1,800 Graduate Tonight; Ford Will Talk

Acting President Will Deliver 'Charge,' Award Degrees for First Time In Stadium Ceremonies

With Acting President Guy Stanton Ford delivering his first "charge to the graduates" 1,800 seniors and graduate students will receive degrees at the University's sixty-sixth annual commencement in Memorial stadium tonight. Last year more than 25,000 spectators attended the exercises.

Proceeding the open-air ceremony which will begin at 8:15 p. m., regents, deans of the various colleges and members of the faculty, all in caps and gowns, will march from the steps of Cooke hall around the track and up onto the stage.

Leading the columns of graduates from Northrop field to their places in the stands at the closed end of the bowl will be 30 marshalls, two juniors being selected from each college on the basis of scholastic ability. The pages will later lead the seniors, also in caps and gowns, to the stage for the awarding of degrees.

The deans will then present the candidates for degrees—bachelor of arts, associate in arts, bachelor of science, master of arts, master

Metrological Course Open

Subject 'Should Be of Particular Interest To Teachers'

A course in metrology will be offered this summer as a result of requests from numerous students and from a committee of the American Metrological society, according to J. William Buchta, associate professor of physics.

Dr. Buchta explained that the course will include the methods and instruments used for observing such metrological elements as temperature, barometric pressure, wind velocity and direction, humidity, cloudiness, precipitation and visibility. These factors, he said, are more or less associated with the air masses of various size and form which are constantly moving over the earth.

Weather maps are drawn and interpreted from the observations collected from the United States weather stations throughout the country. The course, Dr. Buchta said, gives a good foundation upon which to enter the field of metrology and should be of particular interest to teachers.

Doctor Starrels Will Lecture

Dr. Solomon Starrels, Jewish educator, will discuss the "Value of the Study of Comparative Religion" at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Burton hall auditorium.

Dr. Starrels represents the Jewish Chautauqua society which each year sends a lecturer to the campus early in the summer. He is a graduate of Hebrew Union college at Cincinnati and received his PhD at London university.

His talk here is one of several that he is giving during a tour of the universities and colleges of the midwest.

Rooms Still Available Near University

Pioneer, Greek and Private Houses Have Vacancies; Registration Ends Tomorrow

Approximately 4,500 students will "sign up" for the first summer session in the Armory today and tomorrow according to Thomas A. H. Teeter, associate director of the summer session and general extension professor of engineering.

The figure is considerably above first session registration of the past years. Registrar's figures show a total enrollment of 3,847 last year and 3,909 in 1937. Over 5,000 attended one session several years ago, however, Professor Teeter said.

Incoming students for the summer sessions will face less serious housing problems than have faced full time students this year.

Prices for lodging for both men and women students are about the same as they have been for the past year, averaging from $10 to $18 a month for men students and from $15 to $20 for women students. All university maintained lodgings have been filled with the exception of Pioneer Hall but numerous fraternity and sorority houses are offering to non-member students for the summer.

A complete list of available living quarters for both men and women may be obtained from Miss Catherine McBeath, director of the University housing bureau, room 21, Shevlin Hall.

Pioneer Hall is not completely filled as yet, and offers single and double suites of rooms to men students at prices ranging from $18 to $25 a month. The dining hall will be kept open this year and operated as a cafeteria.

The cooperative cottages, which furnish the most inexpensive lodging for women students, have been completely filled by mail applications as have all accommodations in Sanford Hall. In spite of this, however, many desirable rooms are to be had in 12 of the sorority

Bus Excursion To Tour Cities

A sightseeing excursion trip through the Twin Cities will be held for summer session students beginning at 2 p. m. Saturday in front of the Administration building.

Positions are open in both the editorial and business departments. Students interested in editorial work should see Bob Hillard, editor; those interested in business, Don Arvold, business manager.

Theatre Bill Announced

The University theatre will open its eighth summer session at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Music building with a return engagement of Maxwell Anderson's play, "High Tor."

The other two plays on the theatre's bill for the summer are: "Fresh Fields" by Ivor Novello, and "Bill of Divorcement" by Clemence Dane. The first, under the direction of Frank M. Whiting, will be given July 6, 7, and 8; the second, directed by Reid Erickson, will be given July 13, 14 and 15.

"High Tor" is directed by C. Lowell Lees, director of the University theatre, with Mr. Whiting in charge of the settings and John L. Hamilton of the lighting effects.

It is the story of young Van Dorn, owner of High Tor, a palace above the Tappan Zee, who struggles to keep his mountain safe from the suave trap-kick officials who are attempting to take it away from him. The effective combination of fantasy, comedy and romance has given the play wide-spread popularity.

The cast includes: Lise, Elsie Kelley; Judith, Rosella Gaarde

Associate Director Teeter Welcomes New Enrollees

Thomas A. Teeter Associate Director, Summer Session

The University of Minnesota extends greetings to its summer session staff and students, and welcomes you to the campus for the summer session of 1938. Your attention is called to the leaflet, Special Events, a program of recreation.

Minnesota has much to offer you besides the daily routine of class room. We want you to take advantage of all the opportunities, but we also want you to make the most of the opportunities offered in the class room and libraries of the Twin Cities. In many American universities one is likely to hear the average student say, "I have my history off, or I have my mathematics off." But in Europe I am told one is more likely to hear the statement, "I have my history up," or "I have my language up." There is a difference.

Make Minnesota's summer session your opportunity to add to your culture and learning, as well as to your transcript of credits.

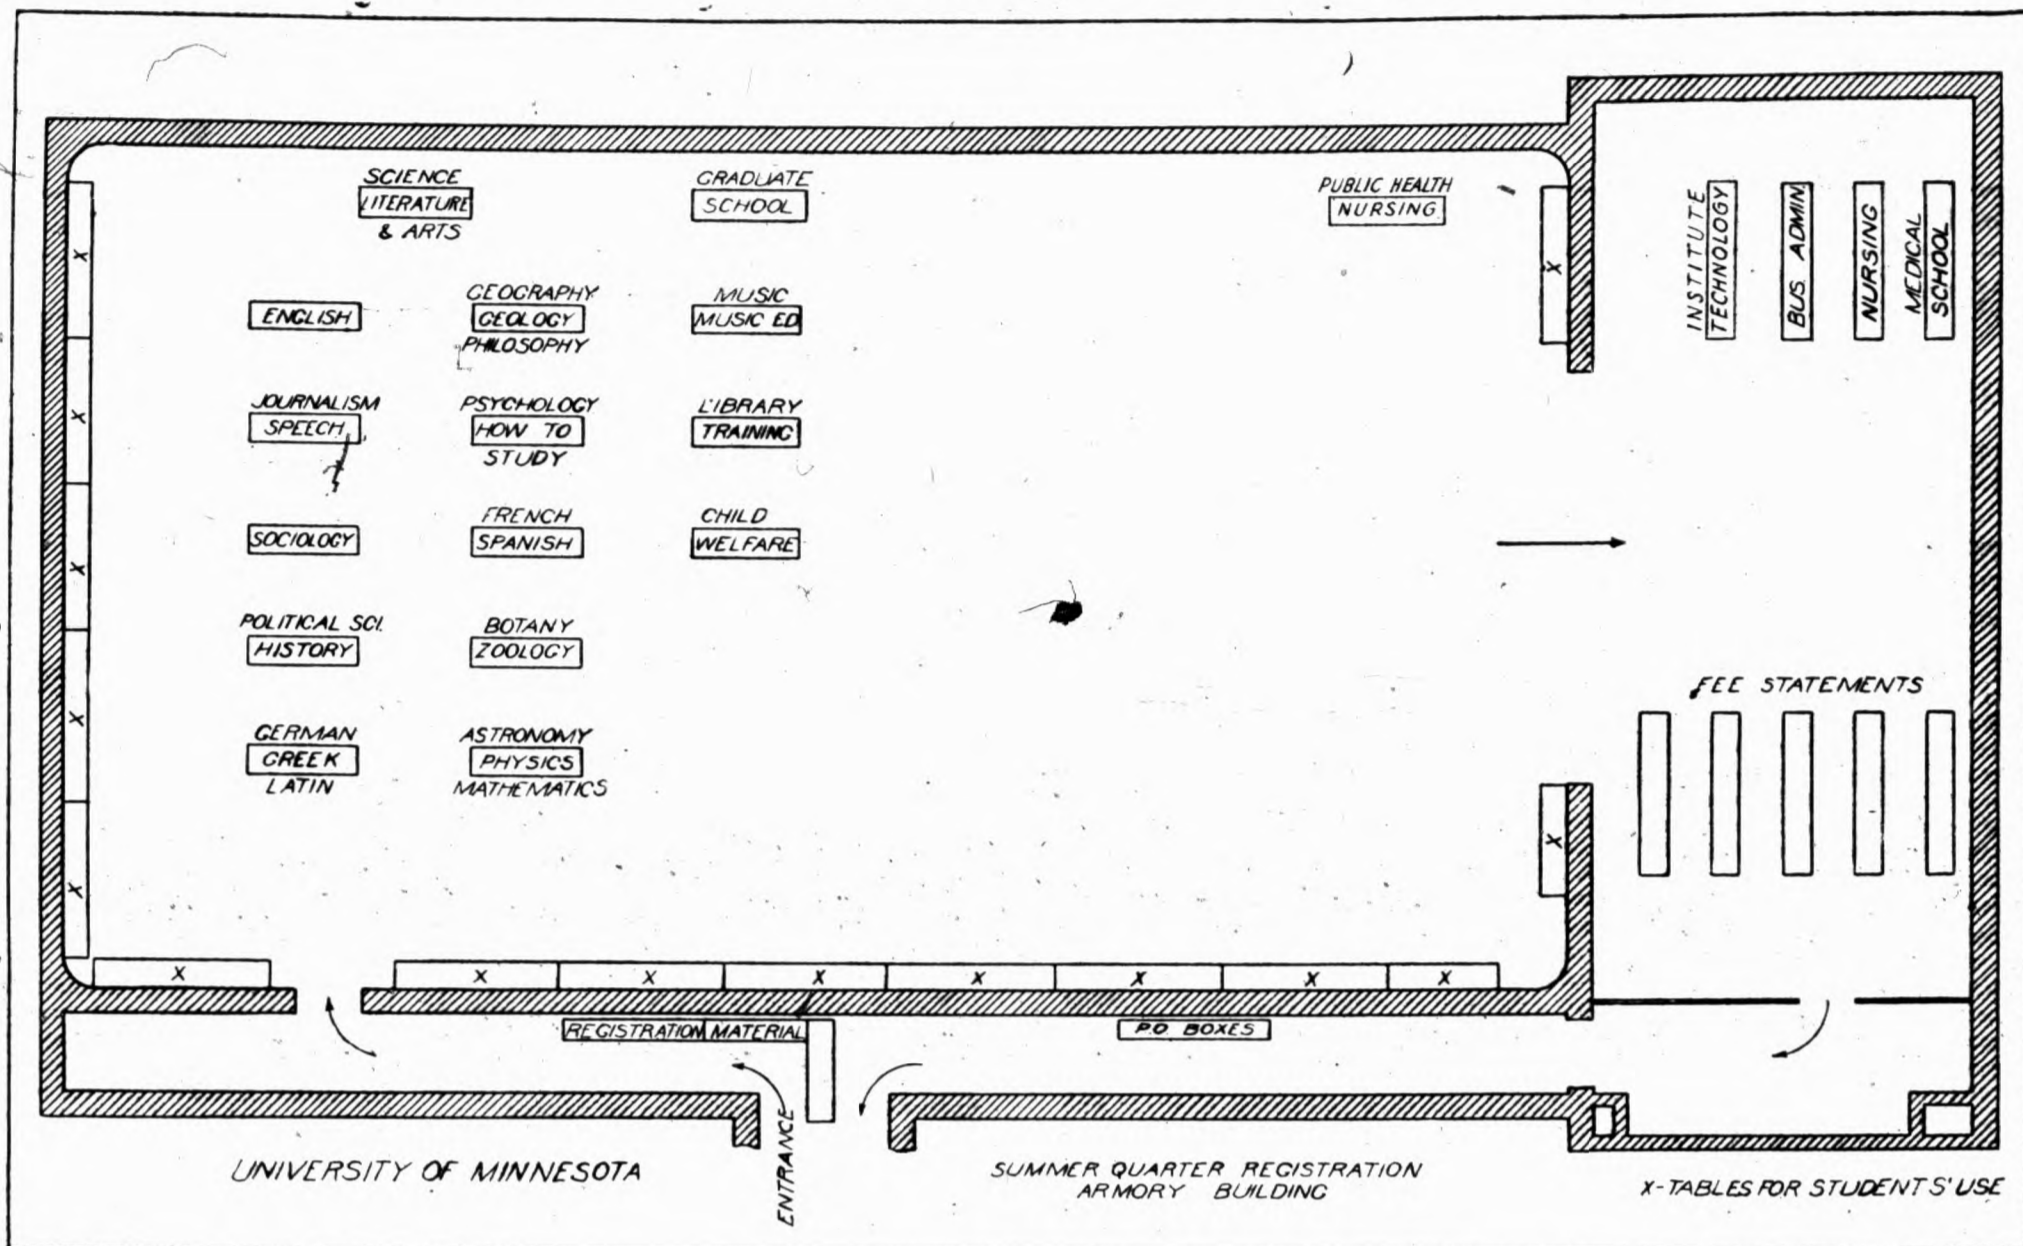

Who Buys What, Where?

This is the first of a series of summer school editions of the Minnesota Daily which we hope to bring you every Tuesday and Friday throughout the summer.

The majority of expenses of this publication will have to be met by advertising, and advertising space buyers naturally want to know who buys what and where they buy it before they spend their advertising appropriations.

If you would like to have this summer school publication continue, please turn to page 4, fill out the questionnaire and drop it in the box outside the post office window in the administration building.

Summer Session Daily --A New U. Service

Today the first issue of a new service—the Summer Edition of The Minnesota Daily—becomes available to summer session students.

Beginning next week, the Summer Edition of The Daily will appear twice a week in students' post office boxes, on Tuesday and Friday mornings. This week there are to be three issues—today's, Wednesday's and Friday's.

Like its predecessor, the Summer Session Reporter, the new venture is designed solely for service to Minnesota's summer students. It will, however, have more space for news of the summer session than had the Reporter of preceding years, and it will appear more frequently. In its columns will be published all official notices and news of summer activities, academic and extra-curricular; and in it will appear "merchandising news"—advertising—of interest to the University's summer community.

The Summer Edition of The Daily is a student enterprise. It is published under the auspices of the Board of Publications which supervises The Daily during the remainder of the year, with the cooperation of the summer session administration and the University News Service. Its editor is Robert Hillard, editor of The Daily for the next academic year; its business manager Don Arvold, last year's Daily business manager. The staff will be composed largely of summer journalism students.

Summer students will be expected to follow official notices in the paper, and they are invited to use its facilities in any other way they like, from news columns to want ads. Material for publication, either advertising or news, should be submitted to The Daily offices on the ground floor of Pillsbury hall not later than 1 p. m. of the days preceding publication, Mondays and Wednesdays.

The success of the Summer Daily will depend on students' use of it and response to it. Contributions, comments, letters for the "Over the Back Fence" column and suggestions will be welcomed. The paper will be a newspaper, not a crusading journal; and—let it be said again—its sole purpose is service to the summer community.

Field and Crew Survey Unofficial Judicial Opinion

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles concerning the activities of the WPA in the campus. This article describes the work being done in the department of political science.

If a state legislature asks a state supreme court for an advisory opinion on a proposed law, and the court says "we don't have to answer that question," but three judges answer anyway, what is the majority rule?

That is just one of the questions faced by Oliver P. Field, professor of political science, in his study of unconstitutional legislation.

The study is being carried on as a WPA project in the department of political science and according to Professor Field, the job is a tough one.

The aim of the research, Professor Field says, is to show the effect of unconstitutional legislation on social, economic and political life.

"I mean," he says, "that when a law is declared unconstitutional by a supreme court, the resulting action has an effect on some phase of business or politics. Finding out how business and politics are affected is one of our big problems.

"At this time," Professor Field says, "there are 10 men working on the project. All the men except one have had legal training. Every one of them realizes the importance of such research."

Lists of accrued unconstitutional legislation have been completed for North Dakota, New Hampshire and Minnesota. Data is nearly complete for Massachusetts and New York.

"The selection of these states," he says, "has a purpose behind it. We chose certain states for their agriculture or manufacturing. Sectionalism also played an important part in the selection."

Some of the states being studied have advisory judicial opinions and some do not. Utility of advisory opinion, Professor Field says, is one of the questions which must be answered before a complete appraisal of judicial review of legislation is possible.

City's 'Killer' Smoke Balks As Nature's Filter System

Minneapolis have brown colored lungs while Eskimos have more healthy pink ones.

Charles F. Shoop, professor of steam engineering, made this discovery in a study of the amount and effect of soot and dust in Minneapolis, the results of which he announced recently.

By catching soot and dust in special containers, Professor Shoop weighed the contents and computed the soot fall. The average fall a year per square mile in Minneapolis is 540 tons, he found. Made into black paint, this soot would cover 15 square miles with two coats.

Kills Vegetation

More than 5 billion cubic feet of stack gases pour from Minneapolis factories and buildings during an average day, the study revealed. Because soot is from 2 to 3 per cent sulfuric acid it often kills vegetations and it is possible for the soil to become so acid that nothing would grow in it.

"Nature did not intend that man should breathe in the products of complete or incomplete combustion," Professor Shoop said.

Need Smokeless Fuel

"Although nature has provided a wonderful system for filtering the air that goes into the lungs, it cannot completely do so when the atmosphere contains an excess of the products of incomplete combustion. By the use of smokeless fuels and correctly-set furnaces this situation can be much improved."

Minneapolis ranks eighteenth in a list of 23 cities according to the amount of dust and soot in the air, Professor Shoop said. By replacing soft and smoky coal with high temperature coke or natural gas, or by treating the smoke after its formation Minneapolis could eliminate much of its smoke problem, he said.

San Francisco (UP)—Due to the alarming increase in deaths from heart disease, a California Heart Association has been organized to foster an educational and prevention campaign.

U. Instructor's News Questionnaire to Appear

The eighth of Time magazine's half-yearly reader questionnaires, prepared by Elmo C. Wilson, instructor in current affairs in the General college and Alvin C. Eurich, formerly of the College of Education here, will be issued in a late June issue of Time.

Eurich and Wilson also write the annual "In 1936," and "In 1937" series, are working on "In 1938" to be published in January by Harpers.

Graduate Describes Fate Of Austrian Refugees

Viennese, Stranded in Paris, Would Give Their Souls' to Come to America.

Editor's Note: Arnold Severeid, former feature editor of The Daily, has been travelling in Europe. At present he is employed as city editor of the Paris edition of the New York Herald. This, his last column for the year, is one of several which have appeared in The Daily.

By Arnold Severeid

Paris— I have never seen Adolf Hitler, but I know some of his victims now and if they are such bad people that they cannot be allowed to live in the same country with him, then he must be an extraordinarily fine person. I have seen these Austrians standing in line at the barn-like Paris police prefecture, awaiting cross examination, only whispering German to avoid stares. I know an Austrian novelist with beautiful red hair, whose books were best sellers in Vienna. She is young and courageous, and used to tell her Nazi acquaintances that she hated their damn party. They would laugh and politely argue with her. But she was half Jew, and everybody knew how she felt, so when the day came, it was prison or flight. She has a little room in the Rue Monsieur le Prince, and there are always young French students raising hell in the street, but she just sits there, with no more energy left. Paris is very lovely in the spring, but instead of healing, that only seems to make her feel worse and more homesick for Vienna. She salvaged one pretty gown when she fled and occasionally she goes to a cafe in that, but there are no more book royalties, and her market is gone. When her savings give out and that dress is no good anymore, I don't know what will happen.

Flight Story 'Terrific'

There is a young Austrian couple whom I know about as well as I know my own family. I met them at the Cafe Flores one warm night. We could see Pablo Picasso in the room, and the Austrians' story of their flight was terrific, so everything seemed quite glamorous and fascinating, like a novel. The man was an able journalist in Vienna and widely known, but he too had not wisely chosen his parents. He was quite confident about Paris. He knew five languages fluently and he knew his own abilities. But after quite a long time, he still seemed to have no job, and when he and his wife unexpectedly showed up in my apartment around the dinner hour, two nights in a row, I finally got wise. He was pretty low for quite a while, and it took a lot of persuading to keep him from going down to Spain to fight, and after you reach bed rock in a few arguments like that you get to know a man pretty well. Every night when I come home, he and his wife are there, and I can tell by their faces more or less what has happened during the day. If he has found another person to tutor in German, he keeps us roaring through the meal with his stories. One night he could scarcely eat and was very nervous, and I found out he had gone into some gyp-shop to get a hair cut and they had charged him 20 francs.

Viennese Use Code

I can tell whenever they have had a letter from Vienna. The people in Vienna write in a sort of code to the refugees in Paris now. "So and so has gone away" means that he has committed suicide. "So and so is ill" means that he is in prison, and "so and so is in a sanatorium" means that he is in a concentration camp. The father of my friend fled to Prague and writes to the mother in Vienna to come so that they may commit suicide together, but she is stubborn and does not want to give her Nazi neighbors that satisfaction. One day she wrote to her son that Mrs. Schmidt spat in her face that morning, and when my friend read that, he sat with a pale face all evening and scarcely said anything.

I think they would give their souls to go to America. "The English have a polite manner, but Americans have politeness of the heart," they said once. One night after they had talked a long time about America, I showed them a clipping about the Nazi bunds in New York, and you should have seen their expressions.

I read about President Roosevelt's committee to help the refugees, and I went down to the consulate one day, but I guess the committee has not got around to anything yet. They told me a man must be able to support himself for years ahead before he can go into America as an immigrant, and in practice, they require that a single man have at least $5,000 with him. I wanted to know what a refugee was to do then, since they were not allowed by the Nazis to bring any money out of Austria, but when I asked that, they just shrugged their shoulders and said rules were rules.

World Records Should Fall at NCAA Meet

Trojans Favored to Win 300 Coaches Expected At School Team Championship

Every Memorial stadium record, some National Collegiate marks and perhaps some world's records will be broken when 300 track and field stars compete in the National Collegiate meet here in Memorial stadium Friday and Saturday.

Held for the first time this year outside of Chicago or the Pacific Coast, the NCAA championship climaxes a long season for college trackmen, and entries have been received from all sections of the country.

Attempting to defend its team championship will be Southern California, perennial national and west coast titleholders. The Trojans ran away with the field in the IC-4A meet 2 weeks ago in New York, and they are favored to win the NCAA crown.

3 Champions Return

Defending individual champions—eight of them—may find it hard work to retain their titles against the pick of the nation's collegiate performers.

Returning to face the challengers are national collegiate champions Ben Johnson of Columbia in the 220-yard dash; John Woodruff, University of Pittsburgh, half-mile run; Charles Fenske, Wisconsin, mile run; Greg Rice, Notre Dame, 2-mile run; Earl Vickery, University of Southern California, 220-yard low hurdles; Pete Zagar, Stanford, discus throw; Lowell Todd, San Jose State College of California, javelin throw, and Dave Albritton of Ohio State, high jump.

Woodruff is also meet record holder in the 880-yard run and 1936 Olympic champion in the 800 meters. Albritton is co-holder of the world's record in the high jump, and he was the winner in the '36 Olympics.

Fenske, Big Ten champion, has raced the fastest mile ever made by a college runner in collegiate competition.

Hurdle Mark, May Fall

A world's record that may go in the 120-yard high hurdles, in which event Fred Walcott, Rice Institute's sensational sophomore, has been timed in 13.9 seconds, just one-fifth of a second from the accepted world's mark. He has never been defeated in competition and he holds the Texas, Kansas and Drake Relays records, and also the Southwest Conference record.

Another world's standard that may topple is in the 440-yard run. Ray Malott of Stanford, who finished second in the 1937 NCAA championships, has been timed in 46.3 seconds in practice, one-tenth below the mark set in 1932 by Ben Eastman, also of Stanford. Malott did 46.9 in winning the Pacific Coast championships 3 weeks ago. He will have more than enough competition from "Long John" Woodruff, who won the IC-4A championship in 47 seconds flat; Jimmy Herbert of NYU, who has run 47 with a flying start; Charlie Belcher of Georgia Tech, who has done 47.9 and Harley Howells of Ohio State, Big Ten champion, who has been clocked in 47.4 seconds.

Fenske Will Race

A third outstanding event and a possible world's record will be the mile run, in which Fenske, the defending champion, will face Louis Zamperini of Southern California, a member of the 1936 U. S. Olympic team. Fenske has a best time of 4:08.9; Zamperini has done 4:13, but he has never been pushed by any coast runners.

A 15-foot pole vault may be possible with Lorin Day and Kenny Dills of Southern California competing against George Varoff, of Oregon, former Olympic team member and ex-world's record holder. All three have done over 14 feet, 7 inches, and Day has made a very respectable try at 15 feet, an inch over the listed mark held by Sefton and Meadows of Southern California.

Outstanding athletes entered include Lee Orr of Washington State in the 220 and 440-yard dashes, a former Canadian Olympic team runner; Nick Vukmanic of Penn State and Gilliam Graham of Texas in the javelin; Gil Cruter, of Colorado, who has high jumped close to

440 Star

Ray Malott, star quarter-miler from Stanford university, is expected to break the world's record for the distance in the ICAA meet this weekend. Malott has already broken the record in practice runs.

U. Theatre Will Hold Summer Play Tryouts

Tryouts for "Fresh Fields" by Ivor Novello and "Bill of Divorcement" by Clemence Bane, two plays to be presented during the University theatre's summer session, will be held at 3 p. m., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Studio theatre, 19 Music building.

The tryouts are under the direction of Frank M. Whiting, director of "Fresh Fields," and Reid Erickson, director of "Bill of Divorcement." Copies of the play are on reserve in the library.

the world's record; Wilson Strobe of UCLA, potential champion in the discus; Bill Watson of Michigan, who will be trying for a historic "triple" in the broad jump, shotput and discus; Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, Big Ten record holder in the 2-mile run; and Adrian Talley, of Southern California, Arnold Nutting of California, Moele Eilerbee, of Tuskegee, and Edgar Mason of Pittsburgh in the sprints.

Third Annual Session of Coaching Instruction Opens Today; Keller in Charge.

Between 200 and 300 high school and college athletic directors are expected to attend the third annual athletic coaching school today through Saturday, L. F. Keller, associate professor of physical education who has charge of the school said yesterday.

Thirteen members of the University athletic faculty will conduct classes in football, track, basketball, athletic training, wrestling, recreational games and care of equipment.

Bierman Will Teach

Heading the list of instructors is Bernie Bierman, head coach of the Gopher football team, who will teach football classes assisted by Dr. George Hauser, line coach, Sheldon Beise, instructor in physical education, and Dallas Ward, freshman football coach.

Dave McMillan, head basketball coach, will instruct classes in basketball; Dave Bartelma, head wrestling coach, in wrestling; Ralph Piper, head gymnastic coach, on conducting recreational games and Oscar Munson, equipment custodian on the care of equipment.

Dr. Hauser and Lloyd Stein, head trainer, will give instruction in athletic training.

Registration for the school opens in the front lobby of the Athletic building at 8 a. m. today. The fee for the week is $15. Classes will be held 3 times a day—8 to 12 a. m., 1:30 to 5:30 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.—in the field house.

It's His Last Chance

Bob Hubbard's New Jump May Win Meet

It'll be the last trial, and if it works . . .

At the beginning of this year, Bob Hubbard, Gopher track captain and broad jumper, decided that if he was going to reach the coveted 25 foot mark, he would have to change his method of jumping. He had a mark of 24 feet, 2½ inches made in placing fourth in the National Collegiate in Berkeley last year, and he felt that was his limit jumping the way he did.

Most jumpers, who "run in the air," take approximately a stride and a half between the time they take-off and land. The kick in the air gives them added distance, but requires considerable coordination and considerable practice. Some fast sprinters, who can depend on sheer speed, do not use a kick at all.

In the Illinois Relays this year, Hubbard won his first event at 24 feet, 5½ inches, using the traditional stride and a half kick, as he had all the year before when he set a new school record almost every time he competed. In most of his 1937 meets he had leaped better than 24 feet, but never 25. It was then that he conceived the idea of trying to take two full strides in the air before landing.

Tries Two Strides

If the two strides could be achieved, he believed he could reach 25 feet easily. He tried the jump in the Texas Relays this year, and leaped 24 feet, 7¼ inches to tie with Jud Atchison of Texas for the championship, but in doing so he couldn't quite get his feet together before landing. One foot hit the dirt well over the 25 foot mark, but the other had not been drawn up beside it.

The same thing happened at Kansas Relays, when he won with a leap of 24 feet, 8 inches. He couldn't quite bring his feet together at the end of the second full stride. But by that time he was convinced the method would work, as it had for a few other jumpers who had mastered it.

And at the conference meet a few weeks ago, he almost completed the jump. Bill Watson of Michigan won the event at 24 feet, 11½ inches, and Hubbard placed second, but the new jump almost worked.

May Win Meet

On his last trial, Hubbard drove into the air took two full strides and came down feet together, for the first time all year, and his feet broke the sand at 25 feet, 6 inches. But he lost his balance and sat back to 24 feet, 4½ inches, and placed second.

So this Friday at the National Collegiate meet, Hubbard will have his last trial at the new jump. If it works he believes he can better 25 feet, and if he betters 25 feet he is almost certain to be the first Minnesota track man to win a National Collegiate title.

Pumpkin seeds and gilded snail shells are used for beach jewelry. Every Paris dressmaker suggests at least one oddity to add spice to the summer wardrobe.
