The University of Minnesota, Saturday, February 10, 1951

1951 CAPTAIN of the Minnesota football team Wayne Robinson (left) received the symbolic torch of his office yesterday at a special convocation in the Union main ballroom. Robinson took the torch from letterman Art Edling, acting for 1950 captain Dave Skrien who recently was called with the National Guard.

1,000 Students Hear Wes Fesler at Convo

More than 1,000 students packed the Union main ballroom yesterday to hear Minnesota's new football coach, Wes Fesler, in his first public appearance on campus.

Fesler was introduced by Ike Armstrong, athletic director. "We couldn't have found a better man in America to fill Mr. Bierman's shoes," Armstrong said.

"Following Bernie Bierman is going to be a big job," Fesler said. He emphasized the need for close relationship between the student body and the coaches.

Wayne Robinson, Gopher center, received double honors at the meeting.

Bernie Bierman presented him with the most valuable player of 1950 trophy and Art Edling, filling in for team captain Dave Skrien, passed the torch to Robinson naming him captain of the 1951 football team.

"We need your help tremendously," Fesler told the students. "Right now we're going through a down period. We have to sell ourselves to you, to the radio and television people and to the people of Minnesota."

Fesler presented the members of his coaching staff, Butch Nash, Bud Svendsen, Lyal Clark and Dick Fisher.

Jim Marvin, all-University congress president, introduced the convocation speakers. The 1950 football squad occupied the stage along with Fesler, Bierman and Armstrong.

Morrill States U Greek Policy

At a press conference yesterday, Pres. J. L. Morrill said he would "like to lay to rest rumors that the University is unsympathetic to sororities and fraternities."

Morrill's comment came after a resolution adopted by the board of regents at their Jan. 12 meeting.

The resolution read: "Some questions have been raised regarding the expansion of University owned housing facilities for students. This may be interpreted as a step in eliminating fraternities and sororities as housing units. The regents wish to make it clear that such is not the intent of the University."

"Fraternities and sororities are an integral part of the University both as student organizations and housing units."

"In the expansion and uses of University student housing facilities, every consideration will be given to the equities and interests of fraternities and sororities."

Asked if the resolution would change the present University policy requiring students living in dormitories to sign a full year contract, William T. Middlebrook, business vice president, said it would not.

"Students should make up their minds when they come to the University whether to live in a fraternity or sorority, or in a dormitory," he said.

"If you fill up a dormitory in the fall and then release people to go to live in sororities and fraternities, the remaining people in the dormitories have to bear the extra cost that results from a drop in the number of residents."

Rex Nelson, president of the interfraternity council said the IFC was "very pleased to have this clarified—we've been working hard on this for a long time."

Regents Accept $57,000 in Gifts

The board of regents yesterday accepted over $57,000 in gifts for the University.

The money includes a gift of $2,500 from the Minneapolis Gas company to be used for SPAN.

A resolution of appreciation to retiring regent Albert J. Lobb of Rochester was adopted by the regents for Lobb's long years of service to the University.

The regents also adopted a sanitary code prepared by Dr. Ruth Boynton, director of the student health service, to serve as a guide rule in sanitary matters for the use of University employees.

This is the first time the University has ever codified its sanitary regulations.

Art works of Michelangelo, Italian Renaissance painter and sculptor provide the subjects for the German-made film, "The Titan." No live actors are used in the film which will show at 3:15, 5:30 and 8 p.m. Wednesday in Northrop auditorium. Tickets are 60 cents.

Convocation Will Climax Celebration of U Week

The Charter Day convocation will be one of the principal events in the week-long celebration of University of Minnesota Week, which begins tomorrow.

Pres. J. L. Morrill will present an honorary doctor of laws degree to Everett Fraser, dean emeritus of the University law school, at the convocation at 11 a.m. Thursday in Northrop auditorium.

Maynard E. Pirsig, present dean of the law school, will present the main address. In commemoration of the former dean's services the law school building will be named Fraser hall.

Dean Fraser, who served on the University law school faculty 31 years, retired from the faculty in June, 1948. He is now a professor of law at Hastings college of law, University of California.

YMCA Will Sponsor Trip to Washington

The University YMCA will sponsor a seminar trip to Washington, D. C., and United Nations headquarters in New York, March 24 to April 1.

Applications for the trip, available in 202 YMCA, must be submitted by March 7. Forty men and women students will be selected. Cost will be about $120.

In Washington the students will visit the senate and house, interview members of congress and attend a supper given by the University's Washington alumni club.

The group will observe UN meetings at Lake Success, meet members of the United Nations secretariat and some delegations and attend a dinner given by the New York alumni club.

FEPC Meetings Open to Students

University students will be admitted to otherwise closed discussion sessions of the state and local fair employment practices commission over the weekend.

Meetings will be at the Minneapolis mayor's office, 3 to 5 p.m. tomorrow, and 9 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. Monday; and in the Radisson hotel Spanish room from 9 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. today.

288 Army ROTC Cadets Donate Blood

Blood donations by the Army ROTC cadets ended at 5 p.m. yesterday with a total contribution of 288 pints.

Of 503 cadets originally signed up for donations, 371 reported to the blood bank for processing and 288 were accepted.

Several reasons for the failure of the 132 cadets to report were given by Lt. Col. Ashton H. Pully, adviser to the cadets in the blood project.

Pully said many of the cadets didn't report because of plans for athletic participation, sickness, colds, and because they were "just plain scared."

The operation was conducted jointly by the Hennepin county Red Cross and the Minneapolis War Memorial blood bank.

Dr. G. Albin Matson, director of the latter organization, said the blood bank did the actual collection work and the Red Cross underwrote the expense.

Jerry Colona, comedian, will review his career in show business at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, on WMMR's "Personalities Around the Town" program. Lorraine Greenberg, SLA sophomore, will interview Colona, who will also speak about a drama major's possibilities of getting into show business.

Worth Seeing Most College Men Assured Draft Deferment 'til June

STUDENTS ARE missing a good entertainment bet if they don't get over to the Gopher boxing meets. College boxing has quite a spectator pull at every school that offers it—except at Minnesota.

Two other Big Ten schools compete in college boxing: Michigan State and Wisconsin. At both places the sport outdraws basketball in a good year.

Last year, the boxing crowds at East Lansing averaged over 6,000, and in Madison the fans filled all 14,000 seats whenever the Badger boxers made an appearance.

When Coach Eddie Sulkowski of Penn State brought his team here for the opening meet, he was amazed at the poor attendance. Sulkowski said at Penn State students fill all of the 6,500 available seats.

Two weeks ago coach Ray Chisholm and his boxers travelled to Pocatello, Idaho, and fought in a high school gym seating 3,000 people. But when the bouts began, 4,000 were jammed in. Some people paid as much as $2.75 to see the fights.

College boxing offers a double motive for winning. Every boxer who steps into the ring is on his own and desires to win to protect his own personal record. But team score is an added incentive to a college boxer and he also goes out to add a point to his team's total.

The Gophers meet Idaho today in Williams arena. It would be more than worth anyone's time and trouble to take in the match. Athletic cards cover admission.

This is the first in a series of articles reporting on recent draft regulations, enlistment possibilities and procedures and other similar information of interest primarily to students.

By Keith Felcyn

★ UNDER PROVISIONS of the basic selective service act—subject to almost daily change—deferment of nearly all University students about to be drafted is assured until the end of the academic year.

Calls for preliminary or pre-induction physical examinations are now being issued to many students with 1-A classifications.

If a student is found physically acceptable by medical examiners, he is ordered for induction but given a new classification—1A-P—postponed to the end of the academic year.

By announcement of the American Council on Education "special" bulletin of Jan. 22, students whose induction has been postponed to the end of the school year (postponed after notice of physical examination has been received) will be given the opportunity to enlist in the armed service of their choice before school ends.

Previous to Jan. 22 the student was unable to enlist in any branch of the armed forces, join an ROTC group or take other independent action unless evidence is presented to show that such action had been initiated prior to receiving the physical examination notice.

The local board must accept this evidence before the student will be permitted to carry out any such action.

As the procedure is now outlined, national selective service headquarters will direct all local boards through the state director (Col. Lloyd Lilygren in Minnesota) to re-open, 30 days before the end of the year, the classification of all students whose induction was postponed.

This has the effect of nullifying all previous orders issued and giving the student a new classification, permitting him to enlist in the branch of the armed services in which he can find an opening.

An emergency supplement issued Jan. 30 by the Council on Education stated there is every reason to believe that this procedure is "final and firm."

If a student who has been ordered for his pre-induction physical wishes to enlist in the service of his choice, the supplement declared, he must remain in school to the end of the academic year to exercise that choice.

A Streetcar With One Desire

By Dick Margolis
Daily Columnist

★ I HAVE NEVER liked streetcars. They are ugly affairs that rock you about without so much as asking your permission. When occasionally I am forced to ride in one I pick a seat away from everyone.

I stare at the seat in front of me. I think of nothing. In this way I forget I am on a streetcar. The motorman doesn't mind if I forget; the passengers don't mind. I am content.

Yesterday I boarded a St. Paul-bound trolley, sat down in a secluded spot and began to sink into my stupor. I was awakened by a voice from nowhere which asked, "Do you drink a quart of milk every day?"

on the sole of his shoe; a coed was inscribing her initials for posterity on the frosted window pane.

Nobody seemed to notice the anonymous voice which was now announcing that Joe Touchy and his Hotshots would play a Brazilian hat dance.

I listened attentively to the music, but the rhythm of Joe Toughy was not in tune to the rhythm of the trolley. Soon the voice was back (much louder this time), and it was asking, "Do your pants get shiny in the rear?"

"Yes," I said automatically. Everyone turned around and stared at me. I pulled my coat collar up about me and sank deeper into my seat.

The voice boomed on, "Baggy at the knees . . . suspenders . . .

ful, I thought, to keep the bottoms of my trousers rolled.

"Casper Menuti and his Reluctant Five will play Bop Me, Old Babe," the voice said.

It was a frantic piece of music, and looking around, I noticed everyone was tapping his feet. Everyone, that is, but the old man in the rear. He was still beating his pipe against his shoe.

Impulsively I got up and lurched down the aisle to where the coed was sitting. "May I have this dance," I said.

"Huh?" She removed her spectacles and squinted at me. Then she noticed me staring at her initials (A.K.) on the window pane. She blushed and hurriedly wiped them off.

"I was wondering, Alice," I per-

TB Nursing Course To Be Held in Center

Minnesota nurses will study improvement of tuberculosis nursing care at a short course Tuesday and Wednesday in the Center for Continuation Study.
 The course will cover current developments in tuberculosis nursing and problems of providing good care to both hospitalized and at-home patients.
 The course, sponsored by the schools of public health and nursing, is open to all graduate nurses who care for tubercular patients.
 Other state organizations helping with the course are the League of Nursing Education, the department of health, the Public Health association and the Organization for Public Health Nursing.

Industry Survey To Be Made by U

Survey of Minnesota industry, to determine how University facilities can be used to train the unemployed for critical industries, began here this week.
 Julius M. Nolte, dean of the general extension division is heading the survey. "It will be the place of the University," he said, "to analyze training needs and to provide training facilities, as it did in the last war."
 Minnesota is one of 16 industrial areas chosen for the survey by the National University Extension association which is acting for the federal government.
