Tweed Museum of Art Schedule

The UMD Artist Lecture Series welcomes Victor Margolin and Jan Sivertson as the upcoming lecturers on April 4 in the Tweed Museum lecture gallery. Margolin will speak at 2 p.m., and Sivertson at 6 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

Victor Margolin is the author of a number of books on the history of graphic design, and co-founded and is the current co-editor of Design Issues: A Journal of History, Theory, and Criticism, a design journal that helped kindle scholarly interest in the visual communications process. He has written numerous articles on design in a wide range of prestigious design journals and professional magazines, and has lectured at conferences and many cultural and educational institutions throughout the world. He is currently professor of art and design history at the University of Illinois at Chicago where he is also director of graduate studies.

Jan Sivertson of Grand Marais and Duluth is an artist and gallerist. She opened the first Sivertson gallery in Grand Marais with her father, the artist and author Howard Sivertson. The gallery expanded to Duluth in 1995 and a second Grand Marais gallery was opened in 1999. The galleries offer original work by regional artists as well as works by Inuit, Native American, Canadian, Canadian First Nations and Alaskan artists. The Sivertson Gallery mission is to enhance and enrich the artistic and cultural lives of the communities it serves.

Sivertson and Margolin will serve as co-jurors for the 2002 UMD Annual Student Exhibition which will be on display at the Tweed from April 13 through May 5. Please contact Suzanne Szucs at 726-6286 with questions.

AIWORTH INSTITUTE BROWN BAG LUNCH

Pat Farrell, assistant professor of geography, presents “Seeing the Ancient Maya from the Ground Up,” a lecture about her Summer 2001 visit to Belize at noon on Thursday, April 4 in the Bullpub. Using soil analysis, Farrell seeks to answer environmental questions about the ancient Mayan civilization. She will show slides and shares her findings.

Thomas Powers, assistant professor of political science at UMD presents “Civil Liberties and the War on Terrorism: The Case of Military Tribunals” at noon on Tuesday, April 9 in the Tweed Lecture Gallery.

Different wars raise different constitutional challenges, and the war on terrorism is no exception. Powers will discuss the unfolding of the Bush Administration's policy on the use of military tribunals, and the character of the debate that followed. He explains how this can tell us a lot about future debates over other civil liberties questions raised by the war.

Karl Bahm, assistant professor of history at UWS, presents “Reflections of Life & Death: Remains of Jewish Life, the Ghettos and the Death Camps in Eastern Europe” at noon on Thursday, April 18 in the Tweed Lecture Gallery. Bahm will present slides and discuss his summer 2001 visit to Nazi death camps and ghettos in Eastern Europe. He reflects on how this tour affected his understanding of the Holocaust and the state of Jewish life in Eastern Europe today. Bahm traveled as a participant in the Eastern European Study Tour sponsored by the Holocaust Educational Foundation of Northwestern University.

Sandra Wright, a retired school teacher from Superior, Wisconsin, presents “Ethiopia: Awesome but Awful” at noon on Thursday, May 2 in the Bullpub. Wright gives a slide presentation of her Fall 2001 trip to three Ethiopian cities and villages: Addis Ababa, Wells, Attar & Lalibella.
