DULUTH--Applications can now be accepted for Danforth Graduate Fellowships for careers in college teaching, UMD Academic Dean Thomas W. Chamberlin announced today.

The fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to male college seniors or recent graduates preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work at the college level. Nominations close Oct. 22, Dean Chamberlin said.

Applicants may be planning to major in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts and sciences curriculum, at the American graduate school of their choice, but may not have already undertaken graduate work.

About 100 fellowships will be awarded nationally based on intellectual promise and personality, integrity, genuine interest in religion, and high potential for effective college teaching.

Winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance with an annual maximum of $1500 for single men and $2000 for married men plus dependency allowances for up to three children, and tuition and fees. Students without financial needs also are invited to apply.
