All Quiet on Church Street Now U Registers 635 Atom Smasher Stops Violent Hiss-ss-ing

By Philip Johnson

The atom smasher in back of Physics has stopped its hissing tantrums which sometimes have frightened passers-by into thinking they are being shot by atoms.

The atom smasher's hissing was caused by emptying the tank of compressed air when repairs were needed.

Now a silencer has been installed by atom smasher workers, and all is peaceful on Church

Repairs on the atom smasher structure in back of Physics have to be made constantly. In the picture, workers are scrubbing the exterior of the tank. The tank itself is filled with compressed air which must be released when repairs are made on the inside.

street. Not all the hissing has been eliminated, but the particularly disturbing sound frequencies have been cut out.

Silence was achieved by having the escaping air go into an ordinary oil drum which is mounted in a larger drum set in the ground. The oil drum is lined with sound-reducing material and has two baffle plates.

When the atom smasher is in operation it is filled with compressed air to allow high voltages to be used.

Men for Service

Registration Is Largest Number In Hennepin and Ramsey Counties

The University's fifth selective service registration center registered 635 campus men between 18 and 20 years of age Tuesday, the largest single registration in Ramsey or Hennepin counties.

A battery of 12 clerks in the office of admissions and records handled the entire registration under the direction of Dean Malcolm M. Willey, assistant to the president, and Tracy Tyler, associate professor of education.

Registration far exceeded advance predictions, Dean Willey said.

Broken down, the figures for counties are as follows: Hennepin, 237; Ramsey, 79; other Minnesota counties, 215; other states, 104.

No national lottery will be held in Washington to determine the order number of the registrants, the third group between 18 and 20 to register for a draft army in the history of the United States.

Serial and order numbers will be assigned on the basis of registrant's birth dates. Those who are 20 years of age are liable for military service now; those who are younger will automatically be eligible for service after they become 20.

Men in this registration will be placed at the end of previously issued order numbers. Classification of 20-year-olds is not expected to begin until classification of previously registered men of military age has been completed.

Bridge Instruction

Bridge instruction will be offered again Monday by Mrs. Mabel Ostidick from 3 to 5 p. m. in the Union men's lounge. The attendance last week almost doubled the previous week's record. Sixteen tables of bridge received instruction and played under Mrs Ostidick's guidance.

1x1=10 Campus Math, Rabbit Style

A family of 10 rabbits has come to the University but apparently not to learn multiplication.

The parents have already received an A in the course.

The nest of the rabbits is in front of the library on the mall. Buildings and Grounds employees say that the family has been living there for some time. To protect the family, someone put up a sign warning of the rabbits' presence.

Knolling Improves

Each Coed Has 1.3 Men

Campus knolling prospects look brighter this summer as each coed will have 1.3 men to hold hands with.

She has .4 more men to knoll with than she had while knolling last summer season, according to final registration figures.

This heartening news is revealed by the fact that male enrollment is up 48.7 per cent from 2,456 to 3,653 students, while female enrollment has only increased from 1.9 per cent.

Best coed "prospecting" places are the Institute of Technology where 4 coeds have 872 men for themselves, or the Medical school where there are 546 men and 40 women enrolled.

Hunting will be poorest in the College of Education where each coed will only have .27 men to her self, and the College of Agriculture, forestry, and Home Economics where each coed can count on .51 men.

The sharp increase in male enrollment is the result of compulsory acceleration in such colleges as pharmacy, medicine and dentistry.

University Tour To Visit Ward's St Paul Store

A tour to Montgomery Ward's wholesale and retail store in St. Paul will leave the Seventeenth avenue entrance of the Administration building at 2 p. m. Monday.

Tourists will have a chance to see the huge mail order department in operation.

This is the eighth in a series of Twin City tours directed by Ralph Piper, head of summer session activities. He said yesterday that the tours had been well attended to date.

The program has been curtailed, however, due to lack of transportation facilities. Visitors are no longer allowed at the Minneapolis postoffice, the Washburn Crosby flour mills or the telephone company.

Music Hour Plans Request Program

Students' requests will be given preference at the music listening hour in the Union fine arts room from noon to 2 p. m. Tuesday.

Last week's program was well attended, but Paul Brissey, director, would like more requests at future programs.

Tuesday's program will include "Roman Carnival Overture" by Berlioz, "Symphony No. 1 in C Minor" by Brahms, and excerpts from "Siegfried" and "Die Walkure" by Wagner.

Glider Ground School

A ground school for students in glider training is being conducted at the University's northwest school of agriculture. Housing facilities of the school will be used by the students while they are in training.

Golden Gopher Cadets Get Wings

Thirty-three former University students marched up to Governor Harold E. Stassen Wednesday to be congratulated on receiving their wings as members of the navy's first Golden Gopher aviation squadron.

Ceremonies were held at the naval reserve aviation base at Wold-Chamberlain field, where the men were inducted into the navy.

The squadron, named in honor of Minnesota's Golden Gopher football team, was recruited entirely from students at the University and is expected to carry on in the tradition of Minnesota's Golden Gophers. They will remain together during the whole course of training as naval aviation cadets.

Members of the first squadron, lined up alphabetically, marched up to the reviewing stand behind a band and enlisted members of the air base personnel. Golden wings were presented to each man by Marge Stehman, mascot of the squadron.

Participating in the ceremonies Wednesday when the Golden Gophers got their wings were Lt.-Cmdr. Truman C. Penny, senior officer of the naval reserve aviation selection board, Lt. Gordon Tucker, executive officer of the board, and Marge Stehman, mascot of the squadron.

Lt. Gordon Tucker, executive officer of the selection board, opened the ceremonies by introducing Lt.-Cmdr Truman C. Penny, senior officer of the naval selection board. Lt.-Cmdr Penny presented Lt.-Col Bernie Bierman of the United States Marine Corps, former coach of the Golden Gopher football team.

Governor Stassen, who is also a lieutenant commander in the naval reserve, shook hands with each man and congratulated him on becoming a member of the organization. Three large army bombers roared overhead during the ceremonies.

The crowd of six or seven hundred persons that gathered to see the affair was larger than had been expected, and one of the stands sagged under the extra weight, threatening to collapse.

Sports Highlights and Sidelights

By Howie Larson
Sports Editor

In regard to physical fitness, Athletic Director Lou Keller brought up an interesting point the other day. He said that many, too many, of the young men getting in the army can pass the medical exam with a 1-A rating but are still in pitiful physical condition. Their heart, lungs, muscular coordination may test satisfactorily but when they have to walk 10 miles or carry 125 pounds for about four hours, they collapse.

From tests already made (including some at Minnesota), it has been shown that the physical condition of freshmen entering college is slightly above the average but that upperclassmen are decidedly on the "weak sister" side. Army men have gone on record saying that from two to four weeks are lost getting the men in fighting physical condition. And they point especially to college men!

College men who hold reserve commissions in the various services should be especially aware of what is ahead of them. For one instance, about fifty per cent of the men in training for the navy air corps have flunked out because they cracked up physically under the strain. That is the primary reason for establishing the pre-flight navy physical training school at Iowa, of which Bernie Bierman is the head.

The same physical toughness is required in the other services. Riding in a tank or a jeep or an airplane isn't quite the same as riding in a cushioned car.

As yet no definite toughening up program has been set up here. According to Director Keller, physical training will not be made compulsory at Minnesota this fall. Instead, the courses already established will be revised so that their purpose is not recreational but hardening and toughening up.

They will include running, boxing, gym work, obstacle racing and other such events. Such a program is very desirable but without making it compulsory, it will lose much of its value. Too many of the students will not realize what lies ahead of them. We all have to realize that strength of mind and of purpose depends a great deal upon physical strength and condition.

The University of Michigan has a set-up that many schools would do well to copy. Physical education is required of all the men students. They have to spend 4½ hours a week taking the special toughening course which includes swimming, boxing, wrestling, gymnastics and an obstacle race that combines many devices used in the army and navy courses.

ACP's Jay Richter Reports from Washington

WAR . . . The provision calling for $10,000,000 in federal funds for war-time loans to students majoring in physics, chemistry, engineering, medicine, dentistry and pharmacy has been squelched in the house appropriations committee. An attempt to revive the measure is being made in the senate.

Meanwhile, the U. S. office of education is working on broad plans for next school year which will integrate more closely than ever the work of the country's colleges and universities with the program for war.

Among these plans is an expanded vocational training program that will provide technical training to 300,000 men and women at government expense. The courses will be given at 250 colleges and universities.

An office of emergency management movie unit is now on the road to record on celluloid a few of the outstanding contributions colleges and universities are making to the war effort. The results will be edited down to a 10-minute short scheduled for general release next fall.

Those behind the project feel that colleges are doing "a whale of a job" on the war program. As an example—they point to Purdue university, which is producing parts for war equipment under a sub-contract from Westinghouse Electric.

Symphony Plays Three Programs In Union Today

The Minnesota symphony orchestra, under the direction of Bernard Anderson, will play three times today in the Union main ballroom. Each program will be broadcast over WLB.

They will open the farm and home hour with a half hour concert at 12:30 p. m. From 3 to 5 p. m. they will play for waltzing and at 6 p. m. they will be on the air for a full hour.

The orchestra, which has been one of the most popular programs on the Union calendar for the past two years, has played before thousands of students. It will be reduced, but not disbanded by the recent national cut in WPA allotments.

Morris Jeffrey, secretary of the Minnesota music projects, said that about 30 men will remain in the orchestra. Two years ago it was a full symphony, but recently the membership declined to 43.

30 Students Take Bowling Lessons

Jess Young, Union bowling instructor, had a busy time two weeks ago when 30 students appeared for their first bowling lesson. To his amazement Young found that 28 of them had never held a bowling ball.

Last week a class of 26 met, but it was almost exclusively composed of coeds.

The lessons, which are 2 to 4 p.m. Mondays, are free to students. However, the regular 15 cents per line is charged.

U Faculty Men Present Paper

"Abnormal Currents in Distribution Transformers," was presented by John M. Bryant, head of the electrical engineering department, and Morris Newman, high voltage research engineer, to the Chicago convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers last week.

The paper was written on the cause and prevention of conditions caused by lightning striking the rural power lines.

Much of the research was done by duplicating within the electrical engineering laboratory conditions on the power line as they were when the lightning struck.

The research was sponsored by the Joslyn Manufacturing Company of Chicago.

Workshop Helps Teachers In Solving Their Problems

The summer workshop for higher education held in the Center for Continuation Study was set up primarily to help teachers in liberal arts colleges with their problems, Dr. Ruth Eckert, director of the University committee on education research, explained recently.

"Each member brings his individual problems and pools them with the others," she said.

The workshop, which was established last year, is conducted for two years with the same group participating. The first year a general survey of problems in higher education is conducted. A more extensive study is carried during the second year after each teacher has had an opportunity to study problems in his college. The workshop lasts for four weeks with general meetings three times a week and special seminars three times a day. Most of the work is done by the individual in cooperation with other members of the group and his staff.

There are 35 members of the workshop coming from 20 states. The workshop was started by the North Central association and funds were provided by the general education board.

This will be the last year that the summer workshop will be held. At the end of this session special reports will be prepared on the improvements made in smaller schools through the studies of the Center. These reports will be sent out to various liberal arts schools throughout the country.

Members of the staff are Lester G. Anderson, director; Russell M. Cooper, secretary; Ruth E. Eckert, W. E. Peik and C. Gilbert Wrenn.

Letters from 'Home' Ag Dean Writes Graduates

By Bob Ihrig

Nearly 4,000 Ag graduates will be getting their annual letter from "home" this week.

"Home" is the office of Edward M. Freeman, dean of the College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics.

It all started 25 years ago when Dean Freeman "figured that the boys who were going into the army would like to hear what was happening on the campus." The letters — there were several a year then — went at first only to the former students in service but after the war Dean Freeman sent them to all graduates.

While packed with news of the assemblies held, awards given, organizations and changes in the faculty and curricula, the letter sent out last week is interspersed with bits of kidding such as, "Why don't the Home Ecs elect a king?"

When the list of recipients was small, the most of postage was taken out of the dean's office budget. About 15 years ago both the letter and the list became too large to be handled in that manner.

"I just told them that this was the last letter from 'home,'" said Dean Freeman, relighting his pipe, "unless they sent me some money for postage. I soon got over $400."

Three years ago Dean Freeman had to repeat his request and got about the same amount.

Tennis Tourney Playing Lags

Only three matches have been played in the men's singles tennis tournament and Recreation Director Ralph Piper says most of the other tournaments are behind schedule.

In the first round of Division 1 Lee Dubow defeated Marvin Mitchell in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3. John Vogt downed Dan Colburn, 6-2, 6-2. In Division 2 Vincent Allin beat Bill Chandler, 6-1, 6-3.

No games have been played in the men's doubles or women's singles tennis tournaments. Since both are to be completed by the end of the first term, Piper urges that entries play their matches at once.

War Bonds and Stamps Will Help Win

U Foreign Students Are in Jam War Has Cut Off Their Money from Home

By Beverly Berkowitz

Thousands of miles away from the scream of air-raid sirens and the roar of bombers, nearly 100 foreign students on the campus have their war problems.

According to Asher N. Christensen, foreign students adviser, many of them are without funds in a foreign country. Some have not heard from their families in war-torn sections of the world for months, and present conditions make their return home impossible.

Credit restrictions in their own countries or the low rate of exchange caused by the doubtful fortunes of war have cut off their normal supply of income.

"Their problem is accentuated by laws of the United States which permit only part-time board and room jobs for those holding student visas," Professor Christensen said yesterday.

Many organizations have become interested in the problems of foreign students. Church groups, various national groups, and many private individuals have given or loaned money to foreign students.

"Mr Donald Davis, president of General Mills, has expressed a real interest in the plight of these students, and negotiations are under way to set up a program through which certain foreign students can secure employment with General Mills through the summer," Professor Christensen said.

The University has set up an emergency loan fund, and part-time jobs have been provided.

The U.S. government, too, is not insensible to the plight of these students, according to Professor Christensen. "Lately, the restrictions which prevented their securing full-time employment have been relaxed with reference to Chinese students, and nationals of other friendly or allied countries may be afforded the same treatment."

Government permission to allow these students to work would be a partial solution to the problem, Professor Christensen believes. "These students are deeply interested in war activities, and their technical knowledge and skills would be invaluable in defense industries," he said.

Summer Band Clinic Canceled

The summer session band clinic has been canceled, according to Gerald R. Prescott, director of bands.

The program for next year includes a pep band as well as the concert band. The second band will be abolished because of the expected decrease in enrollment.

The pep band, organized for the home football games, will take the football trip to Madison, Wis.

The concert band will present its annual quarter concerts as well as WLB broadcasts, twilight concerts on the knoll, Homecoming pep fest and parade and convocations.

Strouse Is Inducted Into Armed Forces

Lester Strouse, Daily editorial staff member for three years, was inducted into the army Monday at Fort Snelling and will report for active duty July 12.

Strouse served as The Daily "Politician" during this year and was appointed city assistant in charge of Ag and Science departments for next year. He was also statewide publicity chairman for the 1942 Freshman week.

U Womans Chorus

The womans chorus, newly organized music group, will give its first concert on July 21.

PROMOTION NOTICES, press releases and letters from former Minnesota men now in the army, navy and marines come into The Daily office every week. Here are some of them, telling what "M" men are doing:

Second Lieutenant HOWARD D. SCHOONOVER, E. E. '41, writes: "Sitting here in England this afternoon I am looking over a month's Dailies, the most recent being February 11, 1942.

"Maybe someone at Minnesota would like to send me a new copy of The Daily now and then. I could keep up on campus news, and in return, I may be able to send bits of info as to what we are doing here. I hope you will drop me a line. See you in the army."

His address is Lieutenant Howard D. Schoonover, Electronics TNG GP, APO 887, N.Y.C., U. S. Army.

SEVERAL University men are in training at Ellington field, Texas, world's largest training school for bomber pilots, navigators and bombardiers.

AVIATION CADETS HIBBARD A. SMITH and SECOND LIEUTENANT RODGER M. HEALY, who attended the University for two years each, are in training as navigators.

JAMES H. FASBENDER, a Minneapolis aviation cadet training to be a bombardier, was an underwriter for the Insurance Company of Minnesota after graduating from the University. ROBERT C. KINSELL of Waterloo, Iowa, studied at the University and later became owner of a cleaning establishment in Waterloo. He is now in pilot training at Ellington field.

ROBERT A. BREIDENBACH, stationed at Geiger Field, Spokane, Wash., has been promoted to corporal. Bob, who was Daily credit manager and salesman in 1940-41, entered the service in January and is now a company clerk.

Three former Minnesota students have been commissioned second lieutenants in the air force reserve and placed on active duty as pilots. They are HAROLD W. ATKINS of Hollandale, who was a football letterman, CYRUS H. KURTH of Benson and GLENN L. WOHLFORD of Clements.

HAROLD L. WRIGHTSON of St Paul, a flight instructor at Randolph Field, Texas, has been promoted to first lieutenant. He was a member of the football team and graduated in aeronautical engineering in 1938.

LIEUTENANT BRAD N. ROBINSON JR. of Minneapolis, has been ordered to active duty at the new basic pilot training school at Bainbridge, Ga. He was a regular on the football team for two years and captain of the Gopher basketball team that was runner-up for the Big Ten championship in 1932-33.

PRIVATE JAMES LUCIER, S.L.A. '42 and former Daily Survey Director, writes a postscript to The Daily's successful "Buy a Jeep" drive.

"Minnesota students could take a tip from the 3rd Bn Hq Det, 359 Infantry at Camp Barkely, Texas. While the students are buying stamps to help outfit the soldiers, the men at Barkeley are themselves donating a good share of their $21 a month to help lick the Axis. The men in the detachment have gone 100 per cent in a drive to subscribe to Defense bonds."

U Has Own Quintuplets

What has Callendar, Ontario, got that the Ag campus poultry division hasn't?

Within the last few months two sets of quintuplets—one of puppies, one of kittens—were born on the poultry division premises.

Some time ago the two prospective mothers, a dog and a cat, both of uncertain parentage, wandered into the poultry division. Clifford Peterson, poultryman, didn't have the heart to turn them out.

Mr Peterson solved half the problem by sending the puppies to the Humane society. But mama kitty and her little ones refused to move, and made themselves very much at home in the poultry division office.

Unless the situation changes, Mr Peterson may put them up for the duration.
