GEORGE FISHER

Head Coach

Under the expert guidance of George Fisher, the UMD basketball program has reached a level of prominence virtually unmatched by any small college in the Upper Midwest. Now entering his sixth season as the Bulldog head man, Fisher has posted an overall record of 96-44 since taking the coaching reins in 1978 and an incredible 69-17 mark the past three seasons. His career winning percentage of .686 at UMD places him first among all Bulldog basketball coaches in that department. Fisher, who was selected the 1983 NAIA District 13 Coach of the Year, has directed the Bulldogs to two straight Northern Intercollegiate Conference titles and three consecutive District 13 playoff appearances.

Fisher came to UMD after a two-year stint at Northland College of Ashland, Wisconsin, where he led the Lumberjacks to a 17-12 record in 1977-78 and a berth in the NAIA District 13 playoffs.

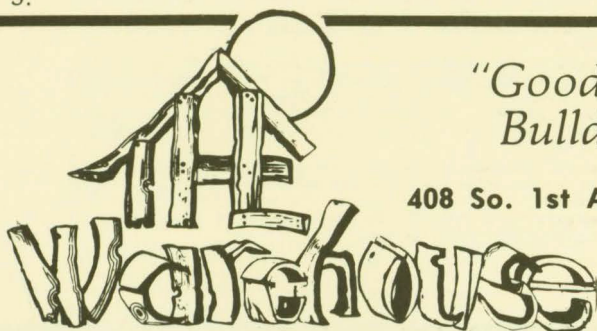

A 1974 graduate of Manhattan College in New York, Fisher received his first taste of college coaching as a graduate assistant at Denver University where he earned his master's degree in 1975. That fall, Fisher moved on to Rapid City, South Dakota, and landed his first head coaching job at the National School of Business where he stayed one year before packing his bags for Ashland.

Fisher, who is also a physical education instructor at UMD, has found equal success as the Bulldog golf coach, leading UMD to a pair of NIC crowns and at least one national tournament appearance in each of his five years.

Fisher and his wife, Christi, a teaching specialist in the Communicative Disorders Department at UMD, have two children - Jenny, 6, and Beth, 3.

Basketball, Canadian Style

In a land where hockey is a religion, basketball at Brandon University of Manitoba, Canada is alive and well.

So well in fact that first-year head coach Dwight Kearns and his Bobcats come into Duluth this weekend as the third-rated team in all of Canada. Brandon's 1983-84 record stands 9-6, but three of the six losses have come at the hands of NCAA I powers Nebraska, Kansas State and Iowa State.

For any college team to be successful, the first criteria is to have sufficient support from the school itself. Brandon, a small institution of some 1,800 students nestled just 60 miles north of the North Dakota border, has taken quite a liking to its basketball team in recent years. This infatuation can be credited, for the most part, to the magnificent job Jerry Hemmings, Brandon's veteran coach who is on a one-year sabbatical at Tulane University, has done with the Bobcats.

One of Hemming's more noteworthy achievements has been in the area of recruiting. In addition to landing some of the finer Canadian high school talent, Hemmings has brought some accomplished American prep stars across the border as well. Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association rules bar teams from having anymore than four Americans (only three can suit up in a game) on rosters and Hemmings has done pretty much all that can be done under those guidelines.

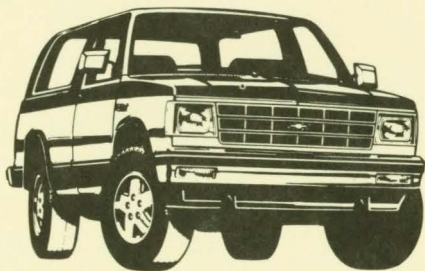

"Jim is originally from North Carolina and he still maintains many ties down there that have resulted in a number of good, solid recruits for us the past few years (including forward John Carson who leads the Bobcats in scoring with close to a 19 points per game average)," says Kearns. "The better players from Canada are going to the States now more and more. But we still do all right for ourselves. We probably recruit as heavily as any school in Canada and that diligence and hard work may be paying off."

"I think another thing that has helped us is our schedule during the past few seasons. Last year we went to Florida to play some high-caliber ballclubs and this year we battled some Division I schools. Next season we're looking at a trip to Arizona. This is good experience for the players and a chance for them to see some top-notch basketball."

Bulldog Spotlight — Brian Hansen

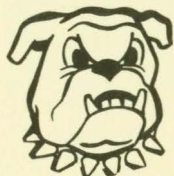

Winning may not be the only thing in Brian Hansen's life, but the smooth shooting guard from Duluth has sure had an uneasy time of doing anything else since he first picked up basketball many jumpshots ago. As a three-year starter at Duluth East High School, Hansen led the Greyhounds to a 52-8 record during those three seasons and a State Tournament appearance as a senior. After a brief stay with the University of Minnesota basketball program in 1980, Hansen returned home to play for UMD where the Bulldogs have produced back-to-back 24-5 records the past two seasons. Excluding his stint at Minnesota, Hansen, since he was a sophomore at East, has been a member of teams that have gone 105-17 going into tonight's game. That folks, is winning.

BUTCH KURONEN Assistant Coach

After serving as a student assistant for three years, Butch Kuronen has moved up this season to become the Bulldogs' assistant coach. Kuronen came to UMD in the fall of 1977 after concluding a brilliant athletic career at Two Harbors High School where he was a standout in basketball, baseball, football and track. While at UMD, Kuronen played one year of junior varsity basketball before ascending into the student coaching ranks as a sophomore. He was graduated from UMD in May 1982 with a degree in physical education and worked in a sporting goods store in Chicago before returning to his alma mater this fall. In addition to assisting Fisher with the day-to-day duties, Kuronen is also responsible for directing the Bulldog junior varsity program.
