A HOT CONTEST

The Informal Cane Rush Yesterday the Most Exciting in Years

The annual cane rush came off yesterday. It was a warm affair from start to finish, and when finally sweet peace was restored, no one could be called the victor. It was about as even a contest as ever took place between the Freshmen and Sophomores at the University. The Freshmen always work under disadvantages because they are not acquainted with one another, nor with the fine points of the game, which goes a long way in helping to win a cane rush.

Everyone was looking for the rush during chapel hour, but no one seemed sure that it would come. But finally when several Sophs rushed out on the campus with a cane, it was a sure sign that the fun was on. Freshmen came from all directions, and fell on the Sophs with all the fire and vengeance that a gentle, unassuming Freshman can assume on certain occasions. The fight waxed warm and fierce. Collars, cuffs, hats and other pieces of clothing marked the course of the contest. The boys who had hands on the cane kept their feet a surprisingly long time, but finally they sought Mother Earth in a confused jumble of arms and legs. When the combatants were finally separated it was found that the Sophs had won. No one could tell exactly how the score stood, but it was something like 20 to 13 in favor of the Sophs.

In the second rush the Freshies got in good work and came off victors, with a score 20 to 14. This made a tie with one rush in favor of each side. The final rush, which will take place later, will be determine whether the Freshies can carry canes or not during the remainder of this year.

A sad accident happened early in the rush, a Freshman by the name of Hugo was injured and rendered unconscious for some time. He was removed to one of the hospitals. We learn later that he was not seriously injured and will soon be back to his work. After the rush was over the boys formed a ring for the wrestlers and boxers, but before this form of amusement was fully on Policeman Wold came over and the boys mistaking the intentions of the officer proceeded to rush him from the grounds. No damage was done and when Mr. Wold made a little speech, he was given the Ski-U-Mah and henceforth will rank as a true U. of M. policeman.

In the wrestling matches the Freshmen were not so victorious as they might have been. They didn't get out men heavy enough to meet the stalwart Sophs on equal ground. The Freshmen proved to be great boxers, and here the Sophs met their Waterloo. Liggett and Jackson both, Freshmen, easily carried off the honors.

Taking it all in all the rush was a success, and barring the accident to Mr. Hugo no one was the worse for the experience. It taught the boys to hold their tempers under trying circumstances, and it brought them into closer relations with one another than they could have hoped to have arrived at under any other conditions. Look out for the formal rush and don't fail to be on hand. It will come before long and then you may expect to see a rush that will go down in the annals of history as one of the famous events of the year of 1901.

THE GAME TODAY

This afternoon on Northrop Field the Varsity eleven will be compelled to battle against two high school teams. Not simultaneously, to be sure, yet two separate teams nevertheless, and the result of the experiment will be watched with interest. During the first half the strong eleven of the St. Paul Central will try their hardest to score on the Varsity, while during the last half of the game the Central high boys of Minneapolis will make every effort to repeat their feat of last year.

An immense number of rooters from both schools is looked for as intense rivalry exists between the two schools and no stone will be left unturned by either in their efforts to make a better showing than their opponents, who are for the day their comrades in the game. Come out everybody, watch the team, hear the schools root, and see the novel sight of two enemies fighting side by side. The game is sure to be hotly fought from start to finish.

RECEPTION AT THE ARMORY

The large reception at the Armory Saturday evening will be even more attractive than in former years. The hall will be tastefully decorated with bunting, palms and wild flowers. A short musical program will be rendered. It is expected that President Northrop will be present to assist in receiving and the whole occasion will form a happy commencement of the year.

The faculty always attend, the Sophomores will be there, too, and the Freshmen—well, if they do not go they will break all records, for since the beginning all Freshmen attend the opening reception given by the Christian Associations.

MEDICS OPENING EXERCISES

The opening exercises of the College of Medicine and Surgery will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock in Medical hall. The address of the evening will be delivered by Prof. J. E. Schadle.

The Philological Society

The Philological society will meet on Thursday, Oct. 3, at 8 p. m., in the Y. W. C. A. room. Prof. Richard Burton will present a paper on "The Relation of Language to Literature;" Miss Ada L. Comstock will discuss "The Special Problems of the Teacher of Rhetoric at the University;" a short business meeting will follow.

TEACHERS' CLUB

Superior Entertainment for the Season of '01-'02 given by the Teachers' Club

Many of the students know of the good work of the Minneapolis Teachers' club in bringing lecturers and entertainers to the city during the winter. The teachers speak in the highest terms of the support and patronage given them by the students. All who attended the entertainments last year know what an excellent course it was. This year something even better is promised. Every one who has been secured for the course has already won an enviable reputation as a public instructor or entertainer, and comes with the highest recommendations. Some of them were here last year and the public demanded their return. It was the object of the committee to arrange a program that would give satisfaction to the greatest number. To that end they have secured a well balanced list of entertainments, including music, dramatic readings, both narrative and scientific.

Mrs. Bertha Kunz Baker was so enthusiastically received last year in her L'Aiglon, that her success on her return this year is already assured. She is a dramatic reader of wonderful ability. Her subject for this season will be announced later.

Mrs. Isobel Strong, who is an interesting and entertaining lecturer, will give a talk on "Robert Louis Stevenson." She is a step-daughter of that noted author.

Many have expressed a desire that some scientific lecture be included in the course. The club was fortunate in securing the great English astronomer and physicist, Sir Robert Ball.

The public will be given another opportunity to hear Madame Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, who so delightfully entertained them last year. She ranks among the first pianists of the day.

Those who heard the Kneisel quartet last year will be glad to learn of their re-engagement. They are from the Boston Symphony Orchestra. They were so heartily and enthusiastically received here last year that their return was a demand by the public.

The appearance of H. Whitney Tew, the renowned English basso, will be looked forward to with great interest. He will be in America but two months, and it was by good fortune that he was secured for an evening. He is an artist of the Plunkett Green order, but is endowed with a superior voice.

Mr. Luby has the business management of the club this year and will see to it that the students are kept posted as to subjects and dates and have an early opportunity to secure season tickets. They will probably be put on sale in the University postoffice.

Jas. V. S. Fisher, '97, has returned to the East Side high school where he is instructor in mathematics.

Secret Practice

It should hardly be necessary to ask students to keep away from Northrop Field while secret practice is taking place, yet whenever even the gates are closed at every hole in the fence are several persons. And these are students, too, not mere small boys. Dr. Williams has ordered the gates closed so that the practice may go on in strictest secrecy yet in the jam which is about the fence anyone could watch the play almost as well as if seated in the grand stand, and with no more fear of detection. If the students will only stay away until the gates are opened any outsider can easily be discovered, but if the crowd keeps up as it has begun the secret practice will be useless and any college in the country can learn our plays as well as the team learns them and our chances for the championship will suffer accordingly.

If you have one spark of loyalty left, do not try to see secret practice. The best service you can possibly do for the team is to stay strictly away from the field until the gates are opened.

Those Posters Again

They are returning with their old-time plentifulness. Vari-colored cards meet the eye at every turn from one end of the campus to the other. It is perfectly legitimate to post important announcements in occasional conspicuous places, but there is absolutely no excuse for covering every tree on both sides of the walks, till the eye is offended by the constant repetition. In truth it becomes weary, stale and flat, if not unprofitable. Why not use a little discretion as to the number posted and trust to the intelligence of the average passer-by, who, if he should see an announcement of a football game at the corner drug store, another at the book store, and yet another at the entrance to the campus, might naturally be expected to remember it till he reached the post-office and found it in his DAILY, and still later had his memory freshened at chapel.

And, then, when these placards are torn down why not have them destroyed instead of throwing them on the campus, to mingle with lunch wrappers, and leaves of note books, and other refuse? Last week the campus looked as if vandals had visited it.

Are the majority of the students lacking in the aesthetic sense or are they merely thoughtless? It is to be hoped it is only the latter. Hamilton A. Mabie has said, "We need beauty as much as we need truth. We are studious not to offend the moral sense, but we do not hesitate to abuse the aesthetic sense. We have learned in part the lesson of morality, but we have yet to learn the lesson of beauty." Perhaps these words have appeared in these columns before, but they will bear repetition. They should sink into the hearts of all, so that everyone might feel a personal interest in the surroundings of the University. Then the campus would be a matter of pride to the students, instead of what it has been in the past.

DEBATING COACHES

The reputation of Harvard in debate is such that any system of training her debating teams deserves careful consideration. One of the strong points in the method followed at Harvard in developing her representatives in debate is the securing for each team the services of a debating coach. The person selected for this work is usually one who has achieved distinction in former debates and is willing to devote his time and services to the securing of the best results in the development of the team. The Crimson discusses at some length the advantages of the plan:

"Probably few realize the value of the services of the debating coach. Unlike the coaching of athletic teams, his work is very inconspicuous, but it is none the less essential to the development of a good team. The men who are picked for the team must of course do the work of gathering evidence and learning thoroughly the ground which is to be covered, but it is almost invariably found that the men, having chosen their side and worked up evidence to support it, become so fully convinced of the strength of their own position that they fail to realize the strong points of the other side and their own weaknesses. It is at this stage that the coach does his best service. He sets the second team to building up an opposing case, and taking himself an unprejudiced point of view he is enabled to pick out all the weak points of his team, to give proper emphasis to strong points and to prevent the men from making unsupported assumptions and obscure transitions of argument which the audience and the judges would not be able to follow. In fact he criticises as much as possible from the standpoint of the audience and the judges. Having this outside view he is able to divide the ground between the three men, giving each his part of the case to prove, and arranging the speeches in such a way that they logically lead up to one definite conclusion. The co-operation of other graduates has always been especially valuable to the head coach in that it has given him the benefit of the opinions of a larger number of practical men in criticising the case, and in providing a defense for every possible attack. Year after year the coaches, taking hold of comparatively inexperienced men, have turned out winning teams, and it is to the excellence of their work in no small measure that the superiority of Harvard debating is due."

THE GREEK CLUB

A short business meeting of the Greek club was held yesterday at the third hour in Prof. Hutchinson's room. Mr. Homer Reed, the president, tendered his resignation because of pressure of work, and Miss Ursula James, the vice-president was elected to fill the vacancy. Miss Winnie Siegmann was unanimously chosen as vice-president. The next meeting of the club will be held in Prof. Brooks' room at the third hour two weeks from yesterday.

P. A. Carciofini who has been spending the summer at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., teaching boxing and fencing, will return to the "U" the first week in October. Students desiring instruction in boxing or fencing may find him at the gymnasium after that time.

THE WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Any new student desiring information regarding the Woman's League, which is soon to be re-organized for the coming year, may apply to the following officers: Ruth Fitch Cole, President; Mary Sanford, vice-president; Grace Wheaton, secretary; Louise Peck, treasurer.

Last spring the ladies of the faculty arranged many pleasant little excursions to the lakes and parks about the city, taking lunch along. Two or three groups spent an afternoon at the Agricultural school, and still others visited the art gallery, and other points of interest. It is to be hoped that the league will soon be in working order, so that advantage may be taken of our delightful autumn weather in like excursions. The new students may thus be made acquainted early with the places of beauty and interest about the twin cities, a knowledge that is sure to enhance their stay here at college.

NEW BUILDINGS AT AGRICULTURAL STATION

As a result of the appropriations of the last legislature three new buildings have just been started at the agricultural experiment station. The additions are a new veterinary hospital and amphitheater, a new building for the department of dressing and curing meats and an addition to the Ladies' hall. It is hardly probable that any of the new structures will be ready for occupancy in time to relieve the crowded condition this winter, but before next fall these and several other extensive improvements will add to the building and equipment facilities of the school.

U. C. A. Meeting

The Rev. Fr. Keefe, of the Immaculate Conception church, will speak before the University Catholic association, Sunday afternoon at 3:45, in chapel hall. Students new and old are urged to come and bring their friends. The new director, Rev. Fr. Moynihan, of the Hill seminary, has been appointed, and will undoubtedly be at the next meeting to begin his work.
