Letter from the Dean

We gather today in celebration to award you a degree that recognizes your tireless efforts, acknowledges your scholarly achievements, and symbolizes the transformative effect of business education. Whether you pursue a career in business, start your own company, lead a nonprofit, or pursue further studies, the degree you have earned from the Carlson School of Management today will help you see business as a force for good and position you to create a better tomorrow.

Although you may be leaving the Carlson School today, the Carlson School will not leave you. You have become part of a community comprised of more than 55,000 graduates who came before you—a global force that reaches across 103 countries, yet is still deeply connected to campus.

Carlson School alumni are accomplishing amazing feats across the world while at the same time ensuring that the next generation of leaders being shaped in Minnesota has the same opportunities that were afforded them. They mentor our students.

They provide experiential learning opportunities. They employ our students and graduates. They become our business partners. They invest both their time and their financial resources in our progress. They realize that the value of their degree is not fixed; rather it appreciates with proper stewardship. I hope you will follow their lead. In appreciation, know that we will always be here to assist in your continued pursuits in any way we can.

On behalf of the University of Minnesota and the faculty and staff of the Carlson School, I offer you sincere congratulations. We are proud of all that you have achieved to date and are even more excited about all that you will accomplish in the years to come.

Co-Founder and Executive Chair
Värde Partners

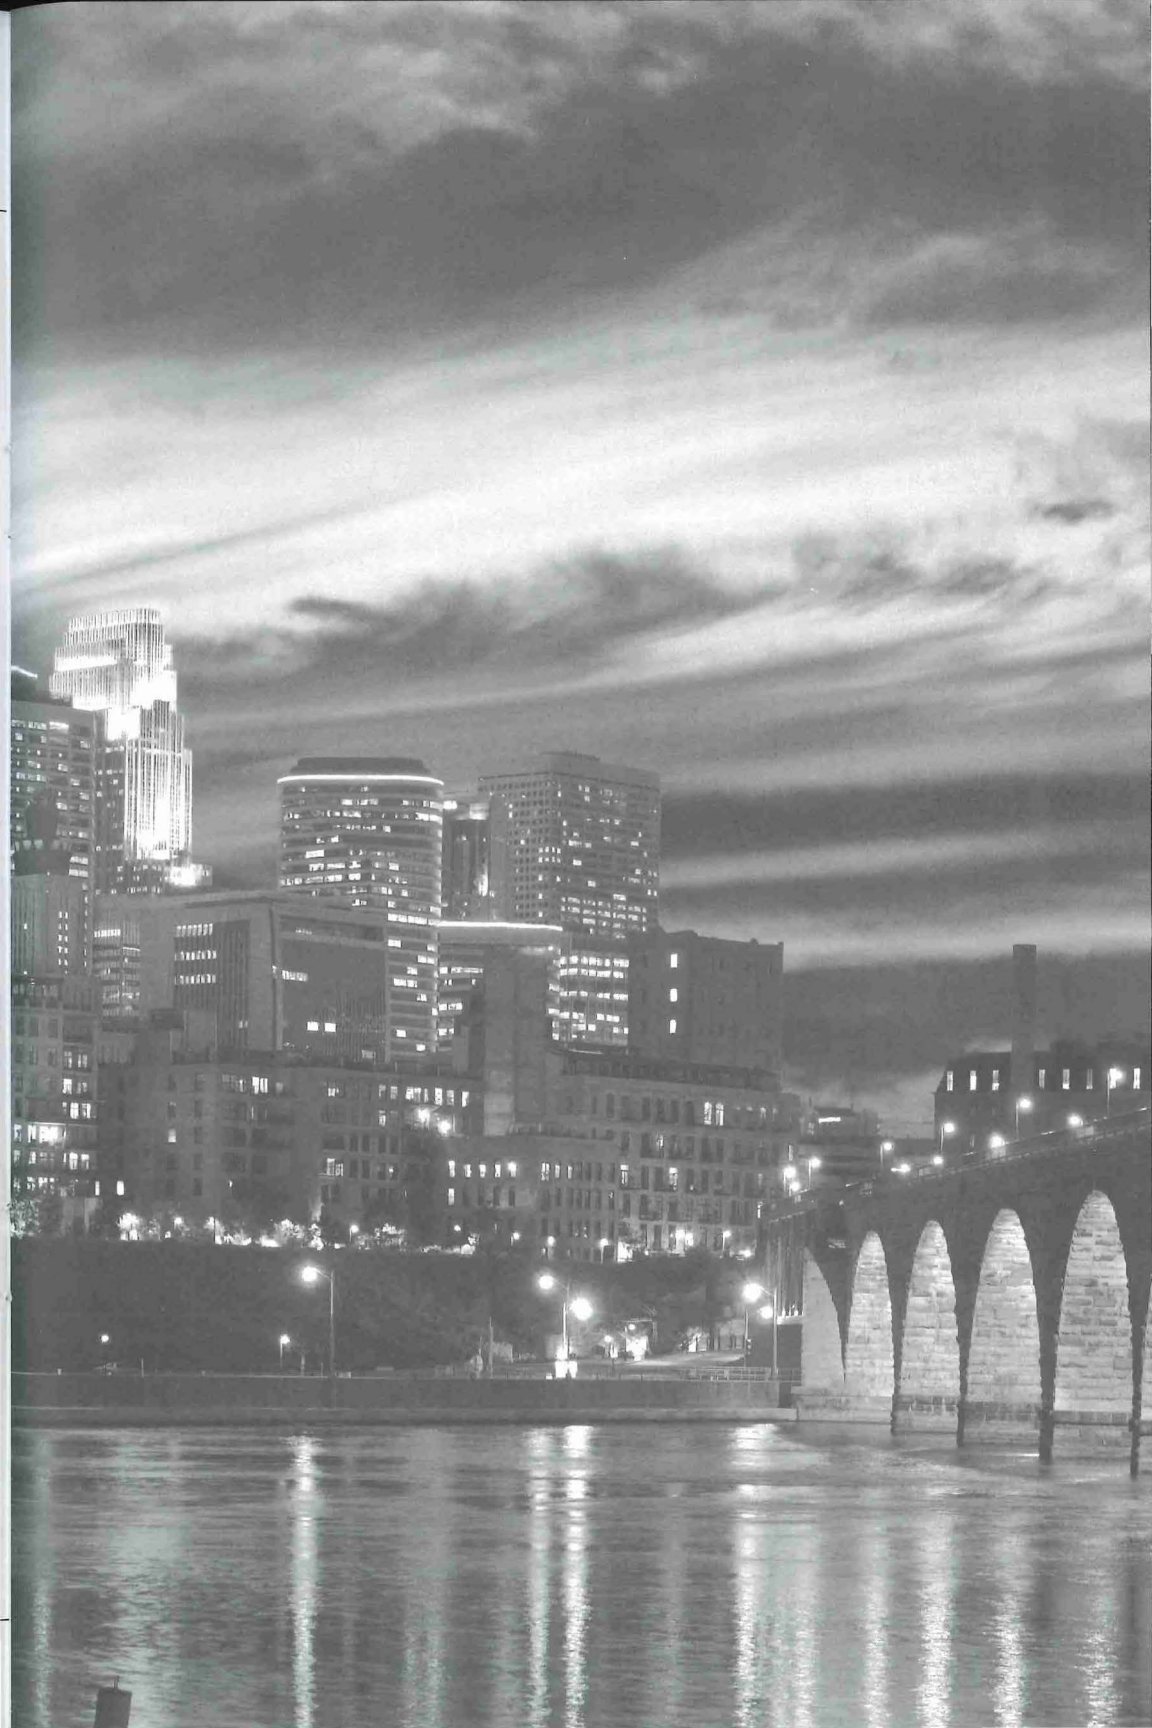

Marcia Page is Co-Founder and Executive Chair of Värde Partners, a global alternative investment management firm with $13 billion in assets under management. She cofounded the firm in 1993 and has overseen every aspect of Värde's growth, ranging from the development of the original investment thesis, to the raising of each fund, to the crafting of the firm's investor communications, to the development of the firm's infrastructure.

Page, who was named the 2017 University of Minnesota Entrepreneur of the Year, is a pioneer in the male-dominated global investment industry. She is a member of the Committee of 200, an organization of some of the world's most successful women business leaders.

Prior to founding Värde, Page served as vice president of EBF & Associates, an alternative investment management firm, and worked at Cargill, trading distressed and high-yield bonds and managing fixed-income portfolios.

Page has a BA in Economics from Gustavus Adolphus College and an MBA from the Carlson School. She serves on the Carlson School Board of Overseers and the Board of Trustees at Gustavus Adolphus, as well as several private company boards and investment committees.

Carlson Scholars

This designation is based on a grade point average of 3.85 or higher. These students represent the highest level of academic achievement throughout the Carlson School and are invited to wear maroon and gold honor cords at the commencement ceremony.

Academic costume and regalia

Academic gowns date back to the 14th century when they served two functions of nearly equal importance: to indicate the academic rank of the wearer and to keep the scholar warm in the drafty stone halls of academia.

The markings, cut, and color of the modern-day academic costume—cap, gown, and sometimes hood—indicate the academic degree, the field of study, and the institution that granted the degree.

Degree candidates wear the gowns appropriate for the degrees they are about to receive. Bachelor's degree gowns are black and untrimmed. A maroon and gold tassel hangs from the mortar board worn on the head by candidates. Master's degree gowns, black and untrimmed, have pointed sleeves.

Doctoral gowns in the United States traditionally have been black with velvet front facings and crossbars on the sleeves. The Minnesota hood, which may be worn by anyone with a doctoral degree from the University of Minnesota, is black with maroon chevron on gold. Each institution has its own pattern of colors on the hood, worn around the neck and down the back of the gown. The length and shape of the hood identify the most advanced degree the wearer has earned, and the velvet edging shows the field: drab for doctor of business administration.

In recent years, a number of universities have adopted gowns of distinctive school colors. A new University of Minnesota doctoral gown and matching tam made their appearance in 1988 to celebrate the centenary of the first Minnesota doctor of philosophy degree. The new Minnesota gown is maroon-trimmed with black velvet chevron and gold metallic braid. The traditional gown may still be worn.

Alumni Board Welcome

Dear Graduate,

Congratulations on your years of hard work and dedication, which have led to this significant achievement! I'd like to formally welcome you to your Carlson School alumni community. Like you, your alumni network is diverse, energetic, and Driven.

Your affiliation with the Carlson School doesn't end with graduation. In fact, you're just getting started. With more than 55,000 alumni around the globe; a growing number of corporate, regional, and international alumni chapters; and a strong virtual presence, you can plug into your Carlson School network whenever and wherever you are.

We need your passion and enthusiasm to be a force for engagement. Engagement is more than attending your local Carlson School event, though we hope to see you there. It's meeting a new alumnus in your city for coffee, it's coming back to campus to speak in a class, it's becoming a mentor, it's giving financially through the Investors Circle...it's being engaged. I'm confident that you will make an impact in your professional life—the Carlson School has prepared you well for that—but, you also have the ability to make a tremendous impact on the Carlson School and its future students.

On behalf of the entire Alumni Board at the Carlson School, I'd like to offer you our congratulations and wish you the best of luck on your future endeavors!
