Duluth --- A "Huntley-Brinkley" style team of Air Force officers will be at the University of Minnesota, Duluth, Monday November 6 to tell Air Force ROTC Cadets at UMD about the Air Force Logistics Command. The two officers are Lieutenants Patrick Kane and Gordon Luce.

The purpose of the team's visit to the Air Force ROTC Detachment is to educate and motivate cadets about a career in logistics. Logistics is that part of the Air Force which deals with the movement, distribution, and disposition of materials and supplies necessary to the Air Force mission.

Kane and Luce have traveled very extensively around the United States giving "pep" talks about the command they are in. The team plans to visit forty-nine other colleges and universities after their day at UMD, all before December 14 of this year.
