

Oscar Lee was a teacher by his example and took great delight in helping others

Oscar and La Verne Lee at the NWS reunion last summer in Crookston.

"We'll teach by example" was the motto of the class of '13, of which Oscar Lee was Vice-President. And throughout his long life, Oscar Lee, 1893-1987, did just that. From his Northwest School dormitory days helping friends with class work, to his volunteer activities on behalf of the Isanti County Cooperative Association and the Cambridge library, Oscar helped other people - and took great delight in doing so.

While a student at the Northwest School, Oscar was involved in many activities including the debating club, the boys glee club, basketball, and just being with people. We don't know which of these skills prompted Orville Harrington, writing the class prophecy, to see Oscar as Dean of the school in the future.

In the class will, Oscar bequeaths his position as "Sunday afternoon teamster to anyone who can entertain the speaker, can drive two horses, and has two or three lady friends who like to ride." Now, reading those qualifications in 1987 was intriguing, so I asked LaVerne if she had ever heard that story. Here's the scoop - Oscar not only could drive two horses, he had a couple of very pretty girl cousins he'd take along, it sounds like they really stole the hearts of his schoolmates.

Oscar enjoyed the get togethers at NWSA Reunions so much that he regularly made connections with other alums and offered to pick them up on the way, and even to host people who came from a long distance in his home. He had many happy memories of the school days at Crookston. And people who were never his classmates, who attended the Northwest School long after he had graduated, got to know this friendly "Aggie" through the annual reunion. At the 1987 reunion, Oscar was presented with a plaque in recognition of his faithful attendance at reunions. It is kept in the White House Alumni Center.

ty, serving on the local school board and the creamery and potato growers' association. In 1935 Oscar moved to Cambridge and served as farm manager at the Cambridge State Hospital until he retired in 1961. In this community also, he taught citizenship by example. He was very active with the Isanti County Cooperative Association and served for many years on the board of directors of the Co-op Credit Union.

Throughout his long life, Oscar Lee kept on learning, from reading, for other

"I believe it was the happiest time in his life, at the AC," reported Mrs. Lee.

The Class History for 1913, which Oscar wrote and read at commencement, includes an ageless story of underclassmen trying to get even with their older schoolmates. It seems that when the juniors and seniors had their banquet, the freshmen were to be in their rooms studying. They went to see what was going on with the other students and the faculty in the banquet hall, and discovered the dining room door was closed. Realizing that "a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men," they found ropes in the barn and used them to tie together the doors leading to the dining room, the kitchen, and the outside - from the outside. Then they turned off the lights in the dining room, and hurried back to their rooms to study. "Finally, after much effort on the part of those assembled in the dining hall, they succeeded in getting the doors opened." This took place in their first year here, I'll bet classes, and faculty, talked about that one for years. Oscar and his friends retold it many times.

After those happy years at the Northwest School, Oscar farmed in his home area near Hendrum until 1934. He was always an active citizen of the community, from the life in his garden. He took to heart the advice Superintendent Selvig wrote to his graduating class; "Be honest with yourself, be open-minded to accept demonstrated principles, and be progressive enough to carry out practical ideas! Read good books, associate with men and women of highest ideals, keep abreast with the activities of the country, work unselfishly, and you will reveal your fullest self both to them and to yourself."

Oscar kept the spirit of the Northwest School - through his life.

Oscar enjoyed the get togethers at NWSA Reunions so much that he regularly made connections with other alums and offered to pick them up on the way.

'88 NWS reunion will be 'family' affair

Berneil Nelson

The Northwest School has been a "family" to many of us — for six months of each year for three to four years, it was our home away from home, where we learned not only book knowledge, but how to live and work together harmoniously, respect each other as individuals, and abide by the rules. Many new friendships were formed, and after leaving school these relationships were continued through correspondence, visits, and in some cases, marriages. Included in our "family" are 1st, 2nd, and 3rd generation alumni, and these families within a family helped to knit us together through the years.

With the closing of the Northwest School, our immediate family stopped growing; to quote our alumni president, Dick Widseth, "They ain't making them anymore!" However, as NWSA alumni, we continue our family ties through the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus and what it represents in Northwestern Minnesota.

Our summer reunion on June 25th will again be a time for our "family" to get together for a time of remembering and a look to the future. Please join us!

Lost Alumni: Can you help us find them?

We continually try to get our address records in the best shape possible. We've lost contact with the people listed below from the classes being honored in 1988. Some have not been heard from since graduation, some have moved and not sent us a forwarding address, some have married and changed their names, and some might have died. We need your help! If you know where any of these people are, or if they are deceased, drop a note with address or date of death to the NWSA/UMC Alumni Office.

Persons are listed by last known name, year graduated, hometown, or last known address.

From the President...

It is starting to look like Spring at the Northwest School! Memories of those days drift through my mind as I prepare this little piece. I remember walking around the campus in the slush and mud, wondering how the six months could have passed so quickly and thinking about going home. When I tell my children about having a six-month term, I tell them us farm kids were so smart we could get nine months of education in only six!

The 1988 NWSA Reunion is quickly approaching. I hope all of you have made plans to be here on June 25. It will be a great time!

I'm pleased to report that the Northwest School Heritage Fund project is going well. Your comments and notes are very nice. A special thanks to all of you that have contributed. So far, 86 "AGGIES" have contributed that had not contributed before.

Alumni associations share social evening

NWS alumni reminisce at the joint board holiday social.

On December 14, 1987, the Northwest School Alumni Association Board shared a holiday social evening with the UMC Alumni Association Planning Council. Chancellor Sargeant and several representatives of the present staff also joined the group. The festive evening started with a social hour held in the White House, which was decorated for the holiday season by Horticulture students. Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, Rita Meyer, provided a delectable choice of hors d'oeuvres for every taste. The social was followed by dinner and conversation in the Brown Dining Room. Several people returned to the White House after dinner to continue visiting.

This was the first time the two groups have sat down and discussed old times, new times, and the future. Let's do it again!

Heritage fund is now over $7,000

162 AGGIES have the spirit! The Northwest School Heritage Fund has received over $7,000 to help fund scholarships for descendants of NWSA Alumni, Association activities, and special activities of the NWSA.

Charter members of the Heritage Fund will be acknowledged at the 1988 Reunion, and each donor receives a 1988 NWSA calendar.

You still have time to share your AGGIE spirit! Send your contribution to the NWSA Heritage Fund, White House Alumni Center, University of Minnesota-Crookston, MN 56716.

'Fine job' done at alumni house for holiday season

Festive, comfortable, "just like someone's home." Those are some of the admiring comments heard about the White House Alumni Center during the holiday season. This picture indicates the fine job and the detail work that Glenice Johnson's Floral Design class did to prepare the White House for the holiday season. It did look and feel festive and comfortable. Just like someone's home.

Your Alumni Center projects this friendly, warm feeling all year long. We welcome your visits, even when it's not homecoming or a reunion, that's one way we can all keep in touch.

Please stop in when you come to the area, the coffee pot is always on, the people are friendly too.

Just a brief note From editor Mullins From the Editor...

Hi! I'm Lynnette Mullins from the communication department. I'm helping the Alumni and Development office with newsletters this year, and learning more about the history of our campus's heritage in the process.

While we do have yearbooks and other print records at the Alumni Center to help us remember Aggie interests, we really want to hear current news and ideas from you.

What are the topics, the issues, the events that you think could be shared through these pages? Please call or drop me a note at the White House.

Lynnette Mullins, Editor

Top Aggie Nomination Form

The Top Aggie Award is the highest honor given by the NWSA Alumni Association to its alumni. Since 1970, award recipients have represented agriculture, business, education, science, and human relations fields. Each award winner demonstrates the combined skills of community service, family commitment, and career achievement.

Nominations for the 1988 Top Aggie Awards are open to all alumni. Selection is made by the association board of directors and class leaders. Award recipients are usually selected from among the honored classes since the greatest number of classmates and friends of the recipients gather together for the reunion. However, all alumni are eligible for nomination.

To place a name in nomination for a Top Aggie Award, please complete the card.
