Nationalism Hinders Europe, Berlin School Teacher Says

A Berlin school teacher paid the campus a visit last week. Carol Petersen, now officially from West Berlin, is an "exchange" to the United States under the government sponsored cultural relations program.

The German modern languages teacher has been in this country for the past eight weeks observing our educational procedure.

He has traveled in the East, extensively through the South and came here from San Francisco. After his brief stay at the University, Petersen left last Friday for Middlebury college in the East.

During his visit, Petersen visited the French and German language houses where he spoke about the political situation in Western Europe. Europe, incidentally, was a subject that the German teacher warmed up to very easily. He has traveled extensively in France, Italy, Scandinavia, Germany and England, where he taught in 1948.

"Nationalism is Western Europe's worst handicap," he claimed. "It is the worst evil in the world."

Because of this, he continued, there is an "absolute political necessity of union" in that area.

"European countries depend on each other so closely that any resentment built up in past generations must be wiped out," Petersen said.

When asked whether the Schuman plan worked to Germany's disadvantage by asking more from her than from the other participating countries, Petersen replied that the plan "is based on very solid arguments—Germans must accept it."

Comparing Europe to the United States, Petersen said that in the former, princes and dynasties came first—they needed people and nations to rule, and thus arose the present Europe; in the latter, however, the people existed first and set up governments to rule themselves.

"The most pleasant factor of my stay here," said the Berlin teacher, "is that I have never felt any prejudice against my nationality; this is contrary to my experience in every European country I have visited. People here have a greater vision."

A highlight of Petersen's stay here was an unexpected reunion he had with a former student of his.

Fritz Glueckstein, a veterinary medicine student at the University, studied under Petersen more than four years ago at Gottfried-Keller senior high school in Berlin.

Leaving his family in 1947, Glueckstein immigrated to the United States. He plans to be naturalized in about a year.

Both were overjoyed at the surprise street-meeting.

Prof. Arnest

Artist Today Is Not Free, Says Art Prof

By Myrna Johnson

An artist, bitter because of the lack of public understanding of art, believes that he and his colleagues must go "underground" to produce their work with integrity and truth.

Bernard Arnest, educational director of Walker Art center and assistant professor of art, expressed this opinion in a lecture Wednesday. Presenting the first in the second season series of American studies lectures, he spoke on "Disappearance of the Artist."

The position of the artist is bad today, Prof. Arnest said, but not atypical. The public always asks for something clear cut and simple and the artist, especially the artist of today, answers with something obscure. Thus the public criticizes because it does not understand.

Prof. Arnest explained the obscurity and ambiguity of art by defining its subject matter. "The subject matter of art (this includes music and literature) is the human sensibility."

To many people this definition may be meaningless, but further explanation is unnecessary, he said, because "to the artist human sensibility is life."

Society, however, classifies the artist as an expressionist, an abstractionist, or into another category so that he is no longer free. Prof. Arnest feels that the artist will have to go "underground"—apart from society—in order to produce a true "effect, revelation of discovery and insight."

The artist living in today's society can, with enough contamination, be useful in drawing magazine ads; or if he has had an interesting love affair, his life may make a movie or a novel, Prof. Arnest said.

He is most comfortable when dead, but since he has to live he has become little more than a useful "adjunct to cocktail parties." He explained that this is the extreme view—many still become artists.

Not only the artist, but anyone

Orientation for New Students to Begin

University life begins Monday for some 150 new students.

The 150, mostly freshmen, are the first of 3,500 who will undergo an orientation-registration program on two consecutive days sometime during August or from Sept. 17 to 20.

During the two days the freshmen will be divided into groups of 20 and will be under the leadership of upperclass sponsors.

Besides taking aptitude and psychological tests, the new students will make Health service appointments for physical examinations, visit the Army (to view an ROTC exhibit) and other University buildings and receive information about student organizations.

On the first night of their stay the new students will go to a banquet in the Union main ballroom. A talent show sponsored by the Interfraternity council and Panhellenic council will follow.

And each student will have an individual interview with a counselor from his college before he registers—"without waiting in line," student activities bureau adviser Don Zander said yesterday.

Zander has been co-ordinating the orientation-registration program and has been in charge this week of training the 10 student sponsors, whom he selected from a group of 70 applicants.

Cooler Today

"Not quite so warm" today is the weatherman's prediction. You may judge for yourself as the temperature nears 80 degrees. The low for tonight will be around 60 degrees. The humidity, which has been in the high 60 percentages, will be lower today. Northwesterly winds will blow at 10 to 15 miles an hour.

The sponsors, all juniors and seniors, have received instructions from faculty and administrative representatives and have visited college offices and University bureaus.

Representatives of the dean of students have explained to the sponsors the objectives of the program as a means of initiating new students into University activity.

The sponsors also have received an outline of the program for Welcome week Sept. 23 to Sept. 30, during which the freshman groups will get together again.

Film to Show Life Of Guiana Natives

Robert Leighton, photographer and lecturer, will show his movie, "Dutch Guiana Portrait," for convocation at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Northrop auditorium.

The film centers around the life of the native population of Dutch Guiana, which is largely composed of Bush Negroes, Javanese and the aboriginal Arawak and Carib Indians. Leighton traveled into the Guiana Equatorial rain forest to photograph them in natural jungle habitat.

Leighton calls his film "a study in human relationships rather than a travelog of obvious sightseeing places." The convocation is open to the public free of charge.

Results of Draft Test Announced

Nearly 70 per cent of more than 165,000 men students "passed" the first draft qualification examination given May 26, national selective service headquarters announced this week.

Scoring 70 or better—with 99 as highest possible mark on the test—were 53 per cent of 42,500 freshmen; 64 per cent of 53,000 sophomores; 72 per cent of 44,000 juniors, and 77 per cent of 18,500 seniors.

A total of 340,000 students—including 7,000 graduate students—took the test on one of four dates. No state-by-state breakdown of the figures was given.

Results of the test may be taken into consideration in granting student deferments. But any final decision is left to the local boards.

Results of the tests will be studied by the selective service director and his scientific advisory committee in formulating future policy.

Malcolm M. Willey, University academic vice president, is a member of the committee, which was founded in 1948 to make recommendations on a student classification plan. Willey also is a member of a subcommittee which will study the tabulations.

The full committee includes educators, industrialists and government officials.

Latin-American Dinner

A Latin-American dinner will be held from 5:30 to midnight tomorrow at the International House, 600 Ninth avenue S.E. Guests will wear Spanish costumes. All interested students may attend. Reservations must be made by today.

First Session Grades To Be Out Next Week

First summer session grades will be mailed to students at their home addresses sometime next week, the office of admissions and records announced yesterday.

Folk and square dance instruction is held from 3 to 5 p.m. each Thursday in the Union main ballroom.

Please note that notices must be received by 10 a.m. of the day prior to publication. All notices should be sent to the Department of University Relations, 213 Administration. Except for certain notices of campus-wide importance, notices will be printed only once.

KUOM Begins 2 New Summer Program Series

The processes which go into preparing a book and the adaptation of a best seller for radio broadcasting are the themes of two new program series on KUOM.

Audrey June Booth, KUOM staff member, is conducting seven interviews on book publishing, editing, promotion, illustration, reviewing and retailing at 10:45 a.m. each Friday. The interviews with people in the publishing business will trace the progress of a book from manuscript to sale.

"The Nature of the Universe," recent best-selling book on astronomy, has been adapted for a series of radio broadcasts with Fred Hoyle, astronomer and author at Cambridge university, England, as narrator.

Hoyle will present the latest theories about the earth and the cosmos in terms which can be understood by those who have no special knowledge of mathematics and physics, a KUOM release said.

Distributed by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, the series will be aired at 5:30 p.m. Saturdays beginning Aug. 11.

Columbia Prof to Speak On 'Primitive Thought'

A Columbia university professor will speak on "The Nature of Primitive Thought" at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Museum of Natural History auditorium.

The speaker is Joseph H. Greenberg, a former member of the University faculty. He has done field work in Nigeria and has published several articles in anthropological journals. The lecture is sponsored by the departments of anthropology and linguistics.

Mayes Receives Fulbright Grant

Charles R. Mayes, history teaching assistant, has been awarded a Fulbright fellowship to study at the British Museum in London.

Mayes received his bachelor of science degree from Missouri State college in Warrensburg and his master of arts from the University of Maryland.

He spent a year at the Sorbonne, University of Paris, and has been at the University the past two years working on his doctor of philosophy degree. He is writing his thesis on English history.

U Clinic Director Gets New Post

Harold A. Delp, director of the psycho-educational clinic, has been appointed coordinator of education activities at the Vineland, N. J., training school.

The training school is a private institution for research in education and psychology of mentally deficient people. Delp will work on developing methods and techniques for teaching retarded children.

Delp came to the University in September, 1948, as director of the clinic and assistant professor of education psychology. He served on a special committee set up by the state board of education to revise standards of special classes for retarded children in Minnesota. He assumes his new duties Sept. 1.

Campus Center Awarded $1,000

A grant of $1,000 has been given to the Minnesota World Affairs center, located at the University, by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The money will be used in preparing a book on community education in world affairs, according to William C. Rogers, center director. Rogers will serve as editor of the book, which will be written by five world affairs council directors.

There Oughta Be a Law

Respect for law and order is a matter of habit to most people—but there is at least one individual in Minneapolis who doesn't seem to care much for it.

Mim Ryan, SLA freshman, reports that the city's crack-down on "lane straddlers" has missed one young man who flagrantly faunted the ordinance by weaving back and forth across the yellow line in front of Miss Ryan's car.

"I wouldn't have thought much of it," she said, "except that this renegade was riding a bicycle."
