FROM THE KERLAN FRIENDS PRESIDENT

Greetings! A main focus for the Kerlan Friends is raising money for the Kerlan Collection's conservation projects. If you were at Andersen Library during January or February, you may have seen the very informative display CLRC staff, Jennifer Claybourne-Torkelson, created about conservation. In that display she explained the difference between preservation and conservation:

"While 'Preservation' is what we do on a daily basis with our climate controlled facility and proper storage practices, 'Conservation' is the actual treatments applied to materials that may be at risk of deterioration and/or damage."

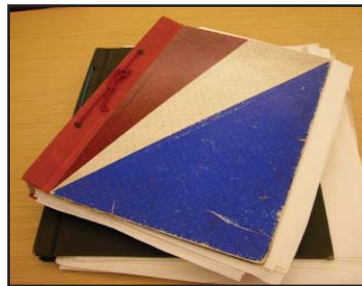

"Millions of Cats...Millions of Pieces...Millions of Pennies" exhibit on display at Elmer L. Andersen Library

The display illustrated that ongoing conservation is critical "in maintaining a collection that can endure public and research use for years without damage (or in many cases further damage) to the original materials." A major conservation project the Kerlan

Friends Board has begun, and invites all of you to help with, is:

MILLIONS of CATS. . .MILLIONS of PIECES. . . MILLIONS of PENNIES. . .

The Family of Wanda Gág donated her materials to the Kerlan Collection, including two scrapbooks. They contain news clippings, letters and memorabilia about Millions of Cats and other picture books she wrote. The scrapbooks are 65+ years old. They are flaking and crumbling into. . . MILLIONS OF PIECES.

Two of Wanda Gág's scrapbooks at the Children's Literature Research Collection

The estimate to conserve these scrapbooks is $3,000 - $5,000. For this to happen the Kerlan Friends Board decided to collect. . .MILLIONS OF PENNIES. 1,000,000 pennies = $10,000. This amount will not only cover the scrapbooks' conservation cost, but it will also provide additional funds for conserving other materials.

How can you collect pennies? Here are just a few ideas:

- Ask everyone you know to contribute a penny, or two, or three, or MORE to this project. (Some people throw pennies away!)
- Children can tell friends and teachers at school about the project and make a Millions of Cats Penny Jar.
- Adults, who grew up hearing and reading this classic, can make Millions of Cats Penny Jars. Take them to your book clubs and other events to collect pennies.

A look inside one of Wanda Gág's scrapbooks

Collect your pennies, cash them in, and send a check, made out to the University of Minnesota with Millions of Cats written on the check's memo line, to: Kerlan Friends / Children's Literature Research Collections / Andersen Library Room 113 / 222-21st Ave. S. / Minneapolis, MN 55455.

IN MEMORIAM

Anne Ophelia Dowden

Born in Denver, Colorado, September 17th, 1907, Anne Ophelia Dowden was an illustrator and author of more than a dozen botanical books, many of them created for children and young adults. She graduated from Carnegie Institute of Technology (now Carnegie Mellon University) with a degree in art in 1930. Seeking to publish her work, Dowden then moved to New York City, where she managed the art department at Manhattanville College for more than 20 years. Her first book, Look at a Flower, was created with Elizabeth Riley, head of T. Y. Crowell’s children’s book department. During her extensive career, she created over a dozen books, three of which are represented in the Kerlan Collection. Her work was showcased by the Bell Museum last year. She died on January 4th in Boulder, Colorado, at the age of 99.

Mary Slattery Stolz was born on March 24, 1920 in Boston, Massachusetts. She began writing her first novel after being confined to her home in 1949 due to chronic pain. This novel became her first published book, To Tell Your Love (1950). Most of Stolz’s books were written for children and teenagers, and two of her books -- Belling the Tiger (1961) and The Noonday Friends (1965) -- were Newbery Honor Books. Mary Stolz was the 1993 Kerlan Award recipient and her acceptance speech, “On Fortune’s Cap” is included in the Kerlan Friends publication, The Kerlan Award (2001). She died on Dec. 15 at her home in Longboat Key, Florida.

INTERNS

The Children's Literature Research Collections accepted two new interns from The Minneapolis College of Art and Design (MCAD). Jolene Judziewicz and Heather Mackenzie are both illustration students expected to graduate this year. They are currently working on processing original art materials, slip-sheeting original art materials with acid-free paper, and doing an inventory of available storage space for incoming illustrations. In the future they will assist with exhibit selection and installation, as well as the design of CLRC flyers and promotional materials.

RECENT VISITORS

Peter C. Walther

Peter C. Walther, from Rome, N.Y., visited the CLRC from February 13-15th. His field of interest is the life and career of William T. Adams who as "Oliver Optic" wrote popular boys' novels during the latter half of the Nineteenth Century. According to Mr. Walther, "The highlight of my visit was on the afternoon of Valentine's Day when I located by purest accident a single issue of the newspaper American Union [dated May 7, 1853] containing a story of W. T. Adams which I had thought was lost to the ages. No library that I had canvassed within the past ten years owned a copy, nor could I locate it anywhere, in public or private hands".

Graduate Students from Hamline University's low-residency MFA in Writing for Children and Young Adults spent an entire morning at the CLRC. Students examined original material by award-winning authors and illustrators and took guided tours of Elmer L. Andersen's storage facilities.

Maythee Kanter, Professor in the Department of Communication Writing & the Arts at and Erica Rasmussen, Professor of Studio Arts (both from Metropolitan State University) researched original illustrations for an upcoming exhibit at the Third Floor Gallery, located at Metropolitan State University.

Emily Arnold McCully

2007 Naomi C. Chase Lecture - June 19th, 2007

Winner of the Caldecott Award for Mirette on the High Wire, Emily Arnold McCully has illustrated more than 150 picture books since beginning her career as a children's book illustrator in the 1960s. The publication of the wordless book, Picnic in 1984 marked her debut as a visual storyteller, and she soon began to tell her own stories through both illustrations and text in the Grandma books and other stories for beginning readers. The stunning impressionist paintings in Mirette on the High Wire demonstrate her versatility as an artist and beautifully reflect not only the story of Mirette, but the art of the time in which the story is set.

Book Art 2007 - June 19th, 2007

This event is a silent auction of authors and illustrators' creations to raise money for the conservation of Kerlan Collection materials. It will follow the Chase Lecture.
