Continue Life of Liberal Learning Barrows Advises

A continued intellectual development is the best security for the individual and for society itself, Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, Lawrence College president, told a summer commencement audience yesterday in Northrop auditorium.

Some 240 graduates heard the educator's plea for the continuance of "the life of liberal learning" and heard him declare that "the social principles that make a nation strong and good . . . are those which have been evolved by the people themselves in the course of independent, aggressive action and experience."

"Seek happiness in personal growth of all kinds, but particularly in the development of intellectual power, emotional sensitiveness, social consciousness, aesthetic appreciation, spiritual understanding and faith," he advised.

"A harmonious personal development is the best security for the individual, and through the leadership which will surely result, the best security for 'society.' This humane security must be sought through decision, initiative, self-discipline and self-control—the privileges of liberty.

"Democracy will not be safe when there is a 'chicken in every pot,' or even when we have a 'more abundant life' in purely material terms. At least, democracy will not be safe with these attainments alone. We all want and shall have a higher standard of living in this country, but it must be measured in broad concepts, including a wider distribution of the non-material benefits.

"And high among these must be a love of liberty, so strongly entrenched that it will withstand pressure, propaganda and fear. It is quite possible that this love of liberty can be so dulled in a generation or two that it will lose its vitality and we shall lose the fruits of 300 years constant growth; it has happened in less than a generation in Russia and Japan, in Germany and Italy. Let us not permit it to happen here, but rather cherish passionately the love of liberty which we inherited, and seek our security in it.

"The life of liberal learning does not add cubits to our stature, nor does it always put money in our purse. Yet you know what education has done for you, what difference it has made, how it has enlarged all the horizons of experience and made life infinitely richer and more

McDaniels Wins Tennis Singles Title

W. N. McDaniels, who last summer annexed a share of the tennis doubles title, this week added the 1937 summer singles title to his collection by defeating John A. Johnson by 6-2, 6-3.

McDaniels and his partner, Paul Lavik, also advanced a step closer to the doubles championship in the round robin elimination by defeating Johnson and Ray Bassett by 6-2, 6-4. Before they annex this title, however, the duo must down the Green-Christians combination.

For the second consecutive year, Johnson found the singles crown almost within his grasp. Last season, he advanced the semi-finals before being eliminated in the singles and with K. C. Van Orden took second place in the 1936 doubles.

McDaniels completed his march to the top of the eliminations without dropping a set. He opened his conquest by defeating Bill Graves, 6-2, 6-0 and then defeated Ray Bassett by 6-3, 6-4, Charles Hedlund by 6-1, 6-0 and Clarence Glasrud by 6-0, 6-1 in that order to reach the finals.

As the final day of the first term came around the golf championship lay between Evan Finger and Fran Whittaker, with the former the winner in division two and the latter in division one. That match was scheduled to be played by Saturday.

significant. You know too what obligation to live your best, to grow, to judge, to produce, to lead is laid upon you by your attainment of the real maturity of the educated adult.

"We have developed a kind of leadership in business, science, and politics. But our technical advances, capacity for business organization and economic production have far outstripped our moral capacity to control these advances. It is through education that we must seek our new leadership—leadership with the capacity for broad synthesis in all phases of living and thinking."

British Pastor on Seminar Program At Center Tonight

Dr. Leyton Richards, British pastor and author, will be a special speaker on the program of the Ministerial Seminar today at 7:30 p.m. in the chapel of the Center for Continuation Study. His talk will be open to summer session students without charge and will be on the subject, "Can Christianity Stand Another War?"

For the past 13 years the pastor of Carrs Lane Congregational church in Birmingham, England, Dr. Richards is the author of three books on international questions, among them "The Christian Alternative to War," "The Christian's Contribution to Peace" and "Realistic Pacifism."

Born in Sheffield, Dr. Richards was trained for the ministry at the University of Glasgow and at Mansfield College, Oxford. Three years prior to the World War, he was the secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in London.

One other lecture on the day's program of the seminar will be open to students of the summer session. It will be Miss Gertrude Vaile's discussion of social security legislation at 1:15 p.m. There will be an admission charge for this talk which is a part of the regular seminar program. Miss Vaile is associate director of the graduate course in social work at the university.

The six-day seminar will close Saturday with a summary by Professor Lisgar R. Eckhardt of DePauw university who has been the chief resident instructor, and a luncheon. On today's program, however, are several discussion groups including one at 8:30 a.m. on "Adult Psychology with Emphasis on How to Arouse and Maintain Interest in Learning" by Herbert Sorenson, assistant professor of education.

At 10:45 a.m., Professor Eckhardt will speak on "The Task of Religion and the Church" and at 3 p.m. Ole Pearson, superintendent of the public relief department, Minneapolis, will talk on "Public Welfare Administration."
