

u

DULUTH--From D. H. Lawrence to Federico Lorca, such is the span of interest in the fall series of poetry readings being presented by the UMD English department.

Students, faculty and the public are invited to listen in on the poetry sessions in room 314 Humanities building at 4:30 Wednesday afternoons.

On Oct. 14, Asst. Prof. Robert C. Hart will read sonnets of Longfellow; Oct. 21, Assoc. Prof. Thomas Sturgeon will read from Chaucer; Oct. 28 Assoc. Prof. Wendell Glick from Joel Barlow; Nov. 4, Asst. Prof. Joseph E. Duncan from Edith Sitwell; Nov. 18, Asst. Prof. Robert Owens from poems on city life; Nov. 25, Dr. William A. Rosenthal, head of the English department, from Carl Sandburg; and Dec. 2, Instructor Harry Davis will read from Federico Lorca.