DULUTH--Two UMD psychology professors will analyze "superstition" on a Friday the Thirteenth television program.

Scheduled at 4 p.m. Friday (Feb.13) over KDAL-TV, the UMD Closeup show will feature Armas W. Tarminen and Gerald A. Gladstein, assistant professors of psychology.

They will discuss the background, analyze psychological factors and consider the practical implications of superstition.

Co-producing the show are Sherman Gonyea and Robert Cohen, both of Duluth, students in Speech 66, Introduction to Television.

A current series of television presentations on Duluth TV stations is a project of the UMD speech course.
