Prospects

1963 is a rebuilding year at UMD.

Coach Jim Malosky faces the task of moulding a challenger without 10 top performers from last fall's MIAC runnerup. Graduation's toll is being felt at end, guard, center and halfback. Center and end are of particular concern.

The departure of Fran Murphy, Gordy Johnson, Gus Kohlts and Al Hansen has created the problem on the flanks. Dave Nystrom and Jerry Wherley leave a huge gap at center. Ed Galarneault and Jack McDowell have graduated from tackle and guard spots respectively.

While Malosky is expected to search for answers until the last moment, these are the current indications.

END—Sophomores Dean Hogle and Bill Kuusisto are slated to go both ways, with Ron Murphy, a jack of all trades backing them up. Freshman prospects are good but time is needed before they will be ready for game action.

THE PROBLEM—Hogle and Kuusisto are sophomores with little game experience while Murphy is new to the position.

TACKLES—A solid position with Dick Carlson and Rob Galarneault as offensive starters and Dick Kosteliz joining Carlson on defense. Marty Rosen and John Sweeney provide good depth.

THE PROBLEM—None critical with experienced veterans available.

GUARDS—Dave Schwartz is a fixture with the other position up for grabs. Senior Bob Tusler has the inside track with newcomer James Wollack in contention.

THE PROBLEM—Position lacks real strength and depth, due to lack of size of the top candidates and limited game experience.

CENTER—Two converted guards, Bob Dahl and Pat Fahey man the position. Neither lettered last fall. This is a real problem spot.

THE PROBLEM—Neither man is at his natural position. Fahey saw limited action at guard last fall while Dahl seldom played.

The departure of starting halfbacks John Nachtsheim and Bruce Johnson have created the backfield problem.

QUARTERBACK—Returning regular Bob Naslund and last year's top frosh, Ray Norsted provide a solid one-two punch.

THE PROBLEM—The search for a third man to back up a talented pair is the only problem here.

HALFBACK—Dick LeBeau, Rick Thomson and transfer Roger Halverson are the top candidates. LeBeau, the MIAC 100 yd. dash champion, and Thomson are the likely first game starters.

THE PROBLEM—A real lack of game experience. LeBeau has carried the ball 41 times, Thomson only 4, while Halverson is in his first season. Speedster LeBeau has averaged almost 7.4 yards per carry and is the key to success.

FULLBACK—Starter Ken Schloer is the best fullback ever at UMD. He is backed up by letterman Norm Mattson, who appears to have shaken his injury woes.

THE PROBLEM—If Schloer stays healthy there are none. Otherwise the lack of depth caused by the move of Dick Fisher (to end) could be a factor.
