing on a resolution of support for the November 3 national student strike calling for United States withdrawal from Indochina and the designation of that day as a day of reflection and active involvement in planned activities and educational events was denied on a voice vote.

Chicano Studies proposal

Roman Vito de la Campa, student assemblyman, presented a resolution that the Assembly support the establishment of a Chicano Studies department in principle, and he requested that Raymond Roybal, student, be permitted to speak briefly to the subject. He and Mr. Roybal urged establishment of the department with appropriate financial support, pointing out that there was now no faculty member to deal with the subject. Mr. Berman reported that the Social Science and Humanities divisional councils had appointed a committee to make a recommendation concerning the status of Chicano studies; Carl Auerbach, professor of law, urged delay until that committee had made its report. Manuel Guzman, student, urged support for the program, citing the need to preserve the culture of this minority. Josef Altholz, professor of history, took the position that as an academic matter it should be considered on its merits and that the college involved should make the initial review and recommendation. He called for delay until the CLA committee had made its report the next day.

Following what appeared to be a close vote both by voice and show of hands, a roll call vote produced a 5-vote margin for the resolution.

The meeting was adjourned.
