Parking presents problems

By Nancy Noah
News Editor

Some major changes have been made in parking this year at UMD, and Captain Harry Michalick of the UMD Police Department stressed that they will be enforced strictly.

The biggest change is that there are now five general lots instead of three. Lot S, located between Oakland Apartments and St. Marie Street, and Lot P, located next to Junction Apartments, are the new general lots. As of Monday afternoon, approximately 1,200 general decals had been sold, and Lots S and P had not yet been filled. "If you have a general decal, there is no excuse for getting a ticket because there are plenty of available parking spots," Michalick said.

Signs are now found in the parking lots at the head of each row designating which parking stickers are allowed. The color of print on the decal must match the color of the sign. "The whole parking system has now become color-coded," Michalick said.

As of Monday afternoon, 722 residential hall decals had been sold, which is an increase over past years. Again, there is plenty of parking available for residents. Maps distributed with decals show all areas that are available for residents. Michalick stressed that a decal does not guarantee parking in any particular residence hall lot.

Obtaining a permit to park temporarily may be impossible if the rest of the permits are sold. Michalick said only about 25 spots are left in residential areas. If parking is allowed it will be in Lots L, R, J and in the back row of Lot M.

Michalick said that over 100 citations have been given out already this fall, so it is important to park only in designated areas.

Captain Harry Michalick of the UMD Police reports that 75 additional general parking decals will go on sale Friday morning at 8:30 at Window 16 in the Darland Administration Building. The cost of the decals is $13.

Tuition expected to stabilize

By Kelly Carver
News Writer

The University of Minnesota system hopes to hold next year's tuition increase at 5.5 percent, said Gerald Allen, UMD Registrar. At that rate, the campuses would not have to raise prices as much in the years to come because the rate of inflation has been projected to be about the same.

The average student tuition increase at the University was 9.1 percent, with some of the professional schools increasing as much as 13.3 percent. "The budget needed to be balanced,"

Allen said. For freshmen and sophomores taking lower division courses, average tuition will be around $1,548 according to David J. Berg, director of management planning and information at the Twin Cities campus.

Minnesota requires students to pay only 35 percent of the cost it takes to keep a university in operation. The Legislature then apportions the remaining 65 percent. This year, $247 million was allocated to the U of M, leaving a projected $91,000 to be paid by the students. UMD received only $17-$20 million of the allocations.

In order to get the budget balanced, many factors were taken into consideration, including the number of students, salaries, utilities, and all other expenses and revenues.

Funds sent to UMD are not earmarked for specific uses. When money is short in one area, it will be taken out of another area with a surplus amount. Lately, most areas have come up short, necessitating an increase in revenue from somewhere else. The University Regents decided it would be best to increase tuition and try to stabilize that percentage rate now.

Here at UMD, most lab instructors have told their students that prices are too high, but there is nothing they could do to change it. Some have asked the Regents to lower lab fees for that class but have been turned down.

The loss of the tuition plateau was another aid in balancing the budget. In years past, UMD did not charge students for 15 to 18 credits. Now, all tuition is on a per-credit basis.

UMD Registrar Gerald Allen noted that adequate funding for Continuing Education and Extension courses was a bright spot in the new tuition picture. "The tuition increase will ensure that a wide variety of both day and night courses will remain available to UMD students."

CLS divided into two separate colleges

By Daniel Zielske
News Writer

A reorganization of colleges at UMD went into effect on August 9, 1984, after being approved by the Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota. This reorganization involves the division of the College of Letters and Science into two separate colleges; the College of Science and Engineering and the College of Letters and Social Science. The new system also contains the College of Education and Human Services Professions, School of Business and Economics, School of Fine Arts, and the School of Medicine.

The School of Social Development, formerly a separate entity, is now the Department of Social Work within the College of Education and Human Services Professions.

George Rapp, Dean of the College of Letters and Science (CLS), said the new system will be more efficient. He gave as a primary reason for the division the increasing size of CLS. Rapp said if Computer Engineering and two other proposed engineering programs had been added to CLS, it would have become nearly 80 percent of UMD's student body. He also said no other major college in the United States has their engineering and humanities departments under the same college.

The new College of Science and Engineering will contain natural sciences, physical sciences, mathematics, engineering, and engineering technology, as well as other programs in the Department of Industrial and Technical Studies.

The new College of Letters and Social Science will include the social sciences and humanities.

Dean Rapp believes the reorganization of colleges will allow for more focus at faculty and administration levels, thus creating a more common, coherent curriculum for students.

Colleges in the new system will have greater uniformity of size. The new units and the percentage of UMD faculty and students in each unit are as follows:

College of Education and Human Services Professions-- 20 percent of the UMD faculty; 20 percent of the UMD student body.

College of Letters and Social Sciences-- 24 percent of the UMD faculty; 30 percent of the UMD student body.

College of Science and Engineering-- 23 percent of the UMD faculty; 26 percent of the UMD student body.

School of Business and Economics-- 10 percent of the UMD faculty; 11 percent of the UMD student body.

School of Fine Arts-- 10 percent of the UMD faculty; 8 percent of the UMD student body.

School of Medicine-- 11 percent of the UMD faculty; 4 percent of the UMD student body.

Although the new system went into effect on August 9, current students will not be affected until fall, 1985. Effects will still be minimal, however, because current students will continue to follow requirements of the catalog under which they entered.

Teachers sign contracts

By Mark Charron
News Writer

The contract between the University of Minnesota and the University Education Association (UEA) was signed on Thursday, September 6, in the Kirby Student Center's Garden Room.

On hand to witness the signing were University President C. Peter Magrath, UMD Provost Robert Heller, UEA President Virginia Katz, and other UEA officials.

The new contract, which followed more than a year of negotiations between the University and the UEA, called for faculty members at the University of Minnesota's Duluth and Waseca campuses to receive the same basic funding for salary increases as their Twin Cities campus counterparts.

The new contract calls for average salary increases of 5.75 percent for 1983-84 and 6.5 percent for 1984-85. In addition, the contract guarantees that the University of Minnesota, Duluth and the University of Minnesota Technical College, Waseca faculties will receive the same percentage salary increases as the rest of the University of Minnesota system for the years 1985 to 1987.

The contract affects about 340 faculty members at UMD and Waseca who are represented by the University Education Association. Salary increases for 1985-86 and 1986-87 will depend on how much money the state legislature appropriates for the University. The contract also contains a grievance procedure which UEA president Virginia Katz called one of the best in higher education.

Katz said the union was fairly pleased with the results of the long negotiations, but feel they have more to do in obtaining their goals. "There is still a lot of work for the next few years, but we definitely have made some progress in the new contract," Katz said.

The contract was voted on by the faculty near the end of July and was approved by the Board of Regents on August 9. "We've been negotiating steadily since January, 1981; now we can get down to the business of providing the best possible services for the faculties at UMD and UMW," added Katz.

Lounges used as housing

By Rebecca Lindmark
News Writer

Diligent students residing in Griggs hall this quarter may have to go as far as the library to seek refuge from distractions. This is because the study lounges of Griggs hall are serving as housing for some 48 students waiting for more adequate accommodations.

For the last 10 years overcrowding in on-campus housing facilities has been a problem. John Weiske, Associate Director of Housing, commented, "The question can be raised as to why we just don't build more housing facilities, but that is answered when we see that last year by winter quarter we had approximately 220 empty spaces." This decline after the fall quarter can be attributed to an average number of graduations, drop-outs, transfers, and students moving off campus.

The Housing Department is concerned with providing residents in Griggs hall with empty lounges for study and with moving students living in on-campus apartments into the dorm they requested. There is also concern for some freshmen having to adjust to off-campus life and transportation at Capehart Apartments.

Relief is in sight for lounge residents, but for those heading toward the library, don't be surprised to find a bed lofted between two bookshelves.

Gentile leaves Public Relations Dept.

By Julie Sugg
News Writer

Angelo Gentile, one of UMD's Public Relations (PR) workers, will be leaving UMD. On September 17, Gentile will begin a new job as director of Public Relations at William Mitchell College of Law. Gentile has been at UMD for five years.

Ten years ago Gentile was a news reporter for the STATESMAN. He worked his way up the STATESMAN ladder to become editor-in-chief. Gentile said, "The hands-on experience that I received while working on the STATESMAN was terrific. Students wanting to go into PR or reporting need to have real, hands-on learning experiences." He feels that classroom work plus actual experience is necessary for students.

Gentile spent his early years in Gilbert, MN. He attended junior and senior high school in Duluth, and is a graduate of Cathedral High School. Gentile attended UMD for three years and then transferred to the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities campus. He received his degree in Journalism in 1979, and applied for his present job immediately after graduation. He had interned at UMD's PR office while he attended UMD, so he was not unfamiliar with the office. Gentile has enjoyed his years at UMD. He refers to them as "fulfilling and terrific."

Gentile's advice for students hoping to become involved in Public Relations or reporting is, "Students must learn writing skills, as 75 percent to 80 percent of Public Relations work involves writing. To be successful (in PR) you must acquire excellent writing and editing skills." Gentile's work at UMD included writing news releases, calendars, and public service announcements; directing and producing slide shows; co-hosting football games; and planning special events. He was also responsible for layout and design of in-house publications and hiring and training of student-intern writers.

Gentile emphasized the importance of involvement in community affairs. In order to be an effective liaison between the University and the community, Gentile has spent much time working in the community. He was on the Mayor's Higher Education Advisory Committee, and he is a member of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), the Lake Superior Advertising Club, and the Duluth Chapter of the American Advisory Committee.

Cafe reactions

By Julie Paine
News Writer

As the character Gomer Pyle would say, "Surprise, surprise, surprise!" That is what students returning to UMD probably thought as they walked into the cafeteria this fall. The remodeling project, which was completed this summer in the cafe, has met with different responses.

A CLS senior in criminology said she liked the ventilation a lot better. She went on to say, "I don't like the idea of combining the Bull Pub, Deli, and Cafe, because before you could walk into the Bull Pub for a Coke and get out right away; now you have to wait in line." She went on to say that the chairs were more comfortable, but the tables were crowded, and so were the lines during the 11-1 rush hour.

Kristie Metcalf, CLS junior, said she liked the comfortable atmosphere, but didn't like the Bull Pub and Cafe combination.

A CLS biology student who uses the cafeteria regularly likes the new set-up. "Except for the lines piling up at the grill, I'm satisfied with the changes." He also liked the new chairs.

Cindy Kelley, another CLS student, liked the chairs, and replied that the cafeteria seemed more modern. The complaint she had was that there was no ice cream.

One of the workers in the cafe said she liked the combination better because it made the lines go more quickly and made serving the students and faculty a lot easier. On the other hand, another worker said she preferred the Bull Pub better because the rush hour is more hectic in the cafeteria. She also said that the Bull Pub seemed to have a different atmosphere; students had time to talk to their friends instead of being rushed.

Overall, most of the comments surrounding the combination of the Cafeteria, Deli, and Bull Pub seem to be positive. Many of those who have had a negative opinion about the remodeling have changed their minds when they learned that no tuition money was spent on the project.

Funding of cafeteria explained

By Julie Paine
News Writer

Many returning UMD students are commenting on the remodeling of the cafeteria. This project, begun three years ago, was completed this summer, and what used to be a loud, noisy, and uncomfortable place to eat or study has now become just the opposite.

Joe Michela, Administrative Director of Auxiliary Services, said a major reason for the remodeling was a shortage of eating surfaces for one or two people. This was remedied by adding 25 more eating surfaces. The chairs were also replaced because the old wooden ones had been at UMD since about 1968, and they were very uncomfortable to sit in for long periods of time. Carpeting was also added as a noise buffer. Michela went on to explain, "...in remodeling the cafeteria, we (a committee of three) were striving for durability along with aesthetics." He went on to explain, "...the aesthetic portion of the cafe was the reason for adding the wood trim and the soon-to-be added historical pictures of Duluth. The fans were added to keep the cafeteria cooler."

Will all these changes help the students? Michela elaborated, "By combining the cafeteria and deli areas, students can buy a greater variety of foods later at night than last year. Instead of just being able to buy vending items or burgers and fries, a student can buy a plate at the salad bar, deli food, or the burgers." Also, the food may be cheaper on campus than buying similar quality food at an off-campus restaurant. For instance, a fried cinnamon roll costs 30¢ in the cafe; at an off-campus donut shop it might cost 40¢.

Two questions remain: How much did the remodeling cost and how much of the money came from students' tuition? Michela explained that the money for the remodeling came from reserves that had built up over the years, and that the auxiliary services receive no money from student tuition or from the Legislature, as many other campus facilities do. The complete remodeling cost was between $20,000 and $25,000. So for all of you returning students and new freshmen, just enjoy the cafe for lunch, dinner, studying, or just talking to friends.

SOME COLLEGE COURSES ARE MORE EXCITING THAN OTHERS.

WHAT EVERY STUDENT SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN LEASING A TELEPHONE AND LEASING A CHICKEN.

Yes, there are differences. And we think you should know what they are. Ask yourself these questions.

WHEN YOU LEASE A CHICKEN, DO YOU GET THREE MONTHS FREE DURING THE SUMMER?

Probably not. But when you lease your telephone from AT&T this fall, you won't pay any lease charges next summer. You can use your phone at home, and bring it back to school in the fall.

DO LEASED CHICKENS COME IN A SELECTION OF COLORS AND STYLES?

No. Chickens don't come in many colors. But the AT&T telephone you lease this fall comes in a variety of colors and three popular styles.

ARE LEASED CHICKENS REPAIRED FREE?

Don't kid yourself. Repairing a chicken is a delicate process that requires the work of expensive professionals. However, in the off chance your AT&T leased telephone needs repairs, we'll fix it absolutely free when you visit any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

ARE LEASED CHICKENS SHIPPED DIRECTLY TO YOU?

Ship a chicken? Don't be silly. However, your AT&T leased telephone will be shipped directly to you after one call to 1-800-555-8111, or you can pick up your phone at any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

ONE FINAL QUESTION: DOES IT COST THE SAME TO LEASE A CHICKEN AS TO LEASE A TELEPHONE THIS FALL?

Hardly. While we have no hard data on the exact cost of leasing a chicken, we can tell you with some certainty that the cost of leasing a telephone this fall is far less than you might think.

The decision to lease a chicken or a telephone, of course, rests with you.

But should you opt for the telephone, remember: you get three months free next summer, and you can take the phone home with you. There's a choice of colors and styles, free repair, and we'll ship you the phone or you can pick it up at any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

It doesn't cost much either. And that's something to crow about.

Skyrocketing tuition:

Underfunding may be the bottom line

By Dick Senese

Perhaps the greatest shock for the student returning to UMD this fall had nothing to do with the cultural shock of "hitting the books" for another nine months or even the fancy new color coded building signs. The rapid rise in the cost of tuition shocked more students (and believe it or not more administrators) than a tuition hike has ever before. According to figures from the Provost's office, the cost of tuition for the average student carrying 17 credits rose 33 percent. Let's look at a hypothetical student named Tom Tuition. Tom is an undeclared major in CLS and is from northeastern Minnesota. Last year, 1983-84, Tom's 17 credits would have cost $520.80 for tuition alone. This year Tom owes $747.15 for that same tuition.

As those students who were here last spring may recall, the University of Minnesota's Board of Regents met on the Duluth campus for the first time since collective bargaining began with the UMD faculty union, the University Education Association. The Regents usually meet on the Minneapolis campus, though every so often they plan meetings on the coordinate campuses to see other parts of the University. The only controversial topic discussed was a proposed tuition increase. According to this plan, the tuition would rise in accordance with the cost of instruction. In other words, students in programs which are more expensive to conduct would feel a higher increase than those in programs where the costs are lower. This should have resulted in an average 9.1 percent undergraduate tuition increase at UMD, a far cry from the increase that Tom felt.

The rest of Tom's increase in tuition results from the elimination of tuition banding or the tuition plateau. According to the administration, in 1983-84 all the University campuses had a plan where students could register for 14-18 credits and pay the 14 credit rate. The exception is the Morris campus, where students can register for up to 20 credits and still pay only the 14 credit rate. The plateau was eliminated on the UMD campus for the 1984-85 school year. The reasons for this were explained in a letter to UMD students from Dr. Don Harriss, UMD's Vice Provost for Academic Administration.

In that letter, dated June 15, 1984, Dr. Harriss states that, due to the large number of students who register for both day and night school, the day school lost over $600,000. At first glance it seems puzzling. How can day school lose money because Tom takes night courses? Well, welcome to Academic Bureaucracy 1001 for non-majors (not to worry, this is a tuition-free course). Day school and night school, or CEE, are separated entirely in terms of tuition. To find out what this means for your checkbook, let's look at Tom's schedule for last fall quarter. Tom took 17 credits last fall, all of them in CLS and except for Comm 1202E, Interpersonal Communication, 3 credits, all of them in day school. It would seem to the untrained eye that this is a relatively simple procedure. Let's look deep into the heart of Fort Darland to find out what happens when Tom does this. As we gaze into the darkened recesses of the dungeon area we see the folks who collect the day school money giving the folks at CEE $111.60, the full price of CEE's tuition for that night course.

This leaves the day school with $409.20, rather than the original $580.20 that Tom paid. In other words, the day school lost $111.60 because of Tom's cross-registration into night school. Since cross-registration is so popular, the day school lost over $600,000, according to Harriss.

Figures from the Provost's office support Harriss. Cross-registration between day school and night involved over 40 percent of UMD students registered in day school for the '83-84 year. The numbers will probably be similar for the current year as well. According to a study conducted by the Registrar's Office for the Provost, 66 percent of 200 randomly selected students fell within the old banding guidelines, 14-18 credits. It is when this 66 percent cross-registers that the banding of tuition causes the day school to lose big bucks.

So in looking at the problem of how to avoid losing another $600,000, two options were selected. The first plan would be to eliminate cross-registration altogether, thus forcing day school students to take all the courses during the day. And as most of us know, it is nearly impossible to get through UMD without taking some courses at night due to a lack of day sections or because some courses are offered only at night. The second option would be to charge tuition on a per credit basis. After looking at the number of UMD students that would be affected by the elimination of cross-registration, our administration opted for the per credit basis. According to Provost Heller, the administration was rather surprised by the actual increase in tuition this meant for students. If the Registrar's study is valid, over 66 percent of students at UMD felt the bitter crunch of the plateau's elimination when picking up their fee statements.

After gathering the information necessary to write this piece--not an easy task on a Friday afternoon--I believe that there are some serious questions left unanswered. The first is why can a student attending the University of Minnesota, Morris take up to 20 credits and still pay the 14 credit rate? This could be a result of the smaller enrollment at Morris. That is, their day school wouldn't lose as much money as UMD's since there are fewer students at Morris than in Duluth. According to a report issued by the Management Planning and Information Services (MPIS) office, dated June 20, 1984, there were 5,927 fewer students at Morris than Duluth in the fall of 1983. So maybe Morris can afford to lose a few thousand dollars on their cross-registration, or maybe the percentage of cross-registrants is not as great as Duluth's, which would mean even less loss for Morris. A second, and I believe more important, question is how can the Twin Cities campus afford to offer cross-registration and the banding of 14-18 credits without losing money? After all, on the Twin Cities campus, according to the same MPIS report, there were 25,451 more undergraduate students in the fall of 1983 than on the Duluth campus. Without any fancy calculations, and assuming the percentage of Tom Tuition types cross-registering is equal, the UMTC campus should have lost over $2.7 million on their cross-registration. There is a hitch, however. The folks down south claim that students there pay for their CEE classes separately and that, therefore, they do not lose money on the deal. And, in fact, there is such a stated policy in the Twin Cities CEE bulletin for 1984. However, having some experience with stated policy versus actual fact, I would like to see the procedures they use and some figures from that campus and the other three campuses, where this has not been as large a problem as it has at UMD.

There remains a more pressing question. What will be done to alleviate this problem? According to Heller, there are three options. First, reinstitute the banding or plateau and eliminate cross-registration. Second, adopt a modified banding option, such as 14-16 credits. Third, reduce the cost of per credit tuition. These options are currently being discussed and debated by the University Vice-Presidents, UMD Administration, and members of the Board of Regents. UMD Administration sources speculate that this issue will be discussed at an upcoming meeting of the Regents, though no specific meeting was identified.

Yet what it really boils down to for the average UMD student are two new realities of life at UMD: You can no longer take classes for enjoyment and general interest, nor will a higher education be as obtainable at UMD. And what may the reader decide my opinion to be? Well, after taking into account all the percentages, the different plateau plans, etc. a simple and often heard conclusion jumps out at me. UMD is simply underfunded for the number of students and courses offered. So what else is new?

Is your calculator in the same class you are?

Move up to the TI-66. The easy 512 step programmable.

You're into higher math and your old calculator helped get you there.

But now it's time for something more. The TI-66 from Texas Instruments. The TI-66 offers full programming power and flexibility so you can solve complex and repetitive math problems quickly, easily and with fewer keystrokes than you thought possible. Its 512 merged program steps and over 170 built-in scientific, engineering and statistical functions make for powerful programming. And the sleek, streamlined design makes for easy use.

Its Algebraic Operating System makes it easy on your brain by allowing you to key in problems as they are written, left to right. And a 10-digit angled Liquid Crystal Display not only makes it easy on your eyes but provides alphanumeric notation of your program steps so you can make easy modifications as you go along. There are large, readable keys for your fingers, and an easy-to-follow guidebook so you shouldn't get confused. And last, but certainly not least, at a suggested retail of $69.95, there's a price that's easy on your pocketbook.

All in all, if we made the TI-66 programmable calculator any easier to use, it would deserve its own degree.

VARIETY

School's in session

By Mary Hendrickson
Variety Editor

Welcome back students, faculty, staff, and freshmen to another exciting year of the good ol' college life. It's great to be back, settling in to new places, seeing old friends, marveling at all of the new changes in the school's interior decor and ho, of course, waiting in all of those endless lines.

No matter what your needs the first week of school you can be sure that you'll have to wait...and wait...and wait to get them met. Well, it's all over now. We have received our financial aid, bought our books, and our temperatures have cooled down a bit so now we can laugh about it, right? Isn't it funny to think you waited three hours to register only to find that the class you needed most closed "just fifteen minutes ago"? Or how about the morning you woke up at 5 a.m. to be the first one in the Bookstore and found the line extended all the way down to the Fishbowl? It's happened to all of us, and we can count on it happening again winter quarter, spring quarter, and for some, another year or two.

As long as we have to put up with the hassles, why not quit trying to beat the system and make the most of the time spent waiting? Keep your mind open and enjoy the time to watch, listen and think.

One good thing to do while sweating it out in the registration line is to turn around and introduce yourself to the person behind you. Chances are, he or she is very willing to share in some small talk or air a few gripes. You never know just who'll be there. It's a great way to make friends. It's much better than just looking at people until they catch you staring and you wind up all embarrassed. Time really drags then.

People watching...a very interesting way to occupy time. The Bookstore line and the financial aid receiving lines are located in prime people watcher's country. It's fun to see how people change over the summer. And don't pretend that you aren't one of those people. I've heard things like, "Didn't her hair used to be black?" and "Boy, he really looks great."

While you are busy eyeing all the pretty girls and good-looking guys, pretend that you are someone else for a day. Or try to imagine being the person that you are staring at so intently. You may decide to quit people-watching for awhile.

Are you tired of just attending classes? Think about the clubs you'd like to join. How about turning over a new leaf? Decide to be different--join the Kayaking Club or write for the STATESMAN. There are as many diversified clubs at UMD as there are diversified students, so there is bound to be something just for you.

Another thing you might use to stimulate your mind is inventing a new game. That's how important ideas get started. Dig up some trivia questions, or come up with some fun games to play on your roommates. What a great chance to plan a practical joke on that certain person on your hit list. Just don't get too carried away.

A comforting thought to come back to when you just can't beat the boredom and you have used up all of your creative juices is that everyone in front of you and behind you is in the same boat. They're probably thinking some of the very same strange thoughts as you. Imagine if you had ESP...

And the line goes on...

Order your evening "on ice"

By Kelly Johnson
Variety Writer

If you've never had the chance to see the Ice Capades before, and even if you have, you might want to check out the 1984 show right here at the Duluth Arena. This year's main title-theme for the show is "Hooray For Ice"; a salute to show-biz, past and present.

The show is exciting and very entertaining. Some parts are spectacular, and the combination of daredevil skating and breathtaking lighting displays at times make one feel like part of the show.

There are several slapstick routines throughout the first half of the program which are obviously aimed at younger children. But, there are also impressive performances from such stars as Elaine Zayack and Kitty and Peter Carruthers, the U.S. silver medal winners from the 1984 Winter Olympics, plus many other talented figure skaters.

Young and old alike will enjoy the show because of its interesting musical themes. For the children, the Ice Capades always feature Saturday morning cartoon favorites. This year featured the "Snorks"; homely, but lovable creatures with oddly-shaped heads and large snorkles right on their tops--cute eh? They skated around and shook hands with the kids. For the rest of us there is perfectly synchronized skating choreographed with Ravel's ballet, "Bolero," and more contemporary music like Michael Jackson and Cindi Lauper hits.

Overall, the show is entertaining and not for the great skating alone. The shows continue through September 16, so, if all of your homework is completed, and you've got a few green ones burning a hole in your pocket, then I definitely encourage you to go!

Humorist shines lights on Duluth

By Neal Jahren
Variety Writer

So now that things are cooling down, you're beginning to wonder just what this Duluth you've spent so much time and effort moving to is all about. That's understandable, since there's a fair chance that you haven't heard too much about this city. If your roommate is from one of the suburbs, there's a fair chance that what you have heard isn't good.

Never fear: There is life north of Anoka, and a man named Don Ness is out to prove it. This season's first installment of his live series, "Don Ness Shows Off Duluth," starts tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at the Norshor Theatre, 211 East Superior. Admission is $3, and excerpts will eventually be broadcast over KUMD.

Ness plans on producing more shows throughout the year, but those who miss out on this opportunity will probably have to wait until late November. "I did a show like this in the middle 70's," Ness reminisced, "and after that ended I let a few years go by and decided to start up again." He then performed the first "Show Offs" program last January in the Dudley Experimental Theatre. Since then the show has moved to the Norshor. In its present form, the show is an evening of music, interviews and comedy, not only from Ness's stand-up monologue, but from sketches as well. "We have a tongue-in-cheek, unconventional, off-beat approach to the humor," he commented. The music ranges from folk to jazz to rock, but Ness reminds us that "The main thrust of the show is comedy."

In the past, Ness has hosted such intriguing combinations as punk rock "Iron Youth" back-to-back with Duluth-Superior Symphony Orchestra Managing Director Jeff Prauer. Tomorrow night's line-up includes an interview with city councilor Maureen Bye and performances by rock singer Julie Borchert and "Menage," a classical music trio. In addition, a jazz combo will play during breaks and spectators will be treated to a half hour of bluegrass music before the show starts.

"I think we have the kind of program that UMD students could enjoy," said Ness, "which is unfortunate because we don't allow them in." He declined to give a reason for the ban. "I suppose that if a few sneak in there's nothing we can do about it, but we are beefing up security."

"Our first step is to ask them for their student ID; if they have one we throw them out," he explained. "However, not all of them are stupid enough to fall for that."

Ness alluded to other methods of screening out UMD students, but he did not want them released to the general public.

"I can tell you right now," he added, "that anyone walking in the theatre dressed like they just

Much Ado About Freshmen

By Kathy Zenk
Variety Writer

What's your major?
Where are you from?
Who's Bohannon?
I feel so dumb...

How was your summer?
Where did you work?
WHAT was your name?
I feel like a jerk...

Life as a freshman--
Welcome to college,
Either ready to party
Or set for new knowledge.

I'd like to dedicate this week's column to all you first year college students. To avoid sexist language I am tempted to call you "freshpeople" but due to the fact that some sophomores, juniors, and seniors also fit this description, I'll just refer to you as "rookies." It generally doesn't take long before you begin to catch on to the hassles of being a rookie. Remember just last year when YOU were snickering as the new sophomores got lost in high school? Alas, the tables are once again turned. But this time nobody really cares that much. I mean, this is COLLEGE. Besides, I don't think any of us who have been here before can honestly look back and not smile when we think of our first year. Comb, brush, and bottle of hairspray in the backpack; finding a mirror between classes; taking alternate routes past The Ledge (Surely you rookies know where THAT is by now...); saying 'hi' to everyone; and sitting for hours scoping out the people in the R.H.D.C. And that's just what the rookie GUYS are rumored to have done. Seriously though, the first quarter, or "training camp", for rookies is always the toughest. There are so many new and different things thrown at you all at once. Many discover college isn't what they thought it would be. Others find it's too much of what they thought it would be. At any rate, most people would agree that one of the best things to do in your first year is to become involved. (Activities and clubs are fun, too.) Join whatever you think may appeal to you. The more people you meet, the more you learn. To keep busy means to forget the trivials like roommate differences, loneliness, and homework.

Just remember Fran Tarkenton's infamous words as a rookie: "I just made as many passes as I could. Even when I got smashed I just kept at what I set out to do. An open mind was always my best defense. Looking back, it was hard work but there's no problem too big to tackle."

(I'm just kidding, he really didn't say that.)

Good luck and have a great year!

"The show has two main purposes," he concluded. "One, of course, is an evening of entertainment; the other is a program that is positive in its approach to Duluth. There is a surprising number of interesting, talented people in the city. This is a light-hearted way to 'show them off.'"

EXTRA

If you're stuck...

Try your luck at Window 7

By Ada Fourie
Extra Writer

New UMD students should make Window 7 of the Darland Administration Building lobby a mandatory stop on their tours of the campus. The staff at Window 7 have instant access to the academic records of students on all five University of Minnesota campuses. This makes Window 7 the perfect source for everything from registration problems to transcript copies.

According to Gerald Allen, UMD's Registrar and Director of Admissions, this service has proved to be invaluable and has been utilized increasingly since it started. It is staffed by three people daily between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.; one person attends to students at the window, while two back-up people assist with the location of records and other procedures.

Services offered include reprints of student fee statements, "good student" verifications for insurance discounts, verification of correct registration records on the computer, locating information not readily available on the microfiche records, and checking incomplete grades. Staff can also verify late registrations and locate transcript records that were "lost" during transfers from other campuses. In an urgent case, a quick phone call to the campus involved could have the necessary records for a transfer student on their way to Duluth that same day.

In the past, Window 7 has had to deal with a variety of procedural questions as well. This tended to back up the long waiting lines at times, especially during the hectic first two weeks of each quarter. Among the students interviewed on campus, the general consensus was that this type of pile-up at the "Problems" window could be significantly reduced by splitting the work load handled there. This is now being done.

During fall quarter, a permanent information kiosk will be stationed in the registration lobby. Corinne Peterson of the Admissions Office will dispense general and directive information from there, thus alleviating some of the traffic at Window 7.

Barb Beattie, staff member at Window 7, feels that the information kiosk will vastly reduce the length of time people spend waiting in line. In the past, not even her sunny smile could always cheer up a tired, anxious and impatient student that had been waiting in line for attention. This problem should now be substantially reduced. However, she suggests that students try to plan ahead so as to avoid unnecessary trips to Window 7 on Fridays and late afternoons, since these are the busiest times of the week.

Transcripts of student grades are available on Thursdays between 1 and 3:30 p.m. only. However, requests for transcript mailing can be made throughout the week by filling out a request form at the registration desk. Direct transcript mailing is used for prospective employers and is also forwarded to schools directly when a UMD student transfers elsewhere. Such a request could be delivered at your doorstep --or at your prospective employer's-- within 48 hours.

Students generally appreciate the cooperative and efficient way Window 7 functions. Senior Dan Teteak stated that the transcript mailing system has greatly improved the bottleneck situation during certain times of the quarter. Patti Bentz, another UMD student, commented on the speed with which her lost transcript records were traced after she transferred to UMD from the Twin Cities campus.

Window 7 and its staff definitely assist students to find their way through the complicated maze of registration procedures and red tape of the campus.

Barb Beattie listens attentively to students' problems hoping she can help them in some way.

UMD Smoking Regulations

University of Minnesota Smoking Regulations:

Permanent signs have been installed at the main entrance to University buildings indicating that users of these facilities must comply with the Minnesota Clean Indoor Air Act. This means, except for private offices, that smoking is allowed only in locations having "Smoking Permitted" signs in evidence. As an additional reminder, "No Smoking" signs are posted in corridors of buildings.

University regulations prohibit smoking in classrooms, laboratories and other instructional areas and also in the audience sections of all places of public assembly. Such areas cannot be designated as "Smoking Permitted" areas under any conditions. Conference rooms, general office areas, lobbies, food services, rest rooms and corridors are "No Smoking" areas unless specifically posted "Smoking Permitted."

All faculty, staff and students are advised that, with the enactment of this law, smoking in any University building becomes a privilege, not a right. With this understanding and the cooperation of smokers limiting their smoking to designated areas, (of which at least one should be provided in every building), more stringent enforcement activities should not be necessary.

There will be absolutely no smoking in the University elevators!

It would be appreciated if all concerned would use their better judgment and comply with University of Minnesota regulations.

Areas have been posted whether smoking is permitted or not.

If you have any questions as to whether an area is a "smoking" or "no smoking" area, or would like to suggest that an appropriate sign be posted in an area, please contact John Kovak, 726-7139.

Professor appointed

Paul Junk, professor of economics at UMD has accepted an appointment at Gadjah Mada University in Indonesia for the 1984-85 academic year.

The appointment is part of a three-year project of the Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities (MUCIA) and the Government of Indonesia, which is aimed at developing teaching and administration at three Indonesian universities.

Junk will teach monetary economics at the undergraduate level and serve as a consultant in the development of graduate study programs, in graduate students research, in assessment of departmental facilities, and in education policy and planning.

Junk was one of five University of Minnesota faculty members selected to participate in the Indonesia program.

MUCIA is a consortium of seven major public institutions of higher education and is dedicated to the development of a worldwide network of higher education and research to strengthen the international dimension of courses and programs offered at its member campuses.

Microcomputers

Students and faculty can now purchase microcomputers through the UMD Computer Center at substantial discounts. The discounts range from 30 percent to 50 percent off the list price. The most popular microcomputers available are the Apple Macintosh, Apple Lisa, IBM PC, and IBM XT. Also for sale are Zenith, Digital, and Hewlett Packard microcomputers. They will be sold at the discounts listed above for only a few more months. If you are interested, stop by 172 MWAH or call 8840 Monday through Friday before noon.

The Duluth Zoo Docent Association is looking for individuals who like to work with animals and people. The docents are volunteers who present animal programs at schools and to the public, work in the zoo's contact building and animal nursery, and engage in a host of other activities for the benefit of the Duluth Zoo. Volunteers must be at least 18 years old and have a valid drivers license.

An open house will be held at the Duluth Zoo September 22 at 10 a.m. to explain the roles of volunteers. Training classes for the docents will be held evenings twice a week at the zoo, beginning the week of September 23. For further information, contact Mrs. Joseph Hampton, Superior, 392-4148 or Mrs. Raymond Moore, Duluth, 727-7214.

Top 3 QBs injured:

Bulldogs face Wildcats Saturday

By J.P. Guidinger
Sports Writer

The UMD football Bulldogs are already two weeks into their 1984 season, and continue their schedule as they take to the road for their third game this Saturday. They will take on the Wildcats of Northern Michigan University in a 1 p.m. (EDT) non-conference game at Memorial Field in Marquette, Michigan.

Last year against Northern Michigan, the Bulldogs struggled to a 23-7 loss.

UMD football coach Jim Malosky hopes his Bulldogs can turn the final score around this year. "We have our work cut out for ourselves. They have a fine quarterback, and they like to throw the ball."

UMD's last victory against Northern Michigan was in 1962, a 14-0 decision, and NMU leads the overall series 4-1.

The Bulldogs will have to earn the victory this Saturday as NMU will be waiting with a fine team. The Wildcats had a 1983 overall record of 8-2, and they have long been considered a strong NCAA Division II independent opponent.

If the game turns into a defensive battle, the outcome could be decided by the play of the special teams. Northern Michigan has a returning AP All-American place-kicker, Pat Veselik, who last year ranked second in the final NCAA-II overall kicking statistics. Last year, he kicked a personal record 50 yard field goal against UMD.

The Bulldogs will have to put together a consistent effort both offensively and defensively in order to come away with a victory. "We need a total team effort this weekend, on offense, defense, and special teams," Coach Malosky remarked.

The Bulldogs opened their season September 1 with an impressive outing at UW-Superior. The 'Dogs controlled the entire game and walked away with a 32-0 rout.

For their impressive opening week performances, two Bulldogs were named NIC players of the week. Senior Greg Saarela from Biwabik, MN., carried the ball 17 times for 113 yards while scoring three touchdowns at UW-Superior. For his effort, he was selected NIC Offensive Player of the Week. And sophomore Tim Barnum from St. Louis Park was awarded defensive honors for his 10 tackles, including six solos, also at UW-Superior.

Last Saturday the Bulldogs fell to an embarrassing 34-0 defeat at the hands of Mankato State University. Mankato State controlled the game both offensively and defensively as they rolled over UMD. "It was not a pretty performance. We were not physically or mentally prepared," said Coach Malosky.

UMD had won six straight meetings vs. MSU prior to last Saturday. It was Mankato State's first win over the Bulldogs since 1969.

HOME OPENER SEPT. 29: UMD was the pre-season media pick to finish second in the NIC Conference, behind Moorhead State University. The Bulldogs return 32 lettermen from last year's 6-4 club. This year, the Bulldogs will be hoping to improve on their 4-2 conference record, which gained them a tie for second last year.

BULLDOG NOTES: Quarterback/punter Steve Kragseth suffered a sprained knee last Saturday at Mankato State. His availability is in question for this weekend. The Bulldog quarterback problems do not end there. Freshman quarterback Jim Malosky, Jr. (Duluth Central) broke his foot in the Bulldogs' junior varsity scrimmage with Vermilion Community College. He had seen limited action in the Bulldogs' first two regular season games.

Scott Ecklund is the probable starter at quarterback against Northern Michigan. He has also been recovering from some minor injuries.

Spikers return strong squad

By Theresa Sanders
Sports Writer

After losing only two seniors to graduation, UMD women's volleyball is back in action. The Bulldogs begin their 1984 season this Friday, September 14, at the two-day UW-Milwaukee Invitational in Milwaukee.

Micky Tierney will begin her third year as head coach for the Bulldogs. In her first two years leading the 'Dogs, Tierney has posted impressive records of 34-8 (1982) and 45-9 (1983), and with the veteran team she has this season, Tierney seems confident that the squad will again have a good season.

The spikers will be led this year by co-captains senior Kathy Haakonson and Joyce Wistrick. Other returning players include seniors Lori Ogren, Rachel Howard, Denis Stalker and sophomore Sheila Browne.

"All of our upperclassmen have been looking good," said Tierney. "I think the freshmen we have are one of the best groups UMD has had in some time. All they need is some time and game experience."

Six freshmen joined the Bulldog squad this year: Felicia Glidden, Linda Nicoski, Tara Haiskanen, Renee Fluegge, Lois Oakman and Mary Rapps.

Nicoski, who stands 5'9", will be a starter this year. "She's an excellent all-around player," said Tierney. "She possesses good technical skills and should replace Diane Ruhl as outside power hitter."

Ruhl, who graduated last year, has joined the team this year as assistant coach.

The Bulldogs may also be playing two other freshmen this weekend. Fluegge is stepping in for Stalker, who is attending a family function, and Glidden may replace Howard who is nursing an ankle sprain.

This weekend's invitational will involve 18 teams. On Friday, the UMD spikers will face Lewis University (Illinois) and end the night with a match against Carthage College (Wisconsin). On Saturday, the 'Dogs play Lakeland College (Wisconsin), and end pool play with a match against UW-Stevens Point.

"We would like to make it to the championship round," said Tierney of this weekend's tournament. "There are four pools, and only the winner of each pool makes it into the championship round. If we make it to the title round, I'll be satisfied."

While the squad does have a busy schedule, only six games are slated to be played at home. The first will be October 1 against St. Scholastica. All other home contests will also be in October.

After traveling to Milwaukee for this weekend's tournament, the Bulldogs will prepare for an invitational at St. Cloud (September 21-22).

Season goal: second or better

By Bridget Waldorf
Sports Writer

"We'd like to finish second or better, but we're shooting for number one." That is how Eleanor Rynda, veteran UMD cross country coach, expressed her squad's goal for the 1984 season. Rynda considers the goal realistic, even though she's lost some key runners to graduation.

"Lee Juba and Brenda DeFrance were experienced runners. They knew what they had to do and we could count on them to do it. John VanDanacker also added experience to the group, and Ron Wolfe was our Most Valuable Player last year, and possibly our number one runner."

As for the '84 squad, youth pervades. "We've only got three women and two men returning from last year's group. There is no money to offer scholarships with, so the athletes are strictly walk-on. From what I could tell from last week's organizational meeting, we have interest from approximately 11 new students. But team membership is never closed; we'll take any interested individuals."

Although there are a considerable amount of new faces on this year's squad, Rynda noted that she has some quality runners back. "Laura Montgomery and Polly Durand will captain the women's team. Laura's got two years of experience behind her and Polly's the defending Northern Sun Conference champion at the 5K. We'll be looking to her for leadership both on and off the course.

"We've also got a transfer student, Shirley Diesen, that should make some big strides. She's a strong girl and a strong runner."

Golfers strong again

By Jorg Pelrach
Sports Writer

If depth and consistency are two of the main ingredients needed for success in NCAA Division II golf, coach Butch Kuronen's Bulldog team should be cooking this fall.

Bolstered by the addition of two-time Minnesota State AA golf champion Kyle Anderson, a transfer student from North Texas University, this year's team is expected to make its seventh consecutive appearance in the national tournament.

In addition to Anderson, the Bulldogs boast two-time All-Americans John Spreiter, a senior from Litchfield, Minnesota, and Reed Kolquist, a senior from Duluth. Both golfers are expected to vie for individual honors at this year's national tournament.

Spreiter became the school record holder in carding an all-time low 67 in one round at the Drake Relays last season. Spreiter also proved himself as a top golfer by qualifying for the very prestigious U.S. Amateur Open last summer.

According to Kuronen, Spreiter and Kolquist are important elements in the success of the team because of their consistency. "I can always count on them for a good score," said Kuronen, who is in his first year as head golf coach. "They also know the courses and can help the younger golfers out."

Joining Spreiter, Kolquist, and Anderson on the team will be junior Scott Rauvola and sophomores Peter Nervick and Mark Retica. Rauvola is a former winner of the Cloquet Invitational and made a strong showing at the Drake Relays, finishing ninth last season.

For Kuronen and the rest of the team, this season's primary goal is to make a strong showing at the Drake Relays. Kuronen also listed some long term goals such as qualifying the entire team for the national tournament. One obstacle is that the North Central Conference will be represented at nationals by only 10 golfers, down from the 12 accepted last year.

REC SPORTS

Intramurals, informals, clubs:

Rec Sports covers more than you think!

By Randy Krebs
Rec Sports Editor

Hello there, and welcome to one of the newest sections of the UMD STATESMAN. This is the Rec Sports section, and it will be a section devoted entirely to the Recreational Sports programs at UMD.

My name is Randy Krebs and I am in charge of setting up this section. My main goal for the year is to provide an informative, accurate and interesting section which deals with one of the largest programs at UMD. If you have a comment or criticism about the section, please let me know.

When you hear "Rec Sports" most of you think of intramural sports, and while intramurals are a big part of Rec Sports, they are by no means the only part. Rec Sports deals with three major areas: intramural sports, club sports and informal sports.

Since intramural sports is probably the most popular of the three areas, let's deal with that first. The Rec Sports department headed by director Richard Haney, sets up leagues in different sports every quarter. Special weekend tournaments are also organized throughout every quarter.

Fall quarter intramural sports include football, volleyball, bowling, ultimate, and soccer. Also planned are tournaments in softball, racquetball, tennis, cross-country, and floor hockey. A "Turkey Trot" is also scheduled. To register for any of these stop by the Rec Sports office (Kirby Lounge) or watch the STATESMAN for more information.

In the winter, Rec Sports has intramural leagues in bowling, broomball, basketball, ice hockey and volleyball. Winter quarter tournaments include table tennis, badminton, swimming and diving, broomball, and both slalom and cross-country ski races.

As soon as (and if) the snow melts, Haney and Rec Sports set up spring quarter leagues in bowling, floor hockey, racquetball, indoor track and field, and softball. Spring tournaments include basketball free throw, tennis, floor hockey, golf, running and ultimate.

It should be noted that all of the sports offer men's, women's and co-intramural divisions. Also, the teams are classified by their degree of competitiveness.

Another of the three areas Rec Sports covers is club sports in which people who have the same interest in a sport form a club. All club sports are self-supported and self-administered, and all are members of the Club Sports Union or the Outdoor Recreation Association. This gives them a voice in the use of UMD facilities. There are a dozen different club sports at UMD. You can find out more about them by reading the club sports article in this section.

The third area which Rec Sports covers is informal sports, which deals primarily with the use of UMD's athletic facilities. Since scheduling conflicts do arise, the Rec Sports department puts out a schedule pertaining to the use of these facilities for every quarter.

Not only do informal sports include the above, but they also provide different programs and services.

Some of the programs offered include the 100 Mile Club, which allows people to chart their weekly exercise program. This club also provides people with ways to exercise the equivalent of running 100 miles. Once they do this, they receive a t-shirt. There is a fee for this club.

Another program is aerobic dance, which is the most popular informal sport on campus. Aerobic sign-up is held at the beginning of every quarter.

Fitness Inventory and Testing (FIT) is the final program offered as part of informal sports. FIT is an effort between Rec Sports and Health Services which consists of a four-part fitness inventory. The parts include medical screening, fitness testing, exercise programs and continued counseling. It is only available to students and there is no cost.

Informal sports also offers several services which include lending everything from basketballs to shuttlecocks. Informal sports also allow you to rent out canoes as part of the outdoor recreation program.

There is also one other portion of Rec Sports which should be mentioned, and that is the Outdoor Program. The Outdoor Program is a program specifically designed to get UMD students, faculty and staff involved in the outdoors.

The outdoor program is so large that it will receive its own section every other week in the STATESMAN. Included in this section will be articles dealing with everything from daily hikes and seminars to weekend trips.

The outdoor program starts off the year with a backpacking trip to the Porcupine Mountains in Michigan on Sept. 21-23. For more information stop at Kirby Desk.

As you can see, the Rec Sports program covers an awful lot of ground -- some of which I'm sure you walk on -- so watch for the Rec Sports section each week in the STATESMAN.

Fall intramural entries available

By Paul Romano
Sports Writer

With the start of a new school year comes the opportunity for UMD students to participate in intramural sports. Intramurals give a chance for everyone, regardless of his or her ability, to play in organized sports.

Entries are now available in the Recreational Sports Office (Kirby Lounge) for these sports: touch football, soccer, volleyball, bowling, frisbee ultimate, the 3-pitch softball tournament, and singles and doubles racquetball tournament.

Touch football, soccer and volleyball are always popular leagues in the fall intramural sports season. Competition will be offered for men's, women's and co-im teams in AA, A, and casual leagues. The entry deadline for soccer and touch football is Thursday, September 20 at 4 p.m. in the Rec Sports Office. The deadline for volleyball is one day later--Friday, September 21.

Two other leagues where entries are now available are bowling and frisbee ultimate. In bowling, the competition is open and league matches will be offered on a round robin basis. The entry deadline for bowling is Wednesday, September 19 at 4 p.m. in the Rec Sports Office. Competition in frisbee ultimate will be on an open basis (any combination of men and women) and the entry deadline is Monday, September 24.

There are also two tournaments upcoming: the 3-pitch softball tournament and the racquetball tournament. The softball tournament competition is open to men's and women's teams. Tournament structure will be determined by the number of teams entered. Entry deadline is Wednesday, September 19. The racquetball tournament consists of the singles and doubles which will be offered in both the men's and women's divisions. Entry deadline is Monday, September 24.

Besides the seven events just mentioned there are also five other sports later in the fall. Dates when the entries will be available are tentatively set: September 24 for the tennis tournament, October 9 for the floor hockey tournament and October 24 for the turkey trot. Also, the entries for the golf tournament and the annual fall cross-country classic can be picked up this week.

The following fee schedule applies for this year. All fees must be paid before an entry will be accepted.

Major Team Sports: $10-$25/team

Team Sports/Tournaments: $15/team

Meet Sports (except swimming and track): $5/team; $2/individual

Individual/Dual Sports: $4/team $2/individual

Swim and Track: $2/individual up to $10/team

Some sports may require additional team fees for facility use or services, and your entry sheet will include the price for the specific event you've entered.

With this diverse schedule of events, every student should be able to find some intramural sport to compete in this fall.

Rec Sports funding cut?

By Anne Hayano
Sports Writer

Since spring, there has been a decrease in the amount of funds requested for the upkeep and rebuilding of UMD's sports facilities, according to Recreational Sports Director Dick Haney.

Over the past two years UMD has submitted sports facilities as the number one priority for state funding. This summer, priorities were rearranged as they went through the Central Administration at the Twin Cities campus. Rec Sports/Physical Education is now second priority. The School of Engineering now is first.

At the last legislative session, the number one priority, Rec Sports/Physical Education, requested $15 million and received $4.5 million. This year, Rec Sports/Phy Ed requested $10 million, but got bumped to second priority for $6.2 million, behind the School of Engineering programs.

This amount doesn't allow for most of the changes that have been planned. Original plans for remodeling consisted of many changes, both indoors and out.

Indoor racquetball and handball courts would have been added onto the Physical Education Building and an indoor multi-purpose ice facility would have been constructed, designed for year-round use. Separate locker

Club Sports: From ultimate to volleyball

By Mark Charron
Sports Writer

If you are looking for something to do in your spare time that is inexpensive and a lot of fun, look into one of the club sports programs here at UMD.

There are currently six club sports being offered. They are: Co-ed Volleyball, Co-ed Soccer, Skiing Club, Men's Rugby and Women's Rugby.

According to Club Sports Union President Jeff Yeager, the purpose of Club Sports is to provide an alternative to varsity sports, and to offer a variety of different sports which aren't played at the varsity level. It is also a good way to meet people, get involved, and have a lot of fun at the same time.

Club Sports are sponsored by UMD, but the money needed for tournament fees, uniforms, and other expenses must be produced through fundraisers put on by different clubs. "It is up to the particular club to decide how they will raise money," said Yeager.

Each club has its own president, and all the clubs are members of the Club Sports Union. The CSU meets once a month to discuss problems, fundraising ideas, and promotional plans.

One of the main problems encountered by Club Sports is the lack of a playing field specifically designated for Club Sports use. Yeager commented, "In the past we have had to work around varsity and recreational sports for use of playing fields and other facilities. What we are ultimately working for are fields exclusively for club sports."

Each club schedules its own practices and games. Throughout the season they play different colleges and universities and are involved in a number of large tournaments.

All the clubs have grown over the years and there are presently about 50 members in each. "All club sports are open to students and people of the community, young or old," said Yeager. "They are a good source of physical exercise and recreation. They can be very competitive, but can also be casual, depending upon the people involved and their experience in the sport."

Club sports also puts on a Sport-a-thon every year which demonstrates and presents each sport to the public.

The Volleyball Club is one of the most popular clubs at UMD and definitely has the most people involved. During the winter months the club is very active and holds huge tournaments with as many as 25 teams competing.

The Ski Club is also very active in the winter months and is something to get involved in that's fun and exhilarating.

The Soccer Club and Men's and Women's Rugby are already underway this fall. These clubs are very competitive and are both challenging and rewarding. The soccer team has been practicing but has yet to play a game. The Men's Rugby team swept their opponents in their first series of games on Saturday, September 8, and look to be a strong force this season.

Whatever sport you're interested in, CSU welcomes you to look into their programs and get involved. The more people that get involved, the better the programs will be. Yeager concluded, "Our final goal is to get enough people involved and eventually make it into a varsity sport. Basically though, we are designed as a service for the students and we're here to have fun. Everyone is welcome so don't hesitate to check us out."

Disc Club: It's ultimate

By Mark Charron
Sports Writer

What can be done with a frisbee besides play catch with it? UMD's own frisbee organization, the Lake Superior Disc Club, is out to answer that question. Dan Osborne, Fundraising Chairman and Treasurer of the club, seems to have the jump on just what can be done. "People have the misconception that the things you can do with a frisbee are very limited. Actually, we take our club very seriously. We practice 10 hours a week or more, working on tricks and routines which are done in the Freestyle competitions."

The club includes three specific types of competition: Freestyle, Ultimate, and a hot new game called Disc Golf.

Ultimate is a challenging and competitive game which requires the poise of a basketball player. The game is played on a field similar to soccer. There are seven players on each team, and the object of the game is to get the frisbee down the field and into the opposing team's end zone. No running with the frisbee is allowed, and to score your teammate must be standing in the end zone while catching the frisbee. As Osborne pointed out, "The game can get very competitive, but it can be played at a casual level, too. It's good exercise for any player, regardless of his or her level or experience." The Ultimate participants compete in league games and tournaments throughout the year. There's an intramural tournament planned for this fall, and a regional Ultimate tourney scheduled for December. "Ultimate Frisbee is played at the varsity level at some East Coast schools and there is even an Ultimate Frisbee national tournament," added Osborne.

Like Ultimate, Disc Golf is gaining popularity throughout the country. It is much like traditional golf, except for the use of a frisbee.

Currently, there is a disc golf course set up on campus. "The course is complete with fairways and obstacles and it even has a water hazard," Osborne said. "The good thing about disc golf is that you don't have to be an expert to have fun. Right now we are working for the establishment of a permanent course with a course book and map to follow," commented Osborne.

The Bulldogs would also like to win the conference meet because it is to be held in Duluth this year.

Standing in the way of these successes are conference foes Bemidji State and Winona State, who are expected to battle with UMD for the NIC title.

Nationally, the men's golf team expects stiff competition from Southern Illinois-Edwardsville in their quest for a national title.

CC from 1B

On the men's squad, Rynda's stalwart will most likely be senior Mike Miller. "Mike will be our men's captain. He's also an experience runner and presently holds the school record in the 10K."

Defending conference champion Moorhead State is expected to give the 'Dogs their toughest competition again this year. Last year UMD finished second behind the Dragons. Rynda predicts that Mankato State, St. Cloud State, and North Dakota State will be the powers in the region.

The annual alumni meet, scheduled for 4 p.m. this Saturday, will start the harriers' quest for first. Rynda explained that beginning the season with the alumni meet has some advantages. "It's a good time trial for the athletes as well as being a good check on their progress.

There is no real pressure (like that of facing conference opponents) on how they perform, yet the spirit of competition is still present."

Following the alumni meet, the men will travel northwest to face competitors UW-Superior, Bethel College, and host team Bemidji State, while the women will open their conference schedule in a meet against St. Cloud State, the College of St. Scholastica, and UW-Superior. That meet will be held in Duluth.

WHAT IS CPR?

CPR, or cardiopulmonary resuscitation, is an emergency lifesaving technique used by one or two people to artificially maintain another person's breathing and heartbeat in the event the functions suddenly stop. CPR combines mouth-to-mouth breathing and chest compressions to keep oxygen-rich blood flowing to the victim's brain until an emergency service with advanced life support is available. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

rooms were also planned for intramural as well as intercollegiate sports.

Haney also commented on the condition of the basketball and volleyball courts. "The gymnasium is in an unsafe condition at present. The floor buckles up to 10 inches depending on the weather and humidity." With funding, the entire court floor would be remodeled.

Outdoors, Griggs Field would be widened when the 440 yard track is transformed to a metric track. The new field would be accessible to intramural soccer, football and softball as well as intercollegiate sports. The baseball and softball fields should be developed to allow for drainage and lights are also to be installed to accommodate night games.

Most of these changes can't be fulfilled if the new request made by the Twin Cities campus goes through.

Haney commented, "Everyone just passes the buck -- no one down there or here on campus wants to take responsibility for making the change."

Provost Robert Heller stated that UMD's request was changed by Central Administration at the Twin Cities campus. the new request is now on its way to the State Legislature. If it is approved, Haney said, "We'll just have to reduce our program."

Haney encouraged UMD students to voice their concerns regarding the funding changes to Rec Sports at UMD.

Get down to business faster. With the BA-35.

If there's one thing business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Texas Instruments BA-35, the Student Business Analyst.

Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions - the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

The BA-35 means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.

The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

A powerful combination.

Think business. With the BA-35 Student Business Analyst.

FISH ON SPORTS

By Dave Fischer
Asst. Sports Editor

Hello again everyone. I'm back, and for those of you who don't know me, I am Dave Fischer. This is my second year as Assistant Sports Editor and my second year writing this column.

There have been numerous changes in the UMD athletic department since last May when the regular school year ended. I will try to bring you up to date on these changes.

First and foremost, Bruce McLeod has taken over the reins as UMD's Athletic Director. McLeod had served as acting athletic director since December 4, 1983, as a result of the death of UMD Athletic Director Ralph Romano. McLeod was officially named to the position on June 1, 1984.

Also, Dukes Knutson, who had been serving as administrative assistant to McLeod, has left UMD to return to teaching. Knutson, who taught nine years at Duluth Denfeld High School before coming to UMD in 1982, is now teaching health at Duluth East. Knutson's position has yet to be filled.

Butch Kuronen has taken over as head golf coach. Kuronen, who is also an assistant men's basketball coach, replaces George Fisher, who was golf coach and head men's basketball coach.

Speaking of men's basketball, Dale Race was hired this summer to replace Fisher as head men's basketball coach. Race was formerly an assistant coach at UW-Eau Claire.

UMD volleyball coach Micky Tierney has a new assistant coach this fall. Her name is Diane Ruhl. Ruhl was a standout volleyball player for UMD from 1980-1983.

Chris Neumann, who finished a brilliant basketball career last winter here at UMD, will stay with the basketball program this year as an assistant coach. Neumann finished as UMD's third all-time leading scorer.

THINGS: UMD has only three home football games this year. The first will be against Southwest State on September 29, the second against Winona State on October 13 (Homecoming), and the third against Northern State on October 27. All games begin at 1:30 p.m. at Griggs Field...UMD's football team will again play in the Metrodome in the NIC Metrodome Classic II. This year's opponent is UW-Platteville, with kickoff time slated for 5 p.m. on November 18...Moorhead State is favored to win the Northern Intercollegiate Conference football title this year...

PREDICTIONS: Atlanta is 14 points better than Minnesota...Green Bay will beat Chicago by 2...UMD and Northern Michigan to battle to a 14-14 tie...the UMD volleyball team will finish second in the Milwaukee Invitational...Nebraska over Minnesota...Iowa easily over Penn State...the Twins will take 2 out of 3 from Texas...

THE BIG 10 IN 1984: Here is how I see the Big 10 this year. #1-Iowa, #2-Michigan, #3-Ohio State, #4-Purdue, #5-Wisconsin, #6-Illinois, #7-Indiana, #8-Minnesota, #9-Michigan State and #10-Northwestern.
