74th Minnesota Nutrition Conference

The Minnesota Nutrition Conference is the upper Midwest's premier educational event for livestock industry professionals and nutrition consultants to update their knowledge of beef, dairy, poultry, swine and equine nutrition. Nationally recognized speakers present the latest research-based concepts in livestock feeding and nutrition at the conference.

This annual event is presented by the Department of Animal Science, University of Minnesota, and University of Minnesota Extension.

The Minnesota Nutrition Conference is made possible by the generous support of industry sponsors, the dedication of the conference planning committee, and the time and effort of the speakers.

An Update on the Latest Vitamin D Research in Swine .....	24
— S.S. Dritz, J.R. Flohr, M.D. Tokach, R.G. Goodband, J.M. DeRouchey, and J.C. Woodworth
Vitamin D and Metabolites in Poultry .....	31
— B.J. Turner
The Case for Optimum Vitamin Nutrition (OVN™) .....	34
— J. Bergstrom

Ruminant Session I

New Information on Corn Co-Products: Implications on Ration Formulation .....	47
— T.L. Felix
Strategies to Implement High Forage Diets for High Milk Production .....	57
— H. M. Dann
U of M Research Update: Effect of Inclusion of Full- or Reduced-fat Distillers Grains with Solubles in Feedlot Diets and Utilization of Zilmax™ on Cattle Growth and Carcass Characteristics .....	68
— D.M.P. Compart, G.I. Crawford, and A DiCostanzo
Better Understanding Forage Fiber and Digestibility .....	71
— D.K. Combs
Sponsored by Barenbrug USA
U of M Research Update: Low Cost On-Farm Ketosis Detection Tools .....	84
— Z.J. Sawall and N.B. Litherland

Non-Ruminant Session I

Food Safety Modernization Act: Impact on the Feed Industry ..... 88
– R. Sellers
Sponsored by American Feed Industry Association

Phytase Super Dosing in Diets for Poultry and Pigs (Not available at time of publication)
– C. Wyatt

U of M Research Update: Liquid Feeding Systems for Growing-Finishing Pigs ..... 93
– S.K. Baidoo, J. Jendza, X. Yang, and L. Anil

Phosphorus Utilization in Feeds on a Digestible Basis for Swine and Poultry ..... 97
– O. Adeola

U of M Research Update: Nutritional Influences on Turkey Poult Performance ..... 107
– S. Noll

Ruminant Session II

Pre-weaning Calf Nutrition and Subsequent Feedlot Performance ..... 111
– A.E. Radunz

Environmental Heat Stress and Gut Integrity ..... 117
– S.K. Stoakes, M.V. Sanz-Fernandez, J.S. Johnson, M. Abuajamieh,
J.T. Seibert, S.C. Pearce, N.K. Gabler, R.P. Rhoads, and L.H. Baumgard

The right nutrients + optimal levels = Improved Performance

OVN stands for Optimum Vitamin Nutrition. The OVN concept assures that vitamins are not the limiting nutrient for optimal animal performance and health. The vitamin levels required to allow animals to perform to their genetic potential are higher than those needed to prevent overt signs of deficiency. Dietary vitamin intake and utilization are influenced by a host of factors. Stress factors (e.g. production stage, housing, environment, etc.) must be taken into consideration as well as the variation of vitamins in feedstuffs due to bioavailability, stability and quality of feedstuffs. OVN recommendations developed by DSM Nutritional Products in conjunction with major universities provide fortification guidelines to help assure optimum health and productivity.
