SOURCE LIST OF ILLUSTRATIVE MATERIALS

G. F. Ekstrom

The accompanying list indicates some of the sources from which educational materials including exhibits, pictures, charts and bulletins may be secured. The list, which, in addition to the addresses, carries brief notations as to items available from the different sources. It is designed to show the nature and extent of the materials which can be obtained for use in teaching rather than as a complete tabulation of sources.

Materials from the sources included in the list have been examined and construed to have an educational value if used judiciously. A file of the materials is maintained in the Department of Agricultural Education for the observation of students and is accessible to teachers of vocational agriculture who might be interested in its contents.

Teachers of vocational agriculture should have no difficulty in securing materials from any of the sources included in the list provided school stationery is used in making the requests. So far as we can ascertain the items from the different sources are available for teaching purposes without charge unless otherwise specified. Since many of the items have been produced at considerable expense, duplicate copies cannot ordinarily be had for distribution among class members.

It is suggested that materials of the types listed herein be classified and filed in a manner which will keep them in good condition and make them readily accessible. Their use, subsequently, in teaching demonstrations as displays related to different units being studied, and as references supplementing the usual library books and bulletins should enrich the effectiveness of the instruction in vocational agriculture.
