DULUTH--A "Clothing Clinic" featuring nationally famous Edna Bryte Bishop will be held at the UMD upper campus October 2-3.

The clinic is sponsored by the UMD department of home economics with Dr. Ruth Palmer, department head, as coordinator.

Mrs. Bishop, who is credited with revolutionizing household clothes-making with her sewing short-cuts, conducts similar clinics across the nation for teachers, homemakers and students.

Using the so-called Bishop Method of clothing construction, for example, a person can make a garment without either basting or hand sewing.

Mrs. Bishop will discuss and demonstrate "Fitting and Accessories" from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 2 at the Kirby Student Center ballroom. At the Science auditorium from 1:45 to 4:00 p.m. Friday, she'll speak on "Construction Techniques and Procedures." From 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 3, also at the Science auditorium, Mrs. Bishop will discuss "Short Cuts in Tailoring."

Reservations must be returned to the UMD home economics department, room 315 Main, by September 28.
