Duluth--- Information about careers in home economics will be presented by a panel of professionals at 7 p.m. Jan. 22 in UMD's Home Economics 70.

The panel, sponsored by the UMD Home Economics Club, is open to all interested persons.

The panelists will be Mrs. Blanche Erkel from the Food and Drug Administration in Minneapolis; Miss Irene Ott, UMD home economics instructor and formerly a county home extension agent; Miss Ramona Sederberg, administrative dietician at St. Mary's Hospital, and Mrs. Beatrice Ojakangas, a Duluth home economist and host of the Holiday House program on WDIO-TV.

Each panelist will explain her job and the education required for such a position. A question and answer period will follow the discussion.

Students in charge of the program are Charlotte McGrew, Trina Mattas, Cheryl Lindberg, Sandra Gunderson, Carleen Nordstrom, and Susan Odberg, all of Duluth.
