Facilitator's Note:

The three of us facilitators all believe in the statement: creativity comes from constraints. We wanted to give the participants a unique opportunity to use their creativity within some very specific constraints that included a strict time limit, among other things. Almost every art form has some sort of constraint whether that's the specific medium or location where that medium can exist or be displayed, and it's always fascinating to see how artists stretch their horizons to find the limits of their craft.

The idea of doing a 24-48 hour play festival had interested all three of us for a while, but we didn't know if or when we'd get the chance to actually do one. When proposals for the Lab Series opened last spring, we actually made two different submissions because we all had pretty much the same idea but didn't know it yet. We combined forces to put on this 48-Hour Play Festival for you, and we hope you enjoy watching these plays as much as we all did creating them!

THANK YOU!

Special thanks to Olivia Zastro, Jacob Steen, Matthew Olsen, Jenna Soleo-Shanks, Rebecca Katz Harwood, Scott Boyle, Lauren Roth, and McKenzie Kowarsch
