THE NORTHWESTERN GAME

The Purple vs. the Maroon and Gold at Marshall Field Today. Full Reports in Chapel at 2 p. m.

This afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock sharp, and continuing until the game ends, on Marshall Field, will be given in chapel a full telegraphic description of the game between Minnesota and Northwestern. Aside from the bulletins the ball will be moved on the diagram and the plays will be diagrammed on a blackboard.

The Daily, through whose management, this service has been secured, has left no stone unturned to make the service satisfactory. The telegraphic reports will be those of the Minneapolis Journal's special service, and the mention of this fact is a sufficient guarantee of their quality.

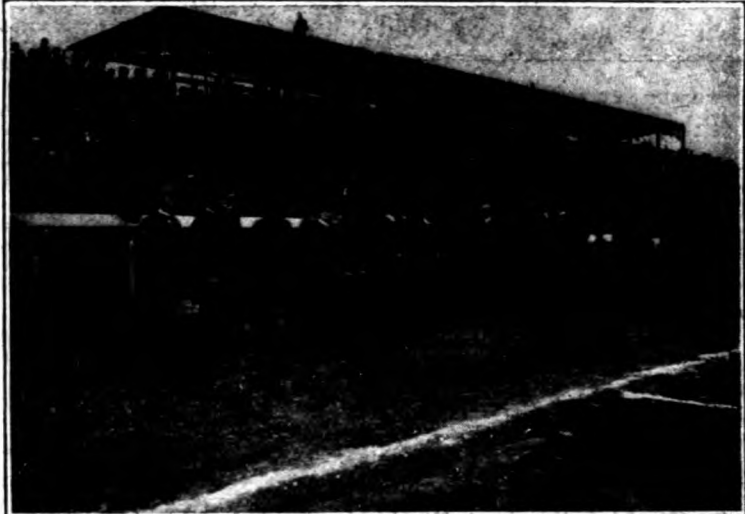

Several special features have been arranged to add to the interest of the occasion. Local talent in dramatic, instrumental and vocal lines has been secured,—among those who will appear will be Prof. Bartlett who so charm-

1898, 17-6; 1899, 5-11; 1900, 21-0. Total, Minnesota, 77, Northwestern, 29.

Such is the record to date, what will it be after the game today?

Five times the team from Evanston has encountered the sturdy defenders of Minnesota and only once have they been successful in scoring a win. It seems hardly likely that Northwestern would be able to hold the mass plays of Captain Knowlton's men but then there have been greater surprises in football and Northwestern may prove much stronger than she has been given credit for.

The purple team has had rather a checkered career this season, her greatest disappointment being the defeat at the hands of Michigan by the awful score of 29 to 0. Then to show that her spirit was still unbroken and that all hope was not yet abandoned she defeated Illinois by the score of 17 to 11.

On Northrop Field Nov., 4, 1899—The Only Time U. of M. Was Ever Defeated by Northwestern. Score 11 to 5

ingly entertained the audience last Saturday. Miss Genevieve Lawrence will also render a vocal solo.

Bulletins are expected to begin to arrive at about 2:15. The position of the ball on the field will be stated in each bulletin, which fact will be greatly appreciated by those who last Saturday had occasion to censure the operator at Madison for not doing this at all times. The diagramming will be in charge of a man well versed in the knowledge of the game.

A good time is assured. The songs will be sung and when the ball moves toward Northwestern's goal a demonstration will be given equal to that given when Northwestern met defeat at our hands last year. It is the duty of those who remain at home to come and help celebrate. That the team has not fallen in the estimation of the students will be fully evidenced in chapel this afternoon.

This is the best showing that she has made this season but on it she bases her hopes for today's game.

What Minnesota's line-up will be is not definitely known. It is reported that Mueller may be allowed to play in his old position at guard, but this is hardly probable, although he may be called upon. Whoever plays, however, suffice it to say that he will go into the game prepared to give Northwestern all the football she wants and if possible retrieve last week's score. Minnesota at least will fight to the end and nothing short of straight hard football will defeat her.

Faculty Meeting

There will be a faculty meeting this afternoon, at which time the report of a special committee on the conference of the degree of Doctor of Philosophy will be considered. Other matters will come up, among them a large number of petitions which are to be acted upon.

YE OLDE TYME

Old Time Spelling Match Preparations for the Contests of Word Parrying.

It has been the custom for several years back to hold an old-fashioned spelling match at the University, the contestants for honors being members of the sophomore and freshman classes. Each class has hitherto brought out its heavy, weight Websterian and the word parrying in these contests has always been an interesting spectacle, attracting large numbers of people. There is still a good deal of class antagonism present in the ranks of the freshman and sophomore people and this feeling has been increased considerably by the fact that the final bout of the cane rush was never called. Both sides are anxious in one way or another to meet the other and this contest will therefore be hailed with delight by both classes.

Last year the affair was held in the Armory and a surprisingly large number of students turned out to witness the word performance and to partake of the other good things which were offered on that occasion. This year a strenuous effort will be made to make the event of even greater importance than last year, and hence early preparations should be made by the literary societies and everyone interested.

The spelling match has always been one of the main sources of revenue for the furtherance of the interests of debating and oratory and hence the added interest on that account. By its help the debating and oratorical contests are supported and the other University interests of a like nature aided.

The time has not yet been set but it is practically settled that it shall not be held before the Christmas holidays. The definite time will be announced later.

TWO STRONG PROGRAMS

Tomorrow at 2:30 the University orchestra will be heard for the first time. The Y. M. C. A. has secured the services of the orchestra for the next four Sundays and all men are invited tomorrow at 2:30. The address of the afternoon will be given by Dr. White, of the medical department on "Opportunities in the medical profession."

Tonight several musical numbers are arranged to be given at the Y. M. C. A. building, to which both men and women are invited. Dr. Hare, Mr. E. W. Peck, state secretary of the association, Mr. Huyck and others will be heard.

Ten hours of study, eight hours of sleep, two hours of exercise and four devoted to meals and social duties, is what President Eliot of Harvard recommends to students. Harvard has 500 students who are working their way through the institution.

Non-Feasible

One of the plans proposed by the recently organized prohibition club is to hold forensic contests with other colleges for prizes, the subject of discussion always being some phase of the liquor question. This question now presents itself: "Is such a plan feasible?" There are several reasons why such a plan does not seem practical.

In the first place it is doubtful whether truly representative debaters would care to enter these contests and therefore the interests of the University would not be upheld as they should. It is not at all desirable that clubs of this kind should conduct debates under the name of the University when it has nothing to do with the regulation of such contests or the selection of the debaters.

Again, the management of a plan of this kind will cause a division of the debating and oratorical interests of the institution, a thing which in the end will result in a material detraction from our best welfare in forensic contests. Every effort possible should be put forth to perfect the present system and nothing should be done which will in any way deter from its success.

The Daily does not in wish to antagonize the work of this club in any way, for certainly the work which it may do here is highly desirable. We only suggest that the plan of holding debating contests in the way proposed is hardly feasible.

Today's Game

Today, for the second time this season, the team meets a foe on foreign field and the heartfelt wish of every student is that the final outcome of the contest be different from the results of the Wisconsin game.

Minnesota's prospects of winning by a decisive score seem to be good, but it must be remembered that, while Northwestern has made but a very ordinary showing this fall, she has very much of the same spirit which has characterized Minnesota of late years—that of sticking by the team through thick and thin and of never "quitting," however dark the clouds might be.

Northwestern has defeated two of the conference colleges this fall, Illinois and Chicago, and were it not for the overwhelming defeat at the hands of Michigan she would have been able to show a very fair record. Records, however, are not to be relied upon and this afternoon Coach Hollister may be able to show through his men that his style of play has been very much underrated.

The ease with which we succeeded in breaking up the famous tandem last fall would seem to indicate however, should it be used today, that Minnesota would have a comparatively easy time. That the boys will play the best game they have put up this season is assured. Goaded on by the sting of last week's defeat nothing but a much better game than Northwestern has yet shown will prevent a large score in our favor. Everybody, however, will feel easier when the game is over and the final result announced in chapel this afternoon.

AN INTERESTING LETTER

Miss Helen A. Wilder, '08, formerly instructor in the department of rhetoric, is professor of English literature in Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis. She writes as follows:

"Lawrence is a wide-awake Methodist school, with an enrollment of about 400; and the 'chair' of English literature is capacious enough to include, beside its title subject, rhetoric and composition, debate and old English. So you can see, that personally, like the United States, I have entered upon a career of expansion.

"I am growing to feel quite at home here, but I did feel lonesome yesterday afternoon when I heard the girls in the 'Hall,' in which I have my room, cheering over the Madison football score."

Miss Portia Washington, daughter of Booker T. Washington, is at Washington devoting herself to music with the expectation of becoming a teacher in her father's institution at Tuskegee, and is also taking a course in English, German and French literature. Socially, she is admirably maintaining her place among her fellows.

BY THE WAY

The game in chapel, 2 p. m. Michigan has won 12 out of 15 debates.

Miss Jessie Comstock, '01, was a visitor at the University yesterday.

Prof. Anderson was confined to his home on account of illness yesterday.

At Yale every student is called upon to contribute $8 to the athletic management.

Full telegraphic reports of the game will be given in chapel this afternoon. Fuller announcement in another column.

The shell used by the Pennsylvania crew in the Henley regatta has been cut up in sections and given to the crew as souvenirs.

The Daily will report the Minnesota-Northwestern game today in chapel, using both the Journal service and a special wire, thus insuring the fullest and most accurate reports in the city.

William J. Osborn, '96, a prominent young attorney of Mankato, died at his home in that place, Wednesday, of consumption. His death is a matter of deep regret to his friends, as he had a future of much promise before him.

SHAKS vs. CASTALIANS TUESDAY

Unless the elements forbid, the students will be given a treat next Tuesday afternoon on the gridiron. Then will occur the championship game between the Shakopean and Castalian literary societies. Both teams have been practicing for over a week and promise a swift game. Both societies claim the victory, and both are equally determined to win. The game will be exciting, as much of the gains will be made by "stars" who will be worthy of a large attendance. This game will probably be the last one of the season and, remember, the game is free to all. Be sure and see it. It will be a royal fight, and whoever wins will deserve the laurels. Both teams have clean records, neither having been defeated this year.

DR. HIRSCHFIELD IN CHAPEL

Dr. McVey's classes in political economy were exceedingly fortunate in being able to hear Dr. Hirschfield lecture yesterday at the third hour in chapel on "The Cardinal Principles of Socialism."

Dr. Hirschfield said that socialism is today to be regarded a science so much as any of the so-called sciences that are taught in the colleges of the country. It is not a mere theory but it has logical methods of reasoning and bases its principles on an evolution, beginning with the simplest forms and develops into the most complex system in economic society. The basis of all movement and the building of institutions is the economic form of produce and exchange.

The cardinal principles of socialism, as Dr. Hirschfield brought them forth, are four in number, (1) The material conception of history, (2) The theory of value, (3) Surplus value and (4) The collective ownership for production. The speaker dwelt at length on each one of these and with examples and illustrations made clear his points. He said all institutions harmonize with history, and the political institutions of old give place to those of modern production. The surplus value is the value a capitalist gets from his labor; it may also be defined as the value between rents, interests on capital and wages. For instance, when interest goes down the monopoly doubles its capital. There is a great deal of difference between the Russian farmer and the American farmer, as while the former works from 14 to 16 hours per day he accomplishes and produces but one-fourth as much as the American farmer who works from 8 to 10 hours. The reason for this lies in the obsolete manufacturing products of Russia being used against the modern and convenient American production and capital. No wealth can be created without human labor and this is performed by the proletariat who is unconscious of his doing so.

Dr. Hirschfield at the close of his lecture extended an invitation to the members of the economic classes to attend a course of lectures which he is delivering at 125 Nicollet avenue. His subject is "The Theory of Karl Mark." and although an admission fee is charged these students will be admitted free.

ON TO CHICAGO

Late yesterday afternoon it was announced that the railroads had cut the rate to Chicago to $6. As soon as this was announced a good many students came to the conclusion that they would save money by leaving Minneapolis for the day. The team will be very agreeably surprised today when they enter Marshall Field to find a Minnesota crowd, including the band, present and ready to cheer them on to victory.

AT OTHER COLLEGES

John H. Hewitt, Yale, '59, has been elected president of Williams.

Yale and Columbia will hold a two-mile relay race in New York, Dec. 7.

In the Indiana-Illinois game the presidents of the two universities led the rooting.

Fifty-four men participated in the first football game between Yale and Princeton in 1873.

The first football game played in the United States took place in 1776 between Harvard and Yale.

Iowa elects her yell masters. Over 400 votes were cast last week when the six official rooters were elected.

Northwestern has already elected the debating team to represent her in the contest with Michigan in January.

Harvard, Pennsylvania, Yale or Princeton has never had a single fatal accident happen to any of their football players.

Michigan is rejoicing over the fact that her football team is the only one in the country that has not been scored on and has rolled up a total of 80 points more than Wisconsin, her nearest competitor.

One means that Cornell uses to advance the interest in debate is to hold socials for the men interested in debating. In this manner the students learn what the University has done, how she did it, and what she is planning for the future.

The board of trustees at Northwestern have voted to remodel the Tremont house for college purposes and to incorporate with this plan an auditorium with a seating capacity of 2,500. Hitherto the university has had no suitable hall of its own.
