A list

DULUTH--William B. Lockhart, Dean of the University of Minnesota Law School, will speak in room 228, UMD Social Sciences building at 12:30 p.m., December 3.

Dean Lockhart will direct his remarks, primarily, to UMD students interested in entering the legal profession. He also will grant individual interviews during the afternoon.

All interested persons, including Duluth area attorneys, are invited to hear Dean Lockhart whose appearance at UMD is sponsored by the Pre-law Club and the Social Science honor societies--Pi Gamma Mu, Phi Alpha Theta and Gamma Theta Upsilon.

There are more than 25 UMD students registered in pre-law under a program now in its second year. A student can spend three years at UMD, then one year at the University of Minnesota law school in Minneapolis and earn a UMD degree. The student then has another two years of training before graduation with a degree in law.

T.W. Chamberlin, Academic Dean; Dr. Richard Sielaff, chairman of the Social Sciences division; and Ellis N. Livingston, assistant professor of history, all of UMD, are coordinating arrangements for Dean Lockhart's visit.
