DULUTH -- Five films on modern Sweden will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, January 12 in the Science Auditorium under the sponsorship of the UMD Language Department.

Three of the films depict Swedish society today. The two others, both in color, tell the story of Swedish botanist Linneaus and the far northern province of Västerbotten.

"The Secure Society" shows what the Swedes are doing in social security. "The Just Society" deals with the country's criminal problems and "The Organized Society" presents a picture of labor organizations and their role in Swedish society.

The program is open to the public free of charge.
