PROFESSOR CRAIG REVIEWS THIS MONTH'S MAGAZINE

Critic Wishes That the Mag Were A Little More Youthful—Editorials Approved.

The longer stories in this number of the Minnesota Magazines are interesting reading. This is high praise particularly from a teacher of English. "The Home Lure," by R. Warner Borst, is longer, quieter in manner, and considering the difficulties perhaps better done. A tramp is "lured" into throwing away his tomato can by seeing the happy "home" another tramp has built for himself after throwing away his. Lucinda in this story is a nice girl who, however draws to much of the reader's attention.

"The Diamond of Destiny," by Mildred Barnes, is a romantic short story of the Poe type. It shows imaginative, realization on the part of the author and imaginative intensity, and its style, through an artifice, is beautifully finished. Of the shorter stories, "Which Today Are" is striking and sincere, though unrelieved in its assault on the feelings. "The Long Lane" is an interesting little sketch whose possibilities are by no means exhausted.

Two of the poems "The Idealist," by Homer W. Borst, and "To My Valentine," by Elizabeth Ware, offer an interesting contrast in subject-matter and in style. "The Idealist" is excellent material with a rather imperfect treatment which an assumed rusticity of manner does not entirely conceal. "To My Valentine" has form and polish and a number of charming phrases and nothing else; a thing which is exactly right of course in St. Valentine's day poems. The other verses are "The Shoemaker" by Professor Beach, which I find most attractive, and "The Power of the Sea" by Alla B. Ransom, which in spite of its not unusual theme, is a charming lyric in both movement and expression.

The reader will find material on the editorial page to provoke both agreement and disagreement; at least that was my experience, and I found it decidedly interesting.

I could wish that this magazine were a little more frankly youthful. To tell something that seems to the writer to be beautiful, pathetic, or noteworthy; to tell it because of the enthusiasm it has aroused in him; to tell it with the ardor of conviction,—in this lies the power of the young writer. Such stories or such visions we all have known. They have a place in literature and in life. "When the old man woggles his head and says, 'Ah, so I thought when I was your age,' he has proved the youth's case. College authors stand upon the impregnable eminence of youth. "Let them not descend to Philippi, but let them lie still full of rest, defense and nimbleness."

Hardin Craig.

THURSDAY DANCE TONIGHT.

The regular Thursday evening dance will be given this evening in the Armory. The large canvas covering for the floor will again be used, and the band will furnish music for the dances. Dr. and Mrs. Grant will chaperon.

PRESIDENT-ELECT VINCENT IN TWIN CITIES TODAY

A Busy Day in Sight for New Executive—Alumni Banquet Featured Tonight.

Dr. George Edgar Vincent, president-elect of Minnesota will be in the Twin Cities today and is scheduled for several addresses. He will also attend the Alumni banquet this evening in Donaldson's tea rooms at 6:30.

The Dean intended to speak in chapel at 10:20 this morning but his late engagement with the legislature at 11:00 a. m. compelled him to cancel his speech to the students. He will have luncheon at the Agricultural college.

Mrs. Vincent will be with her husband during his visit here, today and will be honor guest at the banquet this evening.

The main event of the Dean's visit here is his lecture this afternoon at 3:30 in the First Congregational church on "Plato's Republic." He speaks under the auspices of the women's association of the church.

The annual alumni meeting and dinner will be attended by a large number of alumni. Dr. Northrop, Dr. Vincent, Dr. Folwell, Miss Gratia Countryman, C. J. Rockwood and Senator A. A. Lund, will be the speakers and honor guests of the evening. A business meeting will be held before the banquet in which plans and general University topics will be discussed.

DR. FOLWELL IS HONORED

Former Head of Minnesota is the Guest of Honor at Banquet in Washington, D. C.

Dr. William W. Folwell was the guest of honor at the fifth annual banquet of the Minnesota Alumni of Washington, D. C., on Tuesday night at the Shoreham hotel. The banquet was held in honor of the seventy-eighth birthday of Dr. Folwell, and he was presented with many letters of congratulation.

Roy Y. Ferner, president of the class of 1907, presided, and covers were laid for fifty. Toasts lauding Dr. Folwell were delivered by Congressman C. B. Miller, who spoke on "Dr. Folwell, the Citizen"; Charles E. Stangeland spoke on "Dr. Folwell, the Professor," and Rev. W. A. Campbell spoke on "Dr. Folwell as a Man." Willet H. Harp, assistant secretary of agriculture spoke on "Old Days and New"; Mrs. Folwell was presented with an armful of roses, and an appreciative letter in behalf of the general association.

FAMOUS FULLBACK BREAKS LEG AGAIN ON THE MAT

Lisle, Johnston Victim of Another Accident—Third Time During Athletic Career.

Lisle Johnston, star halfback and last year's captain of the Minnesota football eleven, has sustained a broken leg which will undoubtedly prevent him from further participation in athletics. Johnston has lately taken up the wrestling game again and while on the mat with George Markum, one of the university wrestlers, his right leg was caught in a side roll and broken above the ankle.

This is the third time that Lisle Johnston has been injured in athletics once in high school and twice at Minnesota. His injury in the fall of 1909 in the Nebraska game, kept him out of the game for the rest of that season.

DEATH CLAIMS SUPREME COURT JUDGE JAGGARD

Members of Law Faculty and Prominent Legal Authority Dies in Bermuda.

Edwin A. Jaggard of St. Paul, associate justice of the Minnesota supreme court and member of the Minnesota law faculty, died suddenly, Tuesday, in the Bermuda islands. Although he had gone there for his health, his death was unexpected. It was due to heart failure.

The legislature adjourned in his respect and the capital flag was raised half-mast. In addition to his reputation as a jurist, Judge Jaggard was an author of legal text books which are widely used and was also a prominent lecturer. He was to begin a course of lectures to the seniors at the law college on March 1. He had been a member of the law faculty since 1892 and his text books on torts and taxation in the Northern states, were considered invaluable for law study.

SMALLPOX SCARE AMONG THE MEDICS AND DENTS

Over Two Hundred Students Vaccinated as a Result of Exposure.

A small-pox scare in the colleges of Medicine and Dentistry has aroused the authorities to action, in compelling every man of both schools to be vaccinated at once. A freshman dental student was found to have had the small-pox germs and all students employees and in fact, everyone connected with the Medic schools were ordered to be vaccinated within 24 hours.

Nearly 200 men lined up yesterday morning and were treated to the serum by doctors sent out by the college. The men were treated free of charge.

The senior Dents, are aroused over the action, as they were vaccinated during the scare last year and were again compelled to again go through the process yesterday. Dean Westbrook hopes that the scare will be over in a couple of days and urges anyone who has associated with any of the medics or dents to be vaccinated at once and thus be on the safe side. He also advises anyone who has not been vaccinated within three years to again be treated. It is rumored that the pharmacists may also be compelled to be vaccinated, as they have several classes with the medics. Several of the men who counted ballots Tuesday night were exposed and are at present in a quandy as to what they should do.

CHURCH CENSUS A SUCCESS

Hearty Response is Given by the Students—To be Followed by Canvass.

The Church census which was taken Tuesday and Wednesday proved quite successful. It is not known for sure, but it is believed in Y. M. C. A. circles that about 1500 students returned their cards filled out. It is the intention of Rev. Richardson and others in charge to follow up this census with a canvass. If it is then brought out that some of the students have no church connection or attend no church whatever, an effort will be made to bring men of national reputation to speak to the students on Sunday afternoons. This plan has been used at other large universities and has worked successfully.

This Issue Edited by

The Shevlin record for February contains a reprimand against the use of Shevlin by mixed groups of students who do not exercise even the courtesy of using the property of others in the right way.

It is stated that after some of the big "co-educational" parties this year, "the floors were marred, the furniture scratched and other marks of vandalism left in the building. The fact that they were probably done in a spirit of carelessness does not excuse the acts.

Shevlin Hall was granted to the girls of the university. It is at the present time their campus home, and when they are kind enough to let it be used by various organizations, the individuals who go there as guests of those organizations should so respect the building and its contents as at least to take ordinary care in using it.

This is but one instance of campus vandalism. There are many other cases too numerous to mention in which the students either carelessly or maliciously deface some structure on the campus or other University property. It takes but a moment's forethought to prevent such things.

In a recent issue the University of Michigan Daily published a statement concerning an article that it had printed. The statement applies with such force to the exact situation here at Minnesota that we offer it to our readers to ponder over.

"Our patrons have a right to expect a newspaper to avoid the publication of matter that calls for subsequent apology, but we ask them at the same time to remember that not all of the men working upon the paper are experienced; that the Daily is, after all, something of a schooling place; and most of all we ask them to remember that we ourselves read and criticize the paper morning after morning with a much severer eye than they. The stress of midnight labor brings into print many a crudity that the calmer judgment of the day following reveals with shocking force."

PHI DELTA KAPPA INITIATES.

Phi Delta Kappa, the honorary educational fraternity recently initiated Dean George F. James, Franz A. Aust, Clyde McConkey, Adolph Holmer, Fred Graff, C. L. Vaaler and Theodore Utne.

The initiation of Dean James took place Tuesday evening. After the ceremony a banquet was given in his honor. Professors Swift, Miner, Rankin, Dean James and Mr. Utne responded to toasts.

Mr. G. S. Petterson leaves next Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the national council of Phi Delta Kappa at Mobile, Alabama.

COMMUNICATIONS

The Daily takes no responsibility for any sentiments expressed in printed communications. Names of writers must accompany the letters.

"Wasn't it a lovely election, Clara?" It surely was. And the voting-place! Imagine an apartment, secluded,—like the Post office during chapel hour. You are chewing your pencil and wondering what would happen if the "Amendment to Article V." were to be passed, when a handsome candidate dashes up, seizes you securely by the hand, and breathes tobacco confidences into your front bangs. Meanwhile, another candidate conscientiously scrutinizes your ballot over your left shoulder. But he (the modest soul) says nothing when he notes that you have not noted his name. He only says something to somebody and that somebody buttonholes you, and praises the modest candidate so highly that possibly you vote for the other man.

But hist! A flock of coy co-eds flutter in, triumphantly decoyed by another candidate. They proceed to take shorthand dictation from him and presently deposit their votes with fudged enthusiasm. Is it not beautiful? And so simple. About this time you notice with a pang that there are no cigarettes for the men. (Cigarettes are forbidden on the Campus). And besides, that would be bribery!

After a good time has been enjoyed you go home exclaiming. "Well, there's one thing that that blamed Student Council hasn't butted into, anyhow!"

Not by a defeated candidate.

The senior class play at California will be staged for charity.

WESTERN INTERCOLLEGEAN CHANGES IN THE CURRICULUM

Article on Basketball Featured—
Writer Personal Friend of
Dr. Cooke's.

Dr. James Naisnuth, the inventor of basket-ball, has an interview in the February Western Intercollegiate Magazine telling how the sport was founded. He states that he invented the game in 1891, when an instructor at the Springfield Training School at Springfield, Mass.

Dr. Cooke, coach of the Minnesota team, was at Springfield when Dr. Naisnuth invented basketball and he has been a close follower of the game ever since. Dr. Cooke is personally acquainted with Dr. Naisnuth and the two have done more for basketball than probably any other two men in the country.

The Illinois comic opera, "The Maid of the Moon," is also featured in the February issue. Other articles are "How Rugby Won the West," by Thomas of Leland Stanford; "Physical Training Insurgency" by Hayer of Wisconsin; editorials, locker talk, stories, etc.

February and January numbers of the Intercollegiate are on sale at the Northwestern.

Wellesley College girls have organized a fire department

Work on the revision of the curriculum of the Academic college, and particularly the Science Dept., is progressing rapidly and the committee, with Dean George B. Frankforter hopes to come to some definite action in regard to the matter, next week. Extensive changes in the courses of study in the Science department are planned which will place these courses on the same footing in relation to the academic college as is the case in the six year Medic course. The purpose of the change in the curriculum is to give Academic students who have hence forth taken up other courses than Science, on opportunity to switch to Science department, and get the B. S. degree. With the change in the Science department will follow general changes in the Academic curriculum, which the Committee hope to complete by the early part of next week.
