Gay's Comedy, 'Beggar's Opera' Pleases Moderns

First Produced in 1728, Classic of "Old John Gay" Enjoys Popular Revivals Two Centuries Later

"Sophisticated enough for even a flapper" is the report of those who have seen the Beggar's Opera at the Lyric next week, and this, with the historical and musical attributes of the play is the stimulus which is exciting students to reserve seats for the musical comedy.

John Gay's old classic which is said to have "made rich gay and Gay rich" is an apt and up-to-date satire upon political corruption and absurd Italian opera, and when it was produced in 1728 was considered extreme and even wicked. It is the product of the age that produced Swift, Pope, Sheridan, and DeFoe, an age of realism and satire.

PHILIP GIBBS, NOTED WRITER, MAY VISIT 'U'

Forty Students and Faculty Members May Meet Famous War Correspondent

WILL FILL LECTURE ENGAGEMENT THURSDAY
Became Known During War as One of the More Brilliant War Writers

Possibility that forty representative University students and faculty members will be given an opportunity to meet Sir Philip Gibbs, noted writer, lecturer, and war correspondent, was announced last night by a committee of students and faculty that is endeavoring to bring Sir Philip to the university Thursday. He will be in the city tomorrow to fill a lecture engagement.

Relief of Students
If the meeting can be arranged, it is expected that the relief of students in central Europe will be discussed, as Sir Philip is intimately acquainted with the conditions existing there. Arrangements will be completed at noon today, according to the committee.

Book Authoritative
During the war Sir Philip Gibbs became known as one of the more brilliant of the foreign correspondents, his reports of conditions in the belligerent countries appearing in both British and American newspapers. His book, "Now It Can Be Told," written after the armistice, was noticed as an authoritative discussion of various phases of the conflict that could not be reported during the struggle.

Catherine Sweet, Betty Couper, Prof. R. G. Blakey, E. B. Pierce, Mary Brownlee, and Cyrus P. Barnum are members of the group arranging Sir Philip's appearance on the campus.

BLIND YOUTH STUDIES LAW Ambition to Right Wrongs Seen

Though totally blind, Charles Huhtala, sophomore academic student at the University, is planning to become a lawyer. This ambition originated, Mr. Huhtala said, when as a small boy he lived on the Mesaba Iron range and observed the constant trouble and injustice shown to the miners by the controlling companies.

Mr. Huhtala studies with his wife, who is a freshman at the University and will also enter the Law School. Philosophy is Mr. Huhtala's major subject at school. He takes swimming in place of drill, but otherwise carries the regular program. Mr. Huhtala plays the piano and has done some piano tuning.

He lost his sight at the age of eight but nevertheless Mr. Huhtala has always had a hobby of collecting written material from childhood. He is interested in literature. He received his primary education at Fairbault.

"I regret that I did not go to the public schools, though it would have been difficult," he said. "In Fairbault the literary side of education is ignored."

GOPHER AWARDS CONTRACT; WILL COST $20,000

Contract Is Awarded to St. Paul Concern for First Time in Six Years

'23 GOPHER LARGEST ANNUAL IN COUNTRY
Feature Section 100 Pages, Largest in History of Publication; Delivery May 1

Awarding of the contract for printing the 1923 Gopher to the Pioneer Printing company, St. Paul, was announced yesterday by Junior Buck, business manager. The cost, according to Mr. Buck, will be approximately $20,000. This is the first time in six years that the Gopher has been printed in St. Paul.

The basis for the bid was 688 pages which is 32 pages larger than any other Gopher. This year's edition will be the largest college annual in the United States for this year, according to the editor.

Specifications for the stock require ivory-tinted paper, which will be the first of this texture to be used in the Big Ten Schools. The covers will probably be leather, depending upon prices to be obtained on hides.

The feature section is to be 100 pages, one of the largest in the history of the publication and the scene section and Vanity Fair will be run on special paper. The contract includes eight four-color process inserts and calls for delivery May 1.

Embryo Editors Learn How Newspaper Should be Run

Headline Writing Waterloo of Novice; Each Member of Class Becomes 'City Editor' Once a Week; Stories Sent to Downtown Papers

Journalism as it is and Journalism as it will be when members of the present class in editing are in a position to put into action their ideas of how a newspaper should be run, might well be the catalog name for a class in journalism prospectively listed "editing."

Head Writing Studied.
Copyreading and headline writing are the first things connected with city editorship with which embryo editors become familiar. The student's sense of news value is developed until he is able to tell at one reading what part of the copy has true value as news and what part could as well be "cut out." Headline writing, at first the Waterloo of a young editor, soon becomes as simple as writing his name. He learns to use short words with a punch instead of long ones which say nothing.

The study of make-up of pages is the next subject taken up. Various metropolitan newspapers are studied as to type, size of headlines, position of the news and emphasis placed upon different classes of stories, and with one paper as a model pages are made up from clippings of that paper. Visitors, watching members of the class put together the clippings, frequently ask what the puzzles are used for in a class in editing.

City Papers Print Stories.
Practical work in finding the student's idea of what constitutes real news is offered to each member of the class once a week when he bends under the weight of the title "city editor." Five or six members of the reporting class are sent to him for assignments. When the story is turned in the city editor reads the copy and suggests improvements. If the story is of wide enough interest to readers it is turned over to downtown papers to be used by them. The four walls of room 2, Folwell hall, where the stories printed are on display, threaten to become too small to accommodate all the products of the combined effort of reporters and "city editors."

INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

With the selection of Mr. Metcalf as assistant football coach and professor of physical education, a new era in athletics bids fair to open up at Minnesota. It has long been the greatest criticism of intercollegiate athletics that they develop the few at the expense of the many; with our athletics under the supervision of men like Luehring and Metcalf, we confidently expect to see this objection removed. So far from being a back number in athletics as many seemed to think last fall, Minnesota is stepping right out and taking the lead in their reformation.

We are overjoyed at the turn affairs have taken. No longer will intramural athletics exist in name only; if the new heads of the department of physical education carry out their avowed policies they will make intramural contests as prominent and important a part of the year's program as intercollegiate football, basketball, or track meets. This is as it should be, for any system which develops a few exceptional athletes and pays but little attention to the development of the general student body very obviously needs reorganization.

Just as our basketball team came from behind and astonished the whole sporting world this year, so is Minnesota coming from behind and showing other universities that she is a first class, progressive institution. We were slow to start, but once started we are doing the job right. All success be with the new physical directors in their plans; may the day soon come when no man can graduate from Minnesota without having had plenty of opportunity and encouragement to develop his body as well as his mind.—L. A. G.

When Frank H. Peavey donated the sum of $100 to be awarded the winning team in an annual freshman-sophomore debate he assured the continuance of one of the most worth while forensics than all the urging possible can do in a this sort having a prize of sufficient magnitude to make winning it a signal honor does more good in maintaining and inspiring interest in forensics than all the urging possible can do in a year.

Besides the direct benefits to the participants, this debate is valuable in other ways. Aspirants for inter-collegiate forensic honors are encouraged to start early, so that by the time they are ready to try out for the University teams, they are at their best. The coaches get a good idea of the possibilities in these beginners and know what may be expected from them later on. It is safe to say that directly and indirectly through this means Minnesota's high forensic reputation has been very materially supported.

Like the members of the intercollegiate teams these students get no recognition whatever from the University for their services; private interest, shame be on us, furnishes the incentive which makes this contest of major importance. We can afford expensive sweaters for intercollegiate athletes, and letters for the freshman teams, but we are too poor to give even a watch-charm to the men on our debating teams. But though these men go unrewarded they are not entirely unappreciated; we realize the work they do in preparing for a debate and the honor they bring to Minnesota by their efforts. May they keep up the good work.—L. A. G.

RESTLESSNESS AND ORGANIZATIONS

Popular cartoonists of the day are persistent in pointing out the weakening of home ties which has gradually come about. "We" see caricatures of father coming in in the roadster just as mother drives out in the limousine. Bob and Nellie have gone to the movies, and grandmother is attending a lecture on "Freedom." The baby is out in the park looking at the swans while the nurse and the corporal are taking a stroll. This spirit of unrest which has been reflected in the comic sheets has cast its influence over modern University life. There is little "home life" in the college community such as there used to be when the fellows living in one house had to barricade the doors to keep out the hazzers. Our boarding-houses and rooming-places are places to eat and sleep, and perhaps to spend a cut of an eight o'clock.

We are clubbed to death. That is what is knocking the vigor out of our college race. We have no time for profitable amusement; we have no time for study. We lunch with a club at noon, and we dine with a club at night. We hurry from our three o'clocks to attend meetings, and we "move to adjourn" in order to make dinner on time. After dinner, life seems to be running smoothly if we have only three society meetings to attend.

Universities all over the country are observing that they have become overorganized. So far, we have heard of no suggestion which will counteract the movement. Clubs increase by leaps and bounds, because there seems to be some germ of organization which has filled the air we breathe.

Someone has suggested that organizations should be cut down with a ruthless hand. That sounds very fine, but whose hand is going to control the axe? We meet the same puzzling problem that we meet when we advocate killing off the useless persons in the world. Who is going to be the judge?

Suppose the University refused to grant further petitions. This would be manifestly unfair, for new organizations as worthy as dozens of those now in existence may be formed.

The solution seems rather that students must not join in societies blindly. They should learn to affiliate with no organizations that they can give nothing to, and receive nothing from. And organizations should always strive to work for the betterment of their University, instead of just hanging over from year to year to make the year-book.—Daily Ilium.

There is a movement on foot at the University of Iowa to force the collection of bills for printing posters and other advertising matter used by campus politicians in a political fracas there last fall. Add evils we are spared at home.

Is bootlegging the only thing we inherit from prohibition?—Ohio State Lantern.

Might it be that the sudden influx of dances everywhere is due to a desire to practice up for the J. B?

A HOT TIME IN THE SMALL TOWN

Over across the river the yaps are having themselves a carnival; it would be a winter carnival if it was winter and there was some snow on the ground. As it is, the thing is nothing but a frost. But the citizens are tearing themselves to pieces just the same, they have elected a queen, now all they need is a king and a jack; the carnival itself is the joke. Last Saturday they tore up forty feet of the board side walk and set it on fire, it was the biggest conflagration some of them had ever seen and even thawed the town pump out. The police were unable to cope with the merry makers, one of them having sustained an injured leg when he was caught in a bear trap on the corner of Seventh and Wabasha, the other having been indicted by the Grand Jury. The gay coats of previous years are not so much in evidence this year, the stock yards strike having interfered considerably with the prosperity of the social set. The town paper published a midweekly edition that sold for 5 cents, that is they were on sale for 5 cents, only seven were sold. The new depot is nearly finished so that the citizens can go down and watch the fier tear through the village on its way to the city. There is a good show at the apery house entitled, "Mecca," which didn't go well at first as the general impression was that it was only the name of some new tobacco, but it is getting along better since the management explained that it was the name of a town some distance from here where the weather doesn't necessitate too many clothes. There is a movement on foot in the Ladies Aid society to have the show move on back to Mecca where it will cost more than two bucks and a half for the entire male population of the town to see so much of the female population of Mecca. The old town is literally in an uproar and it is generally predicted that the population of the cemeteries will be increased in proportion as the supply of moonshine is decreased. A new tower will be built on the court house with the proceeds from the carnival, if there are any.

JUST AS WE GOT IT

The midnight editor answered the telephone and this is the conversation that lit up the wires. "Hello, is this the Daily? The Phi Gams are having a revival on the lawn. Yes. They sang 'Bringing in the Sheaves,' 'When the Roll is Called Up Yonder,' and 'Good Night Ladies.'" "Yes, I heard them. The meeting was in charge of Jack Bridge. Rev. Mark Severance preached." "Did she think the Phi Gams, confronted with death by diphtheria, were repenting? She said she thought so. That's all. —WILKINS.

OUR SWAN SONG

"This is the last time we are going to take a crack at any of our friends or slight our enemies. From now on Useless will swing the mud spoon and knowing what we do of him we wish to say that we will not be responsible for any of the raw cracks he makes. We have no apologies to make, ourselves, as we wallowed when we thought a thing needed a wallowing and boosted when we thought a thing needed a boost. As to the faculty and the nobler members of the trampus, they, as everyone knows, are above criticism—but no one is above ridicule and to that we have leamed. It seems to us that everybody on the trampus has told us at some time or other that the column was rotten and they could run it better than we did, well, here is your opportunity. Useless needs a partner to watch his back.

"Guys who run columns, must dodge rocks." —J. K. M.

BASKETBALL TEAM STARTS DRILL FOR INDIANA BATTLE SATURDAY

Hoosier Quint Expected to Furnish Tough Opposition to Minnesotans — Kearney Reported All Right—Secret Practices Started—Guards at Doors

By Harold Schoelkopf

When the Gopher basketball team lines up against the Hoosier five from the forsaken state of Indiana next Saturday night, more will be at stake than merely the winning of a Big Ten basketball game. All the five wins thus far will be as naught if the boys from the sunny banks of the Wabash can take home a strip of Gopher bacon. If the Maroon and Gold ever totters and falls from the high pedestal of 1,000 per cent, Illinois and Purdue will climb upon said pedestal and the hopes of the Cookem to wear gold basketballs upon their watch-chains will be very remote.

Last night, Dr. Cooke and his faithful procession of crusaders carefully locked all the doors of the armory floor, placed at each a broad-shouldered man, and let drift into the inner shrine only as many fans as were personally known to at least one of the Mystic Order Door Knob Welders. The vast crowd of rooters who packed along the sidelines viewed the secret practice with awe and saw Dr. L. J. Cooke and his first mate, Arnie Oss, shove the victory mad Maroon and Golders through a gruelling session with the unfortunate freshmen.

Captain Kearney All Right

Captain Kearney's knee, which got more publicity than the knee of an ordinary man gets in a whole lifetime, is coming along in good shape under the encouraging influences of hot towels and bottles of strong smelling liquids. It is possible that said strong smelling liquids may have been dealt out to Chicago Saturday night viewing the Maroons' performance from a strictly aesthetic standpoint. The rest of the squad, from Severinsson to Hultkrans has become possessed of the winning spirit and it is possible that the happy lads from Indiana will suffer basket bankruptcy when they leave the hospitable Gopher institution Saturday night.

Saturday night while the clan of Cookemen battle the Hoosier river-bankers at Minnesota, the stepped-on Maroons will look Illinois in the face at Chicago and then proceed to get licked. Illinois will play but its third game this season and despite the loss of Laurie Wahliquist, who for some reason departed from Illinois athletics by request, will undoubtedly wallop the Windy City shooters by a substantial score. It will give the Gophers their first accurate comparative strength on the Suckers' possibilities.

TRACKMEN WILL BANQUET; STIR PEP FOR PURPLE

Coach Len Frank Will Point Cindermen for Coming Meet With Evanston

Forty members of the track squad who will form the roster from which the Northwestern indoor opponents will be selected next week, will be entertained at a pep dinner at the Minnesota Union ballroom, Thursday night at 6:30.

The athletic board has consented to pay for the expense of the dinner for the fortunate members, while all the rest of the track squad may come to the meeting and absorb a little of the enthusiasm by paying the sum of 60 cents. Invitations are being sent to those who are expected to attend.

A number of old time trackmen and former captains, letter men and others will be present to tell the Maroon and Gold tracksters how they did it in the old days. The program has not yet been made out, but Coach Leonard Frank states that pep and genuine old time track spirit will be the order of the meeting. This event will be the final pepping up of the cindermen, who run up against Northwestern next week, and some very good dope will be dispensed on how to win the conference meets.

In a fast but loosely played basketball game the Theta Pals defeated the Theta Deltas by a count of 10 to 3. The game was played Monday night in the armory. Lack of team work handicapped both teams but they staged a real battle.

Look 'Em Over Rudy Hultkrans

Rudolph Hultkrans has broken more hearts in the Big Ten basketball world this winter than any other man on the squad. Forwards who usually ring about eight baskets a game have gone to the showers wondering how Hultkrans could be so many places at once and how he ever developed such hard shoulders and long arms. Hultkrans will play again next year, this being only his second year of competition. Rudy played center last year. He is a medic, runs the 440 in track, can win very game of poker he plays, and can eat more on a trip than three other men put together.

Where to Go

Friday at 6:30 p. m. in the Minnesota Union. The 'M' Banquet. Awarding of letters, election of captains.
Friday at 8:00 p. m. on the Lexington rink in Midway. Minnesota vs. Wisconsin in hockey.
Saturday at 3:00 p. m. on the Lexington rink in Midway. Minnesota vs. Wisconsin in hockey.
Saturday at 8:00 p. m. in the Armory. Minnesota vs. Indiana in basketball.
Saturday night at Iowa City. Minnesota swimmers vs. Iowa.

GOPHER STICK WELDERS TAKE LUTHER BATTLE

Maroon and Gold Puckmen Storm Luther Goal in Vain in First Period

BROS TO WYATT PUTS CLOSE GAME ON ICE

Coach Macdonald Confident as to Badger Series at End of This Week

Gopher hockey prospects took another leap, late yesterday afternoon, when Coach Macdonald's speeders grabbed an unusually close game out of the hands of the Luther sextet. The final score was 1-0. Considering the fact that the players were hampered by an inch of snow upon the ice, creditable work was performed on both sides.

Gophers Take Offensive. In the first half the varsity grabbed the offensive, and succeeded in holding it through the period. They plastered shot after shot at the visitor's goal, but were unable to get it to the canvas. In this period, Luther seemed to have a hard time getting started, only obtaining a couple tries at the Maroon and Gold cage. Eldridge and Jacobson played the best game for the Gophers.

Luther came back in the second half, fighting like a pack of wildcats. Forcing the rubber into position, they succeeded in taking a number of shots at the Gopher cage. Burkquist stood the test, however, and warded them off as fast as they came. With three minutes left to play, Chet. Bros took the puck for a stormy stroll, ending up in front of the Luther goal. A pretty pass to Wyatt, who laid it in the cage, finished up the job. J. Mohr, center on the visiting six, showed up well in this period.

Badger Go Nears. With the Wisconsin games less than a week off, the Maroon and Gold puckmen are anything but down-hearted. Yesterday's wins prove the Hamline loss was more or less of a fluke. St. Thomas has stepped upon Hamline's chances while Luther downed St. Thomas in a well-played game. Yesterday's lineup is as follows:
