DULUTH--The annual Selective Service College Qualification Test will be offered to area college students at UMD on April 17. The test will be held at noon in the Library Building, Room 122.

Application materials for the test are now available and applications must be postmarked not later than midnight, March 27. Students should write to their respective selective service boards for this information.

Only full-time collegians are eligible for the test. Also, a student may take the test only once during his college career.

The test's result alone does not determine a student's deferment. It is considered along with other information in deciding whether to defer a registrant for further study.
