DULUTH--Selected students from Duluth junior and senior high schools will receive counseling from enrollees at the Counseling and Guidance Institute at UMD, June 13 to July 15.

Gerald Gladstein, director of the UMD institute, said parents of selected students will be contacted by Duluth school counselors starting this week and informed of the counseling opportunity.

The UMD institute is for high school counselors and for teachers preparing for guidance and counseling work.

Gladstein said there were more than 400 applications for the 45 paid openings for the UMD classes.

Cooperating with the UMD institute are Alvin Stolen, superintendent of schools, Duluth, and Sherman Iverson, director of guidance service, Duluth. Stolen and Iverson, in turn, are working with junior and senior high school principals and counselors in selecting students for the interviews.

Robert S. Van Kleek, director of guidance at Central high school, Duluth, will be an instructor. Dr. Henry Borow, professor of psychological services, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, will be a professor. Gladstein said other faculty members will include personnel from the UMD psychology department and the UMD Office of Student Personnel Services.
