Duluth--- Two organizations at the University of Minnesota, Duluth, (UMD) have announced the names of newly elected officers.

New president of Project Aware, UMD's Indian affairs program, is Robert Flagler, Minneapolis. Other officers are Susan Schirber, Grand Rapids, vice president; Kathy Wolters, Duluth, secretary; Beverly Paap, Duluth, treasurer and Beverly Meakins, Excelsior, historian.

The Barker's Club, a freshman organization to support UMD athletic teams, elected Roger Grumdahl, Duluth, president; Karen Eklund, Carlton, secretary; and Shelly Grewing, White Bear Lake, treasurer.

Project Aware is planning a tutoring program for children of the 675-member Indian community within Duluth. Students are now tutoring at Brookston, Sawyer and the Fond du Lac Reservation at Cloquet.

About 300 freshman have signed up for the Barker's Club, according to President Grumdahl. The Club's officers will work with the Freshman Council under the freshman class officers.
