Dedication

TO the folks back home—our mothers, fathers, sisters, and brothers—who have sacrificed beyond measure that we might have the advantages of a school training for our life work, we dedicate this book in acknowledgement of our appreciation and devotion.

Foreword

TO PORTRAY the beauties of our Northwest School campus, to give a true picture of our school life and activities, to preserve the memories of three happy school years lived in the inspiring atmosphere of our alma mater—these have been the guiding purposes in the preparation of this book. We wish to express our gratitude to our friends and co-workers, especially to our superintendent and to our faculty for timely suggestions and assistance during the various stages in the development of this, our senior book. With full realization of its limitations and shortcomings, we offer it to you, with the sincere hope that many more thousands of Red River Valley boys and girls may enjoy the privileges and blessings of school training within these hospitable halls.

TO THE CLASS OF 1922, NORTHWEST SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE:

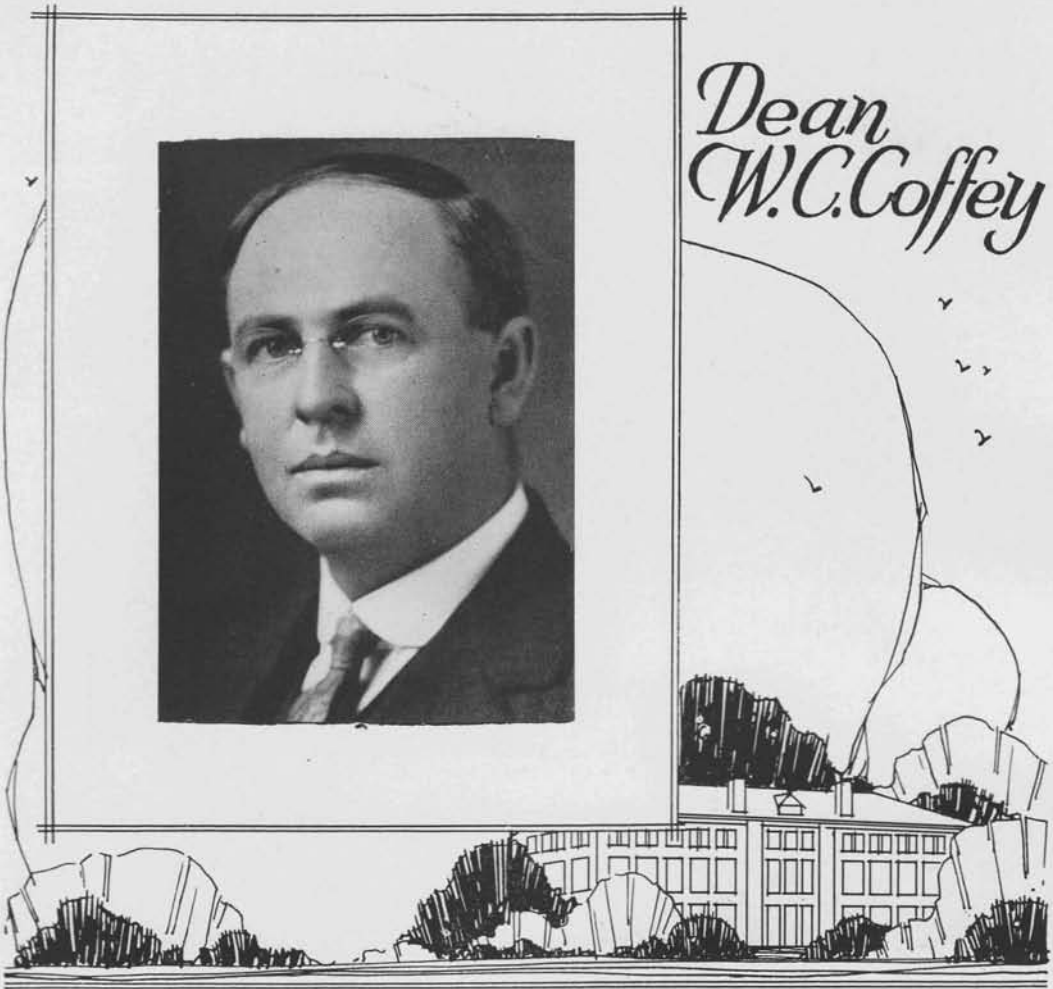

We recently had a distinguished banker deliver a convocation address at the University. In his address he emphasized certain old fashioned virtues as the basis for success. He pointed out that there is no substitute for honesty in business dealing, that success is never achieved by those who have not learned what hard work means, and that one's value to the community in which he resides is based upon a quality which he called generous-mindedness. It is clear to those who think about the matter that there is something in this world of greater value than money or power, and that is the satisfaction of a life spent in doing the best one can, not merely for himself, but for others. Whenever one leaves out of consideration his obligations to his fellow men, he becomes narrow, selfish and bigoted, but when he keeps these considerations clearly in mind, he becomes broad-minded, liberal, and thoughtful in his treatment of others, and humble in the sight of his fellow men. This is one of the lessons which you should have learned, partly, at least, in the Northwest School at Crookston. It is a lesson which will be more clearly defined and in which you will grow more and more proficient with the passing years.

Cordially yours,

L. D. COFFMAN.

*Dean
W.C. Coffey*

To the Class of 1922 of the Northwest School of Agriculture:

The Red River Valley appeals to the student of agricultural development because farming in the Valley is in the process of a great transformation. The wheat raising era is passing; diversified farming with its live stock and variety of crops is coming in. Soil fertility, drainage, farm management, marketing, transportation and still other economic questions are becoming more alive as farm problems than ever before. The student of agricultural development is anxious to see whether the new knowledge in these subjects will help to bring diversified farming into the Valley under more favorable conditions than it came into those regions where it arrived at an earlier date. The existence of the Northwest School of Agriculture should guarantee that it will. And graduates of the School should welcome the change, and I feel sure that they will. Diversified agriculture is the trained farmer's opportunity. It presents new problems and numerous problems which the old time farmer will not attack. But to the young farmer who is well trained, they are a stimulant to the blood, brawn and brain. As a region which challenges the graduate of an agricultural school to deliver his best, no other excels the Valley, where I hope you may succeed as farmers and citizens.

Sincerely yours,

W. C. COFFEY,

Dean and Director,
Department of Agriculture.

Our Superintendent

C. G. Selvig

TO CLASS OF 1922, NORTHWEST SCHOOL:

Each year brings new opportunities and new duties. That we shall be big enough, strong enough, worthy enough to fulfill them is our prayer. This you will find is your problem as you leave school to embark upon your life's voyage into the uncharted regions of the world of activity.

We know that character is the first asset. Energy and perseverance are necessary. Patience and tolerance must be close at hand. Don't stop studying simply because you're not attending regular classes. Don't stop the sources of joy-giving inspiration by neglecting to read and to come into contact with noble minds. Determine to live—fully, simply, nobly; to share your joys and to belittle your sorrows; to lift and not to lean. Do your part in your community; if necessary, more than your part. Through a life of service you will gain your full stature—and happiness.

Most sincerely yours,

C. G. SELVIG,

Superintendent.

In Memoriam

NORMAN FRIDAY

The Class of 1922 have devoted this page to the memory of Norman Friday, whose persistent, unselfish class spirit and hard work were an inspiration to his class through our freshman and junior years, until he passed away in death, March 20, 1921. He won honors in the class basketball team by playing the position of center for two years. He took a keen interest in all other school and class activities. His memory will long remain fresh in the minds of his fellow-classmates.

Class History

When we came to the Northwest School of Agriculture, on October seventh, nineteen hundred nineteen, we soon found that this would be a very different life from the one we had lived before. We saw so many unfamiliar faces that we were afraid we could never become acquainted with so many people.

During the first week, Mr. J. P. Bengtson assisted us in organizing our class. We chose Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Smith for our class advisers. After the organization of our class, we soon became acquainted with each other.

One of the most interesting events of the year was the outdoor festival, where all the famous athletes assembled for decisive battles. The hardest battle was the pillow fight between Mr. Bengtson and Mr. Foker. Both went into the battle bravely, but after a few rounds of fighting, Mr. Bengtson received a blow on the head and took the count. Another important event of this year was the second annual inter-class song contest, in which all the classes competed. We, as freshmen, won second place, and the seniors won first. In our remaining years this became an event which was eagerly looked forward to by all the students as one of the most interesting features of the school year.

The campaign for a memorial for the Northwest School boys, who gave their lives in the great struggle in the world war, was begun that year, and resulted in the erection of the beautiful monument which now adorns the entrance to the campus.

The last part of January the "flu" broke out and school was closed for two weeks. When we returned to school again, we had a great burden on our shoulders, but this burden was overcome by hard work.

Both our girls' and boys' basketball teams won the inter-class championships during our freshman year.

In our junior year, we were less than half as great in numbers, but we were well organized, and with the assistance of our class advisers, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Smith, we made great progress.

The first dancing party ever given at the school was held in the new dining hall early in November of this year.

The basketball championship was won by our class for the second time, likewise the highest honors in the third inter-class song contest.

At the close of this year we assisted the seniors in giving their operetta, "Twilight Alley." This was staged at the Crookston Armory, and it was a very successful production.

When we came back for our senior year, we chose Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Clark as class advisers to fill the vacancy left by Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Smith. We found that we had many great responsibilities as seniors. We had to set an example for the other classes. The tug of war between the "Giants" of Stephens Hall and the "Tigers" of Senior, at the outdoor festival was an exciting feature of the first month's schedule. The laurels went to the latter, after a hard struggle.

As seniors we won the cup at the inter-class song contest for the second time, and at this writing our team is going strong for our third consecutive inter-class basketball championship.

On February 24, our class, with assistance of four faculty members and the school choruses, presented our senior operetta, "Yokohama Maid," at the Crookston Armory. The cast was composed of over sixty voices with a number of solos and quartettes. Under the direction of Miss Pederson this was a great success, as evidenced by the many expressions of appreciation by students and from the citizens of Crookston.

Through the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Clark, the hard work of the Aggie board, and the strong co-operation of the class, we are able to put the Red River Aggie out before the close of the school year.

During the three years we have spent here we have set a very high standard and have endeavored to live up to our motto, "Onward ever; backward never." This is shown by the laurels we have won in basketball and song contests, and by the records we have made in the literary and debating societies.

Therefore, we, as the members of the class of twenty-two, wish to thank Superintendent Selvig, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Clark, our advisers, our faculty, and the school for helping us make our school years at the Northwest School of Agriculture a grand success.

CARL LINFORS and HANNAH MARTINSON.

Class Prophecy

(Clippings from the Northwest Monthly, issue of July-August, 1942.)

Superintendent Emil Nelson, of the Northwest School and Station, University of Minnesota, recently returned from his vacation, which he spent in Arizona as a member of the federal commission investigating the use of cactus hedges to protect sheep from prairie dogs. On the return trip he stopped off at Dawson, New Mexico, to visit Ole Tarras, who is doing research work in botany at the experiment station at that place. At St. Louis he visited Judge Tammy, of the Domestic Relations Court, also Milo Wold, State Commissioner of Agriculture.

New Faculty Members

Miss Jennie Peterson has been secured for school nurse for the coming year. —The station has been fortunate in securing Norval Hegstad and Halvor Nornes as station horticulturists. —La Vern Peterson has been appointed instructor in sheep husbandry.

Station Visitors

Among recent visitors to the Experiment Station were Editor Harold Erikson, of Farm, Stock and Home, and Thelma Torkelson, of the Poultry Advocate; also Gerald Stephens., associate editor of the Duroc Digest.

Alumni News

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ness (nee Neva Gibbons) celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary on July 5. —Naime Nansen, noted elocutionist, has just returned to America, after a tour of Norway and Sweden. —Walter Anderson is the newly appointed coach for the Harvard football team. —Walter Welte has been appointed baggage inspector at the Canadian customs house at Emerson, Manitoba. —Carl Lindfors is the new state weed inspector. —Arthur Anderson will assume his new duties as state highway commissioner, Sept. 1. —Ivy Voaklander is the county superintendent of schools at Roseau.

Society

Mrs. Emil Nelson (nee Esther Sandem) entertained the campus club at her home, August 4. —Word has been received that Rev. Oscar Peterson, who is a missionary in China, has established a new chain of churches in the Shantung district. —Lawrence Walters is the instructor in folk dancing at the West Central high school in Minneapolis. —Ila Slyter, who lives on a farm near Red Lake Falls, entertained the ladies' aid at her home, July 10. —Marie Olson is now employed as a sales lady at Woolworth's in Minneapolis. Inga Folvick has recently opened an Arts and Crafts shop at Stephen.

Agricultural Legislation

Charles Smith, president of the National Farm Bureau Federation, and Louis Emerson, secretary, have secured legislation improving the national system of rural credits, and increases in federal aid for schools for backward and indifferent students. —The governor has signed the bill introduced by Representatives William Johnson, Minnie Torpet, and Lloyd Bolstad, prohibiting the use of pitch forks in handling marsh hay, on account of the serious mortality among bull-frogs from this cause.

New Publications Issued

Raymond Gordon, of the Svalof Station, Sweden, has a new bulletin on his new variety of cotton, known as cotton-tails. —John Gronner, of South Dakota station, tells how to hatch chicks in fourteen days by increasing the incubation temperature to 208° F.

State Fair Ends

The recent state fair at Grand Forks proved the most successful ever held in North Dakota. The officers in charge were Richard Aakre, president; James Homme, vice-president; Myrtle Marmorine, secretary, and Una Briden, treasurer. Among the prominent winners were Iva Dobbdal, owner of the grand champion pen of Barred Plymouth Rocks, and Edward Solberg of Alfalfadale Farm, whose prize-winning guinea pigs have been the season's sensation on the grand circuit.

EDWARD SOLBERG AND UNA BRIDEN.

Class Will

We, the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-two, realizing that our school life in the beloved Northwest School will soon be o'er, bequeath the following in our last will and testament to the school-mates who are to tread in our path.

To the class of '23 we bequeath our good morals and high standards as guiding stars to assist in leading you to success. In your hands also we leave the care of this institution..

To the class of '24 we bequeath our love for our fellow students.

To the class of '25 our ability to win song contests.

To the faculty our appreciation and thanks for their successful guidance during our three years here.

The following individuals bequeath:

Marie Olson her love for giggling to Thora Lervold.

Charles Smith his well known ability as an orator to Olaf Nysveen.

Ole Tarvas his broad mindedness to David Drotts.

Hannah Martinson her ever-ready smiles to Alma Nelson.

John Gronner his boisterous ways to Harvey Patenaude.

Oscar Peterson his pretentious ability of being dignified with his classmates to Johnny Mansfield.

Myrtle Marmorine her artistic ways of winning freshmen boys to Grace Oswald.

Ila Slyter her desire to be everyone's friend to Alma Engelbrakson.

Halvor Nornes his exceptional bass voice to Arthur Synnes.

Olga Hanson her quiet ways and pleasing disposition to Helen Bjorgo.

Esther Sandem her blond complexion to Adele Raymond.

William Johnson and Richard Aakre their dancing ability to Ted Alldread and Henry Schulte.

Minnie Torpet her jolly disposition to Francis Lindahl.

Louis Emerson his numerous talents to Julian Halvorson.

Raymond Gorden, Osmond Jensen, Norval Hegstad and George Olson their quiet ways to Ronald Fraser, Joseph Lundin, Russell Peterson and Donald McCrum.

Neva Gibbons and Lloyd Ness their favorite meeting place to any couple clever enough to find it.

The first team basket ball players will their successful plays to the next year's team.

Iva Dobbdal her small ear puffs to Gayea Hagen.

Inga Folvick her well-dressed appearance to Della Nyberg.

Roger Briden and Carl Lindfors the remainder of their pictures to the freshmen girls who have not already received one.

Gust Tammy his tardy excuses to Carl Larson.

Gerald Stephens his fame for winning visiting girls to Earl Anderson.

Edward Solberg his love for music to Arthur Ingvalson.

Lloyd Bolstad and Emil Nelson their ability to be true to the girls they left behind to any young man who can stand the onslaught of the vamps of the N. W. S. A.

Arthur Anderson and Clayton Stageberg their ever-ready class recitations to Arnie Solem and Albert Kopecky.

Naime Nansen her musical talent to Mildred Oswald.

Harold Erikson, LaVern Peterson, and Lawrence Walters their good sportsmanship to Willie Hoper, Clarence Meyer and Harry Jennings.

Louis Kassa his belief in having a good time to Roscoe Dartt.

Jennie Peterson and Ivy Voaklander their ability to play basket ball to Helen Gibbons and Julia Anderson.

Una Briden her ambition to be a speedy typist to Belva Torgerson.

Milo Wold and Walter Welte their sensible ways to Rudolph Lindberg and Walter Turgeon.

Thelma Torkelson her hobby of sliding down banisters to Florence Koester.

James Homme his ability to succeed in everything he strives for, to Iver Johnson.

It is to this institution we are indebted for whatever we have accomplished and any success we may achieve later in life, and we sincerely hope that our fellow students will strive to uphold the principles of this institution.

ILA SLYTER.

FOOTBALL

Top Row—Stageberg, Anderson, Foker (coach), Aakre, Halvorson, Fraser.
Middle Row—I. Johnson, Peterson, W. Johnson, Ness, Courtney.
Bottom Row—Tarvas, Bolstad, Emerson.

Our football team, last fall, had one of its most successful seasons. In spite of the fact that the material was green, several of the members never having seen a football game before they came to this school, a good team was put on the field. The first call of practice brought out only four veterans, but with a wealth of material on hand the vacant positions were soon filled. In a course of two weeks under the experienced and successful tutelage of our coach, Mr. Foker, a well organized team was secured.

The first game was scheduled with East Grand Forks on October 25, and we were defeated by a score of 7 to 6.

Crookston High School, the district champions, were our next rivals. We went into this game with a crippled line-up. Fraser, our speedy halfback, was injured in practice, and it was necessary to shift some of the players. Aakre, a new man, was placed on the line. During the first half, Crookston piled up twenty-one points, but in the second half, our players fought their opponents to a standstill, Crookston being able to make first down only once. The result of the game was: Crookston 21, Aggies 0.

On Homecoming Day, we closed the football season with Fosston High as our opponents. The weather was ideal for football, and a record crowd was on hand to cheer the players. When the score-keeper had finally added up the touchdowns, field goals and goal kicks, the score stood: Fosston 6, Aggies 35.

A's were awarded to the following players for their faithful work: Harry Courtney, Lloyd Ness, Louis Emerson, Walter Anderson, William Johnson, Iver Johnson, Harold Peterson, Julian Halvorson, Ole Tarvas, Lawrence Walters.

Honorable Mention was given to the following: Ronald Fraser, Einar Aakre, Clayton Stageberg, and Lloyd Bolstad.

BASKET BALL

NORTHWEST SCHOOL BASKET BALL TEAM

Johnson, Anderson, H. Peterson, L. Peterson, Courtney, Emerson, Ness

Immediately after the close of the foot ball season, basket ball, under the coaching of Mr. Constans, started with a bang. Some thirty men answered the call, and were out to try and land a place in the first string. After weeks of hard practice, the following were selected for the first squad: Emerson, William Johnson, and Harold Peterson as forwards; Courtney, La Vern Peterson, and Ness as guards, and Anderson as the tip-off man. Later in the season, Fraser, from the junior class team, joined the first team squad.

William Johnson, captain, our snappy right forward, is the cleanest and the hardest working man on the team. When the game goes badly, Johnson is at his best, inspiring hope in the other players. As a captain and clean player, he cannot be beat. Louis Emerson and Harold Peterson, alternate left forwards, are never where the opposing guards expect to find them. Harold was the star of the Bemidji game. Walter Anderson is our good-natured, fast center. He plays a good game. Follow-up shots are one of Walt's specialties. Unfortunately for the team he graduates this year.

Harry Courtney is the high speed right guard. He travels so fast that his opponents never overtake him. Courtney will not be eliminated this year by the process of graduation. Watch him next year. La Vern Peterson and Lloyd Ness alternate as left guards. Both are consistent players and the game is never slow when Ness and Pete are in. Ronald Fraser joined the ranks late, but as a guard shows excellent form, and will be among the best next year.

The team is coached by Mr. Constans, and under his able directions thus far has a record of eight victories, and only four games lost. The boys enjoy working with Mr. Constans, as he possesses that vim and fight, and that never-failing smile that won't come off.

Inter-class Basket Ball

After the first team was well established, class basket ball started at high speed. Mr. Hinrichs was selected as freshman coach, Mr. Hoberg as junior coach, and the seniors again secured the services of Mr. McCall, who had coached them the two previous years when they carried off the championship. The seniors are going strong, and are in tip-top form, and they will try valiantly to win the championship for the third consecutive year.

The opening contest was between the juniors and freshmen. The freshmen were beaten, 20 to 17. The seniors, being off color, lost the second game to the juniors, 21 to 20. February 18, the seniors came back strong and with the old fighting spirit, swamped the freshmen with a score of 24 to 0.

The juniors are making a strong bid for the championship. They have a well built team, and will undoubtedly make trouble for the seniors. The games left to be played will tell the story.

The work in the music department is carried on through eight different organizations: the Girls' Glee Club, the Junior and Senior Boys' Glee Club, Freshmen Boys' Glee Club, Senior Girls' Sextette, Junior Octette, Senior Octette, Orchestra and Band.

The glee clubs and octettes have been very successful in their performances on many occasions, which is due to the splendid instruction and supervision given them by Miss Louise Pederson, who has been at the head of the music department for the past three years. Miss Cora Paulsberg is the accompanist. Besides taking part in programs at the school, the senior octette has been invited to sing on five different occasions at entertainments in the city of Crookston. The boys' glee club also participated in the grand song fest at the Armory during the Northwest School farmers' week, having a part in the grand chorus of one hundred and fifty voices, which rendered four selections during the evening.

With Miss Julia Aune, instructor in piano music, a great many students take advantage of the splendid opportunity offered them in piano instruction.

Inter-class Song Contest

The inter-class song contest has become one of the well established traditions of the school. Each year we look forward to it as one of the biggest events of the school year. This year's contest was held in the auditorium on the evening of December 19. Each class had devoted all its spare time for four weeks in preparing for the contest. The senior class was led by Oscar Peterson, veteran director, who led his class to victory a year ago. Miss Naime Nansen served as accompanist. The directors and pianists for the other classes were: juniors, Iver Johnson, leader, and Alma Nelson, accompanist; freshmen, Theodore Alldread, leader, and Thora Lervold, accompanist. The competition consisted of the singing of three songs: "God of Our Fathers," "Juanita," and "Minnesota, Hail to Thee."

The final decision gave third place to the juniors, second to the freshmen, and first to the seniors, the last named class winning the silver trophy two years in succession. The judges were Prof. N. A. Thorson, Mrs. E. B. Cnaan, and Mr. O. W. Peterson, all of Crookston.

Band and Orchestra

The school band and orchestra add much to the enthusiasm of the school. The school band, which meets every Monday forenoon, gives a splendid opportunity to the students who wish to acquire knowledge and practice in the playing of band instruments. Mr. E. F. Uggem had charge of these organizations this year, and took a great interest in the development of the new members and in the progress of all. The school orchestra took a part in the Monday evening programs at the school, and also during the commencement exercises, where a number of fine selections were given.

Training in public speaking and development along literary lines are afforded by public speaking programs given by students of various classes in assembly each Thursday morning, and bi-weekly programs on alternate Monday evenings. In addition to this work in the curriculum, five literary societies have been functioning actively throughout the year, viz., the Pioneer, Lincoln, Agrarian, Home Economics Club, and Sanford Club. The membership of these societies includes nearly every student in the school. Meetings are held every two weeks and varied programs of debates, readings, and music are given. Each society arranges one program each year which it presents in assembly during regular chapel time.

The Pioneer Society

This society was organized in 1910 by some students especially interested in debating and literary work. It was first known as the "Boys' Debating Club," but later it was named the "Pioneer" to distinguish it from the Lincoln society after the latter was organized. The Pioneer has been a very active organization since the beginning. It has won the silver cup in the inter-society debates twice in succession, and is making a determined effort again this year, thereby to gain permanent possession. Mr. T. M. McCall has acted as faculty adviser to this society each year since its organization.

LINCOLN SOCIETY

Middle Row—B. Johnson, Jennings, Bolstad, Peterson, Lindberg, Gronner, Fraser, Mansfield, Swanson.

Lincoln Society

The Lincoln Society was named after Abraham Lincoln, and is the oldest society in school. It was organized in the year 1915, with a membership of seventeen, Mr. Brown acting as counselor. Since that time it has grown rapidly, and for the past three years has been filled to its maximum membership of thirty. It won the inter-society debate in 1918, and intends to enter into the competition again this year with high spirits and keenest enthusiasm. This society is under the leadership of Mr. H. P. Constans and Mr. A. H. Larson.

Agrarian Society

This is the youngest of the boys' societies, being organized in October, 1919, by a group of boys from other societies, who wished to form a society in which subjects pertaining more closely to agriculture might be discussed. Its objects are to train its members in debating and parliamentary practice and to promote discussion of agricultural problems. Mr. Bengtson and Mr. Gousseff were the first faculty advisers. The Agrarian society has a large and very active membership, and was the Pioneer's closest rival for inter-society debating honors last year. Messrs. Clark and Hinrichs are the faculty members of this society.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club is an organization for all girls interested in home economics. The objects of this club are to become better acquainted with our fellow students, to become more efficient in performing our duties as home makers and to gain practice in public speaking. The meetings are held every two weeks in Robertson Hall. Miss Mildred Schenck of the Home Economics Department is the adviser. The following officers were elected for the first term of the present year:

President	- - - - -	Helen Selvig
Vice-President	- - - - -	Thelma Torkelson
Secretary	- - - - -	Jennie Peterson
Treasurer	- - - - -	Hannah Martinson

Sanford Club

The Sanford was organized in the fall of 1920 by fifteen girls of the freshmen class and Miss Nolan of the faculty. It was named after Minnesota's "grand old lady," Maria Sanford. The first officers were Lena Kilen, president; Agnes Hagen, vice-president; and Adele Raymond, secretary and treasurer. The fundamental purposes of the club are the advancement of literary work, debating and parliamentary practice, and to further friendly relations among the girls. It is the youngest club on the campus.

NESS

The live stock judging contest held every year at the Farm Crops Show has always been an important feature at this school.

The inter-class contest for the silver trophy was very close this year. The senior class, represented by Oscar Peterson, William Johnson and Lloyd Ness, were the winners, with 1193.31 points out of a possible 1500 points. The juniors took second place with 1063.29 points. They were represented by Iver Johnson, Walter Burk and Truman Husting. The freshmen followed closely with 1028.97 points. Andrew Wardeberg, Wallace Miller and Rudolph Lindberg were the contestants for this class.

STAGEBERG PETERSON MEYER

To assist in developing good qualities of manhood and womanhood, is the job of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations. This end is sought largely through the activities carried on by the students themselves.

Throughout the year several social events are held. A boys' pow-wow and girls' frolic were held the first Wednesday after school opened. A reception for the new students was given the first Saturday by the joint Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. A fellowship meeting is held every Wednesday evening in Senior Hall parlor, where topics are discussed by the students and faculty. The Y. W. C. A. meets every Friday evening for a similar meeting. On Sunday morning, Bible study for the men, is held in Stephens Hall parlor. At the same time the girls meet in Robertson Hall parlor for Bible study. Every Sunday evening, in the auditorium, religious addresses are given by outside speakers.

Homecoming Day in 1921

Homecoming Day at the Northwest School, November 11, 1921, was a day that will long be remembered by all. From early morning till late at night, the day was replete with the cheery greetings of friends reunited, with inspirational addresses recalling the memories of our boys who answered the call to the Great War, with athletic contests, and wholesome entertainment which reflected the spirit of all Northwest School students, past and present.

Early in the morning, groups of alumni began to arrive, headed by Oscar Lund, '16, who had been busy for several days rallying the old grads for the alumni band. Merged with less experienced members of the present school band, the old boys revived all of their old time zest and pep, and added greatly to the enjoyment of all by their part in the day's program.

Part of the morning was spent in inspecting the home project exhibit and seed show, the work of members of the junior and senior classes, in their various home projects during the past season. Emil Nelson, '22, was declared winner of the silver trophy offered by the faculty for the best summer project work in 1921. At ten o'clock all assembled in the auditorium for the Armistice Day program. Mr. Harrison Fuller, of Minneapolis, first state commander of the American Legion, gave the principal address. Mr. Fuller had just returned from a visit to France, and spoke of the high regard that the French people have for the American doughboys. Ex-Senator A. D. Stephens, of Crookston, interpreted the feeling of the nation for the boys who answered their country's call. Assistant Secretary of State J. P. Bengtson, formerly preceptor at the Northwest School, gave the eulogy for the eight students who gave their lives in the Great War. In accordance with an established custom, this eulogy is delivered each armistice day by a member of the school faculty. Mr. Bengtson's address was full of reverent and inspiring thoughts for all.

At the close of the program in the auditorium, a procession led by the alumni band, the color guard of the Nels T. Wold post of the American Legion, and two troops of Boy Scouts from Crookston, marched to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial. At the hour of twelve we joined (with all citizens of this great nation) in two minutes of silent prayer for universal peace among the nations of the world. Lloyd Ness, president of the senior class, placed a beautiful wreath upon the memorial in memory of those from this school who gave their all for humanity. A military salute was fired, and taps were sounded by a bugler of the American Legion.

Field day sports and a soccer game between two girls' teams occupied the first hour of the afternoon, followed by an intensely interesting foot ball game between the Northwest School team and Fosston High School. Between halves, delegations from the various literary societies paraded the field and gave clever original stunts. The game resulted in a decisive victory for the home team by a score of 25 to 6.

An elaborate carnival, an excellent program of picture films, and a ball in the gymnasium provided a full evening of festivities for all. In contrast with the solemn atmosphere of the morning program, the day ended with a pandemonium of care-free mirth and gaiety, from the "Kangaroo Court" and the "Musical Extravaganza" by Mr. Constans' girls' (?) chorus, to the last strains of "Home, Sweet Home" by the orchestra. Alumni and students past and present thronged the halls of the Kiehle building, exclaiming at the clever performances of the amateur actors, and voicing a universal sentiment that the 1921 homecoming had been a grand success.

The Social Season

Everyone, young or old, at the Northwest School of Agriculture believes that "all work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy," and many social frolics are planned to make our school-days enjoyable. As we review the past year, we recall certain social events, which will never be forgotten, and it will be our purpose to chronicle them so that our readers of this book may share our pleasures.

Frolic and Pow-Wow

On the second day of school, October 11, the girls enjoyed a comical dress-up frolic in Robertson Hall. On the same evening the boys gathered in Senior Hall and did a Pow-Wow. Eats were provided for all.

Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. Reception

The gymnasium sheltered a large crowd on the night of October 14, when the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. acted as hosts and hostesses and made the new students welcome.

Out-door Festival

The annual outdoor festival and Hallowe'en party was held in the windbreak north of the Home Economics building on the night of October 29. The program began with a supper served in cafeteria style, followed by athletic contests between the three classes. Messrs. Constans and Hinrichs indulged in a pillow fight, which resulted in a victory for Mr. Constans. The athletic part of the program closed with a tug-of-war between Stephens and Senior Halls, with the laurels going to the latter after a long, hard struggle. Nearly everyone joined in the never-to-be-forgotten ghost walk through the windbreak, where myriads of ghosts were encountered. All emerged from this trip without serious mishap, however. The evening ended when Ila Slyter applied the match for a bonfire and all joined in the singing and the grand march around the blazing pile.

November Ball and Party

Again on Nov. 5, the gymnasium walls rang with music as the students tripped the light fantastic until a late hour. At the same time a party was held in Stephens Hall for those who did not dance.

Homecoming Dance

After the successful program on Homecoming Day, November 11, everyone was in high spirits, and the dance held in the evening in the gymnasium was very successful. Students, faculty and alumni had a chance to renew old acquaintances, and many new friends were made. All who were at the school that day agreed that it was the most enjoyable day they had spent for a long time.

Thanksgiving Day

Only one day of vacation was given for Thanksgiving holiday, but into that was crowded enough fun to fill several days. Students and members of the faculty gathered in the Dining Hall at noon and ate a well cooked dinner, which included turkey and all the trimmings. At three o'clock the play, "Evangeline," was given in the auditorium by the students in the English department, under the direction of Miss Evenson. At the close of the program, Mr. Kittleson presented the silver trophy, offered by the faculty, to Emil Nelson for having received the highest grade on home project work during the summer of 1921. The evening meal was served in the different dormitories, and later a party was held in the library and a dance in the dining hall.

Class Parties, Dec. 10

For the second time in the history of the school, the students were divided into class groups to enjoy a party. Senior Hall, Stephens Hall and Kiehle building were used. The Seniors entertained the Fertile basket ball team. Each class declared that their party was the best.

Get-together Dinner

On the evening of December 21st, we assembled at the Dining Hall for our annual get-together dinner. After dinner a beautiful Christmas tree was lighted and all sang "Love's Old Sweet Song." The toastmaster, Superintendent C. G. Selvig, called on Helen Cameron, '24, who gave a toast to "Christmas"; Henry Nabben, an advanced student, gave a toast to "The New Year"; Ole Tarvas, '22, to "The Home Folks"; Frank Groves, '23, spoke on "Our School." Marie Strickler, '24, was presented with a gold medal as a reward for her eight years of perfect attendance at her home school.

The prize of one hundred dollars offered by the Red River Valley Development Association in the alumni enrollment contest, was presented to Emma Nelson, '24, for her brother, Richard Nelson, '13, who was unable to be present. Mr. R. C. Mathwig, of Warren, president of the association, made the presentation. Mr. Foker, coach of the football team, spoke on the work of the team, and named the men who are to receive football A's for the season's work. Pleasing vocal numbers were given by the senior and junior octettes.

Alumni Banquet

The Alumni Banquet was held Friday noon, February 10, at the Crookston Association rooms. A number of guests were present, including the entire faculty of the school, and President Coffman of the University. A delightful luncheon was served. Music was furnished by the Northwest School orchestra. Albin Johnson acted as toastmaster, and called on Mr. Clark, Mr. Newell Lee, Mr. Thorval Tunheim, Superintendent Selvig and President Coffman for short addresses. Miss Kneeshaw sang a solo. After the luncheon a short business meeting was held. On account of the inclement weather which blocked the roads between Crookston and the school, the alumni dance scheduled at the dining hall for the evening was postponed.

Dormitory Life

SENIOR HALL

Stately and dignified, awaiting the arrival each season of the boys who have proved themselves worthy to be called seniors, Senior Hall is the most aristocratic of dormitories, and provides a home for forty boys of the senior and advanced classes. It is also the newest of the three dormitories, having been built during the summer of 1916.

Although officially in the charge of its faculty preceptors, Messrs. H. P. Constans and H. S. Hinrichs, Senior Hall takes pride in the fact that it requires little supervision, as it has a well-organized system of self-government. At the first house meeting of the year, officers are elected to serve throughout the year as inspectors and as representatives in the student senate. House meetings of all the residents are held in the house parlor for the discussion of whatever problems present themselves, and decisions reached in these councils are considered binding upon all.

The names of the 1921-1922 officers are:

President—Ole Tarvas.

Representatives—(First floor) Clayton Marrs;

(Second floor) William Johnson; Amos Kasberg;

(Third floor) Harry Courtney; Halvor Nornes.

The dormitory parlor is a spacious room on the first floor, with a huge fireplace, and with several large windows which give a wide view of the campus and athletic field. A large reading table and book shelves make it an attractive place on winter afternoons and evenings. In an alcove at one end are numerous games, checker boards, crokinole, "rook," etc., which help to keep the lads contented and cheerful.

Here, too, are held many social get-togethers and entertainments, as well as the regular Wednesday evening meetings of the Y. M. C. A. On Thanksgiving evening the boys entertained at an open house and invited their friends from Robertson Hall. The early hours of the evening were spent around the "rook" and crokinole tables, and in popping corn over the glowing grate-fire. Later the guests repaired to the gymnasium and dining hall, where all enjoyed the dancing and games which had been planned for that occasion.

Space does not permit a more detailed account of our life at Senior Hall, but anyone who has lived here knows that it is the best place on the campus of the best school in the Northwest.

STEPHENS HALL

Stephens is the largest and oldest dormitory on the campus. It is very favorably located, being next to the dining hall, and close to Kiehle Building. It is in this building that the freshmen are enrolled, and go through the terrible experience of initiation. During the first weeks of school the freshmen are given the first degree of initiation; namely, that of being rolled out when in dreamland. The next degree is connected with either the tub or shower bath.

Although it may seem to the reader that we have a lawless house, this is not the case. Our form of government can be favorably compared with that of the United States. We have a president, who conducts the meetings, and our senate body consists of two representatives from each floor, also a house inspector. These officers are elected by the students living in this hall. The following are the names of this year's officers:

President—Iver Johnson.

Senate—(First floor)—Julian Halvorson and Walter Burk;

(Second floor) Arthur Synnes and Albert Kopecky;

(Third floor) Robert Widseth.

Inspectors—John Mansfield and Arnie Solem.

The evening of Thanksgiving a party was held in the parlor. After the eats had been disposed of, Miss Paulsberg played the piano, and all joined in for a merry song-fest, which lasted well into the evening.

Our preceptor, who looks after the dormitory and sees that the rules are enforced, has a two-roomed apartment on the south side. We all think of him in the morning, as he sounds the gentle reminder that breakfast will be served in thirty minutes.

ROBERTSON HALL

Robertson Hall may well be called the most beloved dormitory on the campus, by the boys and girls alike. Without the home-like atmosphere of this dear old place, life on the campus would seem empty indeed. Here we form true friendships, which are never forgotten.

When the Northwest School was first established, back in 1906, the cottage now used as the farmhouse was used as a dormitory for girls. At that time there were eight girls enrolled. Later the girls lived on the third floor of the Home Economics building. Robertson Hall was built in 1910, during the first year of Superintendent Selvig's administration, and was named for Professor Robertson, the first superintendent of the Northwest School. During the present year it has been the home of fifty-one girls.

The house is managed by a system of self-government, the officers and representatives chosen by the house members being responsible for the conduct of the dormitory. These officers comprise a president, a vice-president, and two proctors from each floor. The president has full charge of the dormitory in the absence of the faculty preceptor. The proctors have authority to grant permission to students to leave their rooms during study hours, and also act as advisers to the younger residents of the house.

The officers who have served during the present year are as follows:

President—Jennie Peterson.

Vice-President—Adele Raymond.

Proctors—(First floor) Francis Lindahl;

(Second floor) Anna Peloski; Florence Daugherty;

(Third floor) Iva Dobbdal; Hannah Martinson.

This is a very satisfactory form of government, since it teaches the students to depend upon their own judgment to some extent, for the proctors must keep their halls quiet during study hours. When anyone disobeys the rules of the dormitory, the proctors administer justice.

Here's where we giggle,
Here's where we grin,
Here's where we study,
With vigor and vim.

Here's where we scold,
Here's where we sigh,
Here's where we sleep,
Till breakfast time's nigh.

So summing it up,
Taking all in all,
We all do enough,
In Robertson Hall.

Grace O.—“Do you remember that you once proposed to me and that I refused you?”

Harold E.—“Yes, that is one of my life's most beautiful memories.”

Miss Heilig, in Home Nursing Class:—“How can you tell when the water is the right temperature for bathing the baby?”

Junior Girl—“If he gets red and hollers, it is too hot. If he gets blue and shivers, it is too cold.”

Kasberg (explaining geometry problems to Monson):—Now, if you have this theorem in your head you have the whole matter in a nutshell.”

Mr. Hinrichs (arranging seating list)—“Louis, who sits where you are sitting?”

Louis—“Nobody, sir, I do.”

Mr. Hoberg (in poultry class):—“What kind of poultry lays the largest eggs?”

Arnie Solem:—“Ostrich.”

Turgeon (turning around in show)—“Can't you see anything?”

Dartt:—“Can't see a streak of the stage.”

Turgeon—“Why, then I'll tell you what to do. Keep your eye on me, and laugh when I do.”

John G. to Chuck:—“Don't let the women kid you. They are just like street cars. Leave them alone, there will be another along in a minute.”

Harry C.—But, my dear, I thought we had planned to go to the theater this evening.”

Mildred O.—“Yes, I know, but I have changed our minds.”

Freshman:—"My hair is falling out. What can I get to keep it in?"

Senior:—"A sack."

Junior:—"Please tell me how hash is made."

Senior:—"Hash is not made. It accumulates."

Ex-Soldier:—"I'm pleased to meet you."

Senior Girl:—"I don't blame you."

A junior boy had just told Mr. Pierce a thumping lie which he readily understood.

"How on earth did you come to tell me such an untruth?" inquired Mr. Pierce.

"Well, sir," replied the culprit, "I'm very sorry, but the other boys were making such a noise that I couldn't hear what I was saying."

Some people are like popcorn: As long as they keep cool they can conceal what is in them, but whenever they get excited they turn inside out.

Oscar:—"Does she dance badly?"

Emil:—"Yes, if the chaperones aren't looking."

Professor:—"What three words are most commonly used among N. W. S. A. students?"

Weary freshman:—"I don't know."

Professor:—"Correct."

Johnny:—"Do you think the cigarette habit causes weak minds?"

Belva:—"No, it merely indicates them."

Miss Evenson (in senior English at the beginning of school):—"This class is too large. We will have to make some changes."

Chuck:—"I suggest that some of us drop English."

"If Boys were Girls and the Girls were Boys."

Now, wouldn't it be funny if, for just one day, the senior boys were the girls and the girls were the boys? What a hubbub would take place in the boys' cloak room. Imagine Oscar Peterson prancing around with a powder puff in one hand and a thin mirror in the other. See Johnnie Gronner figuring before the looking glass and asking, in an agonized voice, "Oh, Charles, is my hair all right in back?"

In the corner of another room, William Johnson is passing around a huge box of fudge and telling a few of his most intimate friends a very mysterious tale which they promise "never to tell a soul." And here comes Emil Nelson in a most wonderful "hobble," mincing along as fast as the skirt will permit. And there is Louis Emerson weeping piteously and telling Mr. Hinrichs that he must go home, for his head is "simply splitting." Near the English room door, Lloyd Ness is telling his admirers how many, many parties he has been to lately, and that the boys are just about "wild over him."

And then, turning the tables, imagine Minnie Torpet coming up to Naime Nansen, and after a resounding whack on the back, saying: "Hello, Nansen! How's the kid this morning?" Then, too, we might see Inga Folvick stalking down the hall, whistling cheerily; and there goes Esther Sandem tearing upstairs, five steps at a time, stopping long enough on the landing to pummel her good-natured friend, Neva Gibbons, who is making her descent by way of the banister. In the upper hall, Hannah Martinson, having bumped ruthlessly into poor little Henry Nabben, assists him politely to his feet and continues her way. There goes Una Briden down the hall, jingling the keys and spare change in her pocket with great importance. As for Thelma Torkelson, the sporty cut to her suit, as well as her remarkable pompadour, excites the admiration of every one, little Lloyd Bolstad in particular, to whom this dashing hero is quite an idol—but after all aren't we glad that the boys are boys, and the girls are girls.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN?—

If both Helens became less noisy during study
If Jennie had to buy bus tickets.
If Kasberg came to Robertson Hall.
If Clarissa should grow taller.
If Marie Olson stopped giggling.
If Iva lost her gloves.
If Esther's hair forgot to curl.
If Stub didn't come on Sunday night.
If Nabben suddenly stopped growing.
If Clayton Stageberg didn't recite in class.
If Walter should cease coming to Robertson Hall.
If Jennie didn't get a letter.
If Minnie and Ila got an A in English.

Confusion of Tongues.

"There's a train at 4.04," said Miss Jennie.
"Four tickets I'll take. Have you any?"
Said the man at the door,
"Not four for 4:04,
For four for 4:04 is too many."

The moral of Aesop's fable is to be careful about one's associates. This applies with equal emphasis to one's shopping place.

When we decide upon a store as being worthy our patronage, we want to know that the company behind it is trustworthy; that its merchandise is always as represented and of dependable quality; that its salespeople are men and women of intelligence and ability who will be helpful and courteous.

When you are familiar with our unfailing cooperation and service and the money-saving advantages afforded you by the combined operation of our 312 stores, you, we feel sure, will want to be known as a patron of our Company.

There's Free Power in a Waterfall, but—

JUST as there is power stored up in coal, there is latent energy in a flowing stream, but it's expensive to get it out.

The problem for man to solve is one of harnessing that power, converting it into electricity and making it continuously available for you to use.

It is a gigantic task. It requires the brain work of some and the manual work of many others.

Dams, forebays, pipes, power stations, turbines, generators and transmission lines are necessary and expensive. So, although the power in the waterfall may cost nothing, hydro-electric power, by the time it reaches your door, has cost a big sum.

We who are bringing this product of "white coal" to your factory and home hope to retain your good will by the excellence of the service we perform.
