McCreery Pledges Help for Fraternity Rushing Campaigns

Deane Office Will Prepare List of Eligible Rushes

FOUR MIXERS PLANNED

Cooperation Aimed to Assist Greek Societies Through Depression

Full cooperation between campus fraternities and the office of the dean of student affairs on rushing was pledged yesterday by Otis C. McCreery, dean of men.

Dean McCreery today will begin plans for increased cooperation in an attempt to offset any difficulties chapters may experience as a result of the current economic depression.

The first step to be undertaken by the dean's office will be the preparation of a list of sophomores remaining from the list of prospective rushes issued last year. Men who pledged fraternities, those who failed in college, and those who did not return will be scratched from the list, leaving only men eligible to be fraternity pledges.

Again at the end of the fall quarter a list will be sent out containing names of all freshmen as well as their grades for their first quarter's work.

Census cards of all first year men students are now available in the dean's office. Fraternity representatives will be allowed to examine these cards and copy any information on them.

On each card is the man's university address, his home address, the nationality of his parents, whether or not he is self-supporting, his high school record of activities and his religious preference.

Four men's mixers will be staged by the interfraternity council during the fall quarter at which two or three men from each academic chapter will attend.

8 Compete in Final Election Today for Bib, Tucker Offices

Two Out-of-Town Nominees Placed on List in Primaries

Final elections for offices in Bib and Tucker, freshmen women's association, will be held in Shelvin hall today, with eight coeds competing for four offices. The eight nominees were chosen by primaries conducted yesterday for the first time in the history of the organization.

Lora Lee Chase and Mary Jane Confer will be candidates for the presidency. The winner in today's elections will succeed Miriam Pickett, last year's Bib and Tucker president.

Candidates for other offices are: vice-president, Alice Duncan and Helen Pittman; Secretary-treasurer, Constance Cryslar and Janet Van de Water.

W. S. G. A. representative, Margaret Bushnell and Betty White. Two nominees are out-of-town students, for the first time since the organization of Bib and Tucker. Joyce Cryslar, president of the interclass council, in charge of the election, attributed their nomination to the petition system of primary inaugurated yesterday.

The Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., as well as clinics at New York, Buffalo, Baltimore, Atlanta, St. Louis and Montreal were classed as other foremost centers by Bowman C. Crowell of Chicago, director of clinical research for the College of Surgeons.

The Minnesota Cancer Institute has been conducted for the past year under the direction of Dr. Owen W. Wangensteen.

Wabash Railroad Will Carry Students From Chicago to Ann Arbor for Game

Students making the official football trip to Ann Arbor will travel from Chicago to the game over the Wabash railroad, the all-university council decided last night at its second meeting of the school year.

The official student line from Minneapolis to Chicago will be the Milwaukee road in accordance with the rotating schedule put into operation last year by the council and northwest railroads.

Details of the schedules on which special student trains will move from Minneapolis to Ann Arbor will be worked out by a student committee and the Milwaukee road.

Cecil March was appointed chairman of the schedule committee, and will be assisted by Gordon Bowen and Ben Nylime.

Special student trains will be routed to the Ann Arbor railroad station 100 yards from the football stadium in which the Gopher squad will meet the Wolverines.

The Wabash will take students in Detroit to within four blocks of the theater and hotel district.

Fare for the round trip to Detroit will be $25.38, and if students remain in Ann Arbor, $23.58.

U. Botany Students Tour Florida to Collect Algae

Two Automobiles Convey Party of Six on 5,600 Mile Trip

Men Go Deep Sea Fishing to Vary Monotony of Plant Hunting

By Marion Gold

Touring southern United States on a field expedition to collect algae is lots of fun—but it also means an all-hour workday, just like haying on the farm.

So say six graduate students who gathered algae in Florida this summer under the direction of Miss Josephine Tilden, professor of botany. Algae are green plants which grow in water.

Climbing into two autos, christened the "Wreck of the Hesperus" and the "Alga," three men and three women graduate botanists drove first to Eau Gallie, Fla., where they collected marine algae and preserved it in formalin to bring back to the university for study.

As soon as they could spare the time, the masculine members of the party went deep sea fishing off Eau Gallie. They made hauls of sea-bream, highly treasured by Florida fishermen; golden-colored sea bass; yellow tails; grunts and sharks. Paul Schelske carried off honors when he landed three man-eating sharks of six and seven feet in length.

A mysterious nocturnal visit from a turtle who left footprints four feet apart, swammed the Eau Gallie stop. Tracks that resembled wagon wheel marks were not the only souvenirs of the call, however; a nest of turtle eggs remaining in the sand. The botanists paraded the beach all the next night in hopes of catching a glimpse of the evidently monster turtle, but were unsuccessful.

Fully stocked on marine algae, the party left for the mountainous central Florida, near Lake Wales, where they gathered fresh water growth in rivers and lakes. Water in this region is clear, not of the "tea soup" quality found in Minnesota. Miss Tilden explained.

Comptroller, Dean Taken to Hospital Middlebrook Suffers Relapse—Benjamin Operated On

William T. Middlebrook, comptroller of the university and secretary of the board of regents, is confined in the University hospital today, suffering from a relapse after an operation performed four weeks ago at Rochester.

Mr. Middlebrook was taken to Rochester for an internal ailment, and his condition was considered satisfactory when he was discharged. A week ago he returned to his office for work. University physicians attribute the relapse to insufficient rest and quiet.

Dr. H. A. Benjamin, assistant dean of the College of Education, was admitted to University hospital yesterday morning for thyroid treatment. An operation was performed at 2 p.m. yesterday, with physicians calling his condition serious.

Interfraternity Council Will Lay Stag Plans Tomorrow

Members of the interfraternity council will meet tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. to arrange for the series of freshman-fraternity stags they are sponsoring this fall with the aid of the University Y.M.C.A. and the office of the dean of men. An executive group of six to handle the problem of rushing violations throughout the fall quarter will also be appointed.

Doctor Says Rumble Seats Cause Epidemic of Colds

Athletic Directors Will Meet to Draw Up Charity Games

Tilts With Maximum Revenue Will Be Arranged At Conclave

GRIFFITH REFUSES OFFER

Possibility of Two Undefeated Teams Will Influence Matching

Athletic directors of the Big Ten conference will meet in early November to draw up a schedule of post-season charity games calculated to net the maximum revenue.

The meeting was called to take place late in the season in order to match logical opponents at the most strategic centers of grid interest.

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics, was compelled to discard numerous bids for games from non-conference schools, as the play is to be confined within the conference.

Net revenue will be pooled and turned over for distribution to the governors of seven mid-west states according to population.

Should two teams go through the season undefeated, it is likely that they will be matched to determine the unofficial Big Ten winner.

Playoff of Northwestern-Notre Dame Game Suggested

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(UP)—Major Anton Cermak today started efforts to have the Northwestern-Notre Dame football game, which resulted in a scoreless tie, replayed for charity in Soldier Field December 5.

Mayor Cermak plans to ask the city council to pass a resolution providing for a committee to confer with the presidents of both universities over a post-season game between them.

In order for Northwestern to play the Western Conference would have (Continued on Page 4)

1,200 Cases Examined By Unemployment Survey Unit

Clinic Has Job of Taking 'Square Pegs Out of Round Holes'

STEVENSON IS DIRECTOR

Individuals Examined and Given Vocational Guidance

Taking "square pegs out of round holes" is just one of the many problems confronting the committees working on the Minnesota unemployment project, under the direction of Russell A. Stevenson, dean of the School of Business Administration and director of the survey.

Individuals who are unemployed or unsatisfied with their present occupations are examined and given vocational guidance and re-training by the examiners. At present, over 1,200 cases have been examined at the University clinic. Four thousand cases selected from the registration of unemployed will furnish the basic data for this study.

The Minnesota unemployment project involves an industrial survey, the re-training problem and the administration of public employment agencies. The Employment Stabilization Research Institute at the university administers directly the economic and re-training phases. The state municipal employment agencies are concerned with the third phase. To carry on the investigation, three committees have been organized, one for each field, and a general planning committee.

An intensive study of approximately 600 industrial concerns is being made by three special committees and a general planning group, under the direction of Dean Stevenson. With this analysis, the committees hope to obtain answers to questions bearing on the problem of unemployment in this area.

At present, the committees are undertaking a cross-section job analysis of the various occupations in the Twin Cities. An attempt will be made to show the present structure of industry in the two cities and the skill required. The results of the investigation will be used in the development and re-training of individuals misplaced in industry.

Two seminars, for the study of results of the survey, are being conducted on the campus by Professors A. H. Hansen, and W. H. Stead, of the economics department.

Coed Club Will End Drive With Dinner

Home Economics Association Seeks New Members

Nearly two-thirds of the women in the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics will be signed up for membership in the Home Economics association by the close of the drive tomorrow night, Charlotte Molitor, president of the organization, predicted yesterday.

Coeds will have their last opportunity to join the association at a dinner at 6 p.m. tomorrow in the party dining room of the cafeteria building.

Esther Ammonson, student chairman, and Agnes Larson, state president, will outline the history of the association at the banquet tomorrow. Miss Molitor and Mildred King, faculty adviser, will report on the national convention which they attended at Detroit last summer. Jane Ober's trial will complete the program with several vocal numbers.

Speaking before 500 Oregon teachers, Dr. Curtis said the steadiest influence furnished pupils of adolescent age in public schools was by the married teacher group.

"They understand and sympathize with their students' problems," he said.

Bag Race to Climax Engineers' Struggle

Upperclassmen Will Umpire Fight Saturday

Freshman and sophomore engineers will end their annual fight Saturday on the parade grounds with a game invented by Professor Otto Zeller, faculty member of the senate committee on athletics.

Groups from the two classes will oppose each other in a burliap bag race as the last event on the day's program. The race was invented by Professor Zeller several years ago. Students who have taken part in the event in former years will be on the parade grounds Saturday to referee.

Gunny-sacks filled with wet sand are placed in the center of the football field and the teams attempt to drag the bags across their own goal lines.

Minnesota Alumnus Leads Pharmacists

Dargavel Chosen President at Detroit Convention

John W. Dargavel, graduate of Minnesota, was elected president of the National Association of Retail Pharmacists at the convention in Detroit, held late in September.

Dargavel graduated in 1915, being a leader in his class, and has since practiced pharmacy in Minnesota. For the past eight years he has been a member of the Minnesota State Board of Pharmacy, and is at present executive secretary of that organization. He has also been prominent in national pharmaceutical activities.

His selection marks the third time that a Minnesota man has served as president of a nationwide organization of pharmacists. Dean F. J. Wulling of the College of Pharmacy, was president of the American Pharmaceutical Association of Colleges of Pharmacy in 1918.

Perhaps He'll Explain Himself At Convocation

IN an interview given this week to the Daily, Senator Henrik Shipstead criticized the practice of vote trading in Congress, predicted the downfall of political "czars," and heralded a tendency of individualism among those who represent the people. Furthermore, he added an inconsistency: "Each man now votes as he feels. We are getting back to the old constitutional idea which holds that a Senator is a man who represents his state, not his party."

Therein lies an enigma which we would like to have solved. How can a solon be both an individualist and a true representative of his constituents? It's like trying to serve God and Mammon, and he who embarks on such an impossibility deserves a lot of respect. What the Senator probably meant is that the more courageous of his colleagues now resort less frequently to party policies and more often to their own judgment than they are accustomed to doing when making decisions for the voters back home. And that looks something like progress.

We wouldn't have thought that the math department is anxious to cut down the number of its majors; but sure enough, they're giving comprehensive examinations.

Proposed Rushing Rule Will Test Fraternities

THE attitude with which the interfraternity council has greeted the proposal of its president to revise the method of enforcing its rules is a sad commentary on the low state to which the interfraternity council has fallen.

The prime object in organizing the council was to insure fair play in rushing, to guarantee to each fraternity that if it would submit itself to certain regulations its competitors would submit to the same regulations. In the early years of the organization, the spirit of the rules was pretty well observed; during the last few years the rules have been frankly ignored. Nearly every fraternity member knows not only of the violations made by his own group, but also of numerous violations made by other groups. Under the present circumstances, no fraternity dares to press charges of illegal rushing, of illegal initiation, or of any other violation of the rules, because it realizes that whatever punishment its complaint may bring will also be inflicted on itself. The proposal that charges be made in secret, a method which has been successfully followed by the pan-hellenic council, would eliminate the blackmail element, and it would still retain the factor of justice, which is so essential to any enforcement of rules.

Unless the interfraternity council can and will adopt some method of rigidly enforcing its rules, it might as well disband. Under the present circumstances all the disadvantages of membership in the council are retained and the advantages are minimized. That the council can remedy the situation is beyond a doubt; whether it will remain to be seen.

We read that "University of Washington freshmen must wear numeral pins for four years." By that time, we suppose, they are exempted from hazing.

Charity Football Games Gain National Approval

THE players and coaches, the students and officials of the colleges involved and the public at large have voiced their hearty approval of the plans for post-season charity football games. The contests would be a boon to sports writers who could postpone the disagreeable let-down after the autumnal abundance of copy. In fact the experts have already busied themselves with speculation upon the matching of teams for the charity games. The Army-Navy game is definitely scheduled while persistent rumors link Northwestern and Notre Dame, Wisconsin and Iowa and Minnesota and Illinois as post-season opponents.

The announcement that Owen D. Young recommends this method of raising money is further evidence of the popularity of the idea. Mr. Young is chairman of President Hoover's committee for mobilization of relief resources and his pronouncements carry somewhat more authority than those of Messieurs Cullum, Barton, Johnson, et cetera.

Indeed, it is quite apparent that the post-season games appeal to all concerned. All that remains is for the various athletic officials of the nation to match their institutions with an eye to gate receipts. In fact, there has always existed a suspicion that some of the representatives of the seats of learning pursue that policy in arranging all their games. If that is the fact, and if these gentlemen will condescend to employ their match-making talents for sweet charity's sake, the program should be highly successful.

As far as we can make out, WLB broadcasts its weekly language lessons because it is an old Spanish custom.

Pangborn and Herndon say they have no ill feeling toward Japan. A $25,000 check might make anyone change his mind.

The Bystander

TONIGHT, at 6:30, the University of Minnesota charter chapter of the Collegiate Poetry society of America will meet for dinner in one of the campus' noisiest restaurants. The purpose of this meeting is to secure for the society all poets at Minnesota who believe that poesy and poets should be one and inseparable. It is said that the society was founded by Robert Frost and Edna St. Vincent Millay. Poetesses and poets will lay down formal rules for the protection and propagation of poetry on the campus and elsewhere; to wit, will eat ripe olives, sip black coffee, smoke Benson & Hedges cigarettes (peut-etre), tell tall tales about batik-making, dry-point etching, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera.

A REVUE

LONDON—(Royal Registry Office)—His Majesty's Chamberlain, Colonel Sir Edgar Scott-Baynton, expressed himself as being greatly concerned with the conduct of the Third Regiment of Windsor Guards last week. Dr. Percival Brown, curator of the St. Regis museum in London, had been working on a critical paper which he planned to read before the Royal society in December. This paper was to be an inquiry into the condition of the pure-blood English people in Lambeth, and Dr. Brown wished to discover the exact number of genuine Englishmen in that section of the city. Funds were lacking, but Colonel Sir Edgar Scott-Baynton offered the Third Regiment of the Guards to the curator. These troopers, acting as unofficial census-takers, penetrated Lambeth in search of the English, but before they had gone very far, pulled up to the kerb and swarmed into a pub, where they became inebriated. Colonel Sir Edgar Scott-Baynton was forced to send eight motor lorries after them, and he said yesterday that the name of the Windsor Guards had been disgraced forever.

As The Miller Would Have Told It
ALL Minnesotans, team-backers, others, will be interested to learn that all soldiers are not invulnerable, that Our Major Hester's merry men are not alone in their mistakes, that Our British Cousins also err.

One regiment of London soldiers, sent out into Lambeth to scout out pure-bred English burghers, walked instead into a beer-garden, drank, sipped, poured down beakers full of the warm South, left all native-born, blue ribbon Englishmen to shift for themselves.

Irate colonel later fetched them home in motor busses.

My attention is called to the fact that one regiment of soldiers in London were sent out on a definite mission, and that they neglected this mission, becoming intoxicated in a public drink parlor.

On the spot: What more or less well-known lady teacher of this university recently declared that it was worth $10 to her each time a certain campus publication kept her name out of its columns?

THE suggestion has been made that Walter Winchell learned to dig out his facts while studying geology. Support could be lent this proposition at Minnesota, at least. On the third floor of Pillsbury Hall there is a door which bears this sign: WINCHELL LIBRARY OF GEOLOGY.

U. Botany Students Make Florida Tour

The party penetrated into the tropics on the last lap of the trip. At Key West they ate green turtle steaks almost every day and watched operations of the sponge market. Green turtles grow to the size of a pig, are strict vegetarians who feed entirely on algae, and provide, excellent steaks, Miss Tilden reported. After being kept alive a day or so in the market, the mammoth turtles are butchered for shipment to New York. The sponge market is a place where huge sponge animals are strung up on ropes for buyers to inspect. Despite sunburned backs which forced some students to sleep nights on their faces, blisters like pancakes, and work from 5 a.m. until 10 p.m. some days—the students agreed it was fun after all.
The good car "Alga" provided most of the variety for the trip. One morning it managed to come down with three flat tires within an hour and a half. Gordon Vidson, "Alga" driver, steered the 5,600 miles of the tour without running out of gas—until he had arrived two blocks from the door of his home.

Gopher Countryman Wins Students' Aid Dance to End Subscription Drive Saturday

Rumors that the Gopher Countryman, publication of the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics, would be discontinued due to lack of student support were declared false yesterday by Francis Moore, editor.

The staff has been busy all week, and we plan to wind up our subscription drive with a dance at the farm campus gymnasium Saturday night," Moore said. "We have secured over half the subscriptions necessary to insure publication, and we are confident that the campaign will be a success," he said.

William Lauer has been appointed sports editor, and Dorothea Cahill and Harry Callinan are now joint editors of the feature section. One attraction of the Countryman this year will be a column dealing with the infinite, cosmic, and seventh dimension to be conducted by S. W. Spencer, better known as "Skipper" of the inter-campus line.

Varsity Rests; Reserves Get Strenuous Workout

Grid Coaches Out to Build Up Dependable Second Team

Lack of Competent Reserves Weakens Gopher Offense

Gopher grid reserves, lacking in dependability in the Stanford clash, received a goodly share of attention on Northrop field last night when Coach Fritz Crisler drove his second and third stringers through a lengthy workout while the varsity was permitted to retire to the showers.

Under the huge flood lights and with the aid of the "ghost ball," the reserves executed trying plays under the tutelage of the head mentor and Coaches Tad Wieman and Frank McCormick.

Reserves Cause Worry

The varsity engaged in a short scrimmage early in the session and was dismissed when the reserves started their battle-royal.

The lack of competent reserves, which beat Minnesota in the clash with Stanford, was causing the coaches most of their worry. The Gophers proved that they were a match for any team as long as their first string was fresh, but when the Cardinals wore the varsity down, the reserves could not stem the rush of "Pop" Warner's hordes of fresh warriors.

With an open date this week-end, Coach Crisler has a breathing space in which to add more strength in the reserve lineups. With Iowa and Wisconsin, the two teams which Big Ten opinion gives the Gophers a chance to beat, coming on in two successive weeks after the open date this Saturday, the coaches are worrying about the condition of the lesser members of the squad.

Munn Drills on Boots

Captain Clarence Munn went through a long session of punting for the lone exception to the no-work rule for the varsity. The husky guard was not up to his mid-season form in the west-coast struggle, and it was feared that he had left some of his kicking skill in the pullman when he got out in Oakland after the long journey. Munn's boots, one of the Gophers' best weapons of offense as well as defense, are counted on heavily to keep the conference teams in their own territory.

Finger Hampered In Choosing Lineup By Eligibility Rule

Team to Face Aggie Harriers Will Be Named Friday Night

Coach Sherman Finger will pick his first string cross-country team of 10 men for the meet Saturday with North Dakota State after the eligibility committee rules today on the men who will be eligible for competition. All of the lettermen of last year are thought to be eligible.

to suspend certain rules of long standing. Recently the conference voted to allow each team to play a post-season charity game but stipulated that the contest must be against another conference team and not later than November 28. Notre Dame's regular schedule does not end until the Army game at New York November 28.

T-Ball Teams Fail To Pile Up Scores In I-M Struggles

S.A.M., Sigma Chi Battle to Scoreless Tie—Tekes Win, 8-0

Low scores have predominated so far this season in intramural touchball games, with only one team succeeding in winning a tilt by a margin of more than two touchdowns. A win by the T. K. E. team over the strong Alpha Sig eight and a scoreless tie between S. A. M. and Sigma Chi last year's runnerup, was the extent of I-M touchball activity, yesterday, as the Deke and S. A. E. teams postponed their game, and the Phi Sig took a 1 to 0 victory by forfeit from Phi Epsilon Pi.

SIGMA ALPHA MU, 0
SIGMA CHI, 0
Sigma Alpha Mu and Sigma Chi battled to a scoreless tie in the only game played last night. No teams have been so evenly matched in touchball games played this season. Each team's goal line was threatened several times during the course of the game, but both squads lacked the final punch necessary for a touchdown and probable victory.

KAPPA EPSILON, 8
ALPHA SIGMA PHI, 0
The Tekes stepped out late in the last half to nose out their friendly rivals the Alpha Sig's by a count of 8 to 0.

Purdue Drops X-Country, To Develop Indoor Track

Earl Martineau, former Gopher football luminary now head track coach at Purdue university, is not attempting to organize a cross-country team this year but is concentrating his efforts for the indoor track season. Purdue's varsity track squad is only fair, but among the first year men there are several promising candidates.

Yearling Back Out With Infected Ankle

Frosh Hurt—May Be Lost for Season

An infected leg has put another promising freshman halfback, Louis Dallovia of Duluth, on the sidelines, it became known yesterday. This announcement was right on the trail of the news that Erwin Burg, Milwaukee, is out for the season with cartilage injuries.

Dallovia sprained his ankle during a scrimmage last week and when the tape was removed it was discovered that an inflammation had set in which would prevent his playing. It is not known whether Dallovia will be out the entire season or not.

Last night the yearlings continued with the usual fundamental work, coach Sig Harris drilled his proteges on some "wing back" plays while Coach George Tuttle had his men run through signal drill on the Iowa plays which will be used on the varsity the latter part of this week.

The men, after three weeks of practice, have shown some polish in the sessions. They seem to have the knack of Minnesota's style of the gridiron game and, no doubt, some of these men will find their way on the varsity squads in the near future.

Even the reserve team has improved vastly since their innovation in September and have absorbed a great deal of scalded football sense. They have scrimmaged every night for the past two weeks and according to Coach Tuttle this is the best way that they can become acquainted with the rudiments of the game.

Skilled Sophomores Provide Background for Net Squad

Prospects for another strong Gopher tennis team next spring are exceptionally bright, according to Coach Phil Brain. Although the squad was hard hit by graduation there is a great number of sophomore stars who are expected to replace Yutzy, Scherer and Morgan, who finished their three years of competition last spring.

Chuck Britatus, captain-elect, has improved remarkably through a year of competition and is expected to make a strong showing in the conference matches. The return of Jim Young, letterman from two years ago, will bolster the team considerably. Young, who was made ineligible last year is a strong net player and should strengthen the doubles teams, the Gophers' weak spot last year.

Among the freshmen who are hoped to give the regulars a hard battle for positions on the team is Marvin Schpok, who accumulated three intra-mural titles last year, winning the all-U. Engineers and summer session singles crowns.

Another promising prospect is Paul Scherer, a younger brother of Floyd Scherer, Gopher Ace who finished his three years of competition last year. The Tudor twins, who have held the Northwest junior crown for a number of years, were on the frosh team last spring and will make a strong bid for places on the varsity. Bill Collins, candidate for the varsity football team this fall, is another experienced candidate.

The varsity squad will begin fall workouts this week. The varsity will work on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and the yearling squad will practice on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. This year's freshman squad is headed by John Scherer and Nate Shapiro, former North High star who has shown much improvement in tournaments this summer.

Hoosier, Illini Grid Teams Leaderless

5 Linemen, 3 Backs Pilot Conference Teams

Two Big Ten football teams are without captains this season, while five have linemen, and three have backfield men as leaders.

Indiana and Illinois are the conference squads who will play without pilots this year. Minnesota is led by Clarence Munn, one of the fastest big men of the middle-west gridirons and one of the country's best kickers.

Lewis Miller, second ranking center in the Big Ten last year, is the Purdue captain. Chicago's captain, Sam Horwitz, though small of stature, is among the best of conference guards.

Dallis Marvill, the outstanding tackle of the year, is the Northwestern leader, while Harold Smith, Wisconsin's captain, is another tackle of note.
