No. 6

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY

Owing to the unprecedented enrollment of students in all departments, it has become necessary to continue the process of registration for another day. Buildings and rooms used for registration can not be used for regular purposes. All class and laboratory work in all schools and colleges of the University is hereby POSTPONED ONE DAY and therefore will begin on Thursday, October 2. Penalties for late registration will not be imposed on those who register on Wednesday, October 1.

M. L. BURTON, President

TO THE STUDENTS

In the name of the University, I wish to extend to all of you, new and old, a most hearty and cordial welcome. I congratulate you, beyond all words, upon the unlimited possibilities which stretch before you. To be alive today is good. To be young is better. To be a student is excellent. No generation ever faced such conditions as exist today. The human race has just emerged from the greatest cataclysm of history. If there is such a thing as a new era, you are to live in one. The necessity of higher training was never more clearly recognized than today. The citizens of Minnesota have provided for you here the highest opportunities of education and they expect that you will make serious use of them. Sheer self-respect today compels a student to put his University work first. The responsibilities of citizenship require it. The possibilities of later achievement demand it. Let no influence turn you away from this primary fact: you are here to be a university student. Just in proportion as you do well your work will your University life be satisfying and successful.

M. L. BURTON, President

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY

Two Rhodes Scholarships at Oxford University, England, are open this fall to graduates of Minnesota colleges. The conditions have been simplified. A state committee will select the two scholars. Each qualified institution in the state will certify a group of its students as qualified. The University of Minnesota may nominate eight for consideration by the state committee. The candidates must have had a minimum of two years of college work.

The Rhodes Scholarship pays three hundred pounds yearly with privileges not only of study at Oxford, but of English and European travel in the long vacation. There could be no more interesting time than the present for study and travel in England and on the continent. Oxford University is making a greater effort than ever before to meet the needs of foreign, especially American, students.

The fact that two scholars are to be chosen and that the University of Minnesota may present eight candidates should encourage our students to apply. Blank applications may be obtained at the Graduate School office, 204 Library Building, and should be filed at an early date, as the final applications must go to the State Committee not later than October 5.

NOTICE TO THE DEANS

The Administrative Committee of the University Senate will meet this morning at 10:30 at the Office of the President.

ALL-UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION

The first convocation of the year will be held tomorrow morning at 11:30 in the Armory. President Burton will be the speaker, and his subject will be "What Must the Universities Do?" All members of the University, both students and faculty, are urged to be present at this first official gathering.

ALL-UNIVERSITY MASS MEETING

A mass meeting for the purpose of arousing Minnesota loyalty will be held Friday evening, October 3, on the parade-grounds and in the Armory. Presidents Folwell, Northrop, and Burton, football men, and representatives of various campus organizations will aid in the program, consisting of songs, speeches, and a snake-dance. Every student and member of the faculty is most cordially invited to be present at this welcome to the new students and reunion of the old.
