Duluth --- Four UMD education seniors were presented Outstanding Future awards Thursday night in Kirby Student Center (Feb. 20) as a highlight of Education Day events.

The winners in the Department of Secondary Education were Julie May Ehlers and David Russell Cran, both of Duluth. Department of Elementary Education winners were Carole Rae Morgan and Jack A. Tomassoni, both of Virginia, Minn.

The awards were decided in an election last week by students in education following nominations of candidates by faculty members.

Miss Ehlers, a graduate of East High School, is majoring in music in secondary education and minoring in English. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Ehlers, 1809 Woodland, Duluth.

Cran graduated from Denfeld High School; he is a music major and speech minor. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cran, 816 Voss Ave., Duluth.

Miss Morgan, a graduate of Roosevelt High School, Virginia, and Virginia Junior College, is majoring in elementary education, minoring in social science. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Culbert Morgan, 1203-20th Ave. S., Virginia.

Tomassoni graduated from Roosevelt High School, Virginia and Virginia Junior College. He also is majoring in elementary education and minoring in social science. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Tomassoni, 1719 Cottage Lake, Virginia.

Dr. Arthur W. Combs, professor of educational psychology at the University of Florida, made the evening address on "Teachers Are Human Too."
