Duluth--- Winter quarter classes at UMD will begin at 8:30 a.m., Monday, January 6th, Provost Raymond W. Darland announced today.

The original All-University Calendar previously had set the starting date for winter quarter as Friday, Jan. 3. However, the University Senate recently voted to rescind the original date for the convenience of out-of-town students.

Lincoln's Birthday on Feb. 12, 1969, which originally had been scheduled as a University holiday, now will be a regular class day.

All other winter quarter dates remain as previously published.
